LAND FORCES CLAIM VICTORY IN MIMIC WAR

Fleet Attacks Fortifications at Portland, Me.

Tons of Powder Burned By the Opposing Forces.

Division Headquarters, Fort Levett, Cushings Island, Portland, Me., Aug. 26.—The army under the command of Col. S. M. Mills, it is believed gained a victory over a portion of the fleet commanded by Admiral Barker in an engagement which lasted for three hours this morning. Two phases of the manouvers were worked out and in both the army umpires claimed the victory. The first, the attempt to land a force was begun shortly after one o'clock and was repulsed with heavy loss. The second phase was the attempt to run the batteries and was begun in the grey of the dawn. The army claim that the vessels in this attempt were destroyed by gun fire and the mines.

The discovery was made that the powerful searchlights were able to penetrate the fog and the vessels of the attacking fleet were picked up at a distance of 10,000 yards.

Portland, Me., Aug. 26.—Through dense smoke and amid the tumult of continuous firing of cannon, the battleships Keasarge, Illinois and Alabama entered this port early today, having stormed the main entrance to the harbor in connection with the great war game which is going on this week in this vicinity. From midnight, when the scouts of the hostile fleet were discovered by the picket of the army on shore, until daylight, when the battleships came up the channel, Portland was treated to an experience very much like actual warfare. Where the Victory, if any, is not apparent to shore observers.

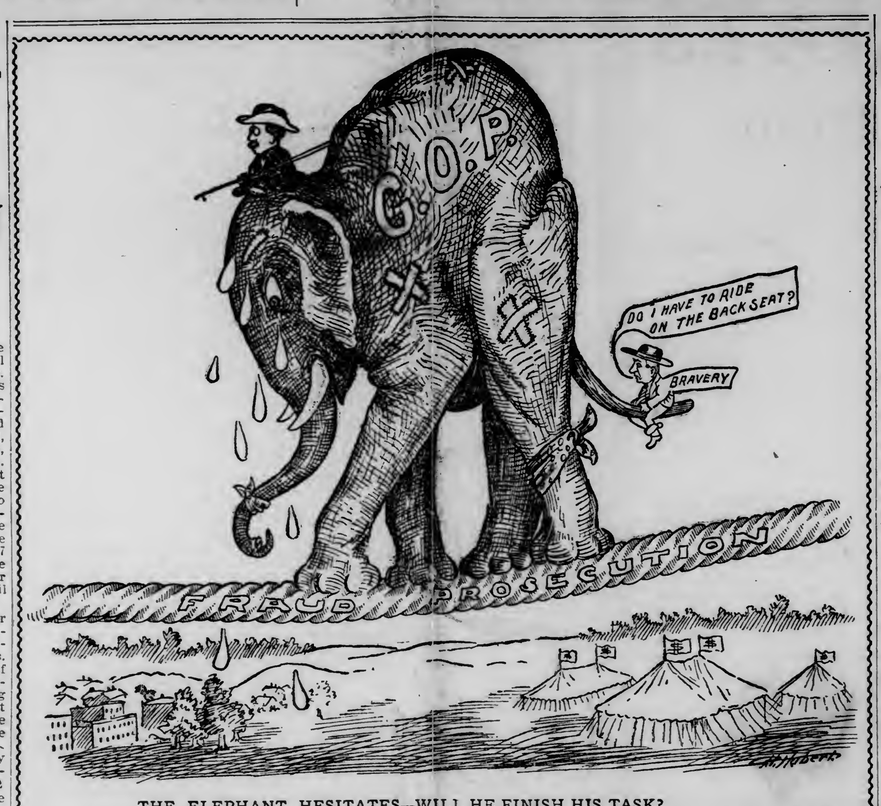

The night was a sleepless one, not only for all actually engaged in the maneuveres, but for many in the city. It was midnight when the searchlights of the forts discovered two torpedo destroyers in the outer harbor. Firing began at once and then ceased. An hour later the presence of a battleship was revealed by the searchlights, and several of the forts opened fire. This vessel returned the fire and after that the cannonading became general. A cutter and launch containing landing parties were captured and at 3:25 a. m. all the outer forts were engaged in action with the three big vessels, which afterwards were recognized as the Kearsarge, Illinois and Alabama.

While two torpedo boat destroyers and other small craft had been detailed to the duty of threatening the various passages of the harbor, the movement against the main channel had been reserved for the battleships. For more than an hour the big vessels stood off the main entrance to the harbor. At 4 o'clock they began the advance. With the Kearsarge leading and the Illinois and Alabama close behind, each bleaching broadsides at the forts, they sailed slowly towards the city. Forts Williams, Preble and Levett poured uninterrupted fire into the ships. In turn each ship seemed to concentrate fire on one fort after another until the vessels had reached the inner harbor. As the ships crept on the fort the firing ceased slowly and by 7 o'clock the echo of the guns at the eastern side of the bay, where a minor engagement was going on, was all that could be heard.

The battleships maneouvered for a time and then they went back toward the outer harbor, where they began cruising about among the islands. Early in the forenoon the scene of action shifted to the passage into Hussey's sound, between Peaks and Long islands. From this vicinity great clouds of smoke were arising and the roar of many guns was heard as the Olympia lead a fleet against Fort McKinley. At the main entrance they came slowly, the Olympia closely followed by the Baltimore. There were four other vessels in the fleet, the principal one being the training ship Newport. The others were the converted yacht Vixen and the two torpedo boat destroyers Worden and Stewart.

For a time the firing was as violent as that marking the passage of the battleships. Then the action ceased suddenly.

With the interval in the long continued action came a chance to review the entire movement from midnight to mid forenoon. The land forces claimed that though the battleships had passed the forts and entered the harbor they were not able to take the city and had dropped back to the outer harbor to signal for reinforcements. Those coming up under lead of the Olumpia had engaged the forts and anchored for a time to renew the attack. While ships were lying at anchor after the action the third section of the enemy's squadron including the Chicago, two torpedo boats, one second class battleship and one large cruiser joined the waiting fleet.

JOHNSON IS NOMINATED FOR GOVERNOR BY ACCLAMATION

Cleveland Man Controls Ohio Convention.

Victory Over Zimmerman Clique Is Decisive.

Columbus, O., Aug. 26.—Tom L. Johnson of Cleveland, was nominated for governor by acclamation.

Columbus, O., Aug. 26.—Although "the fighting" was all over last night, the galleries were packed long before W. J. Frey, chairman of the state central committee called the Democratic state convention to order at 10:20 a. m. today. Demonstrations had been arranged for several places in the order of business, notably in the entry of Mayor Johnson, the presentation of his name for governor, his acceptance and participation in the endorsement of a candidate for Senator Hanna's place and those expecting a good exhibition were not disappointed. Among the delegates who were unseated were Lewis Bernard, leader of the Democratic party at Cincinnati for a quarter of a century and ex-Congressman J. A. Norton who had sounded the keynotes as chairman of former conventions. Formerly the men were cheered as they entered the hall.

Before the convention assembled some of the Johnson men who are opposed to Clarke offered to support John L. Zimmerman for senatorial endorsement but Zimmerman would not accept.

Before Rev. John Hewitt offered prayer a delegate displayed a Johnson banner with a large portrait and cheers followed. Mayor Johnson was loudly cheered as he entered the hall.

After reviewing the work of the past campaign, Mr. Frey announced the temporary organization and introduced G. M. Saltzgaber as temporary chairman, who spoke as follows:

"We raised the banners which shall have inscribed upon them 'war against tariff iniquities,' and Republicans who love honor and justice will fight with us and for us. Three-fifths of the voters of Ohio are honestly opposed to a continuation of the wicked favors granted to beneficiaries under tariff laws. Those laws are diametrically and everlastingly opposed to the Democratic doctrine, to the cherished American doctrine, of equal rights. Convince the people that you are in earnest and will carry this one reform into effect and on that alone the majority will sweep you into power.

Why should they continue to vote with Mr. Hanna? Nineteen-twentieths of the voters of Ohio are also righteously opposed to Mr. Hanna's ship subsidy scheme to draw money from the public treasury and bestow it on those already rich. Will a majority of voters consent that Mr. Hanna shall remain in power to further schemes by which some are enriched at the expense of the many.

The tariff system does shelter monopoly and trusts. Trusts are a menace to our Republican institutions. The opposition party, no matter what moves it, pretends to make, will never seriously impair the growing power of the trusts. The only hope for relief lies in the success of the Democratic party.

Let us not lower or surrender our high ideals on the subject of human rights. Let us maintain that America is the 'free hearts hope and home,' and that not only here shall there be shelter to the oppressed of all nations, but that there shall not cease to go forth, the sublime doctrine of liberty to all men everywhere.

The Iowa Republicans recommend that self-government be conceded to the Phillippines, so far as this is found practicable. Let us rejoice that the right to self-government is recommended, but who is to determine when the concessions are found practicable? Senator Teller pointed the way in the case of Cuba. Let us insist that this exalted example be followed. The spirit that subjugated is the same that demands an increase in the standing army, and continuing increase in the navy. Washington warned us that overgrown military establishments are inauspicious to liberty under any form of government and are to be regarded as particularly hostile to Republican liberty. Instead of the modern boast that the nation is great, let us rather, as of old, say our government is good. Our strenuous ruler in his giant strides across the continent, voices the military spirit. Gazing over the western sea, he exclaims, 'We must dominate the Pacific.'

It has always been the declaration of the Democratic party that the people should rule. Because of human weakness the action of legislative bodies is often unsatisfactory to the people. In municipal affairs, as well as in state matters, the people should have a voice in determining the nature of the laws that govern them, and also how franchises and privileges should be bestowed.

Peculation in the post office department and especially brought home to Republican politicians of high rank, again admonish the people that, although that party may create and foster monopolies in other matters, it has not yet secured a monopoly of honesty. It may be the general average of the Democratic party is no higher than that of the Republican on this score, but it is a good thing, when one party has been long entrenched in power and has become corrupt, to 'turn the rascals out.'

There can be no civil progress except in the orderly processes of the law. We are all shocked at the recent manifestations of brute force in the lynchings, burnings and tortures which are a disgrace to our civilization. But has not the example of disregard for law set by those who are greedily fattening on privilege and monopoly something to do with the spirit that prevails? Have we not as a nation gone mad in the rush for wealth, the frenzied struggle to get rich quick? And is there not a deep conviction that those who promote great enterprises have a sneering contempt for law and lawmakers? May this not then have encouraged others lower down to think that might makes right, and that cunning and deceit may ply their vocation unmolested?

TURKS INTEND TO EXTIRPATE THE BULGARIAN POPULATION

London, Aug. 26.—According to a Sofia telegram to the Times, the Turkish repressive measures in Macedonia have reached the utmost limits of barbarism and it is evident that it is the intention to accomplish by degrees the total extirpation of the Bulgarian population.

Within the last few days, says the Times correspondent, twelve more Christian villages have been handed over to fire and sword and the women, children and the aged have been massacred indiscriminately. Convoys of prisoners despatched to Monastir have been murdered by their escorts on the way. A private letter from a foreign resident in Monastir says even the local Turks are disgusted and meditate assassinating the consuls in order to provoke European intervention.

The insurgents are doubtless taking a terrible revenge and are executing the revolutionary promoters right and left. In the special dispatches from the near east published this morning a gloomy view is taken of the crisis in the Balkans. According to reports from Constantinople a rumor was current that war had already been declared against Bulgaria. It was proved to be unfounded, but the state of popular feeling is said to be such that no other issue is regarded as possible.

It is further stated that although the Russian squadron was withdrawn from Inidla it continues to cruise near the Bosphorus.

It is reported that several Italians have been murdered by Turks at Ismid, a seaport in Asia-Minor, 53 miles southeast of Constantinople.

From Belgrade it is announced that a big mass meeting of Macedonians intended to be held August 23, was postponed to August 30, by order of the government on account of Turkish protests.

It is also stated from Monastir that the revolutionary committees are appealing to the Christian population to refuse to pay taxes and that their appeal is meeting with much success.

The insurgents in the Debr district are said to be destroying the villages and murdering their inhabitants.

Constantinople, Aug. 26.—The government has decided to call to the colors, all the remaining European reserves belonging to the second and third army corps and a number of other reserves which will bring the total of Turkish soldiers in Macedonia up to 350 battalions or almost double the force utilized in the Turco-Greek war. The enrollment of such large bodies of troops indicates the seriousness with which Turkey views the situation and her determination to use all the means at her disposal to quell the rebellion. Abhim Pasha, the new commander of the troops, is a young and capable officer. Seven battalions have been dispatched to Florina from Monastir.

The valis of Monastir and Salonica telegraph that they are now able to guarantee the maintenance of order in their respective towns.

In taking more energetic measures for the suppression of the revolution, Turkey is acting in accordance with the advice of the powers. The negotiations which have been in progress relative to the Balkan situation complicate a general European conference and at present seem directed towards letting the sultan have a free hand in quelling the revolution in Macedonia.

The forthcoming conference of King Edward with Emperor Francis Joseph and King George of Greece, at Vienna, and the visits of the czar and Emperor William to Vienna and of the czar and Foreign Minister Lamsdorff to Rome, will enable the monarchs to thoroughly discuss Balkan affairs, and before the conclusion of the conferences Turkey proposes, so far as possible, to restore order, so that international action will be unnecessary. An official of the Turkish embassy here said to a representative of the Associated Press today:

"The calling out of additional troops by Turkey is due solely to the decision to suppress the insurrection at once. It is not in anticipation of war with Bulgaria. Turkey has no intention of declaring war, in spite of rumors to the contrary, and Bulgaria, warned by the powers, does not seem at this moment to contemplate the position. We know what public opinion is in Bulgaria, and how the situation may change tomorrow, but in the meantime Turkey proposes to lose no time in restoring peace."

Chicago, Aug. 26.—An affection which began in childhood and was unchanged by years, is woven through the life story of Kuehne Beveridge, sculptress, and W. B. Branson, South African miner, who were married at Trouville, France, yesterday.

When Miss Beveridge, 6 years old, met Branson, 10 years old, in San Francisco, they at once became playmates and fast friends. When Kuehne returned to Illinois to visit her grandfather, former Governor John L. Beveridge, young Branson placed a ring woven from horse hair on her finger, and there it remained until 1896, when Kuehne married Charles Coghlan, the actor.

Branson, heart broken, sought solace in work, and for four years, from 1893 to 1897, studied mining engineering in Chicago. During this period he worked in several manufacturing houses, lived in a modest room in North Clark street, and saved his money. In 1898 he went to South Africa.

There he rose rapidly and had prosperity beyond his dreams, when he learned that his former sweetheart was free again. Immediately Branson renewed his correspondence, which had long been broken off.

The engagement was announced early in the summer. Their honeymoon will be spent on Mr. Branson's steam yacht.

Miss Beveridge's last work was a bas-relief of the charge of the Rough Riders up San Juan hill.

YACHTS WERE NOT INJURED IN SQUALL AT SANDY HOOK

Fierce Wind Did Not Harm Ninety Footers—Time Allowance In Preliminary Races This Year Shows That Constitution Defeated Reliance Twice.

New York, Aug. 26.—An alleged wireless report from the yacht Erin, which is equipped with the De Forest wireless system, published in a morning paper, to the effect that Shamrock III was seriously damaged during yesterday's storm and that there was a possibility of Sir Thomas Lipton asking for a postponement, caused considerable excitement in yachting circles. Investigation promptly proved that the statement was without foundation. Shamrock rode out yesterday's squall without the slightest damage, although the big anchor was dropped as an additional precaution.

There was no particular evidence at Sandy Hook today of last night's blow except the broken bowsprit of the Giralda.

C. Oliver Iselin, abord the Sunbeam, the defender's tender, said that as far as he knew, there was no material damage to any one. Mr. Iselin, Capt. Barr and Designer Herreshoff, of Reliance, had a long conference today, but Mr. Iselin refused to say anything for publication as to its character.

Herbert Leeds today said C. D. Mower, measurer of the New York Yacht club, was expected later in the day, but it was not anticipated that any change in the sailing length of the Reliance would be found. The time allowance under which Reliance, Constitution and Columbia have sailed in the preliminary races this year was made known today. The times have been kept secret. Reliance allowed Constitution 1 minute and 46 seconds and Columbia 2 minutes and 41 seconds in all races.

By these times it is figured that Constitution won two races from Reliance, but Columbia failed to score. Reliance sustained no damage whatever in yesterday's squall.

Sir Thomas Lipton refuses to give up hope. He was very much surprised today to learn for the first time that Shamrock III was handicapped 19 seconds at the start of yesterday's race. "That's very bad," he said, but made no other criticism.

SAM PARKS SENTENCED

To Sing Sing For Two and One Half Years.

New York, Aug. 26.—Sam Parks, business agent for the Housesmiths and Bridgemen's union, was sentenced today to not less than two years and six months, nor more than three years and six months, in Sing Sing on a charge of extortion.

REPRESENTATION FOR POLES.

New York, Aug. 26.—Documents have been received here from William J. D. Croke, private chamberlain to Pope Pius X, relating to the endeavors that are being made to secure for the Polish population in the United States a representation of their nationality in the American hierarchy. This action opens again the controversy which caused so much friction in 1900 concerning the Italian, Slovak, Lithuanians and Bohemian representation.

SIMS ACCEPTS.

Chicago, Aug. 26.—County Attorney Edwin J. Sims today mailed to Secretary Cortelyou, of the department of commerce and labor, his acceptance of solicitor for the bureau of corporations tendered his last week. His actual appointment is expected to follow immediately upon the receipt of his letter in Washington.

CLOQUET RIVALS MINNEAPOLIS

Minneapolis, Aug. 26.—(Special to the Herald.)—Slight reductions in the prices of laths and certain grades of fencing were decided on at the semi-annual meeting of the Mississippi Valley Lumbermen's association held at the West hotel yesterday afternoon. The price of eighteen foot lumber was put up slightly and other prices left at their present level. The secretary reported that the lumber output of Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin and lower Michigan would be much smaller this year than last and that the record held by Minneapolis for years as being the largest lumber cutting center in the world was in danger of being captured by the little town of Cloquet, Minn. The cut in Minneapolis is 100,000,000 feet smaller than usual.

JEALOUS WOMAN SHOOTS TO KILL

Seattle, Aug. 26.—Frank Tanghbaugh, a floor walker in the employ of Frederick & Nelson, was shot and fatally wounded in his own lodgings shortly after midnight this morning by Mrs. H. E. Finley, a stenographer. The shooting took place in the presence of Tanghbaugh's wife and 6-year-old child, who claim to have been menaced by a revolver in the hands of Mrs. Finley for fully twenty minutes before her husband appeared on the scene. Tanghbaugh had hardly entered the room before Mrs. Finley levelled her revolver at him and fired two shots. It is not believed that he can survive. Jealousy is believed to be at the bottom of the affair.

HUNDREDS IN PANIC

On Pleasure Craft Returning From the Cup Race.

Morgan's Yacht Run Down the Yacht Club's Steamer.

New York, Aug. 26.—Only the coolness and presence of mind of Rear Admiral Winfield Scott Schley and Capt. Martin prevented a disastrous panic on board the New York Yacht club steamer Monmouth, when she was in collision with the handsome steam yacht Corsair, owned by J. Pierpont Morgan, during the swift run home from the Shamrock-Reliance race yesterday.

On board the Monmouth were nearly 900 members and guests of the New York Yacht club, while Mr. Morgan had more than a score of guests with him on the Corsair. According to Capt. Martin of the Monmouth, the club boat was leading the Corsair by about fifty yards when a small yacht crossed her bows. This, he said, made it necessary for him to deflect his course slightly eastward to avoid running down and sinking the schooner. Accordingly the swift coastwise steamer veered sharply from her course, while the Corsair steamed straight ahead under full steam.

The Corsair crashed into the forward section of the Monmouth with tremendous force. Ripping and grinding through the deck rails and flimsier structure of the steamer, the Corsair raked the latter from stem to stern. Her own bowsprit was snapped off at the first impact, the forward section falling into the water, while the end that held fast completed the work of destruction. Then, to complete matters the 3000-pound anchor of the Corsair came in contact with the steamer.

Swiss Consul John Bertschmann and several of his guests, including Rear Admiral Schley and Mmes. Muser and Wettlaufer of Berlin, who are visiting at the Curlin country home in Westchester county, were dining in one of the second deck staterooms when the vessels struck. Without warning and before any of them could escape from the stateroom, the broken bowsprit of the Corsair crashed through the window. At the same time a big iron davitt was hurled into the cabin, missing Mmes. Curtin and Muser by only a few inches, crashed through the stateroom floor and created consternation on the deck below. Both women fainted and were carried into the companionway, where restoratives were applied.

Realizing the peril in case a general panic ensued Admiral Schley mounted the companionway ladder and shouted to the fear-stricken passengers that there was no immediate danger. Several passengers recognized him and began cheering.

Meanwhile Capt. Martin had made an examination and found the Monmouth had not been struck below the waterline and was in no danger of sinking. Joining Admiral Schley, he informed the passengers of this fact and other good heads assisted in restoring order. At this moment the Seventh regiment band, which had ceased playing when the collision occurred, struck up a popular air and completed the work of reassuring everyone, begun by Capt. Martin and Admiral Schley.

William Cramp, a member of the famous Cramp Ship Building company of Philadelphia, which built the Monmouth, was on board and gave a graphic description of the disaster.

"Both the steamer and the Corsiar were racing at a seventeen knot speed," he said, "when in order to prevent running down the schooner, the Monmouth veered sharply to the right and directly in the path of the Corsair. The latter had crept up almost to our midships and instead of veering to correspond with tae Monmouth she steered straight on her course. I immediately realized that a collision was inevitable and warned several passengers nearest us to stand back from the rail and hold fast.

"Hardly was this done when the bow of the Corsair struck us with terrific force. Had the Monmouth been a smaller vessel she would have been nearly cut in two. As it was she lurched tremendously to leeward while the Corsair's bowsprit and anchor crunched and ground along the full length of the steamer."

Admiral Schley was inclined to minimize his efforts to allay the panic that followed the collision. He said:

"I was with a party of friends when we first saw the hull of the Corsair looming outside of our stateroom window. A moment later came the terrific grinding as the yacht tore her way along our side. I suppose the Monmouth must have slackened her speed, as the broken bowsprit of the yacht crashed almost straight into our stateroom. That some of our party were not instantly killed is a subject of congratulation, as the broken bowsprit narrowly grazed two of the women, and we were all in some danger from the iron davitt which crashed into the room. My opinion is that the Corsair was caught in the suction of the bigger boat and was unable to draw away in time to prevent a collision. I do not think the captain of either vessel was to blame."

MARSHAL IS UNDER FIRE

Charged With Using Office to Further Personal Ambition.

Washington, Aug. 26.—Serious charges have been filed at the department of justice against Benj. H. Colbert, United States marshal for the southern district of the Indian territory. The charges were preferred by F. Finis Fox, editor of a daily and weekly newspaper at Ardmore. Among the allegations of misconduct against Mr. Colbert is the assertion that he made use of his position to further the political ambitions of his friends, taking prisoners out of jail in order to give them a chance to vote; threatening to imprison an Indian if he did not vote according to the marshal's directions; connection with a land company engaged in deals with the Indians; continued neglect of duty and absence from the sessions of court and from the territory.

The complaint says of Mr. Colbert: "Soon after his appointment he took an active interest in the gubernatorial election of the Chickasaw Nation and used his office to intimidate by force of arms the opponents of his candidate for governor, and by false representations induced the government of the United States to use its civil powers in the furtherance of his political schemes, which caused not only the expediture of a large amount of money, but which necessitated the taking away of a large number of deputy marshals from their posts of duty."

Col. Colbert, reappointed as deputy marshal a Chickasaw Indian named Ben Collins, who had been removed from that position for misconduct in office. Collins is said to have expressed pleasure at the news that President McKinley had been shot and to have expressed the hope that he would die so that Colbert could get a job.

BURNED TO DEATH

Small Portions of Body Are Found In the Ruins.

The remains were taken from the smouldering ruins this afternoon.

Fire of an unknown source destroyed the dwelling at midnight and Mr. Rankin was asleep, apparently, and did not have time to get out of his room.

The theory of neighbors is that a lamp, by which he was reading, exploded, saturating the bed clothing with burning oil.

Only a portion of Mr. Rankin's body could be found and this was near the wreckage of an iron bed in which he slept.

He was alone in the house at the time, his family having gone to Ireland last spring. At that time Mr. Rankin and his wife had some difficulty and friends had him arrested in order that they might get Mrs. Rankin and the children safely started for Ireland without trouble.

It was the intention that Mr. Rankin should also go to Ireland taking a later boat, but for some reason the trip was postponed by him and he lived alone all summer. He was about fifty years of age, and comes from a family of considerable wealth in Ireland.

Those that saw the flames say the house was consumed in a remarkably short time. When they missed Mr. Rankin a search was made but no trace of the missing man could be found. The search was then abandoned until morning and it was found that the ruins were still too hot to permit extensive searching. Along toward noon a man raking over the embers found portions of the iron bed in which Mr. Rankin slept, and a few hours later ran across some charred bone. It is believed that most of the body was consumed, and will never be recovered.

The house was owned by a wealthy sister of the dead man who lived with him until about a year ago and is now living in Australia. The house was valued at $2000 and is a total loss. Nothing remains standing except the chimney.

OSKOSH CELEBRATES.

Oskosh, Wis., Aug 26.—Oskosh is celebrating the semi-centennial anniversary of its incorporation as a city today. The features will be a military, civic, and industrial parade, in which a number of Menominee Indians, headed by the son and grandson of Chief Oskosh will march, water carnival and fire run. The city is gaily decorated.

"The Tecumseh"

THRESHING RETURNS

Reports Coming In Indicate a Fine Yield of Grain.

Wheat In North Dakota Running Higher Than the Estimates.

Threshing returns coming to grain men in Duluth from North Dakota tell of crops considerably beyond the expectations a month ago and beyond what most of the estimators figured.

M. J. Forbes has received returns from a number of points through several channels. Here are some of the figures:

Mapleton—16 to 20 bushels to the acre.

Forest River—16 bushels.

Delemere—10 to 14 bushels.

Moreton—15, 18 and 20 bushels of wheat and 15, 20 and 30 bushels of barley; oats light.

Carrington—Wheat 6 to 14 bushels; macaroni, 10 bushels.

Bluffton—No returns on wheat. Rye threshes 20 bushels and oats 30.

Deer Creek—15 bushels and quality poor.

Rhodes—Wheat 5 bushels, flax 3 bushels. This is a district from which not much was expected.

Halstead—Wheat runs 20½, 29, 30 and even 35 bushels to the acre.

Battle Lake—5 to 20 bushels from fields where about that much was expected.

Nelson—26½ bushels wheat.

Mecklnock—10 to 14 bushels of wheat, 10 to 23 bushels of barley.

From the Dalrymple farm, William Dalrymple has heard some returns. One section ran 18 bushels to the acre; a quarter section ran 14 bushels, another 17 bushels and these two were the poorest quarter sections on the farm. Another ran 20 bushels. The quality thus far is good.

Andrews & Gage of Minneapolis write that they have heard of one yield of 49 bushels of macaroni to the acre but that this is about 15 bushels higher than any other report they have had.

DOWNIE-CULBERTSON.

Pretty Wedding Takes Place at Bride's Home.

Miss Mildred Downie and Byron Culbertson were married yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, 1931 West First street.

The bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Downie and has been for the past three years a teacher in the Duluth schools.

The groom is the assistant superintendent of the Red Cliff mill, and is a young man of exceptional business ability.

The wedding was a quiet one, only a few of the relatives and close friends of the young couple being present. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. W. Loughridge, pastor of the Second Baptist church.

After the wedding dinner Mr. and Mrs. Culbertson left for a lake trip. They will be at home at 1931 West First street, after September 15.

SARATOGA "WELCHER"

Sends Money For Settlement of His Debts.

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 26.—The outside debts of the man who left town suddenly on Thursday without paying the bookmakers what he owed them are being settled by a friend of his here, the money passing through the hands of a young woman from the friend of the alleged welcher to the creditors.

The debts that are being settled are those owing to tradesmen, liverymen and others in the village. Negotiations have not been opened with the bookmakers as yet, and they are wondering whether or not the young woman will come around to see them with some of the good friend's money.

According to the best estimate which the ring could put out today, the total amount which the young man owes to the ring is about $5,000.

UNIQUE INVITATIONS

Issued For the Hanging of Martin Zidmair.

St. Paul, Aug. 26.—A special to the Dispatch from Helena, Mont., says: Sheriff Robertson of Livingston has just issued rather elaborate invitations for the hanging of Martin Zidmair, who was convicted of the murder of George Rieder. The invitations are printed on white paper, with a heavy black border. In the upper left corner of the invitation is a printed portrait of the condemned man.

A NEW SWINDLE.

Chicago, Aug. 26.—Chief of Police O'Neill has appealed to the St. Louis authorities to assist him in capturing a swindler whose method is to address a c. o. d. package to persons recently deceased, for the purpose of collecting the express charges. The amount is invariably forthcoming from the relatives of the decedent and the package when opened is found to contain some worthless article. Scores of complaints have been made to the police recently.

FORTS ARE STRONG

Washington, Aug. 26.—The great system of modern fortifications for the protection of our 5558 miles of seaboard, work upon which was begun sixteen years ago, is now approaching completion, and three-fourths of the guns have already been placed in position. Only about $15,000,000 worth of huge rifles and mortars, in addition to those already provided, will be needed to finish the armament of these mighty defensive structures, which constitute the most superb and costly series of fortresses existing in the world.

"What we chiefly need at present is about $500,000 to spend on target practice," said Gen. Crozier, chief of the ordnance bureau, recently. "Now that we have the guns, our men must learn to hit the mark. But accuracy of marksmanship is not the only point involved. Incidentally to the shooting, the gunners will have a much-needed opportunity to learn how to handle the weapons. A modern high power, coast defense gun is a huge an delebarate machine, the efective management of which requires much skill, such as is only to be gained by experience."

It costs a big sum of money to build and arm an up-to-date fort in these days. A single twelve-inch rifle comes to $45,000, its carriage to $41,000 in addition, and the emplacement of concrete in which it stands to $60,000. There is $146,000 right off; and, perhaps, eight or more such emplacements, each containing its huge gun, may be required. The total expense will easily eat up a couple of million dollars, though a good deal depends upon the question whether the works have to be blasted out of solid rock or dug out of sand.

A modern fortress is not a walled enclosure, as of old, but a hole in the ground, or, rather, a series of holes called emplacements, built of concrete, and each of them containing one or more guns. No lofty and menacing structure strikes the eye of the observer who approaches the works; but, instead, there is likely to be rolling greensward, with clumps of bushes, suggesting rather the skill of the landscape gardener, than that of the military engineer. The real protection consists of thirty feet of masonry and thirty feet of earth, which forms a plane sloping outward, so that any projectile striking it is promptly buried or glances off harmless.

The fort which defends the harbor of Boston (situated on an island), which is one of the finest in the world, has thirty guns and mortars. Several of the former are twelve-inch rifles, but the exact character of the armament is kept carefully secret by the military authorities The mortars are arranged behind the cannon, and are able to throw explosive shells for a distance of three miles with sufficient accuracy to hit a ship. These projectiles are not intended to penetrate but merely to drop upon the deck of a vessel and burst. They carry a big charge of "maximite," which is thre times as powerful as gunpowder, and one of them would be able to put a battleship out of action.

There are to be in all 568 mortars of twelve-inch caliber, distributed among the various coast fortifications, and three-fourths of them are now in position. They are a great improvement on the oldfashioned mortars of cast iron with steel hoops, and the latter are being relegated to the less important harbors. A mortar of the new type is thirteen feet long, weighs nearly 30,000 pounds, and requires a charge of 125 pounds to send its explosive conical projectile on its deadly mission. Weapons of this character have not yet undergone a practical test in war, but it is thought they will do effective work.

A twelve-inch rifle of the pattern used in our seacoast fortresses is forty feet long, weighs fifty-seven tons, requires a powder charge of 520 pounds, and fires a 1000-pound projectile a distance of nine miles, with a velocity (on leaving the muzzle) of 2100 feet per second. It could shoot the same projectile fourteen or fifteen miles if it muzzle was sufficiently elevated, but there would be no object in such a performance, inasmuch as there is no use in aiming at an enemy who is beyond the limit of vision, and a ship is out of sight only seven miles away, owing to the curvature of the earth.

These guns—an dthe same may be said These guns—and the same may be said of the ten-inch and eight-inch rifles—shoot three kinds of projectiles. One is the so-called armor-piercing shot which is nearly solid, having only a small cavity to contain a high explosive. The second is the armor-piercing shell which has a larger cavity, so as to contain more of the explosives. The third is the torpedo shell, which is in effect a torpedo, having thin walls and containing a large bursting charge of maximite This explosive, by the way, is a government secret, so far as its composition is concerned.

Most of the great rifles are mounted on disappearing carriages, so that they are safe from injury by shot except at the moment of firing. When its fire has been delivered, the cannon is lowered promptly below the parapet, and, after being reloaded, is uplifted again to the firing position. This is accomplished rapidly and easily, and the mechanism is so perfect that it suffers not at all from the tremendous shock of the discharge of a quarter of a ton of gunpowder.

At the beginning of the war with Spain, the government, owing to the parsimony of congress, had no smokeless powder. We have now some millions of pounds of that kind of explosive on hand, safely stored in the various seacoast fortresses. Apropos of which it is worth mentioning that when we took possession of the fortifications at Havana many of the front sights of the Spanish guns were missing. Others were made, but, in putting them in pdace, it was found that the lines of sight were so "out" as to make a deviation of fire at 5000 yards great enough to miss a ship. This was the case with nearly all the cannon. They were made at Spanish arsenals, and it is reasonable to suppose that the same defect existed in the guns mounted on the Spanish war vessels—a theory which would account for the slight damage inflicted upon our own ships by the guns of Spain.

The new system of seacoast defences comprises fortifications at Portland, Me., Portsmouth, N. H., Boston, Narragansett bay, the east entrance to Long Island sound, the east and south entrances to New York harbor, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Hampton roads, Wilmington, Charleston, Savanah, Key West, Pensacola, Mobile, New Orleans, Galveston, San Diego, San Francisco, the mouth of the Columbia river and Puget sound.

"One thing for which the war department is very anxious," said Gen Crozier, "is the proper fortification of our newly acquired islands. We have had these islands for five years, now, and nothing has been done toward providing them with modern defensive works. Manilla harbor could be, and ought to be, made impregnable, and other important harbors in the Philippines, the Hawaiian islands and Porto Rico are equally in need of forts and guns. Thus far, however, congress has refused to give any money for the purpose, and there is no telling how long it will be before adequate measures are taken for placing these valuable strategic points in a suitable condition for defence."

AT WEST DULUTH

Ivan Gutsky, a Russian who has but recently arrived in this country, made a vain search through West Duluth yesterday for a brother, whom he thought was residing in this portion of the city.

He could speak but little English and had great difficulty in making known the object of his search.

He said that his brother had come to America about six years ago, and had settled in Chicago, later moving to Duluth, where he said he was employed in a saw mill. He wrote to his family in Russia, advising his brother to come to America, where he said there was plenty of work for all.

Ivan, who is a young man of about 25 years of age, decided to act on his brother's advice, and landed in New York last spring, picking up some knowledge of the English language during his journeyings.

His brother's name is Peter, and he is described as a man of heavy build, about six feet in height, and of a swarthy complexion.

Ivan has up to the present time been unsuccessful in his search. He made many inquiries among the millmen, but to no avail, and he will probably remain here and find work in one of the mills, while he is looking for his brother.

MANY ARE SIGNING.

Depositors of Merchants Bank Agreeing to Plan.

"If Mr. Smith is allowed to follow out his own plan in the matter of settling the accounts of the Merchants' bank, the creditors will receive dollar for dollar," said H. H. Phelps, who was appointed trustee of the affairs of the creditors.

"If, however, he is forced to go into bankruptcy, I do not believe the depositors will receive 10 cents on the dollar. I do not see how the assets could be made to pay more than that, if he was forced into bankruptcy, after paying the legal expenses. But if he is given time and allowed to settle up the affairs in his own manner, I believe he will pay the creditors in full."

The document appointing Mr. Phelps trustee, is being signed by a large number of the depositors. About 100 signatures have been attached to the document, which is being kept in the office of Justice of the Peace Robert Stone. It is likely that the required number of signatures will be secured within a few days, and Mr. Phelps will then start upon the work of settling up the bank's affairs.

NEW MEN

Wanted at Once For Venezuelan Arbitration Board.

London, Aug. 26.—In order to have as little delay as possible in the meeting of the Venezuelan tribunal, it is understood that the interested powers have urged the czar to select immediately successors as arbitrators for Professor Matzen of Copenhagen university and Dr. Lardy, the Swiss minister at Paris, who declined to act because their respective countries are interested parties. As all the important states of Europe, save Russia, have claims against Venezuela, the choice of delegates is limited to small states, and to the eastern countries. It is believed in official circles here, however, that the czar will succeed in finding jurists acceptable to the interested powers.

LIBRARIES FOR THE BLIND.

Chicago, Aug. 26.—Discussion of circulating libraries and compulsory education for the blind occupied today's session of the American Peoples' Higher Education and General Improvement association. Ambrose Shotwell, Lansing, Mich., presided. Lew A. Chase Elsie, Mich., read a paper on "Circulating libraries for the blind." In the discussion which followed it was the prevailing opinion that circulating libraries would be more useful if the common system of "finger print" was substituted for the five systems now in use.

TO RETURN HERE

E. C. Blanchard to Succeed G. W. Vanderslice of Northern Pacific.

In City With Officials—No Official Announcement.

Edwin C. Blanchard will succeed George W. Vanderslice as superintendent of the Duluth division of the Northern Pacific railroad.

Mr. Blanchard arrived in Duluth this morning to look over the field. He came with Superintendent of Transportation Richards and Assistant General Superintendent Newman Kline.

The resignation of Mr. Vanderslice, which was placed in the hands of the Northern Pacific railroad at St. Paul Saturday morning, has not been officially accepted as yet, though Mr. Vanderslice is in possession of information that the official notices will be issued in a short time.

Mr. Blanchard and the party of officials arrived in Duluth early this morning in a private car, and spent the day in the yards and at the superintendent's office in the Union depot, looking over the routine business of the office, and the railroad's property in Duluth.

Mr. Vanderslice is anxious to get away, and expressed himself as impatient to take up the new duties he will assume on the Rock Island, superintending a division down in Indian Territory.

Edwin C. Blanchard is about as well known in Duluth as any railroad man who was ever here. He was chief dispatcher in the Northern Pacific offices here when the eastern terminal of the line was at Duluth, and there was no direct Twin City connections. He was made superintendent of this division in 1899, and remained until the middle of that winter, when upon the acquiring of the St. Paul & Duluth line, the Northern Pacific sent Mr. Vanderslice here to take charge of the terminals and both branches of the road out of Duluth, and Mr. Blanchard was transferred to Minneapolis.

Ever since that Mr. Blanchard has been at Minneapolis, superintendent of the Minnesota division.

He will now return to Duluth as superintendent of the most important terminal of the system.

The appointment of Mr. Blanchard will not be made an official announcement till the first of the month, and the officials here today would make no statement, it being the rule of the railroad to have no men in their employ who make announcements before the official notices or circulars come from the general offices.

FOURTH OF JULY SUIT.

Virginia Residents Involved In Dispute Over Runaway.

There will be an echo in district court next term, of the Fourth of July celebration at Virginia this year. Frank Wexel has begun an action to recover damages in the amount of $1260 from Frank Gillmore, whom he claims ran into his rig on Main street, Virginia, causing him to be thrown out and dragged about 50 feet before he was rescued.

Plaintiff alleges that the defendant was drunk and was not exercising proper caution when the accident occurred. The defendant makes answer that he was not drunk, that he was exercising due care in driving, that the plaintiff was negligent in that his horse was frightened at the noise of the explosives and ran in front of defendant's horses.

CHARGED WITH GAMBLING

Joseph Andre, proprietor of the Great Western hotel, 722 West Superior street, was arrested today charged with allowing gambling in his establishment.

He entered a plea of not guilty and the hearing was set over until tomorrow afternoon.

James Morey accuses an unknown gratter of boldly fleecing him in the saloon of Andre's hotel. He says a stranger got him into a "friendly" game and began working a double discard deal on him. Morey lost considerable money.

He then walked up to the bar and offered to bet $50 that he had been buncoed. He threw the $50 down on the bar but picked up the roll and returned it to his pocket. Suddenly he felt the stranger's hand in his pocket and grabbed him. The two men fought their way out to the sidewalk and in the scuffle there broke a window. Morey says this made Andre angry and he struck him such a severe blow that the stranger escaped with his money.

A Female Somnambulist.

Ultra-fastidious citizens of Duluth Heights were shocked last night to see a feminine somnambulist hastening down one of the principal streets, clad only in a robe de nuit.

Without even waking her, friends led her into the home of a friend and it is announced today that the young lady is very ill from the exposure and shock.

It is said the girl has frequently walked around in her own home while sleeping but it was her first attempt at cross country running.

HUNDREDS OF LIVES

Lost By the Great Floods at Che Foo.

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 26.—According to mail advices from Shanghai, several hundred lives were lost in the great floods at Che Foo, briefly reported by cable. After a thunder storm, with heavy rain, a cloudburst occurred and torrents of water poured down on the town, rushing seaward and carrying houses, buildings, trees and people before it. Stores and warehouses were flooded by the sudden flood, and the property loss will reach millions. The water swept with such force as to sweep 400 tons of coal into the sea. The beach was strewn with wreckage and dead and presented an awful sight. Over 300 Chinese were known to be drowned at Che Foo alone. No foreigners are known to have been drowned, but a sailor from the United States steamer New Orleans had a narrow escape.

FRATERNAL INSURANCE

Milwaukee, Aug. 26.—The proposed uniform bill relating to fraternal beneficiary associations, as prepared by the committee on fraternal insurance of the National Convention of Insurance Commissioners, was considered by the national fraternal congress today. The measure is intended to provide a uniform law for all the various states, which shall define a fraternal beneficiary association, that such associations shall be exempt from all provisions of the insurance laws of the states, and that no law passed after this measure becomes a law in any particular state shall apply to them unless they be expressly designated in such law, and it also provides for the manner in which associations shall bpy, hold and dispose of property in the state, etc. The measure also provides for revocation of the license of any such fraternal society exceeding its powers, or whose business is hazardous to the public. It also provides that "no association now authorized by the insurance commissioner of any state in which this bill may become a law, to transact business which pays, or provides for the payment of any benefit for temporary or permanent physical disability, either as the result of disease or accident, shall be permitted to continue such business in association shall, from and after said date, collect from its members holding contracts providing for such benefits, disability premiums or assessments on account of such disability benefits which are not lower than those required by the Manchester unity tables of 1870."

A bill also prepared by the committee on uniform law, of the national fraternal congress, similar in many respects to the commissioners' bill, was also fully considered, and good features were found in both bills.

The bill, when agreed to, will be submitted to the bodies connected with the congress for adoption or rejection and later presented to state legislatures. The bill does not apply to lodges which do not issue insurance certificates.

SAVED A TRAIN.

Rancher Discovered Culvert Washed Out on Northwestern.

St. Paul, Aug. 26.—A special to the Dispatch from Pierre, S. D., says: Andrew P. Anderson, a rancher, living along the Chicago & Northwestern tracks near Rousseau, saved a passenger train from going into the ditch last night. A heavy rain storm had washed out the supports of a culvert, leaving the ties and rails in place. Anderson discovered this and stood on the track with a lantern until the train appeared, when he signalled the danger.

BROOM TRUST PROPOSED.

New York, Aug. 26.—Representatives of many of the largest firms in the country engaged in the manufacture of brooms met today in this city for general discussion of needs and opportunities for a combination of broom manufactures. No decisive action probably will be taken until tomorrow.

CONGREGATIONALISTS.

New Buffalo, Mich., Aug. 26.—The Congregational summer assembly, holding a two-weeks' session here, has expanded into a national organization and elected the following officers: President, Rev. A. M. Brodie, D.D., of Hinsdale, Ill.; vice president, Rev. H. C. Herring, D.D., of Omaha, Neb.; secretary-treasurer, Rev. H. S. Wannamaker, Elyria, Ohio. Among those named for directors are: Rev. H. S. Mills, Begonia, Mich.; Rev. I. S. Cary, Waukesha, Wis.; Rev. William Ewing, Lansing, Mich., Rev. A. H. Stoneman, Grand Rapids, Mich., and Rev. E. E. Flint, Creston, Iowa.

DUTCH BARK SUNK.

New York, Aug. 26.—Three firemen were seriously overcome and several others slightly affected by smoke from a fire in the hold of the Dutch bark "Amsterdam" lying at pier No. 12, East river today. The vessel was loaded with case oil. Fire boats were unable to extinguish the flames and the bark was sunk.

BREACH OF PROMISE

She Claims Their Relations Have Extended Over Twenty Years.

George A. Potter, a well-known and wealthy lumberman of this city, has been sued for breach of promise to marry.

The plaintiff in the action is Sara Ham, of Dubuque, Ia., and she has asked through the medium of the district court of this county, a judgment of $25,000 as a balm to her wounded feelings.

From some points of view the action sizzles. The plaintiff claims that over 20 years ago, Mr. Potter won her affections, and under the promise of marriage seduced her. She claims that he was then a married man, though she did not know so at the time; that when after several years, during which they maintained their relations, she discovered he had a wife living, she accused him of it and he did not deny the charge, merely giving as an excuse his great love for her.

She further alleges that Potter even induced her to continue in their intimate relations after the discovery mentioned, promising to marry her after his wife's death. Miss Ham claims to have always been a virtuous woman but for her relations with Potter, and alleges that he is the person who led her astray by false promises.

Another interesting phase of the action is the allegation on the part of the plaintiff that Potter has also defrauded her out of some real estate in Dubuque, Ia., worth about $15,000. She claims that on or about Feb. 19, 1902, there was pending in the district court of Dubuque county, Ia., a breach of promise action against Potter in which she was the plaintiff, and that at his solicitation and on his making certain promises she was induced to withdraw the action.

The agreements mentioned appear in exhibits attached to the plaintiff's reply to the answer of the defendant. One exhibit is a copy of what purports to be an agreement between the parties of the action for the dismissal of the breach of promise action, the defendant promising to pay the plaintiff an annual annuity and the latter agreeing never to bring another action of the same nature. The other exhibit is a copy of what purports to be a deed of some property in Dubuque, Ia., runing from Sara Ham to G. A. Potter, the consideration being Potter's agreement to pay Miss Ham an annuity of $420 per year during her lifetime in quarterly payments in advance.

Miss Ham in the present action claims that when these papers were executed she was under the influence of drugs and did not know what she was doing, that the defendant knew her condition and took advantage of it to defraud her. She claims Potter never kept any part of his agreement to pay her annuity, nor did he intend to do so when the agreement was made. She says the pretended settlement was "merely colorable." She claims her home, out of which she alleges herself to be defrauded, was worth $15,000.

Mr. Potter has made answer to the complaint in which he makes a general denial of the allegations made by the plaintiff. He sets forth that the plaintiff is not a chaste woman and that all the property he ever got he paid for, and holds up the agreements as evidence that the plaintiff has no further claims on him.

In her reply to the answer of Mr. Potter, Miss Ham says the "pretended settlement was a part of the defendant's scheme to rob her; that having robbed her of her virtue more than twenty years ago, he succeeded in defrauding her of her title to the property and the home where she now lives and, having accomplished his purposes, has refused to carry out his promises in any and every regard and abandoned the plaintiff and now accuses her of being unchaste."

When asked this noon for information relative to the action, Mr Potter would only say that it was a blackmailing scheme and referred the matter to his attorneys, Washburn & Bailey.

FALL TERM

Will begin at the Duluth Business University, for day and evening classes on Monday, Sept. 7. College office open from 8 a. m. until 8 p. m. each week day until the opening. All intending to enroll for this opening are requested to call and make final arrangements. Location, 105-7 West Superior street.

DOHERTY IS CHAMPION

Englishman Defeats Clothier In Tennis Finals at Newport.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 26.—H. L. Doherty defeated W. J. Clothier, 6-3, 6-2, 6-3 in the tennis finals today.

Both men started carefully, waiting for openings. Each came into the net on almost every occasion, Clothier played somewhat the more sharply from this position. The English champion was steadier, however, and he not only passed his opponent, but succeeded in breaking through service twice. Clothier failed to do so at all. Score:

W. J. Clothier—626, 644, 635—30-4.

The style of play of both men was much the same in the second set as the first, and Doherty took the second set easily. Clothier was more brilliant but less steady than his opponent, and lost his service twice. Score:

W. J. Clothier—115, 715, 33—27-2.

Doherty held things well throughout the third set without apparent exertion. Clothier succeeded in breaking through service for the only time in the match, but Doherty again did it twice, and thus brought a victory in straight sets. Score:

H. L. Doherty—744, 420, 404—29-6.
W. J. Clothier—500, 144, 041—19-3.

DEMAND FOR PROTECTION

Woodland and Hunter's Park Will Present Claim To Council.

Adequate fire protection is demanded by the citizens and tax payers that have made Glen Avon, Woodland and Hunter's Park one of the prettiest suburban residence districts in the state.

Had the wind been blowing from a different direction last night three or four more homes would have been damaged or destroyed at the time the Rankin home was burned.

It is claimed the fire department could not possibly reach a home in this suburb in time to render the slightest aid and a movement is on foot to have the old fire hall, closed several years ago, reopened and supplied with fire apparatus.

The Woodland district is now supplied with city water and the residents pride themselves considerably on having fine homes and lawns. They feel considerable apprehension and anxiety over the possibility of these homes being destroyed almost any day for want of an engine and some hose.

They will urge the city to make some provision for adequate fire protection in the next year's tax levy which is now being prepared and say they are asking nothing but what they are entitled to as tax payers and residents.

The fire hall in that district, is said to be in good condition, needing only minor repairs and a little paint, to be in readiness for a company of firemen.

RETURNS AT TEN O'CLOCK

In view of the popular demand the management of the Commercial club excursion to Hibbing Friday has decided that the train, returning, will leave Hibbing at 10 o'clock in the evening, an hour earlier than was at first intended. A large number of Duluthian who expect to take advantage of the special rate of $2 for the round trip have protested that the hour set for the return was too late and this has been changed to suit their convenience.

The special train will leave the Union depot here Friday morning at 8 o'clock. Although the excursion is given under the auspices of the Commercial club everybody is invited and the tickets will be found on sale with Secretary Eva.

The people of Hibbing have been anticipating a big time on "Duluth day," as Friday has been designated in their anniversary celebration and the Duluth crowd will be met with bands and large delegations at the depot.

The Third regiment band has been engaged to go with the excursion so that there will be no lack of music.

Secretary Eva, who was one of the delegates representing the Commercial club at the state forestry meet at St. Paul, returned this morning to complete the details for the excursion. He says the convention is a great success and the papers are very interesting. Besides the representation from the city and the Commercial club, the Women's council of this city is represented by Mrs. J. L. Washburn.

FISCAL QUESTION

By Chamberlain Will Be Tested In Election.

London, Aug. 26.—The first parliamentary by-election on the fiscal question raised by Colonial Secretary Chamberlain is taking place in Argyleshire, Scotland (containing a large number of islands), where there is a vacancy caused by the death of D. N. Nicol, who was a Conservative. The candidates, Charles Stewart, Unionist, and J. S. Ainsworth, Liberalist, represent respectively protection and free trade. The polling is being conducted under considerable difficulties. All kinds of craft are being used to convey the voters from the fishing grounds to the polls. The result will not be known until Friday, owing to the difficulty in collecting the returns.

KNOCKED GOVERNOR OFF STAND

Little Rock, Ark., Aug. 26.—Judge Carroll L. Woods, of the Arkansas supreme court, who is opposing Governor Davis as candidate for a third term knocked Governor Davis off a speaking stand four feet to the ground, during the campaign at Bismarck yesterday. Governor Davis was not hurt and friends prevented further trouble. Judge Wood was immediately arrested on a charge of assault and battery. Governor Davis publicly asked Judge Woods questions, and before they could be fully answered, interrupted with more questions, which so angered Judge Woods that he knocked Governor Davis from the platform. Later the matter was adjusted and Judge Woods returned to Little Rock today.

ROBBERS GET $20,000 IN GOLD DUST

Chicago, Aug. 26.—A dispatch to the Record-Herald from Vancouver, B. C., says: Four masked men last night held up the watchman of the Featherstone Haugh mines, at Atlan, Alaska, and stole nearly $20,000 worth of gold dust, which had been collected in the sluices during the day. Twenty workmen had just gone to supper, leaving a watchman in charge. He was caught from behind, pinioned and gagged, and in twenty minutes the big clean-up was in canvas sacks, which the robbers brought for the purpose. They fled in the darkness.

GUILTY OF AN ATROCIOUS CRIME

Brainerd, Minn., Aug. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The coroner's jury has decided that John Burrig, George Dill and Mrs. Mary Williams are guilty of causing the death of Mrs. Williams' 3-year-old daughter, Lillian, by throwing the child into the Mississippi river.

Mrs. Williams, mother of the murdered child, on the stand, declared she met Burrig and Dill and went with them to the park. She says Dill then took the child from her arms and called to her: "Come down to the river and see your child for the last time." On her refusal to come to the river bank, she says, Dill took the child by the legs, swung it three times over his head and threw it into the river. The hearing in the case of all three will Wednesday.

POLES NOT LIKELY TO GET BISHOP

Rome, Aug. 26.—The Rev. Wenzelhaus Kruezska, rector of St. Wencelaus church, Ripon, Wis., and deputy of the Catholic Polish congress of the United States, and Rowland B. Hahany, general counsel for that body, have been in Rome for some time past trying to obtain the appointment of a Polish bishop in the United States, not for any special diocese, but having jurisdiction over all American Polish Catholics. Their proposal has been received coldly both by the Vatican and the congregation of the propaganda and is not likely to be accepted, being opposed to the spirit of ecclesiastical hierarchy as established in the United States and also against the rules of the council of Baltimore.

POWDER EXPLOSION KILLS FOUR

Kansas City, Aug. 26.—A special to the Star from Carthage, Mo., says: An explosion at the works of the Independent Powder company, four miles southwest of Carthage on Centre Creek early today, wrecked the mixing room, killing three persons and injuring three others. One fatally. The dead:

W. O. ROLL, superintendent.
ERNEST PEARMAN,
JERRY HAWORTH, all of Carthage.

Thirty other workmen escaped injury.

Today's explosion is the second to occur at the Independent company's works in a month. The mill has just been rebuilt and the making of dynamite for blasting in the lead and zinc mines in the territory was resumed. When the explosion occurred Superintendent Root and Pearman and Haworth were all in the mixing room which is secluded from the other ten mill buildings behind a hill.

CAP'N O'BRYAN MAKES LOVE

Capt. Edward J. O'Bryan, who said he had sailed the seas as man and boy for forty years, was in the Yorkville police court recently on a summons obtained by his wife, who lives with several of her children at 308 East Fifty-eighth street, says the N. Y. Sun.

"I want you to make him stay away from us," she said to Magistrate Mayo.

She added that her husband was 70 years old, that he had not contributed to her support for twenty years and that he caused a great deal of annoyance to her and their children by making love to young girls.

"And to think, judge, that he's the father of eighteen children," added the wife.

"It's nineteen—nineteen, I say," interrupted the captain.

"Eighteen, Edward," she reiterated.

"Nineteen! You've lost your reckoning," roared back the captain.

"I say, eighteen, Edward, and that's right. You had another child by another wife, but I don't count that," responded Mrs. O'Bryan.

"What have you to say about your conduct with those little girls?" Magistrate Mayo asked him.

"Oh, that's all right, judge. An old sea dog like me wouldn't harm such small craft as that. I just like to run alongside of them and hail them in pleasant talk. It don't stand to reason that a father of so many children as I have would do anything wrong."

"Look at that letter, judge. And he that's 70 years old to write like that," said the woman as she handed a letter to the magistrate. This was the letter:

"My Dear Piggie:—I was dreaming of you all last night. I wish that I was going far away for your sake. I thought I could see your black eyes all night, and I was wishing that you were with me. I have a little sloop boat. If you wish to, you can come to have a sail with my girls, so as I can get a good kiss under your black eyes. From yours truly.

"Capt. EDWARD O'BRYAN."

The captain's wife said that Johanna Bogger, 17 years old, of 328 East Fifty-ninth street, had given her the letter as a sample of several the man had slipped into her hand at various times.

"He's an awful man, judge," said the Bogger girl. "He came to the house when mamma was away to see some vacant rooms and tickled my chin when leaving. He came back and he kissed me three times. Why, he kissed a whole lot of girls on the same block."

Agent Eberly, of the children's society, made a more serious charge against the captain and he was held in default of $500 bail.

FOUND IT HARD WORK.

He dropped into an armchair and closed his eyes, apparently utterly exhausted, says the Brooklyn Eagle.

"Been working hard?" inquired a friend who had dropped in to see him.

"Working hard?" he returned. "I've done three days' work in two hours."

"Splitting wood?"

"No, indeed."

"Putting in coal, perhaps?"

"Oh, no."

"Haven't been trying to clean a stove pipe, have you?"

"No, sir. I pay a man to do that."

"Then what have you been doing?"

"Well, you know that boy of mine?"

"You mean Willie?"

"Yes."

"Oh, yes. Bright boy he is, too. What's he got to do with it?"

"Everything, sir, everything. I've been trying to get fifteen minutes' work out of him."

CANADIAN CROP

Railroads and Vessels Expect to Have a Large Tonnage.

The Roads Are Adding Largely to Their Motive Equipment.

Lake vessel owners are keeping a weather eye on the grain carrying trade between Port Arthur and Fort William, and the lower lake ports.

Indications are that this season the wheat crop of Manitoba and the Northwest Territories will be large and owners of grain carrying vessels are making preparations for a good season's business.

Last year the rolling stock of the Canadian Pacific railway proved inadequate for moving the grain from the Northwest to the seaboard, but this year the deficiency in motive power is being met by the addition of about eighty new locomotives. For several months past these engines have been arriving in Montreal in sections, and are being assembled there. The shops of the company at Perth are turning out about a dozen cars a day, and the company will have several thousand additional cars in use this fall.

The Canadian Northern road will also have double the number of box cars in use, and the motive power of the road will not be far short of double that of last season.

Manitoba is being honeycombed with railroad lines, the Canadian Pacific alone, having laid over 200 miles of road there this summer.

The Canadian Northern road also laid about 125 miles of new road, tapping a great wheat growing section.

The greater part of the export grain will be shipped from Port Arthur and Fort William, and the lake vessel owners are already figuring on the moving of the crop.

The elevator facilities at Port Arthur and Fort William have been largely increased during the past year in expectation of the heavy grain movement, and the dockage accommodations at Quebec have also been increased.

The railroads interested in carrying grain from western Canada use the lake route from Port Arthur and Fort William to the Georgian bay ports and lower lake ports.

The Canadian Atlantic road operates its own line of five steamers, but the Canadian Northern, at the western end and, the Grand Trunk, at the eastern end, make use of independent carriers.

There were about a dozen vessels in the grain carrying trade between Port Arthur and the Georgian bay ports last year, with an aggregate capacity of about 1,000,000 bushels.

This year, the removal of the canal tolls will probably divert a greater amount of the grain trade to the all-water route, and more vessels will be needed in the trade, as much longer trips will be necessary.

Duluth will also send a large amount of grain direct to Quebec by the all-water route. The Great Lakes & St. Lawrence Transportation company will have a fleet of from 8 to 10 vessels in this trade, none of which were in commission last year.

CELEBRATION AT HIBBING

Hibbing, Minn., Aug. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The story of Hibbing: In 1893 an exploring camp, with a dozen men searching for iron ore, and in 1903, a city of 10,000 population in the heart of the greatest iron ore field in the world.

Hibbing's tenth anniversary will be celebrated this week with a grand carnival. Wednesday is Mesaba and Vermilion ranges day, with high dive, Spanish pole performance, loop-the-loop, trick cottage, pipe race, potato race, foot race for boys, flour dip contest, fat men's race and other street attractions, bands of music, grand civic fraternal and industrial parade; oration, at 2:30 p. m. by J. Adam Bede; game of baseball between the Eagle Drug company and Bemidji baseball club.

Thursday will be trainmen's day. Contest between the range towns' fire departments, ladder race, novelty hose race, flag race, high dive, Spanish perch pole performance, running races, jumping, putting shot, throwing hammer, pole vaulting, tug-of-war and other athletic numbers.

Friday is Duluth day. Baseball between Bell's Eagles and Ely, Minn. Grand spectacular carnival masque ball and crowning the queen of the carnival and presentation of a diamond ring. Horse races, bicycle races, athletic sports of all kinds. There will also be presented the most laughable and entertaining comedy acrobatic act before the public by the Varnum Duo, the trick cottage acrobats.

Hibbing proposes to celebrate her tenth anniversary and entertain her range neighbors by the grandest celebration that ever has taken place in the north half of this state.

JEWS OBJECT TO AFRICA.

Good Place For Colonization But Not Home.

Chicago, Aug. 26.—The following cable message was sent to Leon Zolotkoff, delegate to the international congress of Zionists at Basel, Switzerland, last night:

"Urge congress to leave African proposition to executive committee. Zion not to be abandoned until all efforts exhausted. BERNARD HORWICH,
"For Chicago Zionists."

The action was the result of a meeting of thirty leaders in the local Zionist movement. It is believed that the message voices the sentiment of a majority of the orthodox Jews of this city.

At the meeting addresses were made by Rabbi I. Gick, M. Ginzburg of the Jewish Courier, Bernard Horwich, H. Horwich and others.

"If we abandon the Palestine colonization project Zionism is dead," declared Bernard Horwich. "All our efforts have been directed towards re-establishing the Jewish nation in Zion. East Africa may be a desirable place for colonization, but it is not our country."

FRIGHTENED TO DEATH.

Port Washington Young Woman Succumbs From Fright.

New York, Aug. 26.—Frightened by three sailors who attempted to enter her mother's summer cottage near Port Washington, L. I., Miss Alice Parker, a beautiful young woman of Green Point, died within an hour.

The sailors crept up to the piazza of the cottage in the dark and only abandoned their attempt to enter when confronted with a rifle. Before their presence was discovered one of them had boldly walked on the piazza. A few feet away stood Miss Parker. She was so frightened that she could not speak and died in spite of all the efforts of a physician.

COL. KNIGHTS FUNERAL.

Ashland's Former Mayor Buried at Madison.

Watertown, Wis., Aug. 26.—The funeral yesterday of Col. J. H. Knight of Ashland was conducted by the Rev. Mr. St. George of Nashotah. The train carrying the remains to Madison left here at 9:10 in the morning after a short service at the home of Mrs. Joseph Davies. The services at the grave were held in the afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Interment was at Forest Hill cemetery, Madison, in a steel vault. The honorary pallbearers were Wayne Ramsay, Madison; F. E. Werner and Carl Feld, Watertown, and the following from Ashland: Judge J. W. Cochran, Isaac Wing, W. R. Durfee, Sam W. Fifield, J. W. Madden, Capt. J. Doherty, Thomas Bardon, George Merrill, Dr. E. W. Harrison, J. Breding, J. Hinkle, Capt. R. W. Pike and W. M. Tompkins. The active pallbearers were associates of Col. Knight at Watertown and Madison.

COMMISSIONER MISSING.

Black Duck Man Complained Off By Settlers.

United States Commissioner Belding, of Black Duck, has been absent from his home for several weeks, and Judge Morris has received applications for the appointment of a new court commissioner, who will stick to his post.

A number of settlers who had advertised to file papers in connection with their claims, found when they arrived at the office to be sworn, that the commissioner was not to be found.

United States District Attorney C. C. Haupt, of St. Paul, who is in the city at the present time, will make an investigation into the matter, and report to Judge Morris, who will appoint a successor if necessary.

DECEMBER AND MAY

Are United In Marriage at Ellsworth, Wis.

Ellsworth, Wis., Aug. 26.—On Tuesday John Weghorn, aged 60, was married to Miss Mabel Kynn, aged 14 years. The wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. Kynn. The bride was charmingly attired in white mousseline de soie, trimmed with cream point lace, and carried brides' roses. The couple was attended by Harry Kynn as best man, adn Miss Agnes Kynn as bridesmaid. They were presented with many beautiful presents, and the groom's present to the bride was a $1000 diamond ring. The music of the day was furnished by three bands—the Hartland orchestra, the Dumond orchestra and the Red Wing Military band. The happy couple left for San Francisco, Cal., where they will spend their honeymoon.

THE WHEAT HARVEST

Practically Over In Minnesota, Nearly So In North Dakota.

Commercial Record Presents Authoritative State of Flax Crop.

Last week was a favorable one for harvesting, according to the report of the North Dakota section of the crop service for the week ending Monday. It says:

"The weather of the past week has been generally warm and dry, which has been most favorable for harvesting and threshing, and it has also caused a portion of the crop which had heretofore been backward, to ripen rapidly. In some sections, especially in the southeastern portion of the state, heavy rain has retarded operations, and some grain is beginning to grow in the shock. Some unmatured grain is reported to have been more or less injured by the extreme hot weather of a few days, also high wind caused ripe grain in some sections to shell out. A light hailstorm the first part of the week in Traill county is reported to have caused more or less damage to standing grain.

"Wheat harvest is practically over in the southern portion, and is becoming well advanced in the northern. Threshing is becoming general, and the indications are that crop will generally be of very good quality. The previous cold weather has permitted the berry to fill well, and the recent dry weather has ripened it in good condition.

"Oats harvest is drawing to a close, and threshing is becoming general. From the quality so far, it is expected that the crop will be a poor one.

"Flax is being cut quite generally, and some has been finished, although there is some yet too green to harvest. The crop, with a few exceptions, seems to be holding its own, with prospects for a very good yield.

"Barley harvest is nearing a close, and some has been threshed. In sections where dry weather has prevailed, the crop looks favorable, but where rain occured, it has been bleached some.

"Corn has been greatly benefited by the warm, dry weather, and has advanced rapidly. More warm weather is needed, and if frost holds off for awhile, it will, on the whole, be a better crop than was expected.

"Haying still continues in sections not visited by rain, but where rain occurred it has been retarded considerably. As has been indicated by previous reports, the crop will be light and of fair quality only."

The Minnesota report is also favorable and tells of the finish of harvesting. It says:

"Showers occurred in the Red River valley on the 17th, accompanied by severe local hailstorms, which injured small areas of standing grain, but the total loss is aid to be small. There were scattered showers on the 22d in central and middle western portions, and also in the western half of the state on the 23d. On the 21st the temperatures were about 90 degrees in many parts of the state, but during the rest of the week the temperatures were moderate or below the normal.

"Harvst is finished in all parts of the state, except the cutting of scattered pieces of late oats, barley and flax, and some of these are still green, especially the flax. Stacking is now generally so well advanced that there is very little grain in shock, except that which will be thrashed soon. Thrashing from the shock has been going on; in some portions it is hardly more than begun, while in other portions nearly all the shock thrashing is finished. In the South the heavy rains of the 14th wet the grain so badly that most of that thrashed since that date is damp, and some oats and wheat have had to be opened out to dry before being thrashed or stacked. In the Southwest the soil was so damp that stacking and a little shock thrashing were delayed untill towards the close of the week, and in the extreme southwest there are still large areas of standing grain abandoned because the binders could not be made to run on the soft fields.

"Corn has grown well, but a late season will be required to mature most of the crop, except that grown from native seed, which is now almost out of danger of frost. Potatoes in the southeast are badly blighted, and in many southern fields the tubers are rotting in the ground Timothy for seed is dong well, but many are cutting their second crop of clover for hay, there being very little seed in it."

The Daily ommercial Record of this city gives a final and authoritative report of the flax crop of the crop year of 1902-03 with a comparison with the former year as follows:

On two or three different occasions since July 1st the ommercial Record has mentioned the fact that the estimates on last year's flax crop were too low.

It is possible to present now final and authoritative figures, and given in a way never before presented to the trade.

These are figures of distribution, not tabulations of reciipts, and to make them comparison of the previous year's distribution to same points.

EX-SENATOR BUTLER

Says Roosevelt Thinks He Is an Emperor.

New York, Aug. 26.—Gen. Matthew Butler, who, prior to the advent of Tillmanism and Populism in the politics of his state, long represented South Carolina in the United States senate, discussed the general political situation freely. "It seems obvious to me," he said, "that the Democratic party has an opportunity to win in the coming election such as it rarely has had since the civil war. I am convinced that were the Democratic party to come into the field next year with a candidate representing conservatism and a platform reassuring the business interests of the country, many of the more conservative Republicans would vote its ticket as they voted for and elected Cleveland."

Of Bryan, Gen. Butler said: "Bryan is a Populist, if he is anything. If he is sincere, he lacks common sense; if he is not, he is a demagogue of the worst sort."

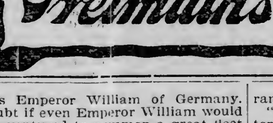

Of Roosevelt he said: "He seems to carry a spectacularly personal element. He apparently has the impression that he is Emperor William of Germany. I doubt if even Emperor William would have ventured to summon a great fleet to line up in front of his house for his own personal pleasure and glorification."

PUBLIC SPIRIT IS LACKING

Thomas E. Hill Tells of Difficulties That Beset Fair Management.

Secretary Thomas E. Hill of the Fair association says that the difficulties and obstacles in the way of conducting a fair in the city of Duluth are not appreciated by those people who find it easy to criticise but lend no helping hand.

"We began the preparations for this fair under a tremendous handicap," he says. "The people were generally disgusted with fairs that had been held here, for some reason or other, and we had to combat that prejudice. We had no money to work with and could not therefore work in the aggresive manner that a well filled treasury permits. Had the county given us the sum of $500, as we desired, we could have made a canvass of the county and secured a much larger and finer exhibit of the agricultural resources, as it was we did the best we could with the means at our command.

"But with the merchants and business men of the city almost entirely apathetic and taking no interest in making the fair a success, what could be done? Twenty-four different interests that had promised faithfully to make industrial exhibits that would have been very attractive and interesting, failed utterly to do anything. So positive were their assurances that they would exhibit, that I went to the expense of having shafting put in and power arranged for to operate the machinery.

"One concern was to put in a separator showing creamery operations, making the excuse at the last moment that one of its men was away and it could not. A knitting works was to have shown its machines in operation but told me at the last moment that it was so busy it could not. A woodworking establishment that was to have made an interesting exhibit had the same excuse. And so it went all along the line, all too busy or some such excuse, none of them with public spirit enough to exert themselves a little.

"That our eforts were not entirely without recognition, however, the following letter from Mayor Hugo will show:

"Thomas E. Hill, secretary fair association.

"After the battle permit me to congratulate your association on the splendid success of the eforts made so judiciously which resulted in giving the people of St. Louis county such a fair as they ought to have, and which, from this time on I believe they will appreciate more. The association is entitled to the thanks of the citizens of this county and as far as I am able to express it, I unreservedly do so. Yours respectfully, T. W. HUGO."

MUSICAL STUDY IS MADE EASY

Kindergarten Methods Used For Inculcating First Knowledge.

Yesterday afternoon a number of the women of the city listened to an entertaining account of the kindergarten system as applied to music, which was given at the St. Louis hotel by Miss May Butchart, of Toronto. Although the idea is new in Duluth, the method has been employed for the past seven years in the East, and the advantages of the system are said to be many and easily seen.

The originator of the idea of applying the kindergarten system to music was Miss Evelyn Ashton Fletcher, of Toronto. Miss Fletcher perfected her system and taught in the New England conservatory of music at Boston, going then to New York, and is at present in Germany. A very ingenious apparatus is used in connection with this method by which the foundation principles of music are illustrated in tangible form and which, when in the hands of a capable teacher, assists marvelously in impressing the principles on the mind of the child.

Smooth flat notes, rests, etc., about two inches in diameter, are used and the treble and bass clefs are made from thin strips of tape placed upon a white ground. A note is placed in the proper position and the children are told a story about it, given its real name and a play name, the note is struck upon the piano by the instructor and gradually the children become familiar not only with the position and name of the note, but the sound as well.

Hand exercises are also given, the work being done upon the table in time to music. Time is thoroughly taught and the rudiments of piano instruction are known before the child is sent to the piano. The advantages of the system are easily seen when one thinks of the drudgery of the first year of musical instruction which every child, unless he happens to be a Mozart, hates with all the passion of which he is capable.

The theory of the method is that the only way of making music attractive to a child is to make it as play to him, and when this can be done and at the same time give him knowledge that he must always have in connection with his musical work, a great step has been made in the pleasure to the work of the great art.

Miss Butchart has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. James A. Butchart, for the past few weeks and will probably remain here and form classes during the winter.

TO MEET CUT RATE.

Chicago, Aug. 26.—Following the announcement made by the Soo line, that it would make a $25 rate from Minneapolis to New York and return, comes the still more unexpected announcement that the Grand Trunk would make a rate on Aug. 28 of $24 for the round trip between Chicago and New York via Buffalo and the Lehigh Valley railroad, these tickets to be good to return until Sept. 15. The Chicago-St. Paul lines, at a meeting held to consider whether the Soo lines cut rate should be met have concluded that the matter should be left to the individual action of the various roads. Subsequently most of them gave notice that they would meet the rate in connection with the Grand Trunk.

BOX MAKING TRUST

Present Trust to Take In Independent Operators.

New York, Aug. 26.—By a novel plan of compromise, leading interests in the United Box Board and Paper company, and the independent corporations in the same line of business are about to settle their difficulties and are negotiating, says the Herald, to unite their interests in such a way that about 90 per cent of the box output will be consolidated. The plan is based upon a system dependent upon contracts which place the handling of the combined properties within the power of a single corporation.

There are now about thirty independent companies and it is understood that later plans will be taken up for final amalgamation of the box board and heavy paper manufacturing interests.

FIRE AT PHILADELPHIA.

Philadelphia, Aug. 25.—Kolbs' bakery, occupying about a half block in the southern section of the city, was destroyed by fire today. The loss is estimated at $150,000. Ten small dwellings in the rear of the bakery were damaged. Twelve of the bakery employes were in the building when the fire started and all narrowly escaped with their lives.

WIND FOR NEXT RACE.

New York, Aug. 26.—The local weather bureau is in receipt of the following special on the weather for tomorrow's yacht race from Washington:

To Observer, New York.—The wind over the international yacht course Thursday will be light to fresh northeast, shifting in the afternoon to east and southeast with probably cloudy weather.

TAKE ONE EACH

Duluth and Champions Divide on Games at Winnipeg.

To Play on Home Grounds Latter Half of Week.

NORTHERN LEAGUE.

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Winnipeg	60	24	.711
Grand Forks	49	34	.590
Crookston	48	34	.585
Duluth	35	47	.427
Fargo	32	53	.376
Superior	24	55	.304

An even break between the White Shins and Champions occurred in a double header at Winnipeg yesterday.

The Sox actually batted out a victory from the twisters of Bartos, who has been their prize hoodoo all season.

Incidentally the Duluth team has accomplished a feat of which no other team in the league can boast. It has won three out of the last five games played in Canada. No other team has taken a series from the Champions on their home grounds.

Bemis and Nolden fought frenzied twirling battle in the first game. The Champions had a streak of luck in the third and bunched enough hits to net two runs. The score:

Winnipeg	2	7	0

"Demon" Shaw pitched splendidly in the second game and the Sox got after Bartos with their heavy stick work from the jump, winning the game in two innings. The score:

Winnipeg	4	6	1

The McLaughlin-Crookston combination got busy with Superior yesterday and Lycan's team is now just one game behind Grand Forks in the fight for second place. Martin and Doll were the pitchers in both games. In the first Superior was shut out and in the second was lost by a close score. The first game:

Crookston	2	10	2

In the second game Superior showed a tendency to bat out a victory, so McLaughlin called the game in the seventh on account of "darkness." It is rumored that he could not see his way clear to let the game go on in such a threatening manner. Superior even had the nerve to hammer in three runs in the seventh. The score:

Crookston	5	7	1

Grand Forks	6	11	2

Pitchers: Burns and Dellar.

The Duluth team will get home from Winnipeg tonight or tomorrow morning and open up a series at Athletic Park with the Superior team.

Harris, the former Grand Forks pitcher, will be assigned to Duluth to officiate as umpire in the closing series of the season. McLaughlin will remain with his friends at Crookston and Braig will officiate at Grand Fork and Winnipeg.

The bitter fight for second place between Crookston and Grand Forks is being watched withh keen interest all over the circuit. Beginning with today's series Grand Forks appears ao be handicapped. This team is playing Winnipeg while Crookston plays Fargo.

Bismarck defeated the strong St. Cloud team by a score of 9 to 6 on Sunday. Wilson, the crack colored pitcher was knocked out of the box by Bismarck, but it is said that Wilson is out of condition.

King, the Superior short stop, is somewhat improved though still in a serious condition. The baseball fans in Winnipeg are making things as comfortable for him as possible.

Manager Lycan, of Crookston, is out with the following:

"The Grand Forks Herald in its Sunday baseball news complains that the Crookston management has tried or is about to try to influence Duluth, Fargo and possibly Winnipeg to play 'big league' ball when playing with Grand Forks and 'easy ball' with Crookston.

"A reply to such an absurd accusation is hardly necessary as anyone intelligence knows the above mentioned teams want and need all the games they can win. Fargo is a formidable candidate for fourth place, they being but 37 points behind Duluth. It is not necessary for the management of this team (Crookston) to enter into any combination to beat the tigers (?) We expect to win second place by hard, conscientious ball playing. If we can't win that way we don't want it. Continually crying 'stop thief,' disappointing audiences by taking players off the ground and a chronic opinion that all the other clubs and umpires are trying to cheat them—the tigers (?) system of keeping second place may work awhile, but not always."

Artie O'Dea is again playing first base for Winnipeg.

Winnipeg papers claim that 1800 people saw the last Superior game there. It must have been pretty strong stuff to make even a newspaper man see that many.

EXPENSIVE MEAT.

Serving of Moose Cost Fr an Bushey $50.

It cost Frank Bushey a fine of $50 or the alternative of spending thirty days in jail, to serve moose meat for beef in his hotel at Wright, Minn., a town on the Northern Pacific road, about fifty miles from Duluth.

Information to the effect that meat of a choice and unusual flavor was being served at Bushey's tables caused Deputy Game Warden Green to pay a visit to the hotel. It happened that the moose meat was on the bill of fare as beef when the deputy sat down at the table, and expert testimony was had as to its identity. Search was made of the premises for moose meat that had not been cooked, but none was found.

The trial was had at Carlton yesterday. Bushey testified that he was not aware of the nature of the meat he had been serving, but there was other testimony to the effect that Bushey had himself carried a quarter of a slaughtered moose several miles from the place the animal was killed. The court found him guilty.

SCHOOL OF WHALES KILLED.

St. Johns, N. F., Aug. 26.—A school of 143 small whales has been driven ashore at St. Mary's bay and was unable to retreat. The residents—men and women—waded waist deep into the water and killed them all with hatchets, scythes and pitchforks.

The GORDON hat gives to him a certain style that is prepossessing.
The brains teach him to buy GORDON hats.
GORDON hats are worth $5 as far as style is concerned. (You can see that for yourself.)
GORDON hats have $5 full value in wearing qualities. (The name GORDON means truth in the hat-world.)

ROBBED OF SAVINGS

Mrs. John Olsen Intimidated By Thieves In Broad Daylight.

Pretended to Be Assessors —Disclosed Hiding Place of Money.

A daring daylight burglary occurred yesterday afternoon.

Two men claiming to be deputy city ossessors gained admission to the home of John Olson, 2231 West First street, and at the point of a revolver compelled Mrs. Olson to disclose the hiding place of the family savings.

The frightened woman informed the thieves that the money was under the carpet in a front room near a table, and while one of the men got it the other kept her silent.

They secured $62.50 and then ran away. There was considerable delay in notifying the police and by the time the officers took up the search the burglars had disappeared, not leaving the slightest clue.

Mrs. Olson says she answered a "rap" at the front door about 1:30 yesterday afternoon and was met by two men, who inquired the name of the person living there. They then said they were deputy city assessors and desired to make an inventory of the household effects.

The woman said that her personal property had been listed last spring, but one of the men said that it did not appear on his book and produced a book to apparently prove his assertion.

They were admitted and were scarcely inside the house when one of the men stepped toward her in a threatening manner. Mrs. Olson hastily retreated to another room carrying her baby. With her free hand she picked up a bottle of carbolic acid and threw it at the man following her. He quickly sidestepped and then forceing her into a corner held his revolver close to her head threatening to kill her if she refused to tell where her money was.

Mrs. Olson disclosed the hiding place and the second robber who had been on guard at the door quickly found the money. The police have searched everywhere for the men, but have failed to find them.

Mrs. Olson describes both men as young looking. The taller of the two wore a light felt hat and blue suit of clothes. He also had a brown mustache. The other was not so tall, wore a brown hat and was smooth shaven.

The impression is that the men are clever thieves and that they had no knowledge of there being a cent in the Olson home, but simply selected that house as the right place to try their "bluff."

The city assessor game is an old one among a certain class of thieves and is usually worked during the assessment season. It may be that the thieves are from Wisconsin as the assessors over there are still busy with their books.

TROUBLE OF HUSBANDS

Two Allege the Usurping of Their Rights By Others.

Hans Hanson, a blacksmith of New Duluth seeks a divorce through the district court, from Emma Hanson, whom he married in Sweden, 27 years ago. The decree is asked on statutory grounds.

In the bill of complaint filed yesterday afternoon the plaintiff states that the defendant is 53 years old, or four years his senior; that they emigrated to America a few years after marriage; that three daughters have been born to the couple, the eldest 26 and the youngest 18 years of age. He sets forth that he is a blacksmith by trade, but has worked in the woods in the winter and in the mills during the summer for many years past, his employment taking him away from his home a large part of the time. He says that in the past two years he has been in charge of a smithy at Stillwater, Minn., but has visited his home in New Duluth every three or four months.

He says his wife did not make him welcome and at one time a man who was a stranger to him made hostile demonstrations against his home coming, flourishing a club, and that Mrs. Hanson seemed to approve of the action.

Eugene Hannah began an action in district court yesterday afternoon, against George Lessard, to recover a judgment of $5000, which the plaintiff alleges is due for the alienation of his wife's affections by the defendant. The plaintiff in the action is the defendant in a divorce action which Mrs. Hannah has started in district court and with his complaint in the damage case has filed an answer to his wife's complaint in the divorce case.

Hannah claims that he has been working in the woods during the winter and in the mills during the summer and has necessarily been away from his home much of the time. He alleges that, during his absence, Lessard took the opportunity of ingratiating himself in the affections of Mrs. Hannah and she was enticed away from her home at 511 Lincoln avenue, May 13, 1903, remaining away ever since.

Plaintiff claims he is able and willing to support his wife and denies her charges of cruelty or that he ever failed to provide the necessaries of life for herself and the children.

For Timber Trespass.

The Cook County Lumber company has brought an action in district court against Bates & McDonald, a lumber firm of this city, to recover a judgment of $710.50 for timber which the plaintiff claims the defendant illegally cut on its lands in sections 9 and 10, townships 61 and 62. The amount of timber alleged to have been cut is 14,030. F. L. Gilbert and E. T. Buxton, of the Red Cliff Lumber company, have started a similar action brought against the defendants to recover $620.60 for about 10,540 feet alleged to have been cut on the plaintiff's lands in section 9-61 and 9-62.

CHARGED WITH MURDER.

Brainered W man and Two Men Under Arrest.

Brainerd, Minn., Aug. 26.—The police have arrested Mrs. Albert Williams, John Burrig and George Drill, on the charge of murdering Mrs. Williams' three-year-old daughter.

Mrs. Williams' husband has been in the North Dakota harvest and since his departure she has frequently been seen on the streets at night, always leading her little girl. She was found asleep in the park early Sunday morning and as the child was not with her suspicion was at once aroused and she was arrested.

The theory of foul play arose from the statement made by Mrs. Williams to Chief of Police Sargeant at the city jail. She stated that Burrig had advised her to drown the child, as it was half witted and worthless.

After hearing this the work of dragging the river was at once begun and the body of the child was found a short distance below the point where it is supposed to have been thrown into the river.

THE CUP WILL STAY.

By winning the second of the series of races for the America's cup, the Reliance has demonstrated her superiority over the Shamrock III in practically all kinds of weather, and the outlook is that the next race will decide the contest. The cup has been ably defended, and Sir Thomas Lipton will be forced to return to England without the coveted trophy. In last Saturday's race, the Reliance won over a course of fifteen miles to windward and return, her margin of victory, after deducting the handicap allowance to the Shamrock, being 7 minutes and 3 seconds. On Tuesday, the race was over a triangular course of thirty miles—three legs of ten miles each—and again the Reliance was winner, but by a much closer margin, her advantage at the finish, allowing for the handicap, being only 1 minute and 19 seconds. The Shamrock made a much better showing than on Saturday, though her skipper bungled at the start, causing the challenger to lose 19 seconds of her handicap. Sir Thomas is still hopeful of winning the next race of the series, but at this distance it looks like a forlorn hope. It is true that the margin in the second race was very small, but there is nothing to indicate that the Shamrock could do better in another race. There was a rattling whole sail breeze, and this was claimed by the challenger's admirers to be what she needed to ensure victory. But the Reliance demonstrated her superiority in that style of weather just as she did when a lighter breeze prevailed. The Shamrock III is the fastest boat that Sir Thomas has brought over, but not fast enough to wrest the coveted trophy from the defender.

Whether Sir Thomas will make another effort to lift the cup is doubtful. He has spent a fortune in the attempt. It is estimated that each of his attempts has cost him more than half a million dollars. This year his expenses have been more than they have been in former years, because he has kept two racing boats in commission. A careful estimate of his expenses has placed the total at $700,000, including the cost of entertaining his friends. Of course, Sir Thomas is a very wealthy man and can afford the sport and amusement, but it is rather disheartening to expend $1,500,000 or more in fruitless efforts to capture the America's cup, and he may conclude to quit with this third attempt.

REDUCING THE SALOONS.

The good people of Sacramento, Cal., who have been working hard in the cause of temperance, are well pleased with a recent ordinance passed by the city council which will limit the number of saloons in that city. They regard it as a most promising start, looking to a much greater restriction of the liquor traffic in the future. The ordinance will gradually reduce the number of saloons to 100 and will do away with the "side entrances," which it is claimed, have done much harm in that city. The ordinance will eliminate saloons by refusing licenses when the persons now holding such go out of the business or die. In fact, the ordinance states expressly that the board of trustees shall grant no licenses to other persons than those now engaged in the saloon business. After a period of thirty days from the adoption of the ordinance, no one conducting a saloon in the residential section of Sacramento shall be permitted under any circumstances to change the location of his saloon. With the business section a saloon may be moved from one street to another if the consent of the property owners be obtained.

In all probability the pleasure of the prohibitionists will be short-lived. The liquor element will not sit calmly and witness such a reduction of saloons. It is very probable that the matter will be made an issue in the next local campaign. As the new law is but an ordinance, it can be as easily rescinded as it was passed, and for that reason much attention will be paid at the next municipal campaign to the election of candidates who will overthrow the ordinance. The temperance people will have to go deeper in order to make such radical legislation permanent.

King Edward is reported as on the point of giving up his long connection with the turf and also with yachting contests. He has done enough for these national sports in the last forty years, he thinks; and will compete no more. No new Britannia will be placed in commission. This is another indication that the king is growing old.

A SURPRISING ASSERTION.

It is not surprising that the paper read by Superintendent Chapman of the Grand Rapids experiment station to the American Forestry convention at Minneapolis aroused a lively discussion and provoked sharp criticism. Mr. Chapman advanced the claim that the farmer who settles on jack or Norway pine soil makes a mistake—that such soil is not good agricultural land and attempts to cultivate it must result in failure. Mr. Chapman's views found a few supporters in the convention, but they also met with vigorous opposition from those who have seen different results attending the operations of farming on the cut-over lands where jack and Norway pine had grown.

There are hundreds of farmers in Northern Minnesota who have settled on jack and Norway pine lands who are prosperous and contended, and they will be astonished to learn, if they happen to read Mr. Chapman's paper, that they "are of no benefit to a community." Their fertile farms and prosperous condition are a clear refutation of this libel. Mr. Chapman's theories and assertions are not supported by the facts, as anyone can see who will visit the splendid farms that have been created on the lands from which jack and Norway pine has been cut.

PROFESSIONAL JURORS.

On the ground that specialists are fast becoming important factors in almost every known profession and science, Tudor Jenks argues in the Ausust Munsey that professional jurors would fill a long-felt want in the judicial system of the country. He would have put in the place of the jury of laymen, a jury made up of men trained to decide matters of fact and evidence, just as legal judges are now educated to decide questions purely of law.

"What is there revolutionary in such a proposal?" asks Mr. Jenks. "Is it not in line with all modern progress? We have long passed the days when every man was a jack of all trades. The decision of controversies upon weight of evidence, and the nice estimation of theories, is expert work and should be done by those educated, trained, and experienced in such matters. After all, lawyers, in order to present their clients' cases to juries, are trained in precisely this ability. They learn to sift evidence, to estimate credibility, to decide upon the relative probability of opposing accounts; they, in short, are trained jurymen, and need only the law's sanction to perform the functions now blunderingly botched by the haphazard laymen.

"For this work they should be adequately paid. In their work, they should be assured of the same respect and submission now exacted by the bench. They should be able to settle issues, and, when settled, to decide them. The equity courts have long performed such offices, and have proved the possibility and desirability of the change. The professional jurors would take to the consideration of issues of fact the probity of their characters, instead of the ignorance that characterizes the ideal lay juror. They could be allowed to go home and visit their families with the same reliance upon their honor that now forbids any espionage or restriction of the judge upon the bench. There might be corrupt jurors, as there are corrupt judges; but the rarity of soiled ermine would be just as great. Legislatures are the most powerful bodies in the world; and the legislatures rule themselves. If a president of the United States be impeached, we do not require that a jury to try him shall be drawn by lot from the citizens of the republic. And yet, if the jury system be the ideal, why should it not be invoked in these, the most important cases that can arise under our government?

"In brief, my proposal is this: Let there be a professional jury bench, made up of men learned in these branches of legal lore and civil and criminal codes that teach the correct determination of issues of fact. Let the lay jury be abolished, and all issues of fact be made triable before a bench that shall determine these, and these alone. Such a change would be no more than the specialization and division of labor that insures skillful and just sifting of facts, and it requires only the utilization of the legal talent available in all civilized lands. The modern jury is a survival, in a corrupt form, of what was once a useful means of justice. Modern ideas demand its reformation, and its return to something that will accomplish for us what the old jury system did for our forefathers."

The suggestions of Mr. Jenks are certainly worthy of careful consideration. All will admit that the present jury system is in some respects a failure and some change must soon be made. Why not let some state try the professional jury plan and see how it will work?

JEWS SELF SUPPORTING.

It is a notable fact that but few Jews apply for assistance from charitable organizations. Further than this, but a small percentage of that race is found in jails or public institutions. The Jew, so long as he is healthy, as a rule is self-supporting. There are many poor Jews, and the causes of their poverty are peculiar only in so far as alcoholism and the results of dissipation are not factors in its production. However, illness, real and occasionally imaginary, sometimes compels the Jew to seek charity.

According to Dr. Maurice Fishberg, in the American Hebrew, among the disease conditions which are frequently operative in reducing the Jew to dependency are to be mentioned the various forms of functional neuroses, the sequelae of acute diseases, as pneumonia, typhoid, rheumatism, etc., which leave the patient in a debilitation condition, so that he is unable to support himself for a few weeks and often months of convalescence. Consumption is a cause of dependency which demands the greatest attention on the part of charity organizations, particularly from the standpoint of prevention. The Jews are very receptive to the teachings of hygienic and prophylactic measures, and always recognize contagion as a cause of certain diseases. The wretched physical appearance of some of the poorer people is the result of centuries of confinement in the European ghettos. In the United States, where he enjoys freedom, the Jew recuperates physically to an extent unknown among other races. The physical and moral deterioration of the first generation of immigrants in a strange country is not to be observed among the Jewish children, even among those who are unfortunate, and for that reason may be compelled to apply to a charity organization.

HOTEL GOSSIP

Congressman and Mrs. J. Adam Bede arrived in the city last evening, and intended to have a little vacation visiting about Duluth. They were at the St. Louis hotel and all comfortably settled, when last evening early a telephone bell came from Hibbing.

"Congressman Bede," said the man at Hibbing.

After a whole lot of hunting and bother he was found, and believing it might be someone with a desire to aid the wheels of government with an offer of their services, or some mining magnate or a captain of industry who needed harbors, he answered.

"This is Hibbing," said the voice, "and we want you here to make the speech opening the carnival tomorrow morning."

"Great heavens, how do you expect me to be there in the morning," shouted the excited congressman, "walk?"

The congressman wilted and hung up the phone.

He thought of the undignified procedure; the humiliation of one of the nation's lawmakers getting up at 6:30 o'clock.

Then he thought of Hibbing, and what old Hibbing did last fall.

He had a vision of what it might do next fall, too, perhaps.

At any rate he left on the early train this morning, and will make one of his characteristic speeches for the delectation of the cosmopolitan population of Hibbing this morning, or possibly afternoon, when the carnival and the "loop-the-loop" and the "eat 'em-alive" and the "Carizine, the original Midway dawn-sah" men will open for business in the iron ribbed, steel clad and anti-compass town of Hibbing.

"Yes," said Congressman William Sulzer of New York, as he lit and started to puff his third 3-for-half, and leaned back in his chair at the Spalding hotel last evening, waiting for the North West to come in. "I have heard of your Mr. Bede. His name gives him a good start, and to help matters he tells a story as well as James Whitcomb Riley, and looks the part, and that means that he has everyone beat in the United States, excepting Mr. Riley. Because Riley is the best ever.

"I'm not much of a story teller myself, but a little thing happened to me at Seattle the other day that struck me as funny.

"I was on my way back to the states from Alaska and stopped at the Trans-Mississippi congress in Seattle. I met a lot of acquaintances, and many Alaska friends, also.

"The day before I got there some thieves took the safe out of the principal hotel in the city, rolled it down the hill back of the building, and dynamited it, getting considerable booty.

"Then there were a large number of gambling houses running about the city, but they are not what they used to be, when they were in every hotel lobby, every saloon, lodging house, cigar stand and almost every building. You didn't have to walk ten feet any way from anywhere to gamble in some form.

"Well, I was talking to a citizen there I knew, and he told me of the wave of reform they were experiencing in the city. He said it was in progress, and promised to make the town a very respectable place sooner or later.

"'We don't want to shut it off too suddenly, so we are permitting a little to exist,' he said.

"'A little?' I asked. 'You Westerners are too modest.'

"'Well, I know,' he said all serious, 'but there are so many Easterners come in here that we have had to hold things down this much anyway.'"

F. D. Lyon, district passenger agent, and Frank H. Beach, traveling passenger agent, of the Rock Island road, were in the city yesterday looking up business for their road. In discussing the Minneapolis rate question, which has resulted in the $25 to New York and return, he said that it had sprung a trap in Minneapolis which would end, no one knows where, as the blood of the roads is up, and they are all pretty mad. The Soo and Wsiconsin Central have both taken aggressive steps to cause the low rates, and are at outs, and there is no telling when another road may step to the front and get on the outs. Then it will be fight.

Mr. Lyon spent a day looking over passenger business, and visiting the city ticket agents. The road is receiving a good many passengers out of Duluth, especially over the southern route to the Pacific coast.

She Was Not Satisfied.

Philadelphia Press: A good story was told by the earl of Yarmouth, who recently married Miss Thaw of Pittsburg, on his return to England. One evening shortly before their wedding the nobleman and his bride-elect were the guests at dinner at the house of a prominent Pittsburg family. The meal was en famille and little 9-year-old daughter of the host was the earl's vis-a-vis. Not once did she take her eyes off his lordship's face, and finally asked:

"Are you a real English lord?"

The nobleman, laughing, said that he was. The little girl, after a few moments of silence, said thoughtfully:

"I never saw an English lord before and I have always been so anxious to see a real one."

"And now that you have seen one, you are satisfied, aren't you?" said his lordship, laughingly.

"No," said the little miss frankly, "I am not satisfied. I am very much disappointed."

REUBEN JAMES.

And the knightly king of Naples lent him seven galleys more,
And never since the Argo floated in the middle sea
Such noble men and valiant have sailed in company
As the men who went with Preble to the siege of Tripoli.

Lawrence, Porter, Trippe, Macdonough and a score as true and bold;
Every star that lights their banner tells the glory that they won;
But one common sailor's story is the splendor of the sun.

Reuben James was first to follow when Decatur laid aboard
Of the lofty Turkish galley and in battle broke his sword.
Then the pirate captain smote him till his blood was running fast,
And they grappled and they struggled, and they fell beside the mast.
Close behind him Reuben battled with a dozen undismayed,
Till a bullet broke his sword arm and he dropped the useless blade.
Then a swinging Turkish saber clove his left and brought him low.
Little mercy knows the corsair; high his blade was raised to slay,
When a richer prize allured him where Decatur struggling lay.
"Help!" the Turkish leader shouted, and his trusty comrade sprung,
And his cimiter like lightning o'er the Yanke captain swung.

Reuben James, disabled, armless, saw the saber flash on high,
Saw Decatur shrink before it, heard the pirate's taunting cry,
Saw, in half the time I tell it, how a stalior brave and true
Still might show a bloody pirate what a dying man can do.
Quick he struggled, stumbling, sliding in the blood around his feet,
As the Turk a moment waited to make vengeance doubly sweet.
Swift the saber fell, but swifter bent the sailor's head below,
And upon his 'fenseless forehead Reuben James received the blow!

So was saved our brave Decatur; so the common sailor died;
So the love that moves the lowly lifts the great to fame and pride.
Yet we grudge him not his honors, for whom love like this had birth—
For God never ranks His sailors by the register of earth!

MUFFINS AND THE GIRL

By Clara Morton.

(Copyright 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Yes, Mrs. Wamp uses decidedly poor judgment. I have always said so. I say so still. She knows how exclusive I am. Yes what does she do but place the new boarder at my table. Had the new boarder been a gentleman, and one of quiet, refined tastes like myself, I should not have made any objections. But as I look over my morning paper the first object that greets me is a woman sitting opposite, gorging herself on oatmeal and cream. And she is using such a quantity of cream. I'm sure she thinks cream comes in barrels. She flushed her oatmeal much with it, as if she were using the garden hose. I know she is going to take it all and leave none for me. And Mrs. Wamp makes embarrassing remarks when we ask for a second pitcher. I peruse my morning paper, inwardly bewailing Mrs. Wamp's poor judgment.

"If you please, sir, I'll have a muffin."

With a vague idea that I am addressed I raise my eyes. Yes, the woman is looking straight at me. The muffin plate is near and evidently intended for me. I have no desire to share my hot muffins with a strange woman just because she happens to sit at my table. Furthermore, I am astounded. She asked for muffins without having had any introduction. Her conduct is highly improper. When I ignored her entreaty and showed my contempt by resuming my paper she she extended her hand to the muffin plate and deliberately took one from under my nose. I said nothing. But I have fully made up my mind to go directly to Mrs. Wamp and have this oranger removed to another part of the dining room.

I ate my breakfast in some irritation. Mrs. Wamp is fully aware of my aversion to women, and to forward women especially. I am a man of quiet taste. She has heard me express myself forcibly on that subject. When old Mrs. Pennywell first came she sat at my table. I immediately had the rich old snob removed to another table. Now she sits and waves her be-diamond fingers at the waiters and looks at me through her lorgnette. I have always disliked Mrs. Pennywell.

The woman opposite is not like Mrs. Pennywell. She's a younger female. In fact, much younger. Too young, indeed, to be allowed to annoy gentlemen of quiet tastes. I observe that Mrs. Pennywell dislikes the young woman at my table. She now levels her lorgnette at her instead of me. There must be something nice about the young woman to arouse Mrs. Pennywell's resentment. I see. The lady is very young. I am interested to find that her chin has a dimple and a delicate turn that reminds me of Sarah Belle. Sarah Belle was a small, curly-headed girl that I went to school with. But this girl is decidedly forward.

Mrs. Pennywell still stares at her. And all the other boarders watch her, too. There is not an eye in the dining-room that does not follow her as she goes out. She is decidedly pretty. To bad, too bad, that she is forward in her manners. I am quite prejudiced on account of that muffin episode. She is graceful, too. I am sure if Sarah Belle had lived she would have walked with just such movements. A sort of lilt in every step.

Mrs. Pennywell has just frowned at her son for turning to look after her. Young Pennywell is a scamp. If he dare to speak to her I'll knock him down. As I hurry I remember I wish to speak to Mrs. Wamp, the landlady, about some matter. For the life of me, I can't think what it is.

I find as I open the door that the air is delicious. The day is bright and sunny and perfect. As I descend the steps I wave my hand lightly to Tom Hall, who is passing on the other side of the street. He stops, looks at me inquiringly, and finally crosses over.

"Why, what's the matter?" he exclaims, coming nearer.

"Nothing. Why?"

"By George, are you crazy?" as he slaps me on the back.

I only smile at Tom. Somehow the sun is so warm and cherry that I can afford to be affable.

The office is a dreary place. A horrid, grinding place. Men come in and interrupt your quietest thoughts. If that tobacco scheme I have afloat comes to a head I am going to take a rest from business. Strange, though, I had not though business cares irksome before. I am to dine with George Scott tonight. It seems there is a difference of opinion among the stockholders about the dividends. When Scott left my office just now he asked if I had heard good news. He remarked in explanation that I seemed jolly today. Great Heavens, can it be true that I have not been jolly all the time! But then, this tobacco scheme in Mexico has been on my mind a good deal of late.

I'm glad the day is over. I dined with Scott. The business wan't so important, after all.

At table this morning I took up the paper, as usual. I don't care much about the news today; but I must make a pretense. I must be careful about holding it upside down. That young Pennywell is dull, but he would notice that and slap it out before the whole dining-room. Aind he might make it very embarrassing for a gentleman of quiet tastes.

I notice that Mrs. Pennywell is staring at the chair opposite me. It must be occupied. I glance slyly. It is, and she has a fuzzy pink bow under her chin this morning. Sarah Belle wore pink. I loke pink. My plate of muffins is steaming hot. I am sure she'll like them. I pass them across. She looks at me a moment with wide open eyes, then, deliberately ignoring my courtesy, she called the waiter and requested a plate of muffins for herself. She placed disagreeable emphasis on each word. If Sarah Belle had lived I would have sworn that the saucy eyes flashing at me and the scornful, willful pout were hers.

I am surprised to find Mrs. Wamp at my elbow. "Excuse me, Mr. Gray, the servants made a mistake in placing Miss Ashley at your table. I failed to remind them of your wishes. Mrs. Pennywell has kindly consented to let Miss Ashley sit at her table. Hers being the only one with a vacant place."

Can I belier my own ears? Mrs. Wamp speaks to me as if I were in the habit of objecting to people at my table. She seems to take it as a matter of course.

"Why, indeed, Mrs. Wamp," I begin. I am greatly embarrassed, for I am thinking of Sarah Belle—I mean, Miss Ashley—picturing her at the table with the lorgnette and that young Pennywell with his inane grin. "I am sure if Miss Ashley has no objection to sit here I have none."

My face is very red, I know, and you may hear a pin drop in the silence of the room.

She tosses her head. I know she has decided on the other table. She turns about and coolly surveys it. She meets the insipid smile of young Pennywell. She evidently likes the scoundrel. She pulls Mrs. Wamp down and whispers. Mrs. Wamp smiles, nods and passes out. I am surprised to see the young lady proceed with her breakfast. I am all curiosity. She pours the cream over her oatmeal. I like people who enjoy cream.

"Are you going to stay here at my table?" I venture.

"Wouldn't it be wise to have the table surveyed first?"

"Why?"

"I want to know the boundary line. I won't trespass any more, and I'll pay back the muffins I borrowed yesterday."

"Forget about it," I began, "I mean forgive me. My muffin plate is yours and the muffins on it—" I stopped. I wanted to say more.

"And you won't care, and you won't be cross?"

Bless her heart and her Sarah Belle-like face. But I say aloud, with good-breeding and reserve, because, of couse, she wouldn't realize about fishing-ponds and pink sun-bonnets and curls and dainty laughs and brown eyes, "I should be delighted."

A Stupendous Enterprise.

Washington Star: "Rafferty," said Mr. Dolan, "are yez payin' attintion till the trusts?"

"I am that."

"Do yez think they're goin' to swallow up the country?"

"I had me suspicions. But I've been lookin' at the map. There's watermelons in Georgia, and peaches in New Jersey an' California pears on the Pacific coast, not to mintion the mineral products, such as coal, iron, copper, lead an' prairie dogs. An' I've concluded that any wan trust that tries to swallow the intire outfit is in line fur wan o' the biggest attacks of indygestion on record."

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Some women are so immodest it makes them blush to get into a bathtub after a man.

It's queer what a splendid effect on the brain spanking on an entirely different place has.

No woman who has a child of her own can ever be entirely just to some other woman's child.

The more ways a man thinks over to get a girl to let him kiss her the surer he is to find that the best way is just to go and do it.

A Song Writer's Peril.

New York Times: By the celebration of the eighty-third birthday of L. O. Emerson, the popular ballad writer, who composed "A Life on the Ocean Wave" and "The Ivy Green," old friends of Henry Ward Beecher are reminded of the strong liking the famous Plymouth church pastor had for these fine songs, both of which he used to sing with an unction all his own.

The two met once—away back in the sixties—and the preacher opened the conversation. "Let me tell you, Mr. Emerson, that if you had not written 'The Ivy Green' I might have been sent to jail and you to a hospital."

"Why, how is that, Mr. Beecher?"

"Because, on learning that you were its author, I decided not to carry out a carefully laid plan to assault you."

"To assault me?" exclaimed the astounded Emerson.

"Yes, sir. When I sighted Liverpool, after my first passage across the Atlantic, I registered a vow that if I were spared to reach land I would make it my first duty to find and lick the man who wrote 'A Life on the Ocean Wave.'"

By the Sea.

It was down by the sea that I saw her,
By the sea, with its spray and its roar;
I watched her plunge into the breakers
And boldly strike out from the shore.
She came from the ocean all dripping,
And lovingly looking at me,
But I had no wish to be near her
On the beach sloping down to the sea.
It was down by the sea that I saw her
Run playfully up the wide shore;
Perhaps she was glad that I noticed
The happy expression she wore;
But I had no wish to be near her,
As, dripping, she came from the sea;
She was only a collie that wanted
To shake herself all over me.

—New York Herald.

Evidently a Slight Mistake.

Indianapolis News: Even the distressing affair in the Balkans has its humor. Dr. Tartarcheff, one of the vice presidents of the Central Macedonian committee, says that the American press has been bought with Turkish gold. Just what the doctor expected the American press to do is pretty hard to guess. There are two things, however, that he has evidently neglected to take into consideration before making the charge: First, the revolutionists have been getting the best of it in the American papers, while the sultan has been receiving his regular roasts; second, Turkey hasn't any gold.

Wise Old Farmer!

Scottish American: The story of the old farmer who was once invited to take tea with a former duke and duchess of Buccleuch, is still remembered at Drumlanrig castle, on the Dumfriesshire estate of the duke. His first cup of tea was gone almost before the duchess had finished pouring it out, and John passed his cup again. Again and again and still again the cup was passed to the head of the table, when the duchess, alarmed at the sixteenth cup, asked: "How many cups do you take, John?" The old farmer was wise in his day. "How mony do ye gie?" he asked.

School Children's Competitive Advertising Contest No. 22

There was a jolly miller
Lived on the River Dee;
He worked and sang from morn till night
No lark so blithe as he.
And this the burden of his song
Forever used to be:
I care for nothing else—no! not I,
Only my bowl of Egg-O-See.

This sketch was made by Minnie Ashton, age 12, Humboldt School, Kansas City, Mo.

We give a cash prize of $5.00 for any drawing of this character which we accept and use. All school children can compete. Full instructions on inside of each package of Egg-O-See telling what to do to get the prize and how to make the drawings.

COPPER IS FIRM

Walker Reports Complete Change In Tone of the Market.

Trade Shows Disposition to Buy—The Copper Share Market.

The copper market is higher and firmer, according to George L. Walker, the correspondent. He finds a complete change in the market tone within the past week. He says:

"Copper is higher and the market is firm. Lake is selling at 13⅜ cents and electrolytic at 13⅝ cents. There are strong bids for considerable lots at prices only fractionally below the market. The tone of the market has undergone a complete transformation since a week ago. Consumers, who then refused to bid 13 cents, have since been heavy buyers at high prices, and are bidding 13⅝ cents for more. There is now a general willingness shown by the trade to buy at ruling prices for distant future requirements. This predicted activity among consumers is certainly being realized.

"It was pointed out in last week's letter that London prices were high enough to warrant purchases of copper in this country for export. I learn that it is largely due to such buying that the market has had its sharp advance. Exports will, as a result, show a considerable increase in the near future. There was a further rise of £1 15s. net in London quotations this week, equivalent to fully a quarter cent per pound. "Best selected" is selling London on the basis of 13⅝ cents in United States money, which is nearly equivalent to 14 cents for electrolytic copper.

"The increase of 1111 tons in the foreign visible supplies of copper during the first half of August was the result of the increased exports from this country last week, the amount being 1200 tons, or more than the total increase in the foreign visible supply in two weeks. Available stocks of copper in the foreign market are very low and must be replenished. About two weeks ago spot copper sold das high as £2 10s. above futures, reflecting great distrust, on the part of consumers, in the market's future. At present spot is only £1 above futures, indicating a marked decrease in bearish sentiment.

"Some leading trade authorities are very bullish on the outlook. I get the prediction from three different sources that copper will sell at 14 cents before the end of this month, and that it will average as high as that during the remainder of the year. The Washoe smelter and the Washoe, Anaconda and Parrot mines (Amalgamated) remain closed. No improvement of the situation at the United Verde is reported. A Mexican dispatch states that the Greene Consolidated smelter will be dismantled and a better one constructed. If this report be true it will naaturally result in a considerable decrease in the output of that company for some time to come.

COPPER SHARE MARKET.

The coppers listed on the Boston Stock Exchange have at last been divorced from Amalgamated, and have shown an ability to both advance and decline regardless of the movements of their former leader. Copper Range has begun to present its claims to leadership of the local market, and Amalgamated, no longer able to lead, has shown a disposition to follow the movements of the Boston copper shares. It looks like a revolution of sentiment—as though it were again to be possible to have activity and life in the local market even when Amalgamated closes to be dull.

The one fact that stood out most conspicuously while the recent sharp advance was under way was the one that extremely few coppers were offered for sale at the higher range of prices. This proves the often-repeated contention that coppers are firmly and closely held, and that they are not in the hands of people who are simply waiting for an opportunity to sell them on the first rally. The movement demonstrated to me that the public is watching the coppers, that there are many who are ready to buy and that they will buy heavily in the immediate future unless they are discouraged from doing so. The outlook for the copper producing industry is certainly very promising, and there are a number of stocks on the list that are extremely attractive purchases at current prices. Such a combination is bound to make for activity and higher prices. I think the best of the coppers should be bought on all reactions, and that profits should be taken only on good rallies."

Discussing Amalgamated which has been moving in a sensational way, Walker says:

"Amalgamated was sold on the advance to above 50 by the same interest that bought it around 40 and below. Everybody was bullish on Amalgamated and was buying it at the top of the advance. It ought to sell higher; but it should not be bought on rallies. A lot of the daily newspaper writers have been treating the situation in this wise: 'The advance in Amalgamated is believed to be due rather to the fact that the company has strengthened its grasp on the copper industry than to the advance in the price of the metal. It is quite certain that control of the Heinze outfit has been or can be secured at will. That Amalgamated has purchased large blocks of other copper stocks recently admits of no doubt.' Bosh! Amalgamated went up with other New York stocks. Its advance was not remarkable. It is doing well to hold its own. It is making some money from the business of mining copper, and would be making more if its principal smelter were running. It is not controlling the copper metal market, or leading the copper share market, or doing much of anything else that many other producing copper companies are not doing. One of the best ways to improve its position would be for its stockholders to require the management to make full and complete annual reports of its operations, and to insist that its selling agency receive no more than fair compensation for its services. In the 40s Amalgamated should be a very good stock to buy on reactions. People in close touch with the insiders were told this week to buy Amalgamated on the reaction for a big advance. It was explained to them that the metal and stock markets are now in position to warrant bull speculation in the coppers."

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Deadwood—The Lucky Strike Mining company lost its shafthouse by fire last week. After the fire it was found that part of the machinery had fallen down the shaft. Harry Metzer, one of the employes of the company, volunteered to go into the mine and bring the machinery up.

When at the bottom he became unconscious and Fred W. Floormann, the foreman, went to rescue him. Floormann tied a rope around Metzer's body and the men above brought the young man to the surface. Floorman then started to climb up but was overcome by the gas and fell backward to the bottom. When he was brought to the surface it was found he had been asphyxiated.

Centerville—Injunction proceedings are getting to be a fad in this town. N. Noble, a member of the city council, was the most active in causing injunction proceedings against the board of education restraining it from building the proposed new schoolhouse.

This action caused a bitter feeling against Nobble, and as he presented a resolution, which was passed by the council, to expend $1000 for cutting down certain streets for drainage purposes, property owners object to a drainage canal in front of their residences and will try to defeat Noble's plans by injunction.

Miller—About twenty persons with guns and dogs have gone seven miles southwest of here to round up what they believe are two mountain lions, which were seen last night. These are presumably the ones that recently attacked Professor Snoddy.

Salem—J. W. Stratton was arrested for stealing a coat from J. Fendrick's saloon. Justice W. R. Holly gave him $40 or twenty days in Sioux Falls. Stratton is a stranger here and says the coat was taken by mistake when he was drunk.

Aberdeen—Mrs. Rassmussen of Sisseton has sued the Dakota Central Telephone lines for $5000 damages alleged to be the extent to which she was injured by driving into a wire that was down and suspended not far from the ground.

It is asserted that the wire was pulled down by a farmer who drove against it with a high hay-loading or stacking rig, and that he failed to replace it or notify the company of what had happened.

It is rumored that the company will go after him and other offenders against the law who have wilfully or accidentally torn down the company's lines at different times.

Elk Point—Alex. C. Reynick, government printer for the weather department, Minneapolis, came here to celebrate his mother's sixtieth birthday. Mrs. Reynick's children planned a pleasant surprise, in which over sixty ladies participated.

Newark—G. A. Lindquist, for seventeen years agent of the Milwaukee at this place, has resigned to become cashier in a newly organized bank at Langford.

Britton—Owing to the fact that horse stealing appears to have developed into a fad in this locality, the commissioners have offered a standing reward of $500.

Viborg—The town board has called a special election on Sept. 2, at which time the question of incorporating as a city will be voted upon.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—Recent rains have a tendency to discourage the farmers. The harvest is practically over, as far as barley and wheat is concerned, and the rains prevent the threshing. If the weather should turn warm there is danger of the wheat growing in the shock. Even if it does not grow, the moisture will stain the grain and knock off a grade.

The short straw enables the farmer to do more work in a day, and the price of wheat is such that a large percentage of them have evidently determined to put their wheat on the market rather than speculate by holding it. In the Red River Valley there has been less wheat held the last few years. Farmers who are inclined that way sell their wheat and buy options instead.

There is always a silver lining to every cloud, and the rains, while detrimental to wheat threshing, have resulted in putting the soil in magnificent condition for fall plowing. The fact that harvest was from eight to ten days earlier than usual will give the farmers an opportunity to get the crop out of the way and do more fall plowing than in other years.

ASTROLOGER SAYS

J. W. Folk Will Be President In 1908.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 26.—The stars say that Circuit Attorney Joseph W. Folk will be elected governor of Missouri in 1904 and president of the United States in 1908.

The horoscope of the St. Louis circuit attorney has been read by Julius Erickson, who foretold McKinley's career with remarkable accuracy.

In making the predictions for the future success of the circuit attorney the astrologer told things in his past with accuracy.

The horoscope was made in June and the prediction that Mr. Folk would be under serious mental strain in July was verified by the trouble he had in securing the conviction of Harry A. Faulkner, charged with perjury.

Circuit Attorney Folk is anxious to have the president recommend in a message to congress the adoption of treaties with all foreign countries which will render it impossible for "boodlers" to escape punishment.

Mr. Folk has not considered a visit to President Roosevelt, but in case it becomes necessary he probably will go to Oyster Bay or to Washington later.

Mr. Folk already has succeeded in having a bribary treaty made with Mexico, but as the constitutionu prohibits retroactive laws, it is not likely that any way will be found by which to apply the law to the former St. Louis Mexico, but as the constitution promoting mines in the vicinity of Guadalajara.

AT STATE FAIR

Creditable Exhibit of St. Louis County Products to Be Made.

County Fair Association Has the Matter In Charge.

Arrangements are now well underway for an excellent exhibit of the products of St. Louis county at the state fair, which will begin next week. The exhibit is to be made under the direction of the St. Louis County Fair association, and the board of directors has appointed George Stevens, of this city, to take the exhibit in charge.

Mr. Stevens has had a great deal of experience along this line of work, and the fair managemetn is confident that he will make a showing for St. Louis county that will rival the exhibits of other counties of the state.

During the next few days he will do a great deal of traveling about the county picking up exhibits that will be added to those already secured, and any and all persons residing in the city or county, who have, as they believe, articles which will help out the county exhibit at the state fair, are requested to leave the same at the office of Peachey & Lounsberry, in the basement of the Providence building, by Friday morning of this week. The exhibits must be packed for shipment to the state fair grounds Friday afternoon.

One of the features of the county exhibits will be the large $5000 model of the whaleback passenger steamer Christopher Columbus, which was made for Capt. McDougall, of this city, and which George Stevens was over a year in constructing.

The entire farm land exhibit of grains, vegetables, etc., of the Duluth Farm Land company has been promised, including an exhibit of forty different kinds of wood native to Northern Minnesota.

The Scott-Graff company has promised a fine exhibit of polished woodt taken from Northern Minnesota forests. Exhibits will be made of all of the grades of iron ore found on the ranges, with the names of the mines from which the samples were taken.

In connection with the mining exhibit will be immense photos of the principal mines on the ranges. One of the prominent Duluth exhibits will be an immense photo of the city, said to cost in the neighborhood of $100.

Several offers have already been made to the fair management from farmers residing near the city of some fine grain and hay exhibits, while others have garden truck of various kinds that are almost sure to be prize winners.

It is promised that the St. Louis county exhibit at the state fair will be one of the most tasty and well arranged to be viewed by the state fair patrons.

THE STAGE

One of the sensational melodramas, "An American Hobo," will play at the Lyceum theater this evening and tomorrow evening, the piece is by E. E. Kidder, author of "A Poor Relation," and "Peaceful Valley," Sol Smith Russel's plays, and deals with the heroic doings of a tramp, who lost his family once, and would rather be a tramp than work.

Friday night the melodrama, "Over Niagara Falls," will be presented and Saturday afternoon and night Lincoln J. Carter's "Down Mobile" is the bill.

The "Black Flag" again pleased a large audience at the Metropolitan last evening and seemed to give satisfaction to all. The different characteristics were all well taken and were heartily applauded. The play will be given for the last time this evening.

The final performance of "Fighting Bob" by S. Miller Kent and company was given at the Lyceum last evening and the audience was very small. It was well pleased with the play, however, and curtain calls were very numerous.

WILL VISIT THE RANGES

Party of German Engineers to Make Study of Iron Mining.

G. Glasenap, technical attache of the German embassy at Washington, accompanied by a delegation of German engineers, sent to this country by the German government to study industrial engineering, will leave Detroit this evening or tomorrow morning for Duluth, to look over the iron mines and great transportation feats performed here daily.

The party was in Cleveland yesterday and visited Senator Hanna's office, and were shown the unloading machines for the ore boats at the lake front, and other ore conveying contrivances which they expressed great astonishment.

The party left Cleveland for Detroit last night and will come here the latter part of the week.

Herr Glasenap and party have been expected here for a week or more, and when they arrive will be conducted over the iron ranges by a representative of an Eastern institution, who received notice to look out for them a fortnight ago.

They will probably be here Friday or Saturday, and will be taken over the ranges upon their arrival. After their return they will look over Duluth until the time for their going away.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Miner at Crystal Falls Has Hand Taken Off.

Crystal Falls—One of the most shocking accidents ever occurring on the Menominee range befell Andrew Kniska, a miner employed at the Great Western mine at Crystal Falls. Kniska was at work on the ninth level. Having occasion to go to the surface, he got into the skip and, reaching out, gave the signal to hoist. Before he had time to draw in his head the skip shot upwards. The unfortunate man's neck was caught and his head was completely severed from the body. The trunk of the corpse was carried to the surface, while the head was picked up at the tenth level.

Munising—Bears are reported to be unusually numerous in the country about Munising. There is scarcely a camp at all remote from the town that is not habitually visited by members of the bruin tribe, while Finn & McCann's camp has been the haunt of an old bear and her cubs nearly all summer. At Ironwood, up on the Gogebic range, a number of black bears have been killed north of the city recently, and it is said that these animals are becoming more numerous in that section every year.

Those who predicted there would be a great many robberies during carnival week at Munising have another guess coming. Only one robbery was reported and whether it was the irony of fate or not the fact remains that it was one of the showmen who claims to have suffered the loss. The victim was the man who sold tickets at the electric theater, of which he was the proprietor. He sported a big diamond on his shirt front and of this gem he claims he was robbed. He values the stone at $500. Before leaving town the showman offered to pay $150 for the recovery of the diamond. It is the opinion of the officers that some follower of the carnival committed the robbery.

Menominee—The lives of the family of Otto Frenzel, who lives on Grand boulevard, near Poplar Point, Menominee, were attempted a few nights ago by unknown persons. The parties who tried to do the deed had piled straw and shavings around the building and then saturated it with kerosene. A large dynamite fuse, nearly twenty feet long, had been stretched from the straw to the woodshed. The fuse was burned, but the straw failed to ignite. The police are investigating, but so far have secured no clue to the identity of the guilty parties.

Despondent over domestic affairs, Mrs. Neis Goodchild, of Talbot, Menominee county, tried to commit suicide by taking paris green. She is still in a critical condition and her attempt at self-destruction may yet succeed. A quarrel with her husband, who is said to have ordered her to leave the house, is said to have led to the woman's resort to poison.

Newbery—Menominee county will this week send two more patients to the Newbery insane asylum. One is Joseph Manel, aged 70, the man who attempted to cut his wife's throat and then commit suicide, previous to which he had taken $200 in bills, the savings of a daughter, and set the money afire. The other is Mrs. Solomon Rotter, of Birch Creek, also aged about 70, who has made repeated efforts to hang herself.

STOLE A FORTUNE.

Police Learn More About the Swell Burglar.

New York, Aug. 26.—The police have learned more as to "Gentleman George" Brooks, the Fifth avenue district burglar.

What bothers the detective bureau most now is the question as to whether his wife can be brought on from Kansas City, where she is under arrest. The police think that she is an accomplice of her husband. She says that she thought Brooks bought all her fine dresses with money made in Wall street. While Capt. Langan was asking the district attorney's office about this it was learned that a woman whom the police describe as a prominent society woman, saw Brooks at the Tombs police court on Saturday about some very old silver which he stole from her house. She values it at $10,000.

Brooks broke down and admitted the theft. A maid employed by Mrs. E. C. Benedict, of 10 West Fifty-first street, went to the detective bureau and identified an ermine coat valued at $700, and several other expensive furs as the property of Mrs. Benedict. It is known that Brooks stole articles worth more than $50,000.

WOULD PREVENT CRUELTY.

Berlin, Aug. 26.—The Berlin Society For the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals is taking the initiative in attempting to bring about an international understanding on the subject of cruelty to animals and birds in Italy with the aim to support the work of the Italian societies and with the co-operation of the Italian government.

Gray-Tallant Co

Fashion is a Flirt!

TODAY she places the mark of approval upon one thing; tomorrow it is another. For several seasons she has smiled upon only plain dress materials; she now casts winning glances at materials of the rougher sort. Not extreme fancies, but cloths of rough surfaces and of neat hairlines and invisible checks. All these are worthy of her attention and are sure to be general favorites. We have anticipated her move and have on hand the favored weaves for all occasions.

For Evening Wear.

There is no uncertainty whatever as to the weaves for evening wear. The popular voile will be among the leaders, while crepe de Chine is a very strong favorite. Indeed, any cloth with a crepe-like surface will receive the sanction of all who are thoroughly conversant with what should be worn. Our line of these materials range in price from 60c to $1.75; strong line at $1 and $1.25.

For Semi-dress Wear.

Possibly the hardest of all dresses to select. It must combine service and sufficient style for the parlor. You will not find our line lacking in a good assortment of these cloths. The new Sangliers cloth is especially desirable for such dresses. It possesses the best qualities of both voile and etamine weaves. Other desirable weaves are wool crepes, nattes, armures, melrose, etamine and the ever popular broadcloth and Venetian which have so deservedly won a permanent place with lovers of fine dress fabrics. Our prices for these lines range from 59c to $3.50 the yard.

For Street Wear.

Materials for this suit will be of the hard finished weave—such as Canvas Cloths, heavy Etamines, Sicillians, Cheviots, Canadensis, Bouretted Etamines, Zibelines and the Scotch Mixtures. This is the suit that will get most of the hard wear and necessarily the material must be of a texture that will keep its appearance, as well as give character and style to the garment. We have bought liberally of this line and feel that you owe it to yourself to see it before purchasing elsewhere. The prices range from 79c to $2.50 a yard.

For White Waists.

White will be the leading color for waistings this fall. The weaves most favored will be Lansdowne, Mohair Brilliantines, Sicillian, Batiste, Crepe de Chine and Wool Crepe. There is nothing so dressy as the white waist, besides fashion places her approval on it, making it decidedly favored. Our prices range from 39c to $1.50 a yard.

GREAT IRON FIELD

Joseph Sellwood of Duluth Interested In New Range.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Aug. 26.—A trip of inspection to the district has developed the fact that the reports that Chase S. Osborn and associates have a big thing in the recently discovered Moose mountain iron range were no exaggeration. Moose mountain, in fact, is a veritable mountain of iron ore and the center of a district that will furnish a big tonnage for decades to come. The whole country including that section is a wilderness uninhabited except by a few Indians and trappers. Moose mountain is but 200 miles from Hudson bay, yet next year will see a railroad extended to the district and active development and mining work in progress.

Mr. Osborn himself, possesses the distinction of having discovered the new ore field, the location of which was made as the result of a hunting trip to that portion of Ontario. The range is vast in extent, although its limits have not yet been determined. Starting at Moose mountain, where ore was first found, one may travel for hours, going either northwest or southeast, and constantly encounter new outcrops. In fact, after two years of prospecting, which constantly changed the limits of the formation, it has been established that the length of the range is over 100 miles—how much more is not known, as both the west and east boundaries are still apparently as far as ever from being permanently fixed.

How many millions of tons of ore—or hundreds of millions—are contained in the new iron region is something, of course, that cannot even be approximately estimated. Professor Van Hise, of the University of Wisconsin, whose fame as a geologist entitles his opinion to serious consideration, has declared after a visit to the range that the Moose mountain section possesses a greater showing of ore at the surface than any range ever opened on the American continent, and like him prominent mining men of the Lake Superior ranges have been amazed at the extent of the field.

The ore is of good commercial grade, and much of it is of exceedingly high quality. That which protrudes through the surface at least is a magnetic, as distinguished from the ores of the Michigan ranges, which are for the most part hematites, and it is so strongly charged that each chunk of the mineral is in reality a perfect magnet. There is no trace of titanium, the bete noir of the Canadian iron prospector, while phosporus exists in such limited quantities as to make considerable of the ore bessemer in quality. Diamond drill borings at Moose mountain, the only portion of the deposits explored in that manner, have proven that the ore bodies extead to the depth of 400 feet. The holes were put down to that depth only, so that how much deeper the iron will be found is exceedingly problematical. There is reason to believe, however, that the deposits will be found to lie as deep as to the south of Lake Superior, where some iron mines are hoisting from a depth of 3000 feet and still are not at the limit of their mineral wealth.

If more were needed than expert investigation to show the mineral value of the Moose mountain country, the decision of the Canadian Pacific road to extend its line to the new range offers ample evidence. The extension will be built from Sudbury, which by trail and wagon road is some forty miles from Moose mountain. The first survey has just been completed and the location of the track is engaging the attention of the engineers.

Associated with Mr. Osborn are several men of wealth, including Joseph Sellwood of Duluth, the well known mine owner, who purpose to develop their properties themselves. No stock has been placed on the market nor will it be, and only recently an offer of $2,000,000 made by the Union Steel company for the Moose mountain tract alone, as it stands, undeveloped, was refused.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Fire destroyed the Auburn, Cal., hotel at an early hour Tuesday morning and Daniel Christy and W. B. Maither were burned to death.

The temperature on the street at Washington Tuesday was the highest since July 1, 1901, the thermometer at 4 o'clock registering 103 degrees. Ten prostrations from the heat were reported up to 9 o'clock. None of them is likely to prove fatal.

Martin Duffy of Chicago, won from Matty Matthews Tuesday night at Port Huron, Mich., in a ten-round bout which went to the limit and thus retains the light welterweight championship of the world.

Five prisoners, including Carlos McCormick, the boy murderer, aged 16, escaped from Pima county, Arizona, jail by digging a hole in the wall of the jjail and dropping from the second story by means of a rope made from their blankets. All of the prisoners, except McCormick were Mexicans under sentence for smuggling and selling liquor to Indians.

During a heavy thunderstorm Tuesday afternoon the lights in Baney's theater at Newark, N. J., were suddenly extinguished and the audience, composed mainly of women and children, became panic stricken and rushed for the fire escapes, many of the women fainting and being trampled on. Florence Kelrigel, aged 6 years, fell from a fire escape platform and was probably fatally injured. No one else was seriously hurt and after the panic had subsided the audience resumed their seats.

By an explosion of gas at the Altoona Gas company's works at Altoona, Pa., three laborers were burned, two perhaps fatally.

The warehouse of P. W. Engs & Sons, whisky distilleries at New York, was gutted by fire, causing a loss estimated at $175,000.

Winfield Baker, formerly of the mountains of Kentucky, was convicted in the circuit court at Danville, Ill., of assault to murder Sheriff Whitlock. He was sentenced to a term of from one to fourteen years. This is the first conviction and trial of a member of the mob that attacked the Danville jail the latter part of July after having lynched the negro, James Metcalf and burned his body.

STRONG APPEAL

For Soldiers' Canteen Made By General Grant.

Washington, Aug. 26.—Although a total abstainer himself, Gen. Frederick D. Grant, commanding the Department of Texas, believes in the re-establishment of the canteen in the army, and in his annual report to the war department makes a strong plea in behalf of the system. Gen. Grant says on the subject that "No argument can be too earnest for the re-establishment of the canteen." Aside from other recreation features of garrison life, the canteen, which is the enlisted soldiers' clubroom, is a protected circle, into which no vice or degradation can intrude. There the soldier is granted certain privileges which, so long as not abused, prove a bulwark against the temptations and dangers that now surround almost every post in the army, and especially border and remote posts. To close the doors of the Soldiers' Garrison club and send him into the haunts of iniquity and vice, run by moral vultures, who, degraded themselves, set up no standard of morality, but, breaking down all barrieres of restraint, invite and induce soldiers to join in all sorts of depravity and infamy, is a wrong to the soldier as well as a wrong to the community in which the soldier is located."

CHAPMAN'S PAPER

At the Forestry Convention Aroused a Lively Discussion.

Claimed Jack Pine Land Was Unfit For Agriculture.

Minneapolis, Aug. 26.—The paper read at the American Forestry convention by Herman H. Chapman, superintendent of the experiment farm at Grand Rapids, created a lively discussion. Mr. Chapman's paper, which was on "The Influence of the Chippewa Forest Reserve on the Locality," took the ground that jack pine and Norway pine land was unfit for agriculture and had better be left unsettled. This view was vigorously attacked by other speakers. Mr. Chapman said:

"The Morris bill has set aside 225,000 acres of land in the Chippewa reservation for a forest reserve. The questions raised as to the advisability of such action hinge largely on a single point—is the land agricultural or not? The writer does not claim absolute authority on this point, but having been engaged since 1898 in studying the subject in connection with the work of the state experimental farm at Grand Rapids, he may safely hazzard an opinon, which may be taken as being free from prejudice, and perhaps as worthy of acceptance as that of those whose ideas might be influenced by their personal interests.

Agricultural land is land the quality or location of which is such that the farmers can clear and operate it with profit, i. e., make a living on it. The personality of the farmer must first be eliminated from the discussion. Perhaps not one in three farmers of today could start in on a timbered farm, no matter how good the soil, and succeed at all. Some classes of foreigners can make a living on a prospect much poorer than an American could tackle, because of their lower standard of wants, and greater economy of labor—the whole family contributing their efforts to the farm work. But granted that the farmer in question is of a type calculated to make the best use of the conditions which confront him—what kind of soil must he have in order that his presence and activity may be a benefit and not a detriment to the community?

This cannot be decided off hand. The main source of error comes from considering transient conditions as permanent conditions. A sandy soil, newly cleared and given plenty of moisture, will produce the most astonishing crops of grain, grass, and especially of garden vegetables. This same soil, cropped for a few years, may soon fall below the point of profitable production of field crop, even in a rainy season, while in a dry season it might give a complete failure. Sand, if it receives abundant supplies of manure and water, produces abundantly, for the processes of soil disintegration and the circulation of air and water in the soil are rapid on account of its loose texture, and if the source of fertility is supplied artificially, it is rapidly made available for the plant. These conditions apply to a vegetable garden near town, which usually receives fertilizers, and it is a great error to judge the productiveness of a region by the size and quality of the vegetables grown on these sandy gardens. They are undisputably fine, but are not a safe index. This very capacity for rapid elaboration of soil fertility is the cause of the exhaustion of sandy soils, under any system of cropping which does not constantly supply these elements artificially. Newly cleared sandy land is extremely fertile for the timber and brush do not exhaust it, and a large amount of accumulated fertility exists, which on the exposure of the soil by clearing and breaking is made available and used up rapidly. If then, the system of farming is such that artificial fertilizers may be had in abundance, the lands may be kept in productive condition. The practice of such a system is possible only near markets, where truck farming pays and manure can be hauled. Thus, inland close to a town may by its locality be considered agricultural, even if it is sandy.

Again, all sandy soil is not poor land. Sand underlaid by a heavier soil, or a sandy soil mixed with a fair proportion of clay, may be farmed with profit in certain localities by raising potatoes and clover hay. The top-dressing of the atmospheric nitrogen to the soil, and especially by plowing the clover under, thus increasing the humus content, is a powerful agent for the maintenance of fertility on such soils, in the absence of manure.

There is very little land in Northeastern Minnesota, with the exception of certain areas of stiff cold clay, that is not sandy, and to condemn the whole of such a vast area because of the presence of sand, would be an economic absurdity. But to claim that all of this sandy area can be profitably farmed is an absurdity just as palpable.

What, then, is to be the standard by which the permanent agricultural quality of land not near to markets is to be judged? Long, abundant, and sometimes bitter experience points out the wisdom of accepting the evidence of nature—the same evidence which our ancestors, before the days of lumbering, regarded as conclusive—the kind and quality of the virgin timber growing upon the land. Hardwoods require a fertile, lasting soil, and are proof that such exists, no matter what the surface indicates. Pine grows upon sand—but, in Minnesota at least, the white pine has the reputation of thriving only when the roots can penetrate a soil containing some clay. Norway pine and Jack pine are practically the same in their soil requirments, and are naturally found as virgin timber on a sandy soil, underlaid by a sandy subsoil, extending to a considerable, sometimes an unknown depth. Where Jack or Norway are found in pure stands, without poplar or other hardwoods, or white pine, it is an almost infallible indication of the presence of a sandy subsoil, and of unfitness for permanent farm land. This statement is so far reaching and so apt to arouse vigirous opposition that it should not rest on the mere assertion. Neither will experience, in Minnesota, count for much, because of the comparatively short time such soils have been attempted. But in Michigan and Wisconsin this is no new problem, and the evidence is all one way. The farmer who settles on Jack or Norway pine soil spends his accumulated savings, goes broke, and pulls out, sooner or later, to seek a fresh opening under more favorable conditions, leaving his improvements behind to tempt some other unfortunate to repeat the experiment. This inexorable law of nature, the survival of the fittest, is daily proving the unfitness of Jack pine sand for farmers, but at the expense of untold family prospects. The throbbing activity of a land boom and an influx of settlers into a hitherto undeveloped community may for a time avert this result, but with the resumption of settled conditions, crop failures and discouragement soon force the facts to the front. For those who sneer at this statement I could wish no worse fate than to condemn them to earn a living on the "farm land" they have sold to poor, but honest settlers with families to support. And any federal policy which permits misinformed foreigners or others to homestead such land, is false and should be rigorously condemned. Yet it must not be lost sight of that these remarks apply in their fullness only to Jack and Norway pine sands. The conditions of clearing and farming other classes of soil, even sands, not of this type, are difficult, due to the cost of clearing, but are not impossible.

Farming on Jack pine sands, except a few truck gardeners near town, are of no benefit to a community in the end, though they may create activity at first, and stimulate trade, until their surplus is spent. Merchants cannot deal profitably with customers who are unable to pay, though they can certainly trade with them as much as they desire, it that is their object.

The Morris law provided that 225,000 acres of the 900,000 acres on the Chippewa reservation about Cass Lake be held as a forest reserve, allowing, however, almost complete removal of the pine. The objections urged, therefore, are founded largely on the supposed bad effect of preventing settlement on this land. These depend for their validity upon the character of the land reserved—for no fair-minded person will, after thorough investigation, dispute the facts set forth above.

At present, a little less than half the area has been designated. The land to the north and west of the town of Cass Lake south of the Mississippi river, is not to be reserved, thus allowing the town an outlet and area for truck farming. Almost the entire area chosen, which lies east and south of Cass Lake, is solid Norway and jack pine land. In the south west corner of the tract are a few small patches of hardwood. Elsewhere one would find great difficulty in selecting more than 80 acres of land in any one place without including jack pine sand. There are hardwood tracts on the reservation, but they lie south of Leech Lake and east and north of the proposed ultimate boundaries of the selected area within which there is still far more Norway and jack pine land than will be needed to complete the selection. It is the ultimate judgment of the writer that prevention of settlement on this area is itself a distinct benefit to the locality.

Land which is not fit for farming can still grow trees—yet so slow is the process that the individual cannot be expected to go into the business. State governments may do something, but their policy is apt to be too directly influenced by politics to be sufficiently permanent for results. For instance, it can easily be seen how a loud and continuous demand that this forest reserve be opened to settlement would, if state politics had control of it, be apt to succeed and allow the ruinous experiment to be tried, when it would then be too late to re-acquire the land for a reserve. National policy is more permanent and more far seeing, less apt to be swayed by gusts of selfish shortsightedness and is the only control under which results in forest growing can be hoped for commensurate with the effort put forth.

The cutting of all but 5 per cent of the pine on this land will destroy the scenery on the area cut, but it will create the most favorable conditions for a second growth of Norway pine, which the 5 per cent of seed trees and protection from fire will render possible. Should the possibilities of the reserve be developed to the utmost it will make this section a continuous producer of lumber 50 to 100 years from now, with no doubt of a ready market. But this dim and distant benefit pales beside the prospect of an immediate advantage of great significance, the foundation for which lies in the so-called "park" clause of the Morris bill. Under this clause, besides certain islands in Cass and Leech lakes, which unfortunately are marred by Indian allotments, ten sections of pine land have been set aside for the public. The selection of this land, left to the bureau of forestry, has been made so as to secure a continuous unbroken strip of shore line on Cass Lake, twenty miles long, including the whole of Pike bay, while a dig to the south takes in four beautiful and secluded smaller lakes, increasing the shore line to over thirty miles. Stately groves of Norway cover nearly the whole extent of these shores and make a park fortourists and campers unexcelled for beauty, whose national fame is only a brief matter of time and acquaintance. For this is the last of the Norway—not that it is all cut—but nowhere else are standing groves accessible, and what is left is owned by lumbermen and will inevitably be logged. The park stands as a monument to the most beautiful of eastern pines. Ten sections out of the 1000 sections on the reservations, or about 1 per cent of the area—3 per cent including the islands and points specified, with their allotments, is the modest area of this park, yet it is worth as much to the locality as if it were ten times as large. We in northern Minnesota have yet to learn the tremendous volume of the summer tourist business, the underlying sentiment of which goes deep into the heart springs of humanity—the longing for fresh air, freedom, and nature. This movement continually increases in strength—in New York it has caused the state to acquire 1,200,000 acres in the Adirondacks for public use, at great expense, a single appropriation of $1,000,000 being made in one year for this purpose. Already the accommodations at Walker on Leech lake are stretched beyond their capacity. Thousands come from Chicago and St. Louis every summer to Minnesota, and other thousands will come—and this park with its pine will become the Mecca of these fresh air pilgrims, just as fast as they learn about it and can be sure of their accommodations.

Does any sane man doubt the truth of these assertions? Leech Lake is completely surrounded by Indian allotments, except for a few scattered forties, and the park lands are therefore selected about Cass Lake. It is confidently predicted that the park, small as it is, will prove a source of permanent revenue and prosperity to the region.

A. G. Bernard, of Cass Lake, took issue with Mr. Chapman and questioned him rather sharply about his con[illegible] of the [illegible] land. Mr. Chapman said that not over one-tenth of the land in northeastern Minnesota would come under the classification he condemned, but that this land could not be farmed profitably without fertilization.

Dr. Filbert Roth, of the University of Michigan college of forestry, came to Mr. Chapman's rescue in lively fashion. He declared that large tracts of sandy land in Wisconsin, which had been settled early, was now abandoned, or was farmed by paupers, and that such soil would never be devoted to agriculture. He pictured the condition of these "sand farmers" in graphic style.

T. B. Walker said he thought Mr. Chapman's estimate of the non-agricultural land was small, and that it would come nearer one-half, but he could agree that all jack pine land was unfit for cultivation.

R. L. McCormick, president of the Mississippi Valley Lumbermen's association, and until recently a resident of Hayward, Wis., came to the defense of the "sand farmers." He said he could not agree that there were deserts in Wisconsin and Minnesota. A traveler in New England would find many farms there abandoned. It was no reflection on the cut-over tracts that they could not match the fertile valleys in crop production. There were millions of people who could not buy these valley farms, and they must settle on the less valuable lands, which were good at least for stock raising.

J. W. Cooper, of St. Cloud, said that some of the best land in the country could be found in the cut-over timber districts.

MOW DOWN YANKEES

With Double-Barreled Cannon That a Georgian Mounted.

Only "Shooting Iron" of the Kind In the World.

Athens, Ga., Aug. 26.—A double barreled cannon, designed to sweep down whole regiments of Union soldiers, is one of the relics of the Civil war in this city, and is perhaps the only "shooting iron" of the kind in the world.

Immediately after war was declared an iron worker named John Gilleland then employed in one of the foundries here, decided that he could make a cannon with two barrels which should be more effective than a dozen of the usual kind. The death dealing invention was to be charged with iron balls of a non-explosive nature, to which were to be attached a long stout chain, so that when the two barrels were fired simultaneously the balls and chain would mow down men by companies.

The cannon was cast. When it was entirely finished the inventor invited a number of his friends to a pine thicket on a hill on the outskirts of the city to see it work. The double-barreled thing was placed in position on the hill side, and a heavy charge of powder rammed home in each barrel, and the chained balls loaded on top of this. The inventor's friends kept at a safe distance and he applied the fuse. One charge of powder and ball "went off," but the other didn't. As the heavy ball shot out it carried with it the chain to the full length, ripping and cavorting around, over and under the pine saplings, rocks and mud, tearing up small trees and earth, and finally came circling back to the cannon which held the other ball with chain attached. The inventor was struck on one arm by the ball, now nearly spent, and knocked senseless, while friends feared to go near, supposing that the other barrel might take a notion to discharge. It was sometime before the discharged ball lay motionless near the upturned cannon. The inventor's arm was shattered, making amputation necessary.

This was the first and last trial of the cannon which was to mow down the Yankees. Mr. Gilleland lost hope and interest with his arm, and the cannon was permitted to remain on the hill for many monthhs, but was finally carted into the city, where for years it did most effective duty in celebrating elections and Christmas day. By and by the old death-dealer was missed from its place near the old city hall and no one seemed to know what had become of it. Finally, after diligent search, it was found in a junk shop. From this place it was resurrected and the city council made an appropriation suficient to have it mounted and placed near the Confederate monument, immediately opposite the new government building.

YACHTS WERE ENDANGERED

New York, Aug. 26.—A terrible northwest wind and electrical storm struck Sandy Hook shortly after 5 o'clock yesterday and Shamrock III. and Reliance and a fleet of half a dozen fine yachts, including the Erin, C. Oliver Iselin's Sunbeam and the Heresford's Roamer, were in great danger for a time.

The yacht, Eureka, breaking from her anchorage, was blown violently against a coal scow and carried the scow before it. It seemed for a time that the two boats would crash into Shamrock III., which lay almost in the path of the gale not a hundred yards away.

The Roamer, which was dangerously near the Shamrock, began to drag her, anchor and despite efforts to hold her drifted down rapidly. Suddenly she swung against the Sunbeam and then getting a chance to start her engines, managed to get away from the danger line.

The Sunbeam, too, as the blow increased, began to drag and in a moment went with a loud crash against the scow, which also commenced to drift and for a moment it looked as if Shamrock III. would be overwhelmed. Captain Barr, on the Sunbeam, yelled to the Shamrock watch:

"If we can't hold you you'd better pull up and drift away from us."

This they prepared to do, but a lull in the wind aided the Sunbeam to hold for a while and the wind began to decrease. Two steam yachts, the Giralda and the Alitia, anchored further out in the Horshoe, were torn from their enchorage and came into bow and stern collision. The bowsprit of one crashed through the stern of the other and the two, thus locked, drifted before the wind dangerously near to the challenger. The tug Cruiser saved them, pulling them apart and away from the other boats.

The moorings of Shamrock III. and Reliance held fast, though the wind threw their bows around into the face of the gale violently and they tugged hard at their cables.

Sir Thomas Lipton left the Erin before the storm broke and, with Colonel Smith, Colonel Burbank and Colonel Stewart, commander of Fort Hancock, viewed the havoc in the bay anxiously from the commander's headquarters on Sandy Hook.

Lightning flashed from the inky black sky and the wind came like a cyclonic blast. Weather observers here said the wind reached a velocity of nearly 45 knots. The sea, calm all day, was boiling furiously in 15 minutes after the gale struck.

A small fishing sloop was blown up on the sand beach at the point of the Hook. Life savers went to the rescue taking the crew of four off. The sloop was later taken off.

The tugs Guiding Star and Cruiser came to the rescue of the yachts and in a short time righted their tangled condition. Observers of the storm on Sandy Hook dock declared it was by vast good fortune that the yachts were not damaged.

In half an hour after the storm broke in its fury the clouds cleared away from a sky brilliantly illuminated by the setting sun and the wind died out as rapidly as it had come. It left a tumultuous sea, breaking running high about Sandy Hook. Only a few drops of rain fell.

The Giroud's bowsprit was broken of close to her stem and the Alitia's awnings were broken and bulwarks slightly damaged.

THE SOUTH AFRICAN WAR

Report of Royal Commission Adds But Little Information.

London, Aug. 25.—The report of the royal commission on the South African war, issued today, adds little information to that already published. It refrains from commenting on the conduct of individual officers, strongly condemns the lack of preparations for war, endorses Lord Lansdowne's opinion, expressed May 21, 1900, that such a condition is full of peril to the empire, and says an "unsatisfactory and insufficient safeguard has since been suggested to prevent a recurrence of the scandal."

From the beginning to the end of the war 448,435 troops were engaged and owing to the drain caused by the South African defense, Great Britain became dangerously weak in 1900.

The commissions asserts that the true lesson of the war is that a system is not satisfactory which does not contain the power of expansion outside of the limit of the regular imperial forces, and confirms the necessity for a higher degree of intelligence in the men and a well-educated staff.

WRIGHT WILL SUCCEED TAFT

President to Appoint Him Governor General of Philippines.

Oyster Bay, Aug. 26.—Gen. Luke E. Wright of Memphis, Tenn., will succeed Judge Taft as governor general of the Philippine Islands when the latter becomes secretary of war, next January, in succession to Elihu Root.

President Roosevelt last evening authorized the Associated Press to make the announcement that the post had been offered to Gen. Wright and that he had accepted it. Gen. Wright is now a member of the Philippine commission and vice governor of the islands. He is a life long Democrat.

President Roosevelt spoke in terms of high praise of Gen. Wright's ability and fitness for the position of governor general. He entertains a sincere regard for him both personally and officially. The president and Secretary Root regard Gen. Wright as a man of proved executive ability, his services as a member of the Philippine commission having been of a distinguished character. During Governor Taft's extended sojourn in this country, Gen. Wright was acting governor general and his conduct of the office was a source of congratulation to the administration.

Gen. Wright is popular, not only with Americans in the Philippines, but also with the Filipinos, who hold him only second in their estimation to Governor Taft.

SUICIDE PREVENTED.

THE FARMER FAINTED

But His Little Girl Companion Not Perturbed.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 26.—Arthur McCune, aged 43, a farmer, and Miss Libby Eaton, aged 15, of Walbridge, Ohio, were arrested here at the request of the police of Dayton, Ohio. The couple arrived at Detroit and as soon as they were arrested, McCune fainted, then begged to be released. The girl, however, exhibited no emotion, and voluntarily accompanied the officer to the police station.

When questioned by Police Lieutenant Denly the girl is alleged to have admitted that she run away with McCune from Walbridge, and to have stated that it was the couple's intention to go to a small town in Iowa and be married. McCune trembled like a leaf when he stood before the Lieutenant. When asked to give an explanation of the affair he professed that both had the consent of the girl's mother to marry. He admitted, however, that he and the girl's "old man," as he put it, have not been on speaking terms since he first met the girl, about five years ago.

The couple will be detained in this city, awaiting the decision of the girl's parents.

EVENTS OF THE PAST

In the United States Senate Recalled By Former Employe.

Pomeroy's Narrow Escape —Stinging Wit of Senator Hale.

Washington, Aug. 26.—Memories of persons and events in and about the old senate chamber, when it was where the supreme court holds its sessions now, were topics that recently entertained a small party of gentlemen by one who, more than half a century ago, was a minor official of the senate, and who continued in its service from the date of his appointment, as a page, and in other capacities for about thirty years.

This gentleman, as might readily be imagined, is one of the oldest residents of Washington, and widely known in the community. His fund of recollections and remembrances seem inexhaustible, and naturally an evening, or morning, either, for that matter, could not be marked down in a chronometrical register as time lost.

"I remember David R. Atchison, of Missouri, very well," said the old attache. "A remarkably handsome specimen of manhood was he. He figured extensively in the border ruffian troubles. The border ruffians, if I recollect correctly, were principally immigrants from Missouri into Kansas. S. C. Pomeroy, afterward a senator from Kansas, was a leader of forces opposed to Atchison's. He kept his people well supplied with the sinews of war in the shape of beans, gunpowder and muskets. Pomeroy was captured one day by some of Atchison's men, who were not aware of his importance, and brought to Atchison, who was also ignorant of the identity of his prisoner.

"'Who are you?' Atchison asked, when Pomeroy was brought before him.

"'Only a meek and lowly servant of the Lord,' said Pomeroy.

"'Let that preacher go,' said Atchison.

"If he had known who his prisoner was he would have had him shot or hanged to a certainty, for these were parlous times on the border between Kansas and Missouri.

"The greatest tobacco chewer I ever met," said the recounter of the episode, "was Lazarus W. Powell, of Kentucky. Rarely was he seen without pretty nearly half a ping between his jaws. I am something of a chewer myself, and the senator, if he got out a supply, foraged on mine; and, as one good turn deserved another, he gave me free permission to ransack his desk and help myself from his store when mine became depleted. One day when I was at my door, indulging in the pleasure of masticating some of Senator Powell's fine old Gravely plug, Senator Pomeroy, the same man who was conspicuous in the border ruffian troubles, came out of the senate and looked at me with an expression of no little disgust upon his countenance.

"'Young man,' he said, 'don't you know you're spitting whole farms away?'

Garret Davis, also of Kentucky, whose fine hand you see traced on the pages of the album which I have here, had the peculiar habit of almost always carrying a pinch of salt in the palm of his hand, to which he frequently applied the tip of his tongue. I don't know exactly why he did so unless he was fond of salt.

"And here is the autograph of a man who, but for his well known convival habits, might have eclipsed in renown and oratorical ability almost any man of his day in the United States senate.

"Green was a lawyer of conspicuous merit. Early in the '20s he was chosen by his state to argue an important case before the supreme court of the United States. He gained the suit and was, as a reward for his ability and great success, chosen United States senator. Mr. Green, whatever may have been his faults, was a man of most tender feelings and a chivalric and courageous gentlemen. He had engaged in debate —and I have often listened to him—such intellectual giants as Sumner, Seward, Douglas, Sherman, Hale, Chandler and many others, and was always courteous, pleasant and convincing.

"Once I saw him ruffled by Senator Hale, of New Hampshire. Hale was a very humorous Solon, and sometimes his humor had much sting in it. The occasion to which I refer here was when Green was making an impassioned speech during a very exciting period in the country's history, and shortly before the civil war, when he was quickly brought to a halt by a sharp interpolation from Hale. Green paused a moment and looked angry. Then he simply said, addressing the president of the senate, John C. Breckinridge: 'Mr. President, it's a poor body that can't afford one clown.'

"Having delivered himself of this comment, he resumed his argument.

"Senator Hale, however, was neither a clown nor a buffoon, as some who became angry when his sarcasm penetrated their intellectual ribs were won't to speak of him. Hale was a veritable wit, and withal a sagacious statesman and a popular man on both sides of the senate chamber.

"He sorely wounded Senator Douglas one day. That gentleman, of course, as everyone knows, by the election of Abraham Lincoln to be president, had lost the crowning ambition of his life, and in a debate (it was after Mr. Lincoln had taken the office of president), Douglas was, with all the force of his great intellect, giving his construction of the inaugural address of the new chief magistrate. His speech was antagonistic to views set forth by several senators, notably Messrs. Fessenden, of Maine; Wilson, of Massachusetts, and Hale, of New Hampshire, and the debate was excitable to a fiery degree.

"In the course of the general quarrel Hale made a remark that reflected upon Douglas' defeat. It was his comment upon the Illinois man's feelings and was a quotation from II Samuel, xv:4:

"'Absalom said, moreover, Oh, that I were made judge in the land, that every man which hath any suit or cause might come unto me and I would do him justice.'

"So much for Hale's wit."

SUMMER RHEUMATISM

Every season has its own diseases, but Rheumatism belongs to all, for when it gets well intrenched in the system, and joints and muscles are saturated with the poison, the aches and pains are coming and going all the time, and it becomes an all-the-year-round disease; an attack coming as quickly from sudden chilling of the body when overheated, a fit of indigestion or exposure to the damp, Easterly winds of Summer as from the keen, cutting winds, freezing atmosphere and bitter cold of Winter.

Rheumatism never comes by accident. It is in the blood and system before a pain is felt. Some inherit a strong predisposition or tendency; it is born in them; but whether heredity is back of it or it comes from imprudent and careless ways of living, it is the same always and at all seasons. The real cause of Rheumatism is a polluted, sour and acid condition of the blood, and as it flows through the body deposits a gritty, irritating substance or sediment in the muscles, joints and nerves, and it is these that produce the terrible pains, inflammation and swelling and the misery and torture of Rheumatism. No other disease causes such pain, such wide-spread suffering. It deforms and cripples its thousands, leaving them helpless invalids and nervous wrecks.

When neglected or improperly treated, Rheumatism becomes chronic, the pains are wandering or shifting from one place to another, sometimes sharp and cutting, again dull and aggravating. The muscles of the neck, shoulders and back, the joints of the knees, ankles and wrists, are most often the seat of pain. Countless liniments and plasters are applied to get relief, but such things do not reach the poisoned blood; their effect is only temporary; they are neither curative nor preventive. The blood must be purified, and all irritating matter removed from the circulation before permanent relief and a thorough cure is effected, and no remedy does this so certainly and so quickly as S. S. S. It contains not only purifying and tonic properties, but solvent qualities as well, all these being necessary in eradicating the poison and making a complete and lasting cure of Rheumatism. S. S. S. cleanses the blood of all irritating matter and the acid particles are dissolved and filtered out of the system, thus relieving the muscles and joints and removing all danger of future attacks. Under its tonic effect the nervous system regains its normal tone and the appetite and digestion improve, resulting in the upbuilding of the general health. S. S. S. contains no Potash or minerals of any description, but is guaranteed purely vegetable. Old people will find it not only the best blood purifier, but a most invigorating tonic—just such a remedy as they need to enrich the blood and quicken the circulation.

SSS

Whether you have Rheumatism in the acute or chronic stage, the treatment must be internal, deep and thorough in order to be lasting. Never be satisfied with anything less than an absolutely perfect cure. This you can get by the use of S. S. S., the oldest and best purifier and greatest of all tonics.

Write us fully and freely about your case, and medical advice will be given without charge, and our special book on Rheumatism will be mailed free to all desiring it.

CATARRH A COMMON COMPLAINT.

Catarrh begins with a stubborn cold in the head, inflammation or soreness of the membrane or lining of the nose, discharge of mucus matter, headaches, neuralgia and difficult breathing, and even in this early stage is almost intolerable. But when the filthy secretions begin to drop back into the throat and stomach, and the blood becomes polluted and the system contaminated by the catarrhal poison, then the sufferer begins to realize what a disgusting and sickening disease Catarrh is. It affects the kidneys and stomach as well as other parts of the body. It is a constitutional disease and as inhaling mixtures, salves, ointments, etc., are never more than palliative or helpful, even in the beginning of Catarrh, what can you expect from such treatment when it becomes chronic and the whole system affected? Only such a remedy as S. S. S. can reach this obstinate, deep-seated disease and purge the blood of the catarrhal poison. S. S. S. purifies and builds up the diseased blood, and the inflamed membranes are healed and the excessive secretion of mucus ceases when new, rich blood is coming to the diseased parts, and a permanent cure is the result.

I had a continual headache, my cheeks had grown purple, my nose was always stopped up, my breath had a sickening and disgusting odor, and I coughed incessantly. I heard of S. S. S. and commenced to use it and after taking several bottles I was cured and have never since had the slightest symptom of the disease. Miss MARY L. STORM,

WARNING NOTE IS SOUNDED

By Kern of Indiana In Article Favoring Bryan Doctrines.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 25.—An article on "The Present Duty of Democrats," written by John W. Kern, of this city, late candidate for governor and one of the men recently suggested by W. J. Bryan as suitable presidential timber, is attracting attention. He declares that the Democrats lost in the last two national campaigns because of the "apostasy and treachery" of the Cleveland administrations. He asserts that an element that desires to repudiate the Chicago and Kansas City platforms and to truckle to Wall street is trying to obtain control of the party.

"I desire to warn the Democrats of Indiana that this element is now organizing to capture the party organization of the state," he says. "From headquarters in Indianapolis the work is proceeding intelligently and energetically. Money is being contributed from the East to aid and perfect this work. In most of the county seats of Indiana will be found a few men who are always interested in campaign funds and who are aiding these reorganizers in their efforts to Clevelandize the Democracy of Indiana."

He continues by outlining a plan which, he says, exists among the reorganizers to purchase proxies of the delegates chosen to select the district committeemen, and by which they expect to gain control of the state committee. Once in control of the state organization it will not be difficult for them, he says, to control the state convention and send a delegation to the national convention that will stand for a Wall street platform. He insists that nine out of ten Democrats of the state are opposed to this "cowardly surrender of principles," but warns them to be up and doing if they expect to win. "William J. Bryan is not and will not be a candidate for the nomination next year," he concludes. "But if the Democratic party can find a candidate as able, fearless, conscientious and patriotic as he, it will, indeed, be fortunate."

Bryan and Kern have been in conference here a number of times during the last month, and it is possible the former may have had something to do with sounding the warning. Some party leaders say Kern has taken an exaggerated view of the situation, as there is no fight on now for control of the organization, as the so-called reorganizers secured control in 1900 without much of an effort.

KEPT PRETTY WAITRESSES

By Adopting Them, Ninety In All, as His Daughters.

St. Louis, Aug. 25.— Fritz Adolphy, whose beer garden in South St. Louis a half century ago was the rendezvous of prominent Louisians, is dead at Clifton, Arizona. He was 88 years old.

Fritz's place became famous by reason of the women "barkeeps" whom he employed. He had no male waiters at all. The city fathers disapproved of Fritz's bon homie retreat, and passed an ordinance that no woman should act as waitress to serve beer.

Then for the first time the proprietor sought a lawyer, who discovered a flaw in the ordinance. The lawyer informed Fritz that no one could prevent a daughter of the owner of the place serving her father's guests.

Thereupon Fritz called all of his waitresses together and hied with them to the orphans' court, where he adopted ninety of them as his daughters.

For many years these dutiful maidens served their foster father's patrons with profit to themselves. Fritz and certain members of the town council.

The range of nationality in the waitresses would indicate that the old man had gathered his family from as many countries as Solomon did his wives. From fair Gretchens to swarthy daughters of Italy and saucy American girls, they swarmed about the confines of Fritz Adolphy's Utopia.

The old man was of a noble Russian family. He spoke several languages. He was a soldier, and came to the United States to join the Northern army.

He won honors in his military career. He went to Clifton thirty years ago, and established a brewery that was the wonder of the mining camp. He also maintained a restaurant and his place was like an oasis in the desert, of bad cookery.

POTATOES PEELED

Too Thick, Darby Said, and Wife Carved Him.

Springfield, Ohio, Aug. 26.—Leslie Darby, of 36 West Columbia street, came running into police headquarters with his head bandged and the thumb almost severed from his left hand. Just as he arrived a call was received to send an officer to his home. Darby claimed that his wife had carved him.

He told a most remarkable story. His grocery bill for the past week amounted to $6.25 and he could not understand what they did with the goods. When his wife began paring potatoes for dinner he noticed that she was cutting them quite thick. He decided that this was extravagance and told her to slice them thin. Mrs. Darby began carving him instead. The sight of the blood caused her to faint, and when an officer reached the house she was unconscious on the floor. A physician worked with her some time before she came to.

Darby refused to prosecute his wife and promised not to find any fault with the grocery bill in the future if she would forgive him.

If Assailant of Miss Larison Is Caught.

Marshalltown, Iowa, Aug. 26.—An armed posse is in pursuit of a man who entered the home of Laura Larison at Albion and criminally assaulted her. Miss Larison, who is 40 years old, and lives alone, fought her assailant for an hour, when she became exhausted and the fiend accomplished his purpose.

The officers believe they know who her assailant is, and if he is caught there may be an attempt at lynching, as the people of Albion are greatly excited.

REMOVE FROM CHICAGO.

Type Founders Disgusted By Constant Labor Agitation.

Chicago, Aug. 26.—Barnhart Bros. & Spindler, employing more than 400 persons, the largest typefoundry in the country outside of the New York combination, are planning to move from Chicago on account of labor troubles. Officers of the corporation say that the same industrial unrest which has forced plants of allied trades to desert Chicago has influenced them in their decision.

"We have not had any strikes on our hands or serious trouble with our employes," said Alson E. Barnhart, treasurer of the firm. "It is the continual grumbling and threats of an adjoining tie-up which determines us that we could do better outside the city. The men are made dissatisfied by the labor agitation in other crafts, and they are constantly on the alert for a strike."

WHY IS IT THUS?

Duluth Apparently Destined to Have No City Market Place.

Building Now Used For the Storage of Household Goods.

The city market place on the ground floor of the Armory building is now used for a storeroom for household and other efects, and has been in that use for more than a year past.

This condition of affairs has occastioned more or less comment among citizens of Duluth who understood that when the Armory was built the lower floor space was to be devoted to a city market, where the farmers from the surrounding country might bring their produce to the city and place it on sale. This was similar to the plan already working in nearly every other city the size of Duluth and in many smaller places in this country.

Inquiry shows, however, that the principal reason the city market has never become the success that it was intended is due largely to the fact that the farmers living near the city have not taken advantage of the free quarters ofered by the city, and the patronage of the city market became so small that it was a complete failure.

Last year when the market was thrown open, not a farmer put in an appearance to make use of the place and the city council finally decided that the vacant space might as well be paying a revenue to the city. The board of public works was directed to rent the place for storage purposes and the proceeds derived during the past year have gone into the city treasury.

It is understood that the farmers refused to longer use the city market from the fact that the Duluth people were not fully educated up to the idea of going to a city market place early in the morning and buying their produce for the day. This is done in other cities and as a rule the produce men are well sold out by noon.

The farmers did not seem to realize that the idea was a new one here and that it would take a little time for Duluthians to become accustomed to going personally to market, instead of ordering the day's supply of green stuff from the grocer, over the 'phone.

There are many people now residing in the city who believe that the city market could be made a success if the farmers who are accustomed to bringing their produce supplies in, several times a week, would use the market instead of selling their stuff to the wholesale produce houses for almost any price that the wholesalers care to give them.

With the present high prices of produce it is claimed that the farmers living on the outskirts of Duluth would derive considerable more revenue from their produce were they to sell it in open market to the consumers rather than accept the prices the wholesale produce concerns tender them for their loads.

It is claimed that the Duluth housewife, by an early morning visit to the city market, would be enabled to buy fresh produce at much lower prices than she now pays at the retail grocery stores, where for fancy prices she often has to take produce that has been in market several days.

Conditions for market gardening have been growing better about Duluth, during the past few years and it is estimated that more than double the amount of produce is raised for market now than was raised when the city market was established. It is believed by many people here that were the city market to be reestablished and patronized as it should be by the Duluth housewives, it could now be made a great advantage to the farmer and to the buyer.

THE W. U. CASE WON BY STATE

Important Decision Bearing on New Form of Corporation Tax.

Judge D. F. Simpson yesterday afternoon filed an order sustaining plaintiff's demurrer to defendant's answer in the case of the state of Minnesota against the Western Union Telegraph company. This decision invalidates the telegraph company's defense against conforming to the Somerville law taxing foreign corporations, and upholds the constitutionality of this law by determining that it does not interfere with interstate commerce or governmental business.

This action was brought to enforce a new law which requires a corporation to conform to certain regulations and to pay into the tate treasury a minimum tax of $50 and an additional sum proportionate to the excess of its capital stock over $50,000. The suit was commenced in another county, but was dismissed on stipulation and recommended in Hennepin county. The defendant company answered to the complaint and the state demurred. This demurrer was argued before Judge Simpson some time ago, the state being represented by Charles W. Somerby and the defendant company by C. M. Ferguson. Judge Simpson has given the questions involved careful study and his decision is a big victory for the state. The decision is accompanied by a lengthy and exhaustive memorandum.

In concluding Judge Simpson says: "Under the act no corporation is singled out because its business is interstate, but on the contrary the defendant seeks to avoid compliance with a reasonable local regulation, because portions of its business are governmental and interstate.

"The act in question does not lay a tax on interstate commerce by way of duties laid on the transportation of the subjects of that commerce, nor on the receipts derived from that transportation, nor on the occupation or business of carrying it on, but it is a regulation adapted to protect the people of the state from fraud and imposition, and to promote the general welfare, a regulation local in its nature, and a part of a system established in this state, applicable alike to domestic and foreign corporations.

"We therefore conclude that the act in question is applicable to the defendant corporation, and as to it is not in conflict with the federal constitution."

AN OFFICER IN TROUBLE

Wealthy Army Officer Confronted With Several Serious Charges.

New York, Aug. 26.—The World says: Lieut. Thomas Y. Murtaugh, of the artillery service, is a prisoner on Governor's island, under serious charges. He is a son of the late James Murtaugh, an old-time merchant of this city who left a large fortune when he died, a year ago. The family is one of the most prominent in Catholic church circles in New York. There are four charges against young Murtaugh. They are desertion, conduct unbecoming an omcer and gentleman, embezzlement and violation of the sixtieth article of war.

The charge of desertion grows out of the fact that he left his post of duty at Cienfuegos, Cuba, on May 9 last, and the war department did not hear again of him until July 12, when he was found in Chicago. He was in citizen's dress.

The charge of conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman is based upon the fact that he issued several checks for small amounts in Chicago, which were not honored by the bank, they were drawn upon because his funds were exhausted. These checks have since been made good.

The embezzlement charge is the one which worries the young man most, because of the reflection upon his honesty, is due to a shortage of $231 in the canteen fund of the company when he suddenly quit Cuba.

When he left Cuba, he says, he supposed there was more than enough in the bank for the canteen account. It should be decided that he owes the $231 he stands ready to pay for it.

The fourth charge is based upon the use of a leave of absence which was improperly signed. This the last serious of the four charges, but it is the only one which may involve the young man in trouble. He is now being court-martialed on the various charges against him.

FIGHT ON DAVE HILL.

Open Revolt Started Against His Leadership.

New York, Aug. 26.—An open revolt has been started against the leadership of David Bennett Hill within the Democratic party of this state, and unless peace is quickly arranged, Democratic success at the polls next year will be seriously threatened. Indeed, the success of the Tammany ticket in New York city this year may me endangered. Old scores will be settled.

Tammany has promised to give assistance to the revolters, and unless Hill quickly rallies his forces he will have to fight for his political existence. The present plan is to prevent Hill being sent to the next Democratic national convention. Of course, he can go to the convention as a representative of his district, but that will not do him. As the leader of the Democrats of the state of New York, he must be one of the delegates. A large coalition of forces is planned, which, if brought about, will keep Hill from attaining the honor which he thought would be his without the asking.

Buffalo is not counted upon as a Hill stronghold any more. The fight among the Buffalo Democrats, it is said, resulted in the success of the faction which opposed Hill. The men who plan the approaching revolt count upon help from Buffalo. Scores that are said to have been caused by the high-handed manner of rnuning the last Democratic state convention by Hill have not been healed.

NEWPORT HOSTESS

Plans Novel Entertainment For Her Guests.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 26.—The limit of brilliant and expensive after-dinner entertainments promises soon to be reached. A Newport hostess who has had acrobats and even donkeys in her drawingroom, is now thinking of giving a ballet, gay with light and color, for he guests. Her agent at last accounts was trying to learn if an Amazon chorus and groupe of dancers could be obtained for a single night at Newport, and at what cost.

The matter is still under inquiry and there really is a possibility of society seeing a ballet in the beautiful setting provided by one of the most attractive drawingrooms of Newport.

PLATT PREDICTS PEACE.

Says Republican State Factions Are Harmonized.

New York, Aug. 26.—Senator Platt and Chairman George W. Dunn of the Republican state committee, had a chat at the Oriental hotel, Coney Island, Monday morning, and in the afternoon it was announced that the Republican state committee will meet at the Fifth Avenue hotel on Sept. 8, to renominate Denis O'Brien, Democrat, of Watertown, to the court of appeals.

Later in the day ex-Senator Timothy Edwards Ellsworth, of Lockport, and Senator Platt had a talk. Mr. Ellsworth's talk with Senator Platt led the political gossips to mention him as a possible candidate for governor. Mr. Platt, when asked if he had thought of the governorship nomination for next year, said:

"Indeed I have. There is plenty of excellent timber in this state and plenty of time to select."

Senator Platt said that he expected Governor Odell to spend three or four days at the Oriental this week.

"Any politics to talk about with the governor, senator?" was asked.

"Plenty," the Tioga chieftain replied. "Peace, heavenly peace has spread her wings over the party. The president, the governor and the two Republican United States senators and their friends are contemplating the future with complacency."

TICKET IS FUSION

Democrats Endorse Kansas City Platform and Hear Speeches.

Columbus, Neb., Aug. 26.—The Democratic state convention, which met here last night, named a fusion ticket, headed by Judge J. J. Sullivan of this city for supreme justice, Democratic, and William O. Jones, of Adams county, and Dr. E. O. Weber, of Saunders, Populists, for regents of the State university. The platform reaffirms the national platform adopted at Kansas City, and arraigns the present national administration. It also opposed asset currency legislation.

The convention was marked by its harmony, and at no time was there any friction over the matter of fusion. W. J. Bryan was a conspicuous figure in the convention, and his influence was effective in carrying out his views by the convention. The proceedings were enlivened by addresses by Mr. Bryan and others.

The convention was called to order by Chairman P. L. Hall of the state central committee, who, after a brief address, introduced George L. Loomis, of Fremont, as temporary chairman. Loomis was enthusiastically received, and at once announced the nomination by the Populists at Grand Island of Judge John J. Sullivan for supreme judge. Chairman Loomis then addressed the convention as follows:

"In Democracy the individual man stands first and foremost, and his rights and interests are the matter of supreme consideration. No one must think from this, however, that there is any design or purpose in Democracy inimical to capital, for such is not the case. The true spirit of Democracy urges every one to save and accumulate by all honorable means, and rejoices in the success and prosperity of all men. It is only when capital seeks to evade its just share of the burdens of government or when its owners undertake to use the power it gives them to injure and oppress others, or to stifle competition, or to gain by illegal or questionable means, some inequitable advantage over the less fortunate that the voice of Democracy is raised in protest. No one can regret more than we the almost ceaseless conflict going on between capital and labor, for we recognize the fact that each is dependent on the other for its highest prosperity and good. Capital, without labor to use it, is unproductive, and all but useless; while labor without capital to employ it is idle, hungry and clothed in rags. Neither can be to any extent profitable or productive without the other. To injure either is to do an injustice to the other, to attempt to seriously cripple either would be unpardonable folly. The two should be the staunchest of friends, and would be if the right spirit always prevailed on both sides. But while human nature is so constituted that men will disagree, and are unable many times to settle their differences between themselves, and the disagreements between capital and labor are fraught with so much hardship and injury to both, and often to the people of the whole country, some means of adjusting such differences is of vital importance. We, therefore, favor voluntary arbitration as the means best intended to bring about a fair settlement of all differences between the two without injustice to either.

"We are now on the eve of another national campaign. Within a year the conventions will be held, and the parties will place in nomination their candidates for the offices of president and vice president of the United States. He who has been our leader, in the last two campaigns, and has borne aloft the standard of Democracy with an energy and ability that has no parallel in the annals of this or any other country, and of whom it can be truthfully said, as of Hannibal 'Defeated, but not conquered,' is not again to be our candidate. Let us see to it then, as loyal Democrats, that his mantle falls not on one unworthy to wear it. There are many able and consistent Democrats who have shown themselves entitled to the confidence of the party and the people, and under the leadership of one of them the next battle will be fought. May it be one in whose election the true principles of Democracy will triumph, and in whose keeping the rights of the people, and the great principles of our government, will be safe from all manner of assault, whether open or insidious.

"Conditions are fast ripening for a grand national victory. The party in power, evidently mistaking its success in the past few elections to mean an irrevocable vote of confidence on the part of the people, has become arrogant and corrupt, utterly regardless of personal rights, openly defiant of all law that stands in the way of party purposes, and shown itself unworthy to be longer intrusted with power. In its government of the Philippines, it has refused to extend to that people, the protection of the constitution, has denied the most sacred truths of the Declaration of Independence, suppressed the bill of rights, and founded a government based on the un-American idea that the people have no natural rights, and only such civil rights as are granted by act of congress, or bestowed by grace of Republican officials.

Its open and shameless alliance, offensive and defensive, with trusts and monopolies from which it receives and expects to receive, large financial contributions; its determination not to permit the modification of a single provision of the present iniquitous tariff law that would bring relief to the people at the expense of some favored trust or monopoly; its now apparent design to fasten upon the country an asset currency for the benefit of the national banks, and the encouragement of wild-cat speculation, and its many other sins of commission and omission, have set the people to thinking, and they are thinking pretty hard; and they are getting ready, when the time comes, to administer a rebuke that will be as efficient as it is deserved.

Chairman Loomis then announced that nominations for justice of the supreme court and two university regents were in order, and W. L. Allen, of Schuler, nominated Judge John L. Sullivan for supreme judge. Mr. Bryan seconded the nomination in a brief speech, and Sullivan was named by acclamation amid considerable enthusiasm.

W. H. Thompson moved the nomination of the Populist candidates, W. O. Jones and E. O. Weber, for regents of the State university, and the motion was carried by unanimous vote. Judge Sullivan was escorted to the convention and made a brief address, following which the convention adjourned, after adopting the report of the committee on resolutions, as follows:

"We, the Democrats of Nebraska, in convention assembled, reaffirm our faith in the principles in the party as enunciated in the last national platform adopted at Kansas City.

"We denounce the national Republican administration for its failure to carry out its promises heretofore made and its subservience to special interest at the expense of and deterriment of the interests of the public at large.

"We are unalterably opposed to any form of asset currency in legislation and to any legislation of the character of the Aldrich bill.

"We demand that the attorney general of our state shall make application to the supreme court of the United States for permission to put the Nebraska maximum freight rate law into immediate effect in accord with the suggestion of that court."

Proclaiming the judiciary to be the corner stone of American government, both state and national the platform demands that the judiciary of Nebraska be kept free from partisan and undue influence of special and corporate interests. The platform charges the last Republican legislature with being dominated by the corporations.

Grand Island, Neb., Aug 26.—The Populist state convention was called to order by Chairman W. R. Weber last night of the state central committee. Ex-Governor Poynter nominated Judge Parsons of North Platte for temporary chairman, and he was elected. On taking the chair, Judge Parsons addressed the convention briefly, paying a compliment to the Denver conference.

The temporary organization was made permanent and the convention at once proceeded to the nomination of a ticket. T. H. Tibbles nominated Judge John J. Sullivan, present chief justice of the supreme court, for the office of supreme judge, and he was chosen by acclamation.

After a lively discussion, the convention decided to notify the Democratic convention at Columbus of the nomination of Judge Sullivan. There was some bitterness in the discussion, one delegate, in a fiery speech, insisting that the Populist convention should work independently. The fusionists, however, showed a decisive majority on roll call. A committee on resolutions was then drafted with T. H. Tibbles as chairman.

The convention then nominated, without opposition, Prof. W. A. Jones of Adria and W. E. Weber of Valpairso for regents of the state university. Both nominations were made by acclamation.

CHANGES IN DIPLOMATS

At Washington Likely to Take Place at Early Date.

Washington, Aug. 26.— With increasing persistency rumors are coming here from foreign capitals that several important changes in the personnel of the Washington diplomatic corps are contemplated. With one exception these changes will probably not occur until after the New Year's reception.

Senor Garcia Merou, minister from Argentine, who has for a long time expected to be transferred to Berlin, will present his letters of recall at the state department this fall, if the present program is carried out and his successor may reach Washington by Jan. 1. He was accredited to the Washington government in 1901, but in that short time by his activity and ability he has won for himself the title of "dean of South American diplomats." He was promised the Berlin mission months ago and has been diligently studying German since spring. Large German interests in Argentine make the Berlin post one of great importance in the Argentine service.

Reports that Count Cassini, Russian ambassador, was not to return to Washington this fall, because of the Kishineff incident and its trying consequences, are not credited by those in the confidences of the St. Petersburg foreign office. However, it is gossiped one or two diplomats of this rank are in feeble health and that in the event of a change, Count Cassini will go to Berlin and will complete his long diplomatic career at the German court, where he was once attached to the Rusian embassy. Count Cassini expects to leave Washington in October or November. The Russian ambassador to Germany is a very old man and he may ask for retirement at any time.

When Sig. Mayor des Planches, Italian ambassador, left Washington this summer he said to a diplomatic conferee: "I shall say au revior to you, but I fear it is my good-by to Washington." The retirement of the Italian ambassador at Vienna will result in a shake up in the Italian service and Signor Mayor's friends say his services will be needed at a European capital when the change occurs.

A SON-IN-LAW FOR LILLIAN

New York, Aug. 26.—Miss Dorothy Lillian Solomon, the beautiful 20-year-old daughter of Miss Lillian Russell, and Abbott Louis Einstein, son of Benjamin F. Einstein, a well-known lawyer, eloped on Aug. 7, were married, and are now spending their honeymoon in an uptown apartment. Einstein is 23.

Without the knowledge of either Miss Russell or Mr. Einstein, the young couple boarded a train accompanied by Roland J. Koch, a friend, and went direct to Jersey City, where arrangements had been made for the marriage ceremony to be performed.

As quietly as they had made their departure for Far Rockaway, where they had been during the summer, they went to apartments they had previously engaged at No. 34 Morningside avenue, where they have since been known as Mr. and Mrs. Stone.

However great may have been the shock to Miss Russell and Mr. Einstein when they learned of their children's marriage, all has now been forgiven. Although the young bride became engaged to Mr. Einstein barely two weeks before they were wed, they have been so much together for several summers that the news of their marriage will not come as a total surprise.

APPEALS TO PRESIDENT

Bookbinders' Union Takes Further Action In Miller Case.

Washington, Aug. 26.—The Bookbinders' union, despairing of ever securing action, unfavorable or otherwise, from Public Printer Palmer on their charges against W. A. Miller of the government printing office, has decided to submit its case to President Roosevelt. A committee of the binders called at the department of commerce and labor yesterday and handed to Secretary Cortelyou copies of all the charges, affidavits and evidence connected with the Miller case and requested the secretary to transmit the papers to Oyster Bay. Mr. Cortelyou promised to do so.

People in Washington can not see what the binders will accomplish by this process. It is well known that ever since the question of Foreman Miller's reinstatement was raised, the president has been fully informed as to the progress of the case. By his order, Secretary Cortelyou has forwarded copies of every paper filed in the case to the president.

Mr. Roosevelt has not believed that there was anything in the charges against Miller and for that reason, it is said, he ordered the public printer to go slow in the case. The president thought that by letting the affair drop gently he would avoid stirring up unnecessary trouble in the government printing office. But the unions apparently want to "smoke him out." It is not believed, however, that Mr. Roosevelt will take any action at present.

PHYSICIAN WAS COOL.

He Wrote His Own Death Certificate.

City of Mexico, Aug. 26.—Dr. Salazar, physician in charge of the American hospital in Tampico, has given his life in a brave fight to check the yellow fever epidemic.

Dr. Salazar detected symptoms of the fever in himself less than a week ago, but until the disease had progressed did he relinquish the direction of his staff. Then he turned to studying the state of his own disease, noted every advance and at the last he cooly called for pen and paper and wrote his own death certificate.

TO REORGANIZE.

New Plan of Consolidated Lake Superior Company.

Philadelphia, Aug. 26.—The Consolidated Lake Superior company, which is having difficulty in raising funds, is to be reorganized owing to the failure of the stockholders to subscribe to the proposed issue of $15,000,000 in bonds. A statement issued by the company says: The efforts to provide funds needed by the Consolidated Lake Superior company through the sale of bonds has not produced the required results and it has been found necessary to abandon this plan. It is proposed now to effect a complete reorganization of the company's affairs by the formation of a new corporation and the exchange of the old stock for new upon the payment of assessments, which will produce the amount of money which it was sought to raise through the issue of bonds.

A syndicate is now being formed to advance the $8,000,000 needed by the company for the discharge of current obligations and for additional working capital and to carry through a plan or reorganization. A reorganization, such as is contemplated, will call for the payment by the stockholders of virtually the same amount that has been asked for in the form of subscriptions to bonds, but will obviate the necessity of creating any bond issue, and will permit the reduction of the company's capitalization to a figure closely approximating the actual cash investment in the property."

HAS STIFF RISE

Wheat Market Is Very Strong, Advancing More Than a Cent.

Northwestern Rains Cause Some Uneasiness—Flax Is Slightly Lower.

Duluth Board of Trade, Aug. 26. Rains in the Northwest gave a strong opening to wheat this morning and the upward tendency continued throughout the morning with occasional reactions. The closing prices were at top prices for the day and the gain in all markets was better than 1c. The rains gave rise to uneasiness as to effects on crops. Toward noon today, however, it was reported that the weather was clear again in the Red River valley. A fairly good cash demand is developing. New York reported 30 loads of wheat worked for export. At points where wheat is being received the demand is good. Receipts continue rather light. The arrivals of new wheat at Duluth are growing a little but are not large. There were 104 cars of grain on track today of which 34 were new wheat. Minneapolis had 186 cars of spring wheat today, in which there were 54 cars of No. 1 northern and 81 of No. 2. It also had 145 cars of winter wheat.

Minneapolis which led in the decline yesterday was the leader in the advance today. The advance there in September was 1⅝-¾c, and in December 1½c. In Duluth September was up 1¼c and December 1¼c. In Chicago September was up 1⅛c and December 1⅛-¼c. St. Louis September had an advance of 1¼-⅜c and December 1⅛-¼c. New York advanced 1⅛c on both options and Kansas City ¾c on September and 1c on December.

The Liverpool market closed with an advance of ⅜ to ½d. Paris was weak, being off ⅜ to 1¼c. Antwerp was unchanged.

Primary receipts of wheat were 752,000 bus., last year 1,051,000 bbus. Shipments 286,000 bus, last year 795,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 217,000 bus.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 313 cars, and at Chicago, 111, a total of 424 cars, against 296 last week and 435 last year.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed ⅛c lower. December corn in the Chicago market was ¼-⅜c up and December oats ⅜-½c up. Primary receipts of corn were 600,000 bus., last year 170,000 bus. Shipments 364,000 bus., last year 124,000 bus. Clearances were 95,000 bus.

Trading in wheat on the Duluth market was fairly active. September opened ¼c up at 81½c, sold at 81¾c at 9:33, at 81½c at 9:35 and bulged to 82⅛c at 10:40. From that point it reacted to 81⅞c at 11:25 and then advanced again continuing upward to the close which was at 82½c. December opened ½c up at 79½c, sold up to 80¼c, fell off to 80 and then advanced, closing at 80⅜c.

Cash prices continued at 5c over September for old No. 1 northern, 2c over for new No. 1 northern on track and September price for new No. 1 northern to arrive. Sales were 10,000 bushels.

Flax was inclined to be stronger in the early part of the day, October selling ¼c up to $1.01½, but it weakened and closed with a decline of ½c for both September and October and ¾c for November and December.

There was an advance of ½c in rye and ¼c in oats.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat in store, old No. 1 hard, 87½c; No. 1 northern, 87½c; new to arrive, No. 1 hard, 83½c; No. 1 northern, 82½c; No. 2 northern, 80½c; new No. 1 northern in store or to arrive in August, 84½c; No. 2 northern, 82½c. Macaroni No. 1, 60c; No. 2, 55c; September, 82½c; December, 80⅜c; May, 83⅝c. Flax in store, $1.00¼; on track, $1.00¼; September, $1.00¼; October, $1.00¾; November, $1.01; December, $1.01; May, $1.05. Oats to arrive, 35c; on track, 35c; to arrive in September, 35c. Rye on track, 51½c; to arrive, 51½c; to arrive in September, 51½c. Barley, 35@57c.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

The Harvest Conditions Gave Wheat Much Strength.

Chicago, Aug. 26.—Comparatively firm cables and poor harvest conditions in the Northwest owing to rain produced a strong market in wheat. September was ⅝@½c higher at 80¼c to 80⅜c and December up ¼@⅜c to ⅜@½c at 81¼c to 81⅜c. Prices went to the ½c mark on both options but weakned slightly on general selling. Trade was fairly large. Duluth and Minneapolis reported receipts of 313 cars, which with local receipts of 111 cars —13 contract grade—made total receipts for the three points 424 cars agains 296 last week and 435 a year afo.

The weakness was only temporarily, however, and on free buying by commission houses with some demand from the Northwest, influenced by strong outside markets, the market advanced to 80⅜c for September, closing strong at ⅝@¾c, a gain of ¾@⅞c. December closed at the top 1¼c higher at 82⅛c.

September corn opened ⅛@¼c up at 50⅝c while December was unchanged to shade lower. Market became strong on cables and wet weather reports from West and both options touched 51 cents. Receipts 298 cars, 26 contract.

Covering by shorts and the strength in wheat held prices about steady. September showing a gain of ⅛@¼c at the close at 50⅝c. December closed ⅝c higher at 51@⅛c.

Oats opened a shade to ¼@¼c higher with September at 34¼c to 34⅜c and December at 35¼c to ⅜c. On commission house buying December went to 36c. There was no special feature. Receipts 148 cars.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market is about a cent higher. It is much more active and shows a broadening tendency. The cash situation is about the same. Receipts are small and the demand good wherever wheat is moving. Foreign markets showing strength and export interest is increasing. Rains in the Northwest are stimulating buying to some extent but apart from this all the conditions of supply and demand and the outlook resulting from them are strong. Should there be any material increase in foreign buying and the export demand become at all urgent the situation would very likely become acute. We still regard the conditions as strong. Any material decline is unlikely and higher prices quite probable.

Corn—Market is higher. The strength in wheat contributed somewhat. Weather fairly favorable for the growing crop. The cash situation is a fairly healthy one and there is a large short interest in the market. The uncertainty of crop conditions are therefore likely to make a scalping market for the immediate future.

Oats—Market firm and higher. Sympathy with the strength in corn and wheat was a factor. The cash demand is fairly good and receipts moderate. We do not see much in the oats situation except as they sympathize with corn for the immediate future.

McQuiston, of Chicago: The pit crowd bought wheat this morning. They seem to favor the bull side on account of the unfavorable weather abroad and the rumor of 300,000 bus of wheat having been sold late yesterday afternoon for export. The volume of business this morning was not very large.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: "Anyone who lies awake at night fearing for the corn crop is a born pessimist," said an official of the Burlington. "Corn conditions today promise an abundant crop and there is no reasonable ground for fearing that they will not continue favorable. Until the crop is fully made. With even a fair crop the prosperity of the West will be fully maintained for another year. We expect to show increased earnings right along."

France—In the North, the quality of the wheat is depreciating.

TRADING IN STOCKS

Was Dull and the Session Was an Uneventful One.

Room Traders Responsible For the Bulk of Trading.

New York, Aug. 26.—London sent higher quotations for Americans again this morning, and the opening was firm in response but on a very light volume of business. Missouri Pacific rose ⅝. Otherwise there were only one or two changes exceeding ¼. Union Pacific declined ¼. The opening prices were not long maintained, offerings of the western stocks causing a general setback. St. Paul and Missouri Pacific reacted a point each and the active list generally fell a small fraction below yesterday's close. Colorado Fuel exceptionally advanced 3 points and Canadian Pacific, Wabash preferred and National of Mexico preferred a point. St. Joe & Grand Island second preferred declined 2¾ and Snuff preferred 1. Business became very dull by 11 o'clock but the undertone of the market was better. The market gravitated to a lower level from sheer inanition. St. Paul, New York Central, Kansas Southern and Brooklyn Transit got a point under last night. Snuff jumped 7. Soo 4½ and St. Louis & San Francisco second preferred 1¾. Bonds were steady at noon.

Inactive stocks furnished the only fluctuations of interest during the noon hour's trading. Iowa Central pfd rose 1½ while Consolidated Gas lost 1 and St. Joe & Grand Island 2¾. A recovery in Atchison to the best caused some hardening at other points, but the movement was narrow. Colorado Fuel reacted 2 points.

Prices dropped dully. Copper getting a point under last night. American Car pfd. fell 1¼; Paper pfd. 2⅞, and Wabash pfd reacted 1½: Anaconda rose ⅝ on a few transactions, and Steel Sprinf pfd lost 4 on one transaction. Room shorts covered and the market hardened slightly, but the closing was dull and heavy.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market is unchanged. The characteristics are absence of selling pressure of long stocks and extreme dullness. There is pressure in spots from bear traders but nothing persistent or serious. Money situation remains unchanged. Call money is very easy but the street is still anxious as to the future. As long as the crops are moving as moderately as at present and the property coming out of farmers hands going into immediate consumption we see nothing to make any great drain on the New York banks. When this feeling of apprehension wears away we look for a better market. Think stocks are worth ruling prices and should be bought.

Dow-Jones to B. E. Baker: There was a little scattering selling of stocks this morning on the idea that the consolidated Lake Superior re-organization might involve an assessment, and entail realizing elsewhere to meet it. Some of the early heaviness in Atchison may have been due in a measure to this case.

New York to W. H. Laidley & Co.: The Stockholder says: "Midsummer dullness prevails. That about describes the market. Fluctuations are limited to a couple of points either way. Room traders are responsible for the bulk of dealings, commission business quiet and important interests holding aloof. At the same time liquidation is absent and the attempts of operators for the decline to bring about general selling of long stocks are ineffectual. The inference is that the market is on a better and sounder basis than for some time. When there is a pronounced swing it will be upward.

Hulton to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market has been professional today, and without feature, there being no news changing the general situation. We do not know of a year in the past in a steadily declining market, when we have not had a small bull campaign at least some time during that year. Things look as if they were shaping themselves for such an upturn. We are likely to see a hardening tendency in prices.

New York to Coe Commission Co.: Canadian Pacific earnings the third week in August were $926,000, an increase of $135,000; from July they have been $6,648,000, increase of $1,066,389.

J. S. Bache to Paine, Webber & Co.: There was a quiet and uneventful opening with a firm tone. The public shows no interest notwithstanding favorable conditions and professionals are inclined to wait the cue from controlling interests before extending their commitments. The traders were responsible for the declines in Missouri Pacific, Rock Island and St. Paul. Pool buying in Wabash advanced these issues in the early trading. The same lifeless speculation continued during fractional rallies. The close was dull and uninteresting.

Waldorf to Coe Commission Co.: Among representative commission houses, comments on the stock market conservatively bullish. There observers say that the speculative situation continues to improve and that while the dullness may continue a while longer, when it is broken by activity, prices will advance. This contention is based on the fact that there is little disposition on the part of actual holders to sell long stocks. On the other hand when weakness develops there is a good demand for standard shares and as the crop season progresses the short interest in these is expected to show increased uneasiness. In fact, at the moment, the chief motive of peculation is the corn crop. Bulls are buying or holding the stocks they have on the belief that the crop will pass the frost line unharmed. Bears sell or stand on the chance that the crop will be cut down. Meantime most advices point to material improvement and the belief gains ground that corn will be a good crop. If this outcome becomes more apparent with the approach of October it is thought that shorts will cover on a rising market. These commitments in St. Paul, Missouri Pacific, Atchison, Union Pacific and Rock Island, all of which would be affected adversely by a poor corn crop or a short wheat yield are of large volume.

The annual reports of the Reading, also its July statement of net earnings now due are expected to impart increased strength to all the coal stocks. Observant brokers say that the short interest in Reading common exceeds that of any other stock on the list and there is some talk that the publication of the company's earnings will be followed by a covering movement which will put the stock up several points.

New York to Coe Commission Co.: For the first time John D. Rockefeller is said to be financially interested in Amalgamated Copper. He is said to have bought around 40 and to have bought further during the past week. Content Waserman have been buying Canadian Pacific. The recent buying of Copper something in way of accumulation is in progress but any attempt to advance stocks seems to be discouraged in strong quarters.

New York to Paine, Webber & Co.: There is among a number of very solid commission houses a disposition to make a bear campaign in New York Central. It was picked yesterday morning as a sort of a leader when the whole list looked nominally reactionary. One house offered stock at 119½, when it was selling regular way at 120½. No doubt to a few uninitiated this matter was interpreted a sa sign of confidence that the stock would decline during the next sixty days. If one stops to figure what sixty days' interest would be on such transaction he would realize that the seller was above the market.

Ridgeley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: The market acted all day yesterday just like the commencement of one of those old fashioned bull campaigns. I hope you are on fo rthe rise. St. Paul should reach 145 by Friday. Copper looks the best on the list. I believe that 70 is not too high for it on this move. I advise buying active issues on slight recessions today.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, Aug. 26.—The cotton market opened quiet at a decline of 6 to 9 points, under lower cables, better crop and weather news. At the lower level, however, considerable buying developed and the market ruled steady for a time around the initial level, with September selling up to last night's level while the later positions showed advances of about 4 points as compared with the opening figure. The general market was fairly active at first, but business dwindled later though the undertone showed considerable firmness.

IN MARINE CIRCLES

Crew of Codorus Has an Exciting Adventure on This Trip.

Rescued Seventeen Persons Who Would Have Been Lost.

The captain and crew of the steamer recently had an exciting adventure, when the crew of the sinking steamer Queen of the West was rescued off Fairport, Ohio, last Thursday.

Had it not been for the opportune appearance of the Codorus, seventeen more victims would have been added to the list of Lake Erie's corpses.

Capt. McKenzie upon being asked concerning it, modestly related the facts of the case.

"We heard the distress signals, and I sighted the Queen of the West with my glasses and headed for her," said he, "but she appeared to be making good weather of it and continued on her course. I was about to put my vessel about again when I took another look through the glasses, and I saw she was very low in the water and the sea washing over her.

"When we came nearer I could see the crew on the deck with life preservers on. All this time she was running away from us with full steam, and we had to overtake her.

"Just before we reached her a big sea washed over her decks and carried away the two little daughters of Chief Engineer Drouillard. They appeared to be gone, but when the water cleared away, I caught sight of them on the other side of the deck, where the water had carried them.

"They had lost their lifeboats and had nothing left but the life preservers, and it was a lucky thing for them that we happened to come alongside.

"The chief engineer was the last man to leave the ship.

"It took us about five minutes to get the crew off, and we took them into Fairport.

"I asked the master of the lost boat why he did not check down when he saw us chasing him, and he said that he feared if he did he would get into the trough of the sea, and sink at once."

"We don't want harmony in the Democratic party—not the kind that marks servile, abject submission. Out of discussion and contention let us hope to discover thes truth how best to discover the truth how best to select leaders that stand the fire of criticism.

Let us restore the ancient bounds of the constitution, overthrow the greed that controls the government and secure to the people their right to rule."

After the adoption of the majority report on credentials for seating the Johnson delegates for five counties, J. H. Cooke, of Wapakoneta was introduced as permanent chairman and addressed the convention. Minority and majority reports on rules and order of business was presented. The former privilege for the endorsement of a candidate for senator and the latter making no such provision. Webster Huntington, in supporting the minority report said the organization of the convention had demonstrated that a convention was not as close to the people as the legislature. Gen. E. B. Finley insisted that the line should be drawn some place on the "forcing business" and it should be done on this minority report or Johnson would be called as much of a boss as Mark Hanna.

Ex-Congressman John J. Lentz in supporting the majority report, criticised those who were furnishing ammunition for the Republicans. Judge Ulric Sloan strongly supported the minority report and met a chorus of calls for "the question," as was Newton B. Baker, of Cleveland in a most earnest support of the majority report. Judge David Jones followed for the majority when, amid great confusion the chair declared that the previous question had been ordered and also a call of the counties properly demanded when balloting began.

The vote on substituting the minority report for the majority report resulted 211 ayes, 446 nays. This was the first test in the convention on a roll call between the Johnson and the Zimmerman men. The majority report on rules with provision for the endorsement of a candidate for senator was then adopted after which the committee on resolutions reported the platform which was adopted as follows:

"Assembled in convention at Columbus, preparatory to the state election of 1903, we, the Democrats of Ohio, reaffirming the declarations on national issues of our platform of 1902 adopted at Sandusky, hereby renew our allegiance to the Democratic party of the nation and again avow our devotion to the principles of its last national platform. We accordingly condemn colonialism and imperialism, denounce trusts and trust fostering tariffs, repudiate government by injunction and oppose financial monopoly together with every other monopoly and special privilege. Adhering to these principles of the Kansas City platform we repeat our condemnation of all efforts to renounce or ignore them."

While the platform contains over 4000 words, the foregoing opening paragraph is the only reference to national issues. The people are asked to determine whether all state interests are to be sacrificed for the re-election of Hanna as senator.

"By embodying in the new Ohio code unwise and unjust provisions for the regulation of street railroads, Republican managers have rendered competition more difficult and street car monopoly more secure. By reserving to the government the power to appoint municipal officers in certain cases, they have dangerously concentrated the police power and have complicated their meagre concessions of home rule with tempting opportunities for interference by the state government in the local affairs of cities and villages. A precedent has thus been set that will altogether nullify the principle of home rule."

The platform concludes: "Until United States senators are required by amendment of the federal constitution to be elected by popular vote, nominations of candidates for United States senator should be made by state conventions."

William Jennings Bryan, by special resolution, is invited to speak in Ohio in support of these declarations of principles.

Judge F. M. Hagins a townsman of Zimmerman's at Springfield, presented a lengthy platform in the minority report. It was largely on national issues and did not endorse either the Chicago or Kansas City platforms. M. A. Daugherty, ex-chairman of the late committee stirred the convention in an argument for the minority report as one to save the party from socialism. He attacked Johnson bitterly. The convention thereupon became so demonstrative that Mayor Johnson had to rise and appeal to his friends to give Daugherty a respectful hearing.

The minority was overwhelmingly defeated on a viva voce vote. The result was received with loud demonstrations as was the viva voce vote on the adoption of the majority report.

John S. Clarke, of Cleveland, prospective candidate for senator was received with an ovation when he presented Johnson's name for the nomination for governor.

After Mr. Clarke concluded Judge Hagin announced that Clarke county, the home of Zimmerman, had no candidate and Johnson was nominated by acclamation amid the wildest scenes.

Johnson then made a speech of acceptance on state issues in line with the platform.

SULZER IS QUIET

New York Congressman Not Disposed to Talk of Politics.

Interesting Character and Figure of Much Political Prominence.

Congressman William Sulzer, of the Tenth congressional district, Borough of Manhattan, spent two days in Duluth incog. until last evening, when his identity was discovered by an actor and some newspaper folks.

Mr. Sulzer is one of the unique characters in the "most arbitrary body in the world," and represents one of the most unique communities in the country.

His district is the most densely populated in the country, and his constituency the most cosmopolitan in the world. It is a little district in the heart of the Borough of Manhattan, but a few wards in its composition, and a few blocks in area, yet it has a population of almost 400,000 people, of which, however, 75,000 are not American citizens and cannot vote.

This community he controls through brotherly love, and the first year he ran for congress, 1892, he changed the vote from 2000 Republican to 11,000 Democratic.

Congressman Sulzer is a character, an interesting character, a charming conversationalist, a keen student of human nature, but you couldn't forget he was a character.

Tall, smooth faced, florid of complexion, and a cigar smoker with no limit attached, he has a choppy sort of speech added to it, and a philosophical vein, with a little humor of the dry sort intermixed, that couldn't help but attract you.

He is a side partner of "Dry Dollar" Tim Sullivan, and Charlie Murphy, the present admitted leader of the New York Democracy or Tammany, as it is called, and he is away up in the so-called Tammany conferences.

As he stepped from the Spalding cafe into the lobby last night he looked surprised when greeted with, "Excuse me, Congressman, just a moment," and said:

"Who told you who I was?"

He said he was traveling incognito, but recollected he had reserved a stateroom on the North West.

"You are a newspaper man. I have just come from Alaska and Seattle. I have been here two days. I think Duluth is a magnificent town. No one can appreciate it who hasn't been here and through all the country between here and the coast. This is my first visit here," he said.

"I am traveling through the West, and I have not one word to say on the political situation in New York. I have turned all the boys down from the coast to here, and will make my record a through one."

Mr. Sulzer would not talk a line of politics for newspaper print. But he couldn't help crying out against Low, and asserting that Greater New York would elect a Democrat if Low tries to run again.

He would not say that Cleveland wouldn't ever get that nomination; nor would he express his opinion that Gorman was the most likely presidential candidate. He would not even admit that William Jennings Bryan will control the situation in the next Democratic convention.

Yet it was plain that he, as a politician, whose astuteness and ability in politics has distinguished him as one of the most gloriously victorious Democrats in the United States, would have made these statements had he been making a statement for newspaper interview.

Here was the man who was for six years a representative of his district in the legislature at Albany, who was David B. Hill's right hand man, and speaker of the lower house in the early '80s, who snatched a Republican congressional district from that party in 1884, and has built up a Democratic stronghold, the like of which is not duplicated in the country, north of the Mason and Dixon line.

Congressman Sulzer is a Bryan man. He was in congress with him, and a most ardent supporter. He still believes in the "boy orator of the Platte." Not only that he believes his time will come, if he lives, to occupy the presidential chair.

While Mr. Sulzer would not talk for publication, it doesn't seem a breach of confidence to mention that he has views regarding Roosevelt. He has just come from the West, where Roosevelt is a tower of strength. The people on the coast believe that Roosevelt's policy and the Republican politics have given them the trade with the Orient.

Parenthetically it might be mentioned that Mr. Sulzer introduced the resolution, which was not supported by Cleveland, to annex Hawaiian islands provided the population desired it, and they did, which started the trans-Pacific business from the coast.

But here is a man who firmly believes that the eastern states—the solid people of the eastern states—today declare that William Jennings Bryan is a far more conservative man, a more far seeing business man, a more practical utilitarian and a better diplomat than the man in the president's chair today; and with a would be more acceptable as president than Mr. Roosevelt.

When one comes to consider that William Sulzer went to congress to aid the Cuban independence movement; when one comes to consider that he chose that manner in preference to going to Cuba to take a place on Gomez's staff or blindly dashing around the island; and when it is considered that he has been one of the foremost in pushing bills for the development of Alaska, and in his own state one of the originators and backers of the deeper Erie canal bill, and when it is considered that he was one of the foremost in expression and action to lend succor to the Boers in their fight for independence, and has been published denounced, praised and scoffed at in turns, all over the country, one can appreciate that perhaps he has gathered a few atoms of knowledge in his fifteen years' political life, and the years before that from the day he was twenty-one, when he was admitted to the New York state bar as a full fledged lawyer—an attorney at twenty-one, in a state where applicants for diplomas have to go before the supreme court judges for examinations.

William Sulzer was first to have been a priest. His fancy ran in that direction till he became at an age of discretion. Then he changed.

"I could not bring myself to be dogmatic and talk about something I didn't know anything about," he said, "and dropped that. I did not want to be a doctor; we all muts die and carry the responsibilities of our death with us. I wanted no additional responsibilities.

"So I said, lawyer. If I make a mistake the other fellow will find it out, and I can't hurt anyone."

While sitting in the lobby Professor Nelson, instructor in political economy at Williams college, came up and shook hands with the congressman, who addressed him as "dear professor."

"Here is a man who will talk politics," said the congressman.

Professor Nelson puffed slowly at his cigar and shook his head solemnly, as is the wont on one of the most thoroughly informed men on present day politics in the country.

"But I can say this: Gen. Miles will never be nominated for the governorship of New York."

"If he is nominated for governor of Massachusetts he will never be elected," said Mr. Sulzer.

"If he is nominated for governor in Massachusetts," said the professor, "it will be the biggest mistake that commonwealth ever made if he is elected. The general is a good warrior, but he is not a politician."

LANDS ARE IN DEMAND

The new township, 57-8, the plat of which was filed at the local land office last February, is already the subject of several contest cases.

At the time the township was opened there was a rush for the choice claims. A large number of settlers had been on the ground previous to the survey, and these had first right to the claims.

Among the first to file on the new land was George H. Feetham, who secured a choice homestead in sections 26 and 27-57-8.

Shortly after Feetham filed, Peter Olson appeared at the local office and asked to file on the same land. When told that it was already taken, he claimed to have been settled on the land and have made some improvements on it, previous to the survey, and he claimed prior right to it according to the rules of the land office. He brought contest against the entry of Feetham, and the evidence is being taken today, before Register Culkin and Receiver Smith of the local office. If he can prove settlement on the land, he will be entitled to the prior right of entry, but otherwise Feetham will be granted a patent on fulfillment of his homestead duties.

The land is valuable from a speculative standpoint, as ore deposits are known to exist in the vicinity. It has also considerable timber on it, and the case will be fought out to the end.

J. H. Sharp is the attorney for the defendant and W. H. Smallwood for the plaintiff. A large number of witnesses have been brought down from the vicinity to testify in the case.

One or two other contests over land in the same township are pending in the local office, and will come up for hearing shortly.

Another new township will be opened by the local land office, Sept. 8, and the local officials are expecting another rush for claims.

The township is 58-8, and already there is a large number of settlers on the ground, waiting for the plat to be filed, in order to have prior right to file on the land.

RAILROAD CHANGES.

M. M. Fowler Will Succeed E. C. Blanchard.

St. Paul, Aug. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—M. M. Fowler, at present assistant superintendent of the Minnesota division of the Northern Pacific, with headquarters in St. Paul, will become superintendent of the division, and will move his headquarters to Minneapolis, to succeed E. C. Blanchard, who goes to Duluth to succeed G. N. Vanderhill, of the Superior division. The position of assistant superintendent will probably go to J. E. Craver, at present chief dispatcher of the Minnesota division. The changes are effective Sept. 1.

KILLED IN COLLISION.

Fireman on the M., K. & T. Loses His Life.

Sedalia, Mo., Aug. 26.—A Missouri, Kansas & Texas passenger train which left St. Louis at midnight for Texas, crashed into a freight train taking a siding at Rhinelands early today. The caboose was reduced to kindling wood and the passenger engine and the platform of the two forward coaches were damaged. None of the passengers were injured. Fred Daniels, fireman of the passenger, was killed, and J. M. Birch, the passenger engineer, and Sam White, a tramp, were seriously hurt.

Daily, except Sunday, leave Duluth 7:00 a. m., 5:30 p. m. Returning, leave Fond du Lac, 7:55 a. m., 6:25 p. m. Sundays only, leave Duluth 9:30 a. m., 2:30 p. m. Returning, leave Fond du Lac 10:45 a. m., 7:00 p. m. Fare, round trip week days, 50 cents, Sundays, 25 cents. Commutation tickets may also be had at greatly reduced rates. For tickets and full information, call at City office, 332 West Superior street.

FAST AND FURIOUS

Duluth now seems to be something of a center in the railroad rate war from Minnesota points to New York.

New York and return, $24.

The price of transportation to New York and back went down $1 this afternoon, when General Agent M. J. Bryan received a wire from headquarters to start selling today the $24 tickets.

They will be good returning Sept. 15.

The Omaha road received word this morning that that company would meet the South Shore company's rate out of Duluth to New York, which is $25. This ticket can be bought till the 29th and is good till Sept. 30.

Two roads are charging $25 now and one $24.

The eastern roads are now in the fight. This happened last night, and the results can not be foretold.

The routing of the Wisconsin Central trip is via Ashland, Chicago, the Grand Trunk to Buffalo and the Leigh Valley to New York.

The South Shore routing is over the South Shore and the Canadian Pacific, with that road's new York connection.

Railroad men are all torn up over the announcements which are coming thick and fast, and it is believed that before the afternoon is over the rate will be met or even clipped a little by the two roads which at noon were offering a $25 rate.

The bulk of the travel will start for New York tomorrow and the day after and the last few hours may mean huge cuts in prices.

With the eastern roads in the fight, the roads out of Duluth are getting their $8 for the Chicago round trip, and the cut comes out of the lines connecting, which have joined in the battle.

The cost of a trip to New York is now cheaper than it has ever been known and is still going down. The same rates apply from Minneapolis.

AMERICAN BOY "SHANGHAIED"

Carried Away On French Bark Bound For Yokohama.

New York, Aug. 26.—Begging that he be taken off the ship and returned to his home, a small boy was "shanghaied" on the French bark Marechal De Gontant, which sailed today for Yokohama. Acting Chief Inspector of Police Brooks received a telephone message today from a truant officer to the effect that an American boy was being "shanghaied" on board the French steamer. Help was at once sought from revenue cutters and the police boat, but before anything could be done the French vessel was out past Sandy Hook.

The vessel had been anchored for several days off Stapleton, Staten island. Today some men on board a water boat went out to the vessel. As they reached the ship the boy, they say, tried to climb overboard, crying out, "For God's sake take me ashore."

Several French sailors carried the boy back and took him below. A few minutes later anchor was weighed and the ship started out to sea.

Collector Stranahan said that the law department of the collector's office would first investigate the story and then see the agents of the vessel about the matter.

FORESTRY CONVENTION

Action Against "Timber and Stone Act" Was Defeated.

Minneapolis, Aug. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—At this morning's session of the American Forestry association, Prof. B. E. Fernow of Cornell university, attempted to pledge it to the repeal of the timber and stone act, by a resolution instructing the legislative committee to draw up such a bill and to prepare a substitute law embracing improved methods of disposing of government timber lands. T. B. Walker, the Minneapolis lumberman, defended the act and after a lively debate the resolution was tabled. Eugene Bruce, lumberman under the bureau for forestry, contributed a paper on the new Chippewa forest reserve, and the work he had done toward carrying out the Morris law. The government employes under Mr. Bruce will mark trees to be left, as five per cent of the merchantable timber must be left uncut. Mr. Bruce said a limit of 25 per cent would be better for practical forestry purposes.

B. F. Nelson, a Minnesota lumberman, read a paper on reforestration. T. B. Walker discussed the government forest policy, favoring more conservative methods. At the present increasing rate of consumption he predicted that all the timber now in sight would be gone in 25 years. He considered the Pacific coast timber lands best adapted for forest reserve purposes.

Secretary Wilson, who will deliver an address on forestry tonight, arrived this morning and spoke to the association briefly.

THE DEATH PENALTY.

A little thing sometimes results in death. Thus a mere scratch, insignificant cuts or puny boils have paid the death penalty. It is wise to have Bucklen's Arnica Salve ever handy. It's the best salve on earth and will prevent fatality, when burns, sores, ulcers and piles threaten. Only 25 cents, at all druggists.

CLARKE IS IN THE LEAD

In First Ballot For Nomination For Ohio Senator.

Columbus, O., Aug. 26.—At the Democratic state convention this afternoon, for United States senator to succeed Marcus A. Hanna, the name of John H. Clarke, of Cleveland, was presented by Newton D. Barker, of Cleveland; of Ex-congressman John J. Lentz, of Columbus, and C. E. Belcher, of Ironton, and of Gaylord M. Saltzgaber, of Van Wert, by A. P. Sandles, of Ottawa. Webster Huntington, the manager of Zimmerman, seconded the nomination of Lentz as a man who would have no apologies to make for not supporting Bryan, as did also H. H. McFadden, editor of the Steubenville Gazette. Ex-representative L. Deran, of Fremont, seconded the nomination of Clarke in such manner as to arouse the Lentz men to demonstration of resentment. The call of the counties then proceeded on the ballot.

The first ballot resulted: Clarke, 335; Lentz, 209; Saltzgaber, 118; C. W. Baker, of Cincinnati, 11; L. A. Russell, of Cleveland, 4. Although some of the 690 delegates did not vote on the question, 346 votes were necessary to a choice. Cheering continued during the balloting and there was a demonstration when the ballot closed by the Clarke men who were in the lead.

ARGUMENTS ON

Powers Case Will Soon Go To the Jury.

Georgetown, Ky., Aug. 26.—Attorney J. B. Morton of Lexington began the opening argument of the defense side of the Powers case today after special Judge Robbins had given eleven written instructions to the jur. The instrucitons given were not accepted from counsel for their state but prepared wholly by the presiding judge.

Attorney Morton spoke for two hours and forty-five minutes and was immediately followed by Attorney Sam Wilson of the same side, the court ruling that the defense, having four speeches to three of the commonwealth must lead off with two speeches. Wilson had spoken but fifteen minutes before noon adjournment.

DIED FROM RAT BITE.

Cambria, Wis., Aug. 26.—David J. Williams, aged 63 years, who was bitten by a rat two weeks ago, died today from blood poisoning which resulted from the bite. Mr. Williams was a member of the lower house of the last legislature. He served in the civil war.

TO RETRY HUESSNER.

Berlin, Aug. 26.—The imperial military court has quashed the reduced sentence of two years and seven days incarceration in a fortress imposed on Naval Ensign Huessner for killing his friend and townsman, artilleryman Hartman, because the latter did not salute him properly, and has ordered his retrial. The original sentence was four years' imprisonment and degredation.

SOLDIERS WANT PAY.

London, Aug. 26.—According to a dispatch from Belgrade many of the soldiers belonging to reserves called out by Turkey are refusing to join the colors as the troops in the field have not received any pay for months.

COUNSEL FOR ITALY.

Rome, Aug. 26.—The Italian government has appointed Senator Auguste Pierantoni, professor of international law, to be counsel for Italy in the question of the preferential rights claimed by Germany, Great Britain and Italy in the settlement with Venezuela.

POPULARITY OF PADDOCK.

Where Owners, Jockeys and Bookmakers Meet.

It pays one to visit the paddock at a metropolitan race track nowadays. Not only can the best information as to the true condition of horses and their chances for success be gleaned, but it is also possible to become intimately acquainted with the inside of racing and the characters who have become permanently identified with the turf, says the New York Sun. The paddock is to the race track what the dressing room behind the scenes is to the stage. The clean-limbed thoroughbreds are groomed and saddled in the paddock. The diminutive jockeys put on their silk jackets there and receive final instructions before slipping their feet into the shining stirrups. The owners, millionaires and men with only shoestrings rub elbows with trainers, hostlers, bookmakers, gamblers and persons whose means of support is not visible to the naked eye.

The paddock makes strange friends. Men talk to other men in the most familiar way, but pass one another by in social life. There is a good fellowship in evidence which prevails all over the race track, a democracy that is peculiar to the turf. A man of millions who had come to the track in a $10,000 automobile stood in the paddock at Sheepshead Bay one day last June, surrounded by friends prominent in the smart set and in finance. He was looking over the horses that were to start in a stake, and among them were two belonging to a well-known sporting man and gambler. The man of millions saw the gambler in the distance and went after him. There was a cordial greeting from the gambler, who, in response to a query as to the chances of his horses, said:

"I think I will win sure, Mr. So and So, "and I'd advise you to put a bet down."

The man of millions did not want any further information. He called a sleek, well-fed young man to one side and told him to bet $1000 for him on "the stable." The betting commissioner hurried away to the busy ring, where he placed the money. The race was run and "the stable" won. The commissioner hurried back to the man of millions with $1800 winnings. The latter hunted up the gambler, and together they drank a bottle of wine in the club house, after which they lighted cigars and had a long chat, during which the sporting man was hand in glove with the friends of the man of millions all the afternoon.

That night the gambler and a number of political friends went over to Manhattan Beach to dine. They had had a most profitable day at the track and the corks were popping merrily. In the midst of the celebration, the man of millions and his friends passed by on the promenade. They did not apparently see the gambler and the politicians, for they secured an exclusive table elsewhere and talked over the incidents of the day by themselves. And the gambler did not join them. He knew that his high standing in their estimation ended at the track's gates.

There is a fraternity of owners in the paddock that is noticeable. It is a combination of interests to beat the bookmakers. The actual work and the condition of the various horses is made known and compared, so that the owners and trainers come very close to figuring the winner. If an owner has a real good thing up his sleeve he makes it known to his friends, and it is generally played. It is the business of the open-eyed club house commissioners to "get wise" to this information, and most of them generally do.

A Wall street man, who is a plunger at the track and owns one of the fastest automobiles in town, has a betting commissioner who has succeeded within a year, making $50,000 out of placing bets on paddock information. The two have a daily conference in the paddock before the races, and their operations are watched closely all the afternoon. Whatever the Wall street man plays is taken to mean that he has received the right cue. Some owners pay big money for information and get it in the paddock. A well-known Tammany politician, who has a useful stable and a private trainer, pays $100 a week to a veteran "clocker" and "railbird" to get a line on the horses in the morning workouts. Each day before the first race this faithful person unfolds a piece of paper for the inspection of his employer, who in five minutes' time knows just what all the best horses have been doing. In that way it is hard to pull off a trick that the Tammany man does not know of beforehand.

Some time ago the Jockey club passed a rule that the jockeys could not leave the paddock to visit the grand stand or the betting ring. This rule, to all appearances, has worked well, but it would be vastly improved with an amendment that would keep bookmakers out of the paddock. One of the best known members of the Metropolitan Turf association makes it a business to visit the paddock before the races each day. He lounges about, nodding to one trainer and shaking hands with another; gossiping with big and little owners and with plungers and commissioners. He even takes a look at the horses as they walk about the sheds, and also smiles beningly on the jockeys, both prominent and obscure.

Later in the day this bookmaker sits on his stool in the betting ring, handling thousands of the public money wagered on the chances of horses that perhaps he has inspected or whose owners, trainers and jockeys have been hobnobbing with him earlier in the afternoon. While nobody attributes anything wrong to the layer's presence in the paddock, it has occasioned much talk, and many owners have expressed the opinion that it does not look well.

While the jockeys are preparing to mount, several Pinkertons, in street clothes, always wander about, keeping their eyes and ears open. They are representing the Jockey club, and their presence acts as a warning to those who, under other circumstances, might have something to say to the knights of the pigskin. These detectives keep an eye on some of the jockeys away from the track, finding out with whom they associate during the evening and securing much valuable information as to their habits. If a boy gets into bad company he soon receives a warning, which is usually sufficient.

Paddock Judge Hall superintends the saddling of horses and calls the boys to the front at the proper time. He is a stickler for punctuality, and always has the starters in a race ready to emerge from the paddock gate as soon as the bugle sounds. Several veterinarians assist Judge Hall by examining horses that are particularly skittish, with the idea of discovering so-called "dope." This is an innovation in the paddock, and so far it has proved effective.

At Morris Park and Sheepshead Bay the paddock is a magnet for society women, who are as well versed in turf vernacular as the men. The fact that numerous women have racing stables of their own is sufficient proof of their fondness for the sport.

The advantages to be gained by a visit to the paddock, therefore, are most pronounced. They lay away over the avenues of information through which the betters in the crowded grand stand and the uncomfortable ring seek to beat the game.

"If I could not look the horses over personally," said a big plunger the other day, "I would not bet on them. The acquaintance with leading trainers and owners is essential to success in this game. When I have stable information and have seen for myself that everything is all right, I put my checks down, but not until then."

The public has gradually become convinced that the paddock is the place to get a true line on form, and the attendance in that particular inclosure this year has been larger than ever before.

THE HISS-JUICE OF FRANCE

"I found out one thing on this last trip over to the big burg, and that is that the stories which we frequently read about begging letter writers of New York are not a particle exaggerated," said a Washingtonian just back from the elephantiasis-afflicted burg located on Manhattan island, according to the Washington Post. "One afternoon last week a New York friend of mine went down to the Gravesend races. He's a man who behaves pretty well, but once in a great while he jumps the reservation and when he does he goes after action, and a whole lot of it, with a gnarled club. He caught four races in a row, and when he left the track in his automobile he had a bale of money that had belonged to the bookies earlier in the afternoon. He had also a fizz bun that gave his motorcar a tremendous list to starboard—he had fallen off the sprinkling cart with a clatter, in his elation over the way he had prodded the layers of odds, and by the time his chauffeur had got the machine across the Thirty-fourth street ferry from Long Island to the New York side my friend, after sundry and divers stop at the roadhouses along the path, was up to the gunnels, and, worse than that, with the merry, mocking hiss-juice of France.

"When he got to the New York side of the Thirty-fourth street ferry he felt the imperative need to engage in philanthropic work right there on the spot and in the presence of the audience. So he halted his machine, stood up in it and began to toss quarters and half dollars to the newsboys. Inside of less than two minutes there was a howling mob of grafters of all ages around that automobile that made it necessary for traffic to suspend for a couple of blocks around. When the chicken feed that he had in his clothes had been all tossed away my philanthropic friend in the automobile began to strip green boys from the numerous wads he had scattered around his clothes and threw them to the scramblers. He was still engaged in doing this when a rough-neck cop came along and pinched him on the charge of disorderly conduct and interfering with traffic. The cop rode to the station with him in the automobile. He left collateral and his chauffeur took him home.

"The racing reporter for one of the New York yellows had recognized him at the Thirty-fourth street ferry when he was chucking away the velvet and on the following morning this saffron sheet had an elaborate and, of course, vastly magnified yarn about the incident, in which my friend's name and address were given. The story, of course, stated that he had tossed large yellow bills of the $50 and $100 variety to the ferry grafters and made it look as if my friend, when it came to wealth, had Rockefeller and Morgan and Croesus and the rest of those people snowed under.

"The begging letters began to arrive at his house address by the very next mail after the publication of the story. He got 300 and more of them during the two days that I remained in New York after the incident and they were still coming along in slews and slathers when I left. They were all skilfully composed. The writer had read of his liberality to the urchins at the ferry, and, if he was a man of that broad and open handed spirit, could he not find it in him to assist a man in hard luck, who had been out of work for eight months, or a woman whose husband had been killed in the subway day before yesterday, etc. Worse than that, scores of letters were addressed to his wife, the writers begging her to prevail upon her husband to give them the necessary lift. This, of course, let his wife in on the whole thing, after he had been to elaborate pains to keep the yellow newspaper containing the sensational account of the ferry incident out of her hands, and she, of course, gave him the wounded antelope gaze when he had to tell her all about it. There's one man in New York who's going to come pretty near trying to be good hereafter."

HOT WEATHER.

"No, I don't call this hot weather. I never call any weather hot after serving at Fort Yuma," said an old retired army officer recently, writes the Fort Leavenworth correspondent of the Kansas City Star. "Never heard of Fort Yuma, the hottest place in this country? Well, I'll tell you a little about the old station which, thank heaven, since the opening of the railroad has ceased to be a station for our troops. I think it is penitentiary now. If you will look 'way down in the southeastern part of California you will on the old maps the name of the old fort. It was the bugbear of the old army and the jumping-off place.

"From about 1850 until 1870 it was a garrisoned post and was looked upon as the hottest place in the country, and I believe it was. Why, it got so hot there you could not wear your watch because the metal would burn you through your clothes. Don't laugh. That is true. Being near the desert air was very dry and evaporation rapid. Rain eldom fell. The quantity seldom exceeds five inches. During the months of April, May and June no rain falls. Then with the thermometer at 105 degrees the perspiration is scarcely seen upon the skin and it becomes harsh and the air crispy.

The seams of boxes open and furniture brought from the north falls apart Ink dries so rapidly on the pen that it has to be washed off as you write every few moments. In making use of a lead pencil it would soon cease to make a mark. The only way one could do was to keep one in a glass of water while making use of the other till it go too dry to make a mark, and then change off. If you did not handle your newspaper carefully it would break to pieces. Eggs kept on hand a week would lose their watery substance from evaporation, the remainder becoming hard and tough. I have no doubt that from this fact arose the story of hens laying hard boiled eggs. The highest temperature recorded at old Fort Yuma was 119 in the shade. The monthly mean for one July was 93, and for ten days at 2 o'clock the temperature was 100. The annual mean temperature oen year was 86 degrees. Attempts to cool yourself with a fan were useless, as the surrounding temperature was higher than the body and the exertion was too much for nothing.

"The parade ground was stony and without a blade of grass. Passage over it burnt the feet. When a dog foolishly started across the parade in the middle of the day he soon began to run on three legs to cool the fourth, and as he progressed he went faster as the heat made his feet hotter, till he broke into a wild run accompanied with ki-yis, till he reached the nearest house where he could find shade. This is a true story, for I was stationed there. An old army story I will tell you runs about like this. I was not there and will not vouch for the truth of the story, but I will not take one inch off the dog story. A soldier died at old Yuma. He was buried the same day. The next neighbor, the hospital steward, was awakened by steps in the hospital. He got up and found the man who had been buried the day before trying to get into the hospital storeroom where the bedding was kept. He asked the man what he wanted. His reply was: 'Well, steward, I went to hell and it is so cold there I have come back for my blanket, as I nearly froze there last night.' Such was the heat of old Yuma.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

U. S. VICE CONSUL AT BEYRUT, SYRIA, A MINNESOTA MAN, HAS BEEN ASSASSINATED

U. S. VICE CONSUL IN SYRIA ASSASSINATED

W. E. Magelssen of Freeborn County, Minn.

Prompt Action In Matter Demanded of Turkey.

Washington, Aug. 27.—The state department has received a cablegram from Minister Leischman at Constantinople, announcing that William C. Magelssen, United States vice-consul at Beyrut, Syria, was assassinated yesterday while riding in a carriage. The minister immediately brought the crime to the attention of the government and demanded action by Turkey. Acting Secretary Loomis today cabled Minister Leischman instructions to demand arrest and puishment of the persons guilty of the murder. No demand for money idemnity for the man's family has yet been made. Magelssen was appointed from Minnesota.

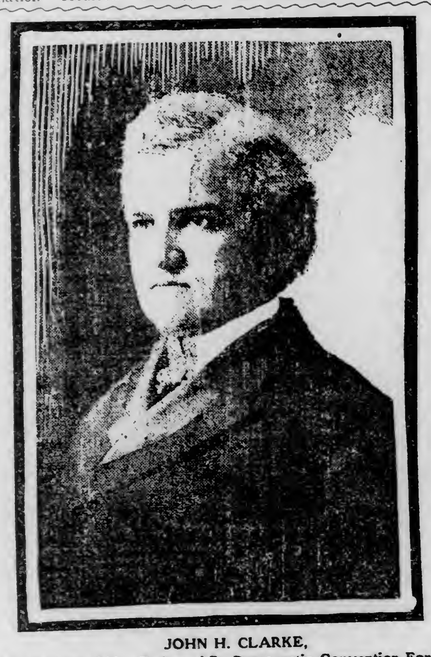

Admiral Cotton, commanding the European squadron, has been cabled by the navy department to have his vessels in readiness to move to Beyrut, which is on the eastern shore of the Mediterranean sea, in case the demands of the United States government on the Turkish government are not complied with. The Brooklyn and the San Francisco are at Ville Franche and the Machlas is at Genoa. Magelssen, who is a Scandinavian, was appointed vice consul at Beyrut Sept. 20, 1890, by Consul Gabriel Bie Ravndal, who is of the same nationality. At the time of his appointment as vice consul he was consular clerk in Turkey. Magelssen was appointed on the recommendation of Senator Nelson of Minnesota, who says that he was the son of a prominent Lutheran minister. He was born at Bratsburg, Fillmore county, Minn.

Minister Leischman's cablegram was dated yesterday and stated that the assassination occurred Sunday, the minister being informed of the crime by Consul Ravndal. The consul stated that the murderer was not seen and is not known.

The announcement of the assassination of the American vice-consul, following so soon upon the assassination of a Russian consul in Turkey, created strong comment in official circles and the suggestion was made that such frequent assassinations indicate a very disturbed condition of affairs in the Turkish domioions. Minister Leischman gave no particulars of the assassination and the state department has no information as to the cause. The American government will insist that the local authorities be punished if they were derelict in any way.

Beyrut is a city on the eastern coast of the Mediterranean sea and is a place of considerable commercial importance. It is probable that the action of the Turkish government and the condition existing at Beyrut will determine whether or not the European fleet is to be sent to Turkish waters. Unless the Turkish government acts promptly upon the demands made by the United States government it is expected that the European fleet will at once move eastward.

St. Paul, Aug. 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—William C. Magelssen, vice consul at Beyrut, Syria, who was assasinated yesterday, is a young man and is a brother-in-law of Consul Ravndal, who appointed him. Consul Ravndal is from North Dakota, Magelssen was appointed from Freeborn county, Minn., about two years ago. It is not known here whether he has a family of his own. He is a brother of Mrs. Ravndal.

JOHN H. CLARKE,
Of Cleveland, Ohio, Endorsed By Democratic Convention For United States Senator.

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 27.—The following ticket was nominated by the Democratic state convention: Governor, Tom L. Johnson, of Cleveland; lieutenant governor, Frank B. Niles, Toledo; supreme judge, Edward J. Dempsey, Cincinnati; attorney general, Frank S. Monnett, Columbus; treasurer of state, V. J. Dahl, Washington Court House; auditor of state, Charles A. Kloebe, Wapakoneta; school commissioner, J. H. Secrest, Ottawa; member of board of public works, T. H. B. Jones, Ironton; United States senator (indorsed), John H. Clarke, Cleveland.

John H. Clarke, who will canvas the state with Mayor Johnson and other Democratic candidates, formerly was a prominent attorney at Youngstown. He now lives in Cleveland, where both the Republican and Democratic candidates for governor and for United States senator live.

Clarke yesterday made two speeches, one presenting the name of Johnson and the other accepting the senatorial endorsecent. The speeches of Temporary Chairman Saltzgaber and of Permanent Chairman J. H. Goeke insisted that if the Democratic party was to change its policy to suit the times the change must be made by friends of the party and not by enemies. The result of the convention leaves the state committee 18 to 3 in the hands of the Bryan and Johnson adherents until next year, when delegates to the Democratic national convention are to be selected.

ST. PAUL WOMAN KILLED BY FALL

St. Paul, Aug. 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Herman Koke fell from a second story window of her home early this morning, a distance of twenty-five feet, on to a pile of rocks. Her skull was fractured and she died soon afterwards.

Mr. Koke says he saw her get out of bed about 1 o'clock this morning and go to the window. Suddenly she disappeared. Mrs. Koke had been ill for some time, and it is believed that she was overcome by dizziness while standing at the window. There had been no trouble in the Koke family.

CHINESE WILL SELL.

Tien Tsin, Aug. 27.—It is learned that the Chinese agree to sell the New Chwang railroad. As a commercial speculation it is hopeless. In July the road earned $60,000, while the mortgage interest alone amounted to nearly $110,000, without counting working expenses.

CONTRACTOR HELD UP.

Bozeman, Mont., Aug. 27.—Hadley Morrison, a contractor on a Montana railroad, was held up and robbed of $1800 only a few blocks from the center of the town. The robbers escaped.

BOTH SIDES RESTING

Land Forces Await Next Move of Attacking Fleet.

Efforts of Enemy To Land Have Been Repulsed.

Portland, Me., Aug. 27.—At daybreak today after a night of considerable activity, both sides in the war game in progress off this port were resting. Various movements made by vessels representing the enemy had been met promptly by the men who manned the forts and other harbor defenses and several attempts at landing made by forces from the fleet had been repulsed.

The operations last night and this morning were conducted entirely by cruisers and torpedo boat destroyers. Desultory firing continued from 3:15 until 5 o'clock, but shortly after dawn the fleet retired to the rendezvous off Harpswell, yesterday's anchorage grounds and the land troops were waiting for the next move.

WILL ENTER MONASTERY

Miss Mary Sturgis of St. Paul To Renounce World.

St. Paul, Aug. 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Mary Tyler Sturgis, of St. Paul, will tomorrow enter a monastery of the convent at Georgetown, D. C., with the intention of remaining. Miss Sturgis was one of the most brilliant women in St. Paul. She has always been immensely popular in society and was particularly noted for her splendid conversational powers. Her wit and hearty, fun-loving spirit always insured the success of any social event in which she was interested.

The Order of the Visitation is a cloistered order, and each of its convents are separate. A woman becoming a postulant in one, and later a nun, not only finally renounces the world, but never leaves the institution she has entered.

The Visitation convent at Georgetown is the oldest religious community in the United States. It is aristocratic, too, with the aristocracy that comes to even a religious institution through age and wealth and influence.

NEW CLEVELAND BABY

Has Been Named Francis Grover Cleveland.

Buzzard's Bay, Mass., Aug. 27.—The boy recently born to Mr. and Mrs. Grover Cleveland has been christened Francis Grover Cleveland. Mr. Cleveland did not wish the boy to be named Grover, but the children—Ruth, Marion, Esther and Richard—wanted to name the baby after their "mama" and "papa," and their wish has been granted, the name of Francis being given in honor of Mrs. Cleveland. The other children are delighted, for they have been calling the baby Francis since he was born.

STAGGERED THE COURT.

Negro's Audacious Watermelon Lie Secured His Release.

La Crosse, Wis., Aug. 27.—With eight other men, George Barnes, a Chinese negro, who was arrested charged with stealing watermelons from a box car, swore in court that he had never eaten and did not like watermelons or rice. The audacity of the story resulted in his release. He says he is a native of England. His mother was a negress and his father a "Chink."

SIX WERE DROWNED.

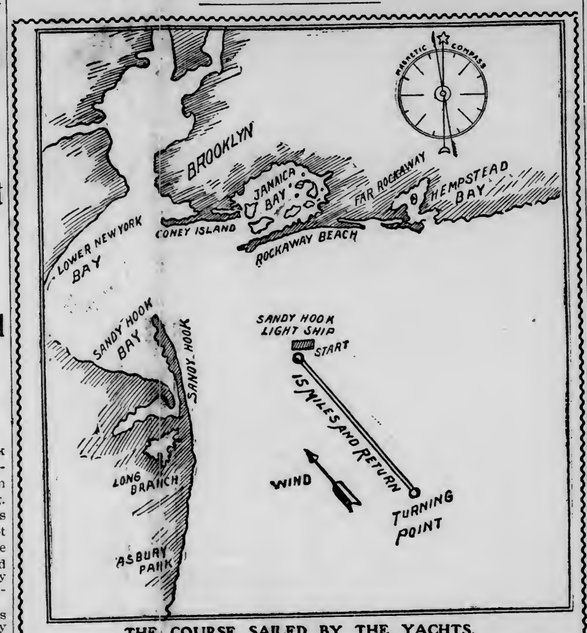

Schooner John Booth Run Down and Sunk.

Stonington, Conn., Aug. 27.—The Metropolitan Steamship company's H. M. Whitney from New York to Boston ran down and sank the schooner John Booth, just west of New Haven, last night. The Whitney rescued the captain of the Booth; the Maine of the Stonington line saved a sailor but the five other men in the Booth's crew and a passenger who belonged in Salem, Mass., were drowned.

FATHERS ARE EXPELLED.

Paris, Aug. 27.—The expulsion of the Redemptorist fathers from their monastery at Les Sables was carried out today after an exciting experience. The barricaded building was surrounded at 3 o'clock this morning by soldiers, police and firemen.

YACHTS FAIL TO FINISH THE THIRD RACE IN TIME LIMIT

THE COURSE SAILED BY THE YACHTS.

New York, Aug. 27.—The yacht race is officially declared off. Yachts unable to finish in time limit, owing to lack of wind.

TOLD BY BULLETINS.

New York, Aug. 27, 10:46 a. m.—The preparatory gun was fired at 10:45 a. m.

10:56—Warning signal was fired 10:55, with both boats to windward.

11:05—Both boats have crossed the line. Reliance crossed line first, Shamrock minute later.

Actual starting time, unofficial: Reliance, 11:03:05; Shamrock, 11:04:05. Both boats had such a close fight for for position that neither crossed the line before the handicap gun was fired, so that the time for the start was 11:02:00.

11:40.—Reliance seems to have struck a puff of wind and is moving quite fast. Both are on port tack.

11:55 a. m.—Yachts have sailed about three miles. Reliance leading about half mile.

12:10 p. m.—Dispatch by Marconi confirms that both yachts were handicapped at the starting. Time for both was 11:02:00.

12:13 p. m.—Wind freshens, now about seven miles an hour, and hauling further to south.

Marconi—Four miles from start Reliance is leading by half mile. Sea is smooth, weather cloudy. Wind five knots and increasing.

1:04 p. m.—Reliance still has commanding lead. She is four miles from the outer mark.

1:15 p. m.—Reliance is leading by eight minutes and is to the windward.

1:30 p. m.—Reliance is very near the outer mark.

1:43 p. m.—Reliance is leading by one mile.

2:38 p. m.—One yacht barely can be seen running home under spinnaker. She has covered about three miles since the turn.

2:43 p. m.—Reliance is running to lightship very slowly, but it is estimated she will finish within the time limit, unless wind decreases.

2:50 p. m.—Both boats are in view. Reliance apparently leading by something over a mile.

3:10 p. m.—Reliance will barely finish within time limit, if she is to do so at all. Wind four miles an hour. To further retard her is the full course of the tide. Ten miles from finish Reliance was leading by a mile. Wind steady at five knots, and indications that finish would be within time limit.

3:15 p. m.—On passing the imaginary line Reliance was leading by 15 minutes and Shamrock nearly two miles astern.

3:20 p. m.—Contest has developed into race between Reliance and time. Reliance is still 6 miles from lightship and has one hour and ten minutes within which to cover that distance. Shamrock is hopelessly beaten.

3:40 p. m.—Reliance is four and a half miles from finish and fifty minutes left. Her race against time will be a very close one.

3:49 p. m.—Reliance has scarcely moved a mile in the last twenty minutes and has little chance of finishing the race.

4 p. m.—Although Reliance is within four miles of the lightship, and the breeze has increased a trifle, it seems probable the race will be called off. The official time of turning outer mark was not displayed by committee boat. Unofficial times, as taken by turning mark, was: Reliance, 1:54:16; Shamrock, 2:06:50.

4:05 p. m.—Reliance has re-set her spinnaker which she had taken in for a last brave effort to reach the line. It looks as if she must cover more than three and a half miles in twenty-six minutes.

4:16 p. m.—Reliance is more than two miles from the finish and the wind still light.

4:20 p. m.—Reliance cannot possibly make the mark. The race will certainly be declared off.

THE DETAILED STORY.

New York, Aug. 27.—(Start of race from tug.)—The start of the third race was close but not very exciting. Both yachts toyed with handicap time to such an extent that both boats went across the starting line after the two minute handicap had expired and the official time of the start was recorded as follows: Reliance 11:02; Shamrock, 11:02.

As a matter of fact Captain Barr the American skipper won another victory and sent his boat across the line fifty-three seconds ahead of Shamrock, according to unofficial watches. It was Captain Wringe who inaugurated the tactics which resulted in the failure of the boats to cross within the time limit. As the starting time approached the Englishman began to play with the handicap time. He held off repeatedly and refused to approach the line where Captain Barr was trying to coax him. The latter finally decided to take up the gauntlet and he too used dilatory tactics.

Reliance won at last and after putting the Britisher in an awkward position darted across the line a full minute (uofficial) after the handicap gun, but well ahead of his opponent.

New York, Aug. 27.—It was dark and lowering this morning when the crews of the two big yachts appeared on deck to prepare for the third contest. The sky was overcast and at 7 o'clock light showers of rain were falling in many places within a radius of thirty miles of Sandy Hook. The southeast breeze which blew finely all day yesterday had blown itself out by dawn this morning, and although there were faint breaths of air from that direction, there were many calm spots out over the ocean.

Yesterday's southeaster had left something of a ground swell and the surf along shore was fairly heavy, but not so strong as that which prevailed a week ago on the first day when the yachts endeavored to race.

Notwithstanding these dull conditions the air was surprisingly clear, and from Sandy Hook vessels could be distinguished many miles out to sea.

About 7:30 the wind began to breeze up from a little north of east, thereby carrying out the predictions of the weather bureau.

Still, at this hour the air did not have strength enough to warrant the starting of a race, and three and a half hours before the time for the yachts to cross the line the chances for a postponement seemed better than for a race.

At 8 o'clock the wind had freshened somewhat and was blowing about four miles from the east. On the racers there had been no attempt to get ready, as has usually been the case on race day mornings. Instead of putting their headsails in stops and stripping the covers off mainsails before getting their breakfasts, the crews idled about the decks of their yachts, looking with some degree of apprehension at the weather signs.

Mr. Herreshoff, the designer of Reliance, who is aboard his steam yacht Roamer, predicted that while the yachts might start, they would hardly be able to finish within the time allowance, unless there was a great change in the weather.

Shortly after 8 o'clock the crews on the two yachts, encouraged by the appearance of a few scattered rays of sun, put up their staysails and jibs in stops, and took the covers off their mainsails. The Irish boat also raised her mainsail, the same one she used on Tuesday in the triangular race. It set just as badly on its first run up, but as the light breeze filled it, it bellied out and looked to be a splendid fit.

At 8:15 Reliance raised her mainsail, the same she has used throughout the series of races. She wore the new gaff that was measured yesterday. It is similar to the old gaff, but is considered a trifle stronger in case of a stiff breeze.

At 8:30 Shamrock sent up her club topsail, but had quite a little trouble getting it to set properly.

The wind had hauled a trifle south, and the clouds began to break near the horizon, giving promise of clearer weather and a fair breeze.

At 8:45 the breeze from south of east was freshening, and Shamrock was ready to go out, while Reliance was preparing to take a tow. Shamrock's two sails had been carefully set and even better looking on any day yet, particularly the club topsail, which set beautifully.

Mr. Iselin went aboard Reliance at 8:46 and a few minutes later a line was taken by the tug Guiding Star and the cup defender started out from the Hook for the lightship.

Sir Thomas aboard the Erin hoped for more wind but said: "We are going to do our best today, that is as much as anybody can do."

Stories that there was friction between Captain Wringe of Shamrock III. and Mr. Fife were rife last night.

In an effort to learn the truth Sir Thomas was approached on the subject.

"The two men," he said, "occupy entirely distinctive positions. If they have been criticising each other I do not know it. Mr. Fife advises about the sails, the trim of the boat and other details of that character. Captain Wringe is in absolute command and I as owner, have not criticised him."

It was said further on the Erin that Sir Thomas is deluged with anonymous letters and telegrams informing him that members of the crew are traitors to the interests of the boat. Only a day ago a telegram signed by the captain of a coastwise steamer was received by Sir Thomas saying that the boatswain of Shamrock III. was the cause of that boat losing that race and that the signer knew him as a traitor.

Sir Thomas said: "I throw such letters and telegrams overboard. I am not changing my crew."

At 9 o'clock, the prospects for a race were brighter. The wind had freshened to five knots at Sandy Hook and the sky was beginning to clear. The tug Cruiser passed a line to the Shamrock and at 9:15 started out mainsail and club topsail set. At that hour Reliance was about a mile out to sea headed for the lightship.

After his guests had boarded the Erin, Sir Thomas Lipton left the Hook for the starting line. The committee boat Navigator and the stake boat John Scully passed out by the Hook with the first of the excursion fleet in their wake. If the wind shall hold from the present quarter east by south, the course will lay out to sea along the Long Beach shore.

An hour before the time set for the start there seemed to be little prospect of finishing a race should one be started; in fact, the conditions were the most discouraging of all the series. The excursion fleet began to appear at this time, and the revenue cutters steamed in and out preparatory to clearing the course.

Despite the discouraging conditions when the committee arrived at the starting line, it was decided to make an attempt at a race, and the course signalled was southeast for a windward and leeward run. The wind at this time was scarcely more than three or four miles an hour. As the course signals were broken the yachts dropped their tows, set jibs and forestay sails and began to sail about the starting line. Twenty minutes before the time set for the start the wind seemed to increase a bit.

In spite of the light air and the prospects of the yachts being unable to finish within the time limit, the regatta committee fired the preparatory gun at 10:45. At that time both boats were close together on the leeward side of the line, sailing about with jib topsails set. In the preliminary work Reliance seemed to sail about with more life than the Shamrock, although neither boat maneuvered very fast. Six minutes before the time set for the start the wind had increased to about five miles an hour, and the fight for position became brisk.

The fight for position at the start was very keen and was entirely in favor of the American boat. Four minutes before the starting gun was fired the Shamrock, being at a further distance to the south of the committee boat, headed back to the line. The Reliance held away for about a minute and then started after her. The great sail spread of the Reliance enabled Capt. Barr to completely blanket the Shamrock, and from this position Capt. Wringe was unable to extricate his boat. Capt. Wringe, however, was able to prevent the Reliance getting down into position on the leeward side of the line, and both boats, when the starting gun was fired, were on the windward side, heading over toward the lightship. Reliance then pulled by Shamrock and, rounding the lightship, headed for the line on the port tack. Shamrock was more than a minute astern of the American boat, and had a handicap of two minutes and five seconds. It was the worst start an English boat has made in an America's cup contest for many years. At 11:15 both yachts were headed a little north of east, sailing very slowly on the starboard tack. Reliance was well in the lead. The wind was blowing about five miles an hour, and at 11:20 Shamrock was heading four or five points off the course sailed by Reliance. In fact, Reliance, twenty minutes after the start, had an apparent lead of nearly half a mile.

The conditions of the start gave Reliance a very decided advantage, for though both yachts are officially timed as crossing at 11:02, Shamrock actually crossed one minute and seven seconds behind her competitor, thereby reducing the time which Reliance must overcome in her time allowance, one minutte and seven seconds. Thus Reliance, in actual sailing, has only to overcome in time allowance fifty seconds.

Both yachts held to the eastward on the starboard tack until 11:28. Reliance continued to pull away a bit, and when both tacked to port she had a lead of fully three-eighths of a mile. Shamrock had moved so slowly that she was scarcely a mile from the lightship when she came about. Neither yacht was heeling over to any extent. The air was very light and the excursion fleet continually had to stop so as not to be in advance of the racers.

At 11:55 the wind inshore was blowing six or seven knots an hour from the southeast and there were prospects of the race being finished on time. At noon the boats had been sailing about an hour and covered about one-third the distance to the outer mark. Reliance's gain as the yachts worked slowly out toward the mark was continuous, and she pulled away until at 12:25 there was a space of about a mile between the two boats. The breeze had freshened to about seven knots and the boats were moving faster than at any previous time in the race. Shamrock appeared entirely unable to hold Reliance. At 12:15 they were half way to the outer mark.

It was 12:30 when Barr hove his wheel over and tacked to starboard. Capt. Wringe evidently had an idea of his own and did not intend to be influenced by any of the defender's actions. Barr found his opponent did not follow his lead and only held the starboard tack for four minutes, when he again tacked to port. Hardly had he filled away when the Shamrock came about. Barr did not hold his direction long and quickly followed the challenger's example and tacked to starboard. The yachts at this time had apparently sailed about ten miles of the course. The wind had not fallen, and the prospects were for a finish race.

As the yachts drew nearer the outer mark, the Shamrock seemed to hold the Reliance better, appearing to point almost as high and foot as fast. At 1:02 both yachts having made a long tack to starboard, came about and headed towards the south. They were somewhat to the westward of the course, and it looked as if they might reach the mark on the next tack. The wind was off shore, and seemed to be holding fairly well, blowing about six miles an hour.

The wind began to haul a little to the south as the afternoon progressed. Most of the excursion fleet kept to the eastward of the line, but others hurried forward for a good position near the finish line. At 3 o'clock Reliance was about eight miles from the lightship, and looked to be about a mile and a half ahead of the Shamrock.

Shamrock Was Hopelessly Defeated By Reliance.

Barr Gets a Long Lead on Crossing the Line.

FINANCIAL LEGISLATION WAS DISCUSSED WITH PRESIDENT.

Oyster Bay, Aug. 27.—The proposed financial legislation and the pending postoffice investigation were the most important subjects discussed today by President Roosevelt with his visitors. President Roosevelt entertained at luncheon Representative Charles N. Fowler of New Jersey, Acting Attorney General J. P. McReynolds, and C. H. Robb, attorney general for the postoffice department; Eugene G. Hay, of Minneapolis, the well-known politician of Minnesota; Ansley Wilcox, of Buffalo, a long-time friend, at whose home Mr. Roosevelt took the oath as president; John C. Davis, former attorney general of New York, and Hamlin Garland, the writer.

Mr. Fowler was summoned to Sagamore Hill in pursuance of the president's plans of ascertaining the views of both representatives and senators on the subject of financial legislation. Mr. Fowler was a member of the house banking and currency committee in the last congress and the author of the currency measure which bears his name.

Acting Attorney General McReynolds and Mr. Robb laid before the president details of the latest developments in the prosecutions for frauds in the postoffice department. Preparations for the trial of persons under indictment are proceeding and the president was informed fully of the status of each of the several cases. The case of George W. Beavers, the chief of the salary and allowance division was considered, the president manifesting particular interest in it. Some minor matters were discussed with the president by his other guests at luncheon.

HANDSOME STOCK

Splendid Showing of Draft Horses, Shetlands and Angoras.

The exhibit of blooded stock from the Jean Duluth stock farm were shipped this afternoon to the state fair grounds, and the eighty-one animals included in the lot make one of the handsomest shows ever seen in that line.

The stock was gathered at Fourteenth avenue east and London road this morning, on the grounds of C. P. Craig, one of the owners of the Jean Duluth farm, and many people were attracted by the sight. The children were particularly delighted with the Shetland ponies, ten of which are included in the exhibit, from shaggy colts to sleek, fat, full-grown ponies, which are not so very much larger than the colts.

There are a number of prize-winners in the lot, together with some that are making their first appearance on any stage.

At the head of the list appears the handsome Percheron draft horses, three stallions of majestic mein in the lead. This bunch of horses will hardly be excelled at the fair. Among the stallions one, Iolhan, was a prize winner at the state fair last year, and he is accompanied by Lethiel and Lazarre.

Charlotte, Fanchette II, Victoria and Lady Buller were prize winners at last year's fair, and they are accompanied by Sirone, which is pretty sure to take a prize this year.

The ten Shetland ponies are headed by Hi Trinket, and include Notion and Novelty, a team that turned out to be the champions at Madison Square Gardens two years ago, and a bay team, O Dear and Jess, that took second prize at Cincinnati two years ago.

Besides the horses and ponies there are sixty head of handsome Angora goats and sheep. There will be full entries from the Jean Duluth farm for all prizes for sheep and goats.

The exhibit is accompanied by A. Kennedy, superintendent of the Jean Duluth farm.

BIG GOLD FIND.

The Ore Assays Up to $50,000 a Ton.

City of Mexico, Aug. 27.—There is much excitement in the state of Oaxaca over the discovery of rich gold fields about 160 miles west of the city of Oaxaca and twelve miles from the town of Ejutla.

The ore found is said to assay up to $50,000 a ton, and so great is the local excitement that cavalry have gone to guard the claims located by enterprising and lucky miners. The ledge is said to be fifteen feet wide. Samples of the ore received here show it to be of a rich quality.

NEELEY LIVING HIGH.

Is Apparently Well Supplied With Funds.

New York, Aug. 27.—Charles F. W. Neeley, of Muncie, Ind., who figured prominently in the Cuban postal scandal three years ago, is now living in quiet elegance in this city. Neely was charged with the embezzlement of $100,000 of postal funds.

Neely landed from Havana in September, 1902, and then, with the exception of an occasional appearance at Washington, dropped completely out of sight except to his most intimate friends. Neely's friends declare that he is entertaining, living and in business clover.

He is in an elegant suite in a bachelor apartment house. He has the second floor apartment in the Royalton, No. 41 West Forty-fourth street, in the immediate vicinity of Sherry's, Delmonico's and other exclusive establishments. Mr. Neeley sublets his apartment from the original tenant, and has occupied them about six months. He travels a great deal, but he makes the Royalton his home when he is in the city. It is not known there that he is engaged in any business in the city, but he lives with the appearance of having plenty of means.

BOY ATTACKED BY WOLVES

Both He and Dog Have a Desperate Fight.

Berlin, Wis., Aug. 27.—The 11-year-old son of Louis Schroeber, while herding cattle on his father's farm, six miles west of this city, was attacked by four wolves, an old she wolf and three young ones. The boy was leading his dog when the animals suddenly washed out of the woods and pounced on the dog and then on the lad. The boy's face and left shoulder were bitten and scratched and the dog was also badly bitten. The cries of the lad attracted a passing lumber wagon driver, who frightened the brutes off.

SAFE INTERCEPTED.

Funds of Alleged Race Fakirs Seized.

Joplin, Mo., Aug. 27.—The federal authorities yesterday intercepted here a steel safe, said to contain $50,000 in gold, in transit from Kansas City to Neosho, Mo., and consigned to George R. Clay, of that city. The package was shipped by Robert Boatright, said to be the leader of the "fake" foot races, who is alleged to have pocketed half a million by his operations in Missouri and other states.

A bitter fight is being waged for possession of the safe. Attorney Clay having taken legal steps to secure its possession, while H. W. Curry, attorney for the foot race victims, is also trying to get the property. Boatright, who is under bonds in other states to the extent of $40,000, is spending the summer at some of the Northern lakes.

RURAL DELIVERY.

Washington, Aug. 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Three rural free delivery routes will be established on Oct. 1 at Maplelake, Wright county, Minn., with carriers. The routes cover an area of fifty-three square miles, containing a population of 1575. Nels Loitved has been appointed regular, and Eugene Freeman, substitute rural carrier, at Eagle Bend, Minn.

COMPANY SETTLES.

Lumber Company Compromises a Damage Suit.

Alger, Smith & Co. has settled the personal injury case brought against them by Andrew Sturminski, father of William Sturminski, who was injured in the lumber company's mill, in which $3,647.50 was sought. The agreement of settlement was filed this morning in district court. The case was tried in district court last spring, the plaintiff securing a verdict of $3500. The lumber company took an appeal to the supreme court and the plaintiff begun another action to recover damages for the loss of services of his son.

By terms of the agreement the defendant withdraws its appeal and the plaintiff withdraws his action to recover for loss of services.

In Bad Condition.

To the Editor of The Herald:—Will you please call attention of the proper authorities to the horrible condition of the stairway leading up Tenth avenue West. The railing is partly off, and some of the steps are gone, and prompt attention may save the city some expense. A TRAVELER.

HARD ORE FOUND

Important Discovery on the Eastern Mesaba Range.

Demolishes Another Theory That Has Been Long Cherished.

Hard ore of a valuable character has been discovered on the Eastern Mesaba range, thus demolishing another of the theories that have been pets of mining men for a long time. The first established theory about iron mining was disrupted when ore was discovered upon the Mesaba range, and ever since mining there has from time to time resulted in overturning the calculations of theorists.

It is said that the United States Steel corporation has found hard ore of excellent quality in 58-15, and Capt. A. H. Bawden and William Rock have made similar discoveries on land immediately adjoining that being developed by the steel trust.

The fee of the property on which Mr. Rock and Capt. Bawden are working is owned by William J. Atwell, of West Superior, and they have an option for a lease on the property. They struck hard ore at a depth of 100 feet, and Capt. Bawden said this morning when asked about the matter that it assays 60 per cent in metallic iron and is low in phosphorus and silica.

It is said that the steel trust has several holes in similar ore on an adjoining property, though nothing has been said about it so far. The steel trust has two drills working and is going to put in three more. The discoveries are about two and a half miles west and south of Biwabik.

If the deposits of merchantable iron ore in this vicinity turn out to be large, the discovery is very important, as it opens up for exploration a large amount of land that has been abandoned as hopeless. The Atwell property has been drilled three or four times by different people and abandoned, and it was left for Capt. Bawden and Mr. Rock to make the discoveries. Mr. Rock is doing the drill work.

The earliest Minnesota explorations were done in this vicinity, and the country was condemned because of the quality of the ore that was found, much of which was titaniferous. Explorations were repeated later from time to time, but they were always resultless until the present time. There is soft ore in the same vicinity.

For a long time it has been held by mining men that explorations in this vicinity were useless, but if the deposits that have been struck by the steel trust and by Messrs. Bawden and Rock prove to be of large quantities, there will be an immediate resumption of work in that section.

The history of the Mesaba range from the beginning up to this discovery has been a succession of surprises to scientists that is exceedingly mystifying. Conditions under which theory said it was impossible to find ore have been proved not to bar its discovery. So many theories have been demolished that practical mining men say that the only condition that is an absolute bar to the discovery of iron ore is its complete absence, a condition that only thorough explorations will develop.

ADDRESS BY JUDGE COLT

Delivered Before American Bar Association at Hot Springs.

Hot Springs, Va., Aug. 27.—At the morning session of the American Bar association today, the annual address was delivered by Hon. LeBaron B. Colt, of Rhode Island, United States judge from the first circuit. Judge Colts subject was "The Reasonableness of The Law." He said in part:

The purpose and end of law are the welfare of society and the happiness of the people. The law should always be viewed from the standpoint of society, and not from the standpoint of the law itself. Society is entitled to have such laws as it desires, and it will obey none other. The law is made for society, and not society for law. The interests of society are primary; the interests of the law secondary. Society is the master, and the law is handmaid. The law must march with society; the constitution must march with the nation.

In our day and generation, we are confronted with the same problem of adapting the old rules of law to the new facts of life; of keeping them in accord with commercial and industrial growth and national development.

Of making the law sufficiently elastic and mutable to meet fully the ever-varying wants of society in the presence of an expanding civilization. Our duty lies in the effort to make it, as far as possible, fit and suitable to new conditions as they present themselves.

Almost every important case covers a group of facts which are different from any other recorded case. Analogies, settled principles, cases nearly similar, may help, but they neither satisfy the mind nor meet the real issue. If it be a constitutional question, there are probably included in that group new facts or circumstances which represent national growth and changed social relations. There are the important things to consider in reaching a proper conclusion, if the law is to be kept in harmony with civilization.

So, too, a case may arise which includes in its group of facts new commercial or industrial conditions. In the determination of such a case, society demands that these new elements receive recognition, that the law may conform to the actual business of life.

It is by grappling with the great living realities that legal conclusions are reached which meet social necessities. Laws should be interpreted and decisions rendered in the spirit of the present, not of the past. Logic and due regard for precedent should be combined with the statesman's breadth of vision. Consistency may be extended too far; it is sometimes a doubtful virtue. Had Jefferson been consistent, we would have lost the Louisiana purchase. Had Lincoln been consistent, slavery would not have been abolished. The obligation we owe is not to the past, but to the present. Ancient civilization looked to the past; Christian civilization looks to the future. The ancent idea of a perfect primitive society is a poetic fiction; the modern idea of a society growing more humane, more just, more reasonable, is a reality.

In this spirit, let us carry on the work which society has largely committed to our hands. Recognizing the usefulness of legal forms and precedents, may we ever hold fast to the great truth that reason is the life and soul of the law. May we rise to the lofty conceptions of the law of nature—harmony, simplicity, uniformity—and may we call to our aid her precepts of universal reason; and, extending our vision to law as the order of the universe, may we draw inspiration from Hooker's sublime words: "Her seat is the bosom of God, her voice the harmony of the world; all things in heaven and earth do her homage, the very least as feeling her care, and the greatest as not exempted from her power."

COMPLAINT FILED.

Papers In Ham vs. Potter Case Filed.

The complaint in the breach of promise action brought by Miss Sara Ham, of Dubuque, Ia., against George A. Potter, of this city, was filed with the clerk of district court yesterday afternoon. Plaintiff asks for $10,000 damages instead of $25,000 as was at first intimated.

The complaint recites that in St. Paul, July 22, 1900, and in Chicago, March 27, 1901, the defendant asked the plaintiff to become his wife, and he has since repudiated those offers and agreements and that plaintiff's health has been shattered and her prospects in life destroyed forever by the defendant's conduct toward her.

Plaintiff alleges the defendant's fortune to be $500,000 in real and personal property.

In the evidence which the plaintiff's attorneys will introduce in their client's cause will be a large number of letters which are alleged to have been written by Mr. Potter to Miss Ham, containing the full list of endearing terms, but none of them bearing a date other than the day of the week.

Goes East Tomorrow.

F. A. Engels of the Engels' Art store, accompanied by Mrs. Engels, leaves today for New York, Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Atlantic City. The trip will be a partly business and partly pleasure one. At the present time the finest wall decorations of the day are being exhibited in the leading New York hotels and Mr. Engels will select some of the newest and most exclusive designs for his trade while in New York. He also expects to meet the most famous artists of France, England and Germany, who visit the American metropolis every year at this season and Duluthians may expect to see some magnificent specimens of their handiwork during the coming season.

PANIC ON TRAIN.

Paris, Aug. 27.—A fire which broke out in a car of the Metropolitan underground railway, at the Hotel De Ville station today, caused a panic among the passengers, who jumped from the train. Several persons were injured, and one woman fractured her skull. The other passengers were less seriously injured.

TOOK GAS ROUTE

Closed Up Room and Opened a Gas Plug.

Her name is Jeanette Kirk, and she is probably 28 years of age. She used gas as the means of bringing about her death.

She was last seen by others in the hotel shortly after midnight, and when she bade them good night she gave no intimation of her suicidal intentions, though it is now apparent that she went direct to her apartments and removed a stopper from a gas pipe, letting an immense quantity of the poisonous vapor into the room.

Miss Kirk had several times remarked that some time her friends would find her dead, but this was always in a joking way and was never taken seriously by those with whom she talked. She did not speak of her probable death last night, however.

She came to Duluth last winter from Chicago and secured the position of housekeeper at the West hotel. Last evening she conversed with Miss Rose Walker, Frank Sarlha and J. J. Greenwall until nearly midnight. She then left them for a short time, returning in about half an hour to bid them good night.

As Mr. Sarlha and Mr. Greenwall were leaving the hotel at 7 o'clock this morning to go to work, they smelled gas in the hallway and traced it to room No. 9, occupied by the housekeeper. They knew that gas was not used in the building, and concluding that something was wrong, entered the room.

The gas was so strong that both men were nearly asphyxiated in trying to get Miss Kirk out. As soon as they found she was dead they opened the windows, stopped the gas pipe up, and summoned the coroner.

Miss Kirk wore the same dress she had on at midnight, and had simply removed her shoes before lying down on the bed to die.

The body was removed to Durkan & Crawford's undertaking rooms, where it is being held pending the arrival of relatives. The dead woman is said to have a sister living in Virginia, Minn., and another in Chicago. Both have been notified, and when they arrive it is possible they may be able to throw some light on the suicide. As it is her friends are absolutely unable to account for it.

Later this afternoon the authorities learned that Jeanette Kirk was a married woman, and that matrimonial infelicity was the probable cause of her suicide. Her husband is now living in Chicago. They separated last winter, and it is claimed that she made the remark recently that "life was not worth living without him."

REMARKABLE PROCLAMATION.

The governor of the great Russian district of Kharkoff, which lies between the Don and the Dnieper, and has a population of nearly 3,000,000, has issued a remarkable proclamation, of which some hint has already been given in the cable dispatches, says the New York Times. After forbidding the inhabitants to carry arms or weapons of any description — "daggers, brass knuckles, sword canes, knives," etc.—without special permission from the police, the proclamation continues:

"Dealers in firearms, ammunition and explosives are required to have a detailed list of such on their books. They may deliver such only to persons authorized by the police to buy them, and must keep a record of the names and addresses of such persons, exactly specifying each sale.

"The proprietors of workshops, factories and other industrial establishments, as also persons holding such establishments on lease or as managers, and their foremen, are required scrupulously to watch that their men are not made the object of incitement to revolt on the part of revolutionary agents, and they are to report such revolutionary agents to the police and aid in their arrest and in the seizure of anything, such as prohibited pamphlets or books, seditious proclamations or secret manuscripts, that may secure their conviction. All persons are prohibited from circulating reports of anticipated public disturbances either orally or in writing, and from organizing without permission of the authorities any kind of collection or lottery.

"Porters and night watchmen of houses are required always to lend active assistance to the police immediately they are called upon to do so. House owners are allowed to engage for these duties only persons whose selection is approved by the police, and they may not dismiss them without informing the latter.

The governor's notification also provides for the strengthening and the rigorous regulation of the service of night watchmen. He concludes with the warning that "anyone breaking these orders will render himself liable to a fine not exceeding 500 rubles ($270) or to three months' imprisonment."

THE GREAT ARCHITECT

CONGRESSIONAL LIBRARY, WASHINGTON, D. C.

HON. I. S. SMITHMEYER, architect of the New Congressional Library of Washington, D. C., ranks first in his profession in this country. This library is considered the finest building in the United States. Mr. Smithmeyer spent sixteen years traveling in Europe working on the plans, and Congress appropriated six million dollars for this building.

In a letter written from Washington and dated July 4th, 1899, to The Peruna Drug M'f'g Co., Columbus, O., Mr. Smithmeyer says the following in regard to Peruna, the world-renowned catarrh cure:

Peruna Drug M'f'g Co., Columbus, Ohio:

Gentlemen—"I endorse the good opinion expressed by Senators and Representatives in Congress regarding the curative qualities of your compound. Those who have used it recommend it as an excellent tonic which is particularly effective as a cure for catarrh."

I. S. SMITHMEYER.

One of the most wonderful events in the history of medicine is the multitude of remarkable endorsements which Peruna is receiving as a catarrh cure from men and women of national importance. During the past two years a large number of people well known from ocean to ocean, have in glowing words of unstinted praise made Peruna the most famous and justly celebrated catarrh remedy in the world. Men high in our national councils, statesmen known the world over, distinguished officers in the army and navy, physicians, lawyers, preachers, and last but not least, an innumerable company of people in the common walks of life, have all joined to place Peruna on the highest pedestal of honor that any remedy has ever reached in the history of medicine.

There is no way to account for this fact except that the medicine merits the praise. The men and women who are saying these things would not say them if they were not true. No one would have the audacity to publish such things unless by the authority of those whose names are used.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

TAKES AN APPEAL

First Street Property Owner Appeals to District Court.

Objects to Paying For Resurfacing In the East End.

Notice of an appeal from the assessment leveled for the resurfacing of the roadway on First street from Sixth avenue east to Twenty-third avenue east, has been filed in district court by Carrie E. Hartley, through her attorney, H. B. Fryberger.

The appellant owns lots 1 to 4, inclusive, in block 14, Banning & Ray's subdivision of Duluth, abutting the roadway to be improved.

The assessment for the improvement was made by the board of public works about July 10 and was confirmed by the city council July 27.

The appellant sets forth the following grounds for her appeal: That the improvement is not necessary; that the property is not benefited in any manner and is not properly chargeable with the assessment; that the city council has no authority or jurisdiction in the premises to levy such assessment upon the appellant's lots; that First street, in front of the lots of the appellant, is at an elevation of more than thirty feet from the level of the lots, the street in front being situated on a bridge aqueduct and because of its height is not accessible from appellant's property; that no resurfacing has been done or can or will be done on the bridge or aqueduct in front of the lots.

Appellant therefore asks that the court vacate the assessment and adjudge it null and void in so far as it affects the property described.

A SHAMEFUL JOKE.

"The Doc," as everybody called him, was one of the most successful oculists in the West, and one of the most irrepressible jokers. He made some almost fabulous fees by restoring the vision of very wealthy men, but he never became wealthy himself, because his first thought, after obtaining any considerable sum of money, was how to spend it in the perpetration of some stupendous joke, says the Brooklyn Eagle.

When President Hayes and his party were "swinging round the circle" (in 1879, I think it was), The Doc received a very large fee for a successful operation on a blind millionaire, and forthwith gathered a number of "good fellows" to enjoy a lark with him. The services of a clever "make up" artist were engaged and the members of the party were transformed into pretty good imitations of President Hayes and his party. Then The Doc hired a special train to take him and his jokers over a little railroad which ran through an agricultural country with no large cities, but plenty of small towns and villages along the line. Telegrams were sent to the mayors and postmasters of these places, announcing that the president had suddenly changed his plans and was coming over that route that day.

It is needless to say that this glad news spread rapidly and that great crowds were awaiting the train at each station. At every such point the train was stopped and the impersonators of President Hayes, Secretary Sherman and other national figures made speeches from the rear platform. And such speeches! At first they were sober and serious enough, though opposed to everything that the administration really favored, but as the day sped and more and more of The Doc's drinkables vanished the party of fake notables became more and more hilarious. Fancy, for instance, President Hayes, during whose administration it was said that water flowed like wine at the White House dinners—fancy him two-thirds tipsy and swinging a champagne bottle above his head while delivering some such speech as this:

"Fellow citizens: They tell you I'm a tee-totaler. Don't you believe it. I'm one o' the boys from way back, and don't you furgit it! Here's to you! May you all live long and go to bed drunk every night! Whoopee! Let 'er go, Gallagher!"

Or words to that effect.

Nearly all day they kept this sort of thing up, and there are people out there now who sit around the groceries and grogeries telling of the time they "seen President Hayes an' the hull dum gover'ment—an' a mighty tough lot they was, too."

And The Doc he paid the freight.

GETS NEW OFFICE

Northern Pacific's New Superintendent Will Have More Room.

Rate of $16 to Chicago and Return Goes In.

When E. C. Blanchard takes his seat as superintendent of the Northern Pacific division, running into Duluth next week, he will have nice new offices, if the work now going on can be pushed rapidly enough.

The large force in the superintendent's office has been crowded in with dispatchers and telegraph instruments, and the whole force has been in one large room in the east wing of the second floor of the Union Station building for years.

The superintendent's offices and the offices of the chief clerk, stenographers and other employes of that department are being built now on the second floor in the west wing of the building, the large bare rooms which have been used for the accommodation of draftsmen and others, while most of it was idle, is being shaped into very pretty office rooms for the officials and employes.

It was expected that the work would be done by the first of the month, but it is doubtful now if it can be done.

Cheap Chicago Rate.

The Omaha road has received a notice to sell a $16 round trip to Chicago, which is just the cost of the round trip from St. Paul under the rate made in the first cut by the Wisconsin Central road a few weeks ago, when it announced an $8 rate each way, and which is the standard rate now between the points. The longevity of this rate on the Omaha is doubtful, and will probably be taken out of commission and killed after the New York rate war is off.

PROMINENT FOREIGNERS

Germans Here Looking Over the American Transportation Systems.

William Macco, a member of the Prussian parliament, and a prominent and influential citizen of Siegen, Prussia, accompanied by his son, Albrecht Macco, of Berlin, and Carl Dresler, of Treuzthal, are in the city. They are here in the interests of the German government looking into improved methods of transportation and rapid handling of bulky and voluminous freight.

They called at the offices of the steel corporation this morning with letters and asked regarding a trip over the two ranges. They have not decided when they will make the trip, but it will probably be tomorrow.

President Olcott of the Missabe road was out of the city and has his private car on the ranges, not expecting to return till tomorrow evening, so if they strat tomorrow morning, they will probably use the regular train.

"We are in Duluth and Superior to see the wonderful docks said to exist here," said the elder Macco. "We will visit the coal docks, the grain elevators and the ore docks. The ore transportation has become a wonderful science in this country, and it has reached its perfection in shipping here.

"We will also make a trip over the iron country and go to both the iron fields back of Duluth. Our route has not yet been decided upon. But we will probably go tomorrow over both sections and sped several days there. This is a trip of inspection, ad while it is not an official investigation, the results of our observations will be given to the German public."

While the trip is especially for the purpose of receiving impressions of the way coal and wheat and iron ore are handled, the elder Maco is deeply interesting in mining afairs, and has some interests in European iron mines.

The docks at Two Harbors, the West End, Allouez Bay, and the large coal docks will be looked over before the visitors leave, and the manner in which ore and the other commodities are handled in loading, will be particularly inspected.

PRINCE TUAN AT PEKIN.

Shanghai, Aug. 27.—Chinese reports from Pekin assert that the banished Prince Tuan ins there incognito, and that he has had several secret interviews with the dowager empress while the emperor was asleep. It is further reported that the literary chancellors who are being sent to all the provinces are all reactionaries, with orders to report what prospect there is of inciting the people against foreigners and foreign reforms.

LUMBERMEN ARE COMING

Large Party Due on the North West Next Trip.

Duluth will receive the visit of a party of prominent retail lumbermen and executive officials of the R. H. Jenks Lumber company, of Cleveland and Detroit.

Word has been received here by Northern Passenger Agent L. D. Kitchell of the Great Northern road that the Northern Steamship company will have eighty-five rooms filled with the lumberman, all members of or employed by the firm, on the trip up here next week from Buffalo.

The party will board the North West at Detroit and make the trip up here, in something of the form of an outing. They will return on the same boat, the same night, spending what time there is looking over Duluth by gaslight.

It nas been suggested that the Commercial club make some arrangements to take the visitors in charge, and a communication to that effect will probably be sent Secretary Eva.

The party will probably number about 150 people.

The North West made a fast trip to Houghton Tuesday night, and arrived two hours ahead of time at that port at noon Wednesday. Notwithstanding the bout drifted several miles in the canal to keep from getting too far ahead. When Houghton was reached there was a long wait and the whole passenger list crowded off on the docks and around the town.

IS KILLED AT HUDSON

John F. Ottinger of Duluth Loses Life—No Particulars Received.

John F. Ottinger, a Duluth boy, was killed at Hudson, Wis., last night.

Particulars of the accident could not be obtained today, further than he was struck by a train and died almost instantly.

He was twenty years old and a son of Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Ottinger of 405 East Seventh street. He was visiting relatives at Hudson during his vacation.

His father and sister, Miss Anna Ottinger left for Hudson today and the remains will be brought here either this evening or tomorrow morning.

THE HIBBING EXCURSION

Inquiries have been pouring in to Secretary Eva of the Commercial club relative to the club excursion to Hibbing tomorrow. The special train run by the club will leave the union depot at 8 o'clock sharp and returning will leave Hibbing at 10 o'clock tomorrow evening. Tickets will be on sale this afternoon and evening, at $2.00 for the round trip, with Secretary Eva, and can be purchased at the union depot tomorrow morning.

The Third Regiment band has been engaged to lead the Duluth procession in the festivities and a carload of Two Harbors people will arrive on a special train early tomorrow morning to join the Duluth excursion over the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road. The Two Harbors and Hibbing ball teams will have a game tomorrow afternoon and some interesting athletic sport is promised before the excursion train returns.

The excursion, though run under the auspices of the Commercial club offers the opportunity of a low rate fare to anybody and everybody who wishes to go.

TAX RATE TO BE LOWERED

Mayor Hugo Says City Will Cut It Mill and Half.

Mayor Hugo says the tax rate for city purposes this year will be lowered about one and a half mills.

That means a levy at the rate of 15.5 mills, which is the lowest rate for city purposes since 1899.

Despite the lowering of the rate more money will be needed for current municipal expenses, but this will have to be taken from the other sources of revenue, according to the city officers, for it is the general desire to hold down the amount to be raised by taxation.

NERVE BEAT GUN PLAY.

Pluck Won When Weapons Were Real Thing.

Most persons in the East seem to think the only way a stranger can get along in the small towns and boom camps of the west is to make a gun play, said Elmer D. Frank, who has seen nearly all phases of life in the restless section west of the Missouri river, according to the New York Press. "I believe eastern magazine writers, who take a cursory survey of the country, are responsible for this false impression. The real passport among the old-time Westerners was pluck, wnether it was backed up by a six-shooter or not. Of course, a good game of bluff went a long way, but the time came when a man had to make good and a coward, even if he had a Gatling gun, might as well 'vamoose the ranch.'

"In the early nineties I was interested in a mining prospect up near the head of Wood river. My partners and I decided to send a Scotch miner named Graham to do the assessment work on the claims. Graham took his wife along and built a cabin a few hundred feet below timber line and performed the necessary assessment work single-handed. He was up there several months and patronized a store in Meeteetse, about thirty miles away. He received good wages and an impie allowance for supplies, but he was improvident and soon ran into debt. He received several duns from Horr, Thomas & Butler, three old-timers who ran the combination grocery and saloon in Meeteetse, but paid no attention to the demands.

"When his bill ran up to $50 he received a call from all three members of the firm. They had no idea they would be able to collect the account, but they were determined to 'take it out of his hide.' They did. Graham was about as badly battered as a man could be and still hold together. More than that, he and his wife spent a night of terror inside their cabin. The enraged creditors, not satisfied with the drubbing they had given the delinquent, 'shot up the house' from the outside. Graham and his wife overturned their bed and utilized it as a barricade. very minute or two one of their tormentors would appear at a window and shoot wildly into the room. About dawn they rode away down the mountain.

"Graham came to me at my ranch in the Big Horn Basin and told his troubles. One of my partners in the mining venture was there when he arrived.

"'Didn't you fight back, Graham!' my partner asked.

"'Hoot, aye, what could I do?' exclaimed Graham, helplessly. "They knocked me down ad broke my ribs. When I got oop an' looked around, there was me whiskers lyin' in the mood—

"'Well, that's enough,' interrupted my partner. 'If that's all the nerve you have we'll send somebody else to work the claims.'

"We decided to go up to Meeteetse and settle with the men who had beaten Graham, and afterward to pay our bill. But when the time came my partner could not go, and I had to make the trip alone. So one morning I arrived in Meeteetse and registered my name boldly on a little dog-eared cash book in the only hotel in the place. Horr, Thomas and Butler must have been expecting me, for I barely had gone outside to look at the village from the front of the hotel when I received a slap on the shoulder that nearly knocked me down. I turned and saw a rawboned giant more than six feet tall grinning down at me. It was Horr. He had a habit of smiling at people even when he expected to shoot the next moment.

"'Hello, thar!' he bawled. 'Ain't yore name Frank?'

"'Yes,' I replied.

"'Well, my name's Horr, an' I've been hatin' you worse'n—for two months.'

"'Same right back at you, Horr,' I retorted; 'only I've been hating you only about two weeks—ever since you beat up Graham.'

"'Haw-haw!' laughed Horr. 'New we understand one another we kin go over an' talk it out with the boys.'

"I wasn't particularly anxious to go over to his establishment, for I knew it meant a fight against big odds, but I wasn't in a position to refuse. When we reached the saloon we found Thomas and Butler and about a dozen other men there. Horr's introduction was brief and to the point.

"'Boy's yere's Frank, an' I don't 'low as we need take no back talk from him.'

"Two others evidently agreed with him, but they did not care to push the matter to an issue immediately. It was necessary to make a little investigation, and it was personally conducted by Horr. While a round of drinks were being served he came up to me and 'tapped' me for weapons. He found a .32 Smith & Wesson in my right hip pocket. A trusty .44 Colt's in my belt in front he overlooked. He took out the .32, looked it over contemptuously and remarked:

"'Whatever would you do with that popgun?'

"'I use that to kill prairie dogs,' I replied.

"'About all it's good for,' he commented, but I noticed that he didn't return the gun to me.

"For a few minutes everything was as pleasant as could be. Horr and his partners grew quite jovial over their liquor and appeared to take quite a fancy t ome. In fact, Horr voiced the friendly sentiment. He turned to me and with a slap on the back bellowed forth:

"'Frank, you ——, I loke you.'

He uttered the offensive term in the most genial manner and smild as he spoke, but I knew his purpose, and I saw it was up to me to 'make good' then and there.

"'Horr,' I said, drawing away from his friendly embrace, 'I have a boy at home. When I sent him to school I told him never to permit any one to apply that term to him without fighting till he dropped. I won't give him any orders I won't carry out myself. You will apologize, or we'll have it out right here.'

"The crowd was with me in this, and Thomas was the spokesman.

"'Frank shore is right,' he interposed. 'You didn't have no call to use no sech language. You'd better take it back.'

"'I'll right,' said Horr, with the expansive smile still on his face. 'I'll take it back; but looky yere,' he added, turning to me, 'I want you to onderstand that I don't take it back because I think you're a better man than what I be.'

"That made matters just as bad as they were before. It was worse than no apology, and it was plainly Horr's trick to come to a test of physical force. I could feel my old .44 still at my belt, where I could rip it out in a twinkling, and was certain I could surprise the big fellow.

"'That may be as you say, Horr,' I returned. 'But I want you to know that if you hadn't apologized you would have gone right over the transom of that door.'

"Horr looked at me, then at the transome and took a final glance over his ponderous frame.

"'It strikes me,' he said, with another of his deep guffaws, 'that would be a mighty big ondertakin'.'

"It was the crucial moment. I backed up to the door and raised my right hand above my head until the tips of my fingers touched the transom. Then I went up to him and shook my first under his nose.

"'Horr,' I said deliberately as my anger would permit, 'that transom isn't an inch higher than I had figured on.'

"For a moment it looked as though I would have to carry out my threat. But Butler spoke up from behind the bar.

"'Hold on, thar, boys!' he shouted. 'Say, Horr, you ain't got Graham to deal with this trip. Let's call the whole deal off an' tap a fresh keg.'

"And we did. Our ill-feeling soon was forgotten, and an hour or so later Horr came up and shook hands.

"'Say, I want to know how you was goin' to put me over the transtom,' he asked, with the same old smile.

"'I would have tapped you over the head with the butt of this and thrown you out.' And I showed him the .44 he had overlooked.

"'I guess mebbe you would,' he commented. 'But, say, the next time you come out Meeteetse way, let us know an' we'll git a brass band to meet you. You're our kind.'"

BIXBY ASKS INVESTIGATION OF INDIAN TERRITORY AFFAIRS

The Dawes Commission Takes Exception to Reports of Irregularities In Its Work and Ask a Full and Thorough Overhauling.

Washington, Aug. 27.—Acting Secretary Hitchcock of the interior department today announced his intention of having a thorough investigation made into irregularities in Indian territory by some one not connected with the department. This announcement was made in response to a request from the Dawes commission as follows:

"Muskogee, I. T., Aug. 26.—To Secretary of Interior, Washington, D. C.—The widespread and newspaper criticisms of a character involving the integrity of our work and our fidelity to duty impels us to request that an immediate and searching investigation be instituted and that the president be informed of this desire. Work unparalleled in the history of civilization, the result of years of unremitting toil, is threatened by fanatical representatives and questionable journalism. We urge that there be assigned to the work of investigation, one whose reputation for honesty, ability and fearlessness is well established and whose findings will be universally accepted.

"TAMS BIXBY.
"T. B. NEEDLES, Commissioners."

The secretary replied to the telegram saying that as soon as the proper man could be secured he would be sent to the territory with instructions to make a complete and impartial inquiry into conditions there.

A TRAIN BLOWN UP BY DYNAMITE

Sofia, Aug. 27.—The east-bound daily express from Budapest to Constantinople was blown up near Skuleli Burgas, about twenty-five miles south of Adrianople, early today. Seven persons were killed and fifteen injured. Dynamite bombs were used. Every car was smashed. Apparently the outrage was the work of revolutionists who traveled on the train.

Constantinople, Aug. 27.—The bomb which wrecked the train near Kuleliburg, was thrown by a third-class passenger who was in the buffet car. Only two cars were destroyed. The dead include two Mussulman women, two children and three trainmen. The continued absence of news from the interior of Macedonia, where there is widespread interruption of telegraphic communication is causing great uneasiness to the Turkish officials here and much unrest among the public.

BOY RESCUED FROM FRENCH BARK

New York, Aug. 27.—The American boy who tried to escape from the French bark Marechal De Gontaut yesterday alleging that he had been "shanghaied" was taken from the vessel early this morning by collector of the Port Stranahan who had gone out to sea on the revenue cutter Gresham to rescue the boy. The boy is named Hugh Thompson, is sixteen-years-old and is a son of a sailor. After he had been taken in charge by the revenue officers young Thompson said he had not been forcibly taken to the boat but had gone with the consent of his father. He said, however, that he thought he was to ship on a coaster and when he found that the Marechal De Gontaut was bound for Yokohama and that he would be absent for many months he wanted to return to his home.

HUNTING A BOARDING HOUSE

"Of evenings for the past week or so," said the man with the Flor de Chinktown smoke, according to the Washington Post, "my wife and I have been jamming around hunting for a new boarding house. In fact, my wife has been putting in most of her time at the job—days as well as evenings. The process is something like this:

"My wife starts out bright and early every morning, just as soon as she gets me off to the office, with a list of advertising boarding houses with her. She makes the rounds of a whole lot of them, and out of the whole lot she selects two or three for me to look over. Then in the evening, after I've had my regular quota of after dinner smokes, I go out with her, take a peek at the places she's picked out for me to look at, and knock them all without any hesitation as soon as we emerge from them. This tends to make her feel so cheerful over the situation, I see.

"So you think you're going to stuff me away in a dinky little dark three-story back room like that, hey?' I say to her as we come down the front steps of the boarding house that she's picked out for me to look at, or something like that. 'It won't do,' I tell her. 'I knock it—listen to me knock it. It's much punk. The idea—the very idea—of your expecting me to live in such a place!' and so on.

"These remarks of mine are, of course, in vast contrast to the hot air which I pass out to the landladies just before taking leave of them. Of course, I have to lie gaudily and amply to the landladies. I always tell 'em that 'We'll be back tomorrow evening,' or 'We have just one other place to look at, but we'll probably take your rooms,' or 'I like this first rate, but I'll want 24 hours to think it over,' and so on. That enables us to get out in fair order, yes, and then the knocks that I get off when we get away from the house come all the easier.

"My wife always expostulates with me for not telling the landladies, right out that we don't like the rooms, and that, therefore, we're not going to return to look at them again, but I tell her that that sort of thing requires a whole lot of nerve—more nerve than I've got to throw away on these hot nights.

"But last evening it was different. We went against a landlady of a house that my wife hadn't previously visited. The rooms she showed us were slights—the outfit looked inside like a boarding house for a construction gang or an outfit of longshoremen, although the exterior of the plant put up a deceiving bluff.

"I made as hasty a getaway from that place as I could, or easayed to, sayi g to the hatchet-faced landlady:

"'Er—uh—well, we'll see—there's another place a little ways from here that we have in mind, but—er—uh—' and the rest of the customary getaway formula.

"However, this time I failed to get by with it. The landlady was one of those skeptical persons.

"'Well,' she said, 'I'd like t' know positive what you're a-goin' t' do, 'deed I would, for there's a other party what's thinkin' o' takin' th' room you looked at—an' I'd like t' know positive, 'deed I would.'

"I scratched my chin and pretended to be engaged in a full long line of thinks as to whether I'd take a room that I wouldn't live in if somebody paid me $100 a week to do it.

"'Well,' I began. 'I'll let you kn w—er—uh—lemme see—would tomorrow morning before 9 o'clock, say, be all right?'

"'Now, you jes' know that you're not a-comin' back no more,' the landlady said to me.

"'That's right,' I said, as I edged my wife down the stairs. Of course I know it. I haven't got the remotest intention of coming back. I haven't had from the beginning. I've only been shoveling South breeze at you—I wouldn't live here if you gave me the whole row. Of course I am not coming back. Sure thing. Sure —' and then my wife and I were out of the door.

"'Well, I did it right that time, didn't I?' I said to my wife. 'Didn't make any fake promises, but just told her right, didn't I?'

"'I think you were perfectly, wantonly brutal, 'my wife replied, and that was the signal for me to pipe down.

"Women are infernally unreasonable when they want to be."

FILES GONE OVER

Involved Great Amount of Labor—First St. Louis County Case.

The deputies in the office of J. P. Johnson, clerk of the district court, have just completed an important work that has taken up their attention ever since the calendar was completed in the June term of court, that of going through and rearranging the complete files of the office.

When the work was commenced there seemed work enough ahead of the deputies to keep them at the files the rest of the year, but practice makes perfect, and the work has been done thoroughly and with dispatch. Clerk of Court Johnson says that the files were never in better condition than at the present time. Every case filed since district court was established in this district was gone through, lost papers were found, and some that had been mixed up with others through a mistake by somebody years ago were again put in their proper order.

During the time that has elapsed since the deputies began their work on the files they have gone over the papers in 18,699 cases, which means that there have been that many actions brought in the district court of this county. The number of papers in the cases have varied from a very few to almost an armful, some of which are worn from handling and getting yellow from age. Had the deputies of the office the time, they might have found many interesting things in connection with many of the old cases, but their interest has been in getting through with the files as soon as possible and before the September term of district court began.

It is a matter of some interest to the present incumbent of the office to note that very few if any mistakes in filing were found to have taken place in recent years. Where the papers have been filed wrong, and in some cases lost to interested parties for years, it has been done years ago, when not so much care was exercised by the court officers. The present system for filing and caring for legal papers practically precludes any mistakes or the loss of documents. Careful checking is done where papers are removed from the files, and a record is kept of every such paper, when removed, by whom and when returned. None but the clerk and his deputies are permitted to handle the files in the vault, and by this means there is very little if any opportunity for the papers to become misplaced.

The first case that was entered in district court of this county was July 20, 1859. At that time this was the first judicial district of Minnesota, instead of the eleventh district. At that date the present court house did not exist. On the site and for probably a mile in three directions from it there was not even a clearing and only a few scattered homes between it and what is now the business portion of Duluth.

The first sessions of district court here were held in an old house on Minnesota Point, one which the pioneer residents of Duluth remeinber well. S. I. R. McMillan was the first judge, and J. B. Culver was the first clerk of district court. When the first cases were tried, Andrew J. Ellis was sheriff for St. Louis county. The old papers on file in district court show that during the early years of the establishment of the court, the name of the city was spelled Du Luth, instead of Duluth, as at the present time.

The first case tried in district court here, in 1859, was the action brought by Daniel S. Cash and James H. Kelly against Benjamin G. Armstrong, for a judgment on an alleged contract for the sale of Indian lands, which the defendant secured from the Indians. All of the parties in the action are well known to the old settlers here. Daniel S. Cash was the father of D. G. Cash. Benjamin G. Armstrong followed the painting trade. Deputy Clerk of District Court Alexander Hamilton remembers the defendant very well, in fact he says that Armstrong taught him to play his first game of cribbage way back in 1862.

The records show that the plaintiffs secured a judgment for $10,000, the full amount asked and the writ of attachment afterward issued to secure the judgment shows that Duluth lands were very cheap in 1859. The appraiser's value for the west half of the south-west quarter of section 27-50-14 was but $1200, while lot 5, in section 27, and lot 3, in section 24, were appraised worth 10 cents an acre.

The first case tried in district court here was brought from La Pointe county, Wis., and all writing in connection with the case was done with pen and ink. It was not until many years after the establishment of the court that the first typewritten copy began to appear.

SUGAR BEET MAN HERE

Ten Thousand Acres of Beets Would Bring a Plant Here.

Joseph E. Kohn of Bay City, Mich., superintendent of the Oswasa Sugar company which has completed the construction of a large sugar refinery at Owasa, Mich., was in the city yesterday afternoon and held conference with Secretary Eva of the Commercial club relative to the project of encouraging the beet sugar industry in this part of the country.

Mr. Kohn said that if his company could be guaranteed ten thousand acres of sugar beets raised in this section, it would build a refinery in Duluth. He believes the land in this section fully adapted to the raising of beets and says that such crops would be very profitable to the farmers.

A meeting of the farmers interested in the project will be called at the Commercial club rooms in the near future and an effort will be made to secure the guarantee of ten thousand acres devoted to the cultivation of beets.

Duluth's White Stockings arrived from Winnipeg this morning and will wind up the season with ten games at Athletic Park.

While it is impossible to finish better than fourth and improbable that the team will drop lower than that, there will be no let up in the stride.

If possible the Sox will take all ten games—six from Superior and four from Grand Forks—but even that would not pull them out of fourth place.

The players seem to be in good condition and are confident of winning most of the games from now on. They split even on the trip and would have won a majority of the games with a little better umpiring at Crookston.

This afternoon, weather permitting, Duluth and Superior will begin the old struggle. Gehring and Morris are slated to do the pitching. Superior has been playing much faster ball of late than when last seen here and it is probable that the White Sox will have all the game they want during the series.

Every game except the Sunday games will be played at Athletic Park and on Sunday the two teams will meet across the bay.

Grand Forks took two games from Fargo yesterday, putting the Tigers in a more advantageous position in the fight for second place. In the first game both Sessions and Lynch pitched fine ball. The score:

Grand Forks	0 1 0 1 0 5 0 0 0 0—6	5	3

In the second game "Ike" Slette was given perfect support and held Fargo down to two hits. The score:

Grand Forks	1 0 0 1 0 1 4 0 0 0—6	8	0

Pitchers—Foulks and Slette.

Crookston defeated Superior again yesterday in an eleven inning game. Edwards hit the ball over the fence in the final round scoring Breyette. Mike Houle pitched fairly good ball for Superior, while Freeman was hit hard, but not in bunches. The score:

		R.	H.	E.
Superior	0 0 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 0—4	8	1

St. Paul and Minneapolis are said to be after Perry Sessions, of Grand Forks, for next season.

Crookston still has the nerve to claim the two exhibition games McLaughlin won from Duluth, and the papers of that city figure them in the winning column.

The attendance at Crookston is disheartening, despite the fact that the management there has turned out a good fast team.

THE CALENDAR FOR SEPTEMBER

Contains 116 Civil Cases, of Which 105 Are New —Criminal Calendar.

The calendar for the September term of district court is now in the hands of the printer. There are 116 civil cases listed, 105 of which are new cases. Of these twenty-four are court cases and the rest are for jury trial.

The criminal calendar will be an unusually large one. There are now some forty-five persons who have been committed to the county jail to await the action of the grand jury and enough others have been bound over from the range courts and admitted to bail to bring the total of those who will have grand jury investigation up to sixty.

C. H. Richards Says It Is Progressing Rapidly.

C. H. Richards of Minneapolis, is a member of the Richards-Lundeen contracting firm, was a business caller in the city yesterday. The firm has the contract for building this summer the 125-mile extension of the Soo line north from Glenwood, Minn., and Mr. Richards says that the work is progressing satisfactorily.

The new line is nearly completed between Glenwood and Detroit and attention will be turned shortly to that part of the projected line north of Detroit. Several thousand men are now engaged on the work and hundreds of teams. During the early part of the season the contractors had difficulty in getting enough men, but now they are getting all the labor they desire from Fargo and Western points where the men have been working in the harvest fields.

NOBLE ACT

Brings $5,000 Reward to Sergeant Klein.

Bethlehem, Pa., Aug. 27.—Daniel Keim, of Easton, a sergeant in the Massachusetts colored volunteer regiment during the civil war, has received a check for $5000, willed him by a Michigander, Jonathan Moore, who died Sunday. Mr. Moore was a lieutenant in a Michigan regiment, and had a leg shot off at the recapture of Fort Sumter. Keim found him bleeding to death and carried him to the rear while under a fierce fire from the fort.

WISCONSIN WITHDRAWS.

St. Paul, Aug. 27.—Word was received by Adjt. Gen. Libbey that the Wisconsin National Guard would not be represented by a team in the interstate rifle contest for the Washburn trophy, to be held at Camp Lakeview, on Sept. 21. This leaves teams from Minnesota, Illinois and Iowa as competitors for the trophy. It is said that the poor showing made at Camp Douglas by the Wisconsin guardsmen was the determining cause in the decision not to send a team.

THE STAGE

"An American Hobo" packed the Lyceum last evening and in the afternoon also had a large audience. The people apparently want cheap priced plays. Apparently they like them, too, for the audience went into ecstacies over the performance. This evening "Over Niagara Falls" will be presented and Saturday afternoon and evening Lincoln J. Carter's "Down Mobile" will be given.

"The Black Flag" concluded its run at the Metropolitan with two performances yesterday and both gave much satisfaction to large audiences. Tonight the comedy "Pink Dominoes" will be given and will hold the boards for the balance of the week. It is said to be a very clever and entertaining comedy that will make much laughter and in all probability be one of the most popular things the company has presented.

CAUGHT IN MID-AIR

Falls From Scaffold and Is Caught By His Brother.

New York, Aug. 27.—Five stories above the street, George Brunner, leaning from an open window, caught his brother, Edward, who had fallen from a scaffold, and saved him from being dashed to death on the pavement far below. Another man, William Carpenter, who dropped from the same scaffold, was killed by the fall.

The accident happened at public school No. 51. A scaffold had been fastened above the fifth floor of the building over the courtyard and about ninety feet from the street. Carpenter and Edward Brunner stepped on it from the fifth story window to do some painting. George Brunner was standing at the window watching them.

As Edward Brunner stepped across it the scaffold swayed as if the rope had slipped. Brunner walked to the end where Carpenter was to see what was the matter, and George Brunner remained at the window. Just as Edward Brunner reached Carpenter the scaffold fell towards the street and Carpenter was dropped headlong to the courtyard and instantly killed.

Edward Brunner fell past the window where his brother was standing and George had the presence of mind to throw one arm out and grasp his brother. He released his hold on the window and seized the rope and with a great effort managed to wind his legs about it. His brother also succeeded in doing the same thing, and both of them then slid safely to the courtyard.

DEVOURED BY WILD BEASTS

Mankato Woman Supposed to Have Starved to Death.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 27.—Mrs. Edith White, driven from her home in Mankato, Minn., by an estrangement, wandered northward and perished of starvation in the heart of the trackless Copper river valley. This is the story of her diary found two years later.

The record of the woman's life is complete almost until the day hunger and fear accomplished her end. Her body undoubtedly was devoured by wild beasts, and only the sheets of her diary were found.

In a letter written to the Post-Intelligencer, dated Central Alaska, July, 29, 1902, William Shafer, a petty officer in the employ of the government signal corps, related the story of the find in one of the wildest portions of the Copper river country. Shafer secured the letters and the diary tending to show that the writer perished from cold and hunger under circumstances most pitiable.

The woman is believed to have a husband and daughter residing at Mankato, from which place she evidently departed after some trouble with her family. While trying to make her way unaccompanied to an interior camp in the Copper river country, Mrs. White says she was lost in the mountains for days. She wandered through the canyons of the locality in a vain endeavor to find some human habitation. Twice she had narrow escapes from wild beasts.

Once she escaped death at the hands of a vicious mountain lion by wading into a small lake up to her chin. For two hours she stood in the icy water, while the ravenous beast crouched on the edge of the lake, snarling and licking his vicious chops. Finally the cat got tired of waiting and slunk away in a canyon. More dead than alive, Mrs. White emerged from the water and lay down exhausted. But the desire to let her family in her old home know that she was penitent for a wrong which she had committed and which, it is inferred, drove her from her once happy family, was strong, and with her remaining energy she scribbled with an indelible pencil the letters and diary which recorded her wanderings and sufferings up to the time that hunger deprived her of strength to write.

Shafer took possession of these letters and diary and also made a diligent search for the body. This he did not find, however, and returned to camp. Shafer forwarded copies of the letters and the diary to the address given that in this manner White might be informed of his wife's death.

SKELETONS ON ROOF TOP

Superstitious Chicago Folk Greatly Worried Over Unusual Situation.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—"Oh! Did you see that skeleton walking across the roof?" screamed a woman who sat in a window in a flat at Ogden avenue and Van Buren street. She was looking out over an adjoining building. Her friends rushed to the window. A group of skeletons was dimly visible in the darkness.

The roof has been a source of neighborhood annoyance for a long time. Stories of sleepless nights, during which the bony inhabitants of the roof of terror have held high carnival, are current among those who reside in the vicinity.

Complaints have poured in to the police from those who are compelled by reason of their location to view the ghastly spectacle, daily, asking that the proprietors be made to move the diverse collection of human skeletons which are kept upon the roof to bleach out in the sun. The authorities can find no law to interfere with the enterprise, it being on a scientific basis. This firm buys bodies from medical colleges and other sources and after cleaning the bones puts them upon the roof to bleach in the sun.

The building is low, and those living in flats across the street have for a view from their parlor windows groups of skeletons in grotesque positions.

Skulls are usually scattered about the roof, where ribs and other bones are strewn in rows. A few nights ago some one succeeded in reaching the roof, and made away with twenty-eight skulls. It is not known whether the object was to clear the place of the noxious white bones or to turn them into money, as their value would average $8 apiece.

DAWES COMMISSION

Accused of Collusion With Land Companies.

Washington, Aug. 27.—If the charges affecting the Dawes commission are true, a remarkable state of things has existed in the territory. Tams Bixby is alleged to be an official of the Canadian Valley Trust company. The charges are to the effect that this trust company and the Dawes commission had offices in the same building, and that the commission, after a while, moved from the first floor to the second floor, and the trust company occupied the former quarters of the commission.

Indians who had come to know of the commission as having offices on the first floor walked unwittingly into the offices of the trust company. Clerks were on hand to question the Indian visitor about his business. He, supposing one of the clerks or officers of the commission was talking to him, promptly divulged his errand. Generally it was something regarding the leasing of his land.

The obliging clerks were quick to make out the proper paper, which the ignorant Indian promptly signed.

It was no difficult thing to secure his signature to a lease. Witnesses were on hand to bind the instrument as the red man affixed his cross, and then the transaction was complete. It is claimed that trust companies galore have been operating in Indian territory along improper lines, and that the report of the special agent, M. S. Brosius, by no means included the names of all the officials of the Dawes commission who are identified with these companies.

REPLY TO CRITICS

Pine Lands More Suitable For Cultivation Than Reforestration.

Minneapolis, Aug. 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—At yesterday's session of the American Forestry association B. F. Nelson, a prominent lumberman of the Northwest, spoke before the association on "A Lumberman's Idea of Reforestration." He said, in part:

"The lumbermen of today are often bitterly denounced as the vandals of the forest. They are charged with the ruthless destruction of virgin timber at the expense of future generations. They have had cursings heaped upon their heads by persons who charge them with making money by methods which are without economic or moral excuse.

"It is needless to say that the lumbermen resent such criticism as they do not feel that their vocation is without moral excuse or reason. There has been abundant excuse for the destruction of the forests. The forest was the natural enemy of our forefathers, and without its destruction our land could not have been settled and advanced as it is today. The forests had to be sacrificed that the great prairies might be won. While the forests have been converted into lumber, which is indespensable to our wellbeing, great areas of denuded timber lands have become available for the tilling of the soil.

"The lumbermen are as willing as most persons to deplore the ravaging of the forest, but they do not believe themselves any more responsible for it than the conditions of society which demand it. They are very naturally in favor of reforestration where the same is practicable, because of the many beneficent influences accruing therefrom, in the effect of forests on the flow of streams, on winds and temperature and on the general prosperity and welfare of the nation.

"We believe that the greater part of the lands from which the timber has been removed in the Northern pine belt is much more valuable and suitable for cultivation than for reforestration. The growth of timber is so slow that the present generation cannot be expected to plant timber lands for the financial benefits which they might derive therefrom. This is especially true when the profits likely to be obtained from their lands, after a period of sixty or eighty years, will be largely reduced by the taxes which they will have paid during that time, and of the uncertain results in the end due to fires and other enemies of the forest."

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson addressed a highly interested audience of foresters last night, after an introduction by President C. M. Loring. While his speech was mainly forestry, he also devoted a few minutes to the work done by the department along other lines. He said:

"We have now some 300 young men who are devoting their time exclusively to the study of forestry. The appropriation given us by congress have been sufficient to do a great deal of good, but not as much as could be desired.

"We are sending out through congressmen a large number of trees from the old Arlington estate, near Washington. This year we put out 20,000 next year we hope to have 250,000 to give away to the farmers. The figures relating to the lumber industries of this country are astounding. We use 35,000,000,000 feet of lumber every year for building; 3,000,000,000 feet of timber, 27,000,000 railroad ties, 21,000,000 fence posts and 1,000,000 telegraph poles. Our lumber interests are worth $6,000,000 a year. The wood that farmers cut on their wood lots is estimated as being worth $100,000,000, and the wood pulp used in manufacturing paper is worth $10,000,000.

"I am sorry to say it, but it is a fact, that unless some thing is done right away, there will be very few tracts of timber left in the country within fifteen years. It may be a little longer, but not much. The only remedy lies in educating the farmer up to the necessity of planting trees, and in the government also planting. The department is now engaged in teaching this."

Other speeches were made by Dr. Roth, of the University of Michigan, Professor Perno, of Cornell university; Professor S. B. Green, of the University of Minnesota, and Dean Liggett, of the agricultural college.

The convention adjourned sine die.

FALL TERM

Will begin at the Duluth Business University, for day and evening classes on Monday, Sept. 7. College office open from 8 a. m. until 8 p. m. each week day until the opening. All intending to enroll for this opening are requested to call and make final arrangements. Location, 105-7 West Superior street.

A CAMPAIGN FOR MACARONI

Growers of North Dakota Will Try to Popularize the Wheat.

The grain growers of North Dakota who are interested in the raising of macaroni wheat have started a campaign looking to the popularizing of that grain. They have introduced samples of the flour made from it into a number of different places, and from all the testimony has been favorable. The Fargo Forum recently published a number of expressions of opinion from different individuals, among them a number of women who had made bread from it. None of them were unfavorable, and some preferred the flour made from macaroni wheat.

The Farmers' Mill and Grain company, of Milnor, N. D., grinds this wheat altogether, and has made a market for macaroni flour that it is carefully nursing. The Northwood Milling company, of Northwood, N. D., used 20,000 bushels of it last year, and will use 300,000 bushels this year. The Russell Milling company, of Jamestown, N. D., is also using considerable.

The efforts being made for the introduction of macaroni wheat flour will be made more particularly at home than as a national movement, for the present at least.

The men who handle grain on the Duluth board of trade, as well as those of other places, are very skeptical of the future of the grain. Many of them do not believe that there will ever be a good market for it. Others are not quite so radical in their antipathy, and admit that if Minneapolis millers will buy it at 20 cents under No. 1 northern, they must be using it to grind into flour, and that if they can make any flour at all out of it, it must be worth more money than they are paying for it. If that is true, it will undoubtedly come up to its proper level some day.

Other grain men believe that the wheat will within a few years change in its nature. It is only about four years since the government began the introduction of the grain into the semi-arid regions of the Northwest. It came originally from Russia. The grain men referred to think that after it has been grown for a few years in the soil of North Dakota its nature may change somewhat, and that it may become a good wheat for general purposes.

IS INJURED AT HIBBING

John Green of This City Seriously Hurt In Runaway.

John Green, of 1528 Regent street, in this city, a lumber inspector by profession, was seriously injured in a runaway at Hibbing yesterday. He got into a rig to start for a lumber camp, about five miles from Hibbing, when his horse was frightened by the noise of firecrackers, etc., and wheeled suddenly throwing him out and landing him on his head on the pavement.

He was removed to a hospital and Dr. Wyerick examined him, finding that he was suffering from concussion of the brain. In his opinion the injury will prove fatal.

HOLD-UP MAN GETS $10,000

Lone Highwayman Makes Rich Haul From Stage Coach.

Baker City, Ore., Aug. 27.—A lone highwayman held up a stage running from Whitney to Canyon City yesterday and got about $10,000. One-third of this amount was in an express package and the remainder in registered letter mail. He also took $60 in currency from two passengers on the stage.

Tom Meyers, the stage driver, heard someone calling, but was not able to locate the cry from his seat on the stage. He drove along, but the shouts were repeated, until finally a stern command came from behind a tree stump on the road:

"Halt!" cried the robber. "You're damned slow; can't you hear anything?"

The stage driver halted the team, and the three occupants of the stage looked into the barrel of a pump gun.

"Throw out the express and mail packages," commanded the same voice, keeping his distance of about thirty feet away. This was done, and then he went through the three passengers and made them yield up. There is no clue to his identity.

CREDITORS GET LITTLE.

Stock of F. P. Levine & Co. Is Sold.

Houghton, Mich., Aug. 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The sale of the stock of F. P. Levine & Co., the bankrupt firm of Lake Linden, yesterday, brought $2200 for distribution among the forty creditors, less than one-fifth of the sum owing them. The findings of Judge Wantz of Marquette, United States district court, showed $9000 worth of goods missing, but Levine was purged of contempt of court. Louis Miller, the partner, who absconded, is still missing, and there is no clew to his whereabouts.

PRESIDENT GOMPERS

To Be Sued For Advocating a Boycott.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, is to be called to account in the courts for his advocacy of the boycott, which has been adjudicated as illegal.

The American Anti-Boycott association, which is organized to protect manufacturers discriminated against by labor unions, has taken up the matter and is determined that President Gompers shall suer for his alleged lawlessness.

The attention of the officers of the association has been called to a letter written by President Gompers in which he threatened to order a boycott of the products of the Purington Paving Brick company of this city. This letter is believed to furnish the basis of an action against the president of the national labor body, and A. C. Allen, a counsel for the anti-boycott association, has been ordered to proceed legally against Gompers.

REGRETTED AT VATICAN.

Rome, Aug. 27.—The resignation of Elihu Root as secretary of war is regretted at the vatican, as under him the negotiations regarding the friar lands in the Philippines were conducted with reciprocal satisfaction. However, the news that he will be succeeded by Judge Taft was received with great pleasure.

South Dakota Hobo Fights Because He Is Refused Work.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sioux Falls—A hobo has been discovered who was willing to fight because he was refused work. A farmer living near Sioux Falls was approached by a genuine "Willie," who applied for work. Not liking his appearance, as well as having no work for him to do, the farmer informed the applicant that he did not need assistance. The words were scarcely out of his mouth before the tramp attacked him with a pair of brass knuckles. The use of these is a penitentiary offense, and had the assailant been captured he would have received a term in prison.

The report of Special Master John King, of this city, in the case of John Lee Booker, of England, vs. Charles T. Crocker, a wealthy resident of Fitchburg, Mass., involving the mammoth packing plant in this city, has been confirmed by Judge Carland of the United States court. The special master recently filed his report. Booker filed exceptions to it, but his action was without avail.

Carl H. Meyer, a merchant of Wentworth, has filed a petition in voluntary bankruptcy. He schedules his liabilities at $337.26; assets, $553. A similar petition has been filed by William E. Shotwell, a carpenter, of Sioux Falls, who places his liabilities at $356.47, and his assets at $513.50. All of his assets are asserted to be exempt. The case has been referred to Referee in Bankruptcy Miller of this city.

Highmore—The first city election in Highmore, after the incorporation, was held here Monday, with the following result: Mayor, S. Drew; aldermen, First ward, C. J. Enstad and S. C. Traver; Second ward, F. M. Barnes and W. W. Yeandle; Third ward, J. E. McDonald and O. C. Kippenbrock; treasurer, C. P. Swanson; assessor, Daniel Healey; police justice, W. B. Hamlin; justice of the peace, L. W. Carter. There was no opposition ticket and the vote was light. Highmore was recently incorporated as a city of the third class and will now begin to take on metropolitan airs.

On account of the favorable conditions, stock is in fine condition. The market is weak, but with the present outlook for the corn crop, Highmore stockmen are looking for a marked improvement in prices. Solicitors and buyers are on the ground locating the choicest herds.

Clark—Two harvest hands became engaged in a fight with two residents of Clark. One of the strangers, Lawrence Martin by name, drew a revolver and pulled the trigger, but the gun failed to go off. He was arrested and fined.

Ned Gallagher, a farmer living near Vienna, was found dead Wednesday morning about three miles from his hime.

Mrs. J. E. Rolfe, wife of a prominent farmer living near here, was taken to the asylum at Yankton.

Rapid Clay—The smelter will be blown in by the Horshoe company Sept. 1. A large quantity of high grade ore has been blocked out in the mine at Terry and is ready for shipment.—Will Warner, formerly receiver of the land office of this city, is located in Philadelphia and is prosperous.

Piedmont—A sham battle is on the program for the annual encampment of the G. A. R. It is to be between veterans of the civil war and the Spanish war on one side and cowboys. Adjutant General Conklin and Congressman Martin will be present.

Pierre—The state board of review took a recess until Sept. 12. The total valuation is $211,035,192, of which $14,961,980 is on corporate property. The increase over last year is $23,503,811.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Jamestown—Wearied of the life she had been leading and depressed over recent disappointments May Johnson attempted to end her life at the resort of Alice Brown by drinking carbolic acid. Emetics were administered, and it is believed she will recover.

Phillip Gross accidentally shot himself at Cleveland. One side of his head was blown off and he died almost instantly.

Master Mechanic R. Smith has gone to the Santa Fe road to acept a similar position, and T. C. Cutler began work yesterday as master mechanic of the Dakota division of the Northern Pacific.

Numerous holdups have been reported by transients arriving from the west on Northern freights. As a rule the victims had but little money, and as they were trying to beat the railroad company there is little sympathy for them.

Forman—This being the county seat of Sargeant county, and exactly in the center of the county, crop reports come in from every side and are telling a favorable story for this part of North Dakota. The wheat yield will average twenty bushels to the acre, and it will be the third good crop in succession for this section. Little Johnson, a few miles west of Forman, threshed seventy-two bushels of barley from one acre last Saturday.

At least $30,000 worth of new improvements are being made to business buildings and residences in Forman this month, and as much more will be made next month. Among the new improvements under way is a livery barn, which is being put up by F. Argersinger, and a fine stock barn by C. M. Scoville. The cost of these buildings will be $6000.

Upper Peninsula Firemen Present Large Sum to Hospital.

Hancock—The executive committee of the Upper Peninsula Firemen's association has given $1000 to the Sisters of St. Joseph, who conduct St. Joseph's hospital, to be used in the building fund. Besides this it gave $150 toward the Labor day celebration and paid the expenses of the G. A. R. annual reunion.

The property of the Hancock branch of the Young Men's Christian association has passed into the hands of the mortgagee, the association having failed to raise the requisite amount to free it from the indebtedness. Those interested have subscribed $8700 on condition that $10,000 be raised and an earnest effort will be made to secure the needed amount before the property is sold twelve weeks hence. Willard H. Wing, the secretary, has resigned to become secretary of the Saginaw branch of the association.

Munising—A novel exhibit at the St. Louis World's fair will be a representation of life in the lumber woods, the plan of Frank Howard, of Munising, who has arranged with a concessionaire for its production on the "midway" at the exposition.

Ontonagon—The Ontonagon Lumber and Cedar company has awarded to James Norton, of Ewen, a contract to put in its season's cut of pine. The cut will total 10,000,00 feet and is to be banked on the Baltimore river.

Houghton—A tract of 6000 acres of land lying near Ontonagon has been sold by the St. Mary's Mineral Land company to C. V. McMillan & Brother. The land is covered with a heavy growth of mixed timber.

Ironwood—The employes of the Oliver Mining company, on the Gogebic range, have adopted formal resolutions of thanks to Andrew Carnegie for his establishment of the Carnegie aid fund.

Iron Mountain—E. F. Brandt, formerly of Iron Mountain, states that there is no truth in the report he had engaged with a Detroit concern to sink a shaft to the salt ledge near that city. He said he had investigated the salt proposition in the interest of friends and considered it not at all difficult of accomplishing. However he has a great liking for his present position, that of general superintendent for the Leonard Mining company, at Hibbing, and will remain with that concern.

Menominee—With a razor Joe Manel, an aged Menominee man, attempted to slash his throat and was only prevented by his son from killing himself. Had the old man's hand been arrested an instant later, it would have been too late. He was insane at the time. A short while previously, the old man made an attempt to cut his wife with the razor. He slashed her on the wrist before he was overpowered and the weapon taken from him. He was arrested and put in the padded cell at the county ail.

MISS LA FOLLETTE

Wants to Adopt Stage as a Profession.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 27.—Miss Fola La Follette, oldest daughter of Governor Robert M. La Follette, desires to make the stage her profession and it is said has discussed with her father and mother the subject of her going upon the stage when she finishes her university course.

Miss La Follette has done extremely well in amateur theatricals and is at present a member of the company of university students which, under the management of Walter Pyre, of Madison, has given entertainments in several cities of the state.

The governor has not said "no" to his daughter, although he has no desire to see her on the stage. For the present, however, he is leaving the matter in abeyance and it is said there will be no definite decision until after Miss La Follette finishes her university course. The governor himself once though of following the stage as a profession and is possessed of a great deal of ability as an actor.

In every city there is one paper favored by local advertisers. In Duluth it is The Herald.

SHIRAS HAS RETIRED.

Will Not Occupy Federal Bench Again.

Dubuque, Iowa, Aug. 27.—It was given out yesterday that Judge Shiras will not be seen on the federal bench again. It was his original plan to retire Nov. 1, but he has been sitting as a member of the United States circuit court of appeals at St. Paul for three weeks and when he returned to Dubuque he confided to his friends that he would not preside at the September term of court at Cedar Rapids. Judge McPherson will preside there.

Judge Shiras and wife will depart for an extended tour of Europe in two months.

The Dubuque Bar association will have a banquet in honor of the pudge in October, when he will have reached his 70th birthday.

Senator Allison has arrived from the East, where he attended a meeting of the senate sub-committee on finance. He refuses to discuss the judgeship. Judge Reed, of Cresco, is the only candidate who seems to be gaining strength. It is understood that Longueville will throw his support to Reed in the event that he has no show to receive the appointment.

Cure for Asthma and Hay Fever

The statements published below confirm the claim of Dr. Schiffmann that his remedy is an absolute cure for Asthma and Hay Fever.

Mrs. Mary Zachery, Pleasant Hill, La., says: "I have found your Asthma Cure a permanent cure for Asthma, for which I used it 7 years ago. I have never had the slightest return of the trouble since. I have also found your remedy excellent in Bronchial affections."

A Hay Fever sufferer writes: "I have had Hay Fever for 14 years. I bought a package of your remedy (Schiffmann's Asthma Cure), of our druggist and due to its use this is the first summer that I have not been troubled." Mrs. Frank Guilfogle, 6237 Ridge avenue, Roxboro, Philadelphia.

Sold by druggists at 50c and $1.00.

FITZPATRICK DESERVES IT.

The Chicago papers have had much to say of late concerning Secretary Shaw's recent action in peremptorily firing the special architect, Henry Ives Cobb, of that city's new federal building. The Herald knows but little about the causes of that action, except that the building dragged outrageously and that there were some ugly rumors about that architect's dealings with the contractors, but since Chicagoans and the Chicago papers generally seem pleased with and commend the secretary's action, both that gentleman and the city of Chicago deserve congratulations—one for doing what was evidently right and the other for getting what it evidently wanted.

But there is a phase of the matter in which The Herald and the constituency it represents are very much interested, selfishly perhaps, but deeply and earnestly, nevertheless, and that is as to what is going to be done for a former Duluthian, F. W. Fitzpatrick, the assistant architect for that building under the old regime. The Herald knows some things about him and his connection with that building. It is stated upon good authority that it is his design, absolutely and solely. It is known he is honest and capable and has done everything he could to keep the administration of that great building clean. It is also known he has given his time and energy uncomplainingly to that work and only resigned when further sacrifice seemed useless, and it was undoubtedly his resignation that brought about the secretary's action.

Press reports state that Mr. Fitzpatrick has gone into private practice again, that he has been asked and has consented to remain with the department for a month in order to help the supervising architect (under whose sole charge the building now reverts) straighten out things, but what Duluth people would like to hear best of all is that the president and Secretary Shaw, in perhaps tardy appreciation of Mr. Fitzpatrick's qualifications and earnest work and long self-sacrifice to unpleasant and difficult duty, have tendered him the place thus made vacant and that they seem inclined to abolish. The fact that it has not been well filled should not be taken as a proof that it is an unnecessary office. It is a place Mr. Fitzpatrick should have had years ago. The Chicago Tribune says that "friends of Fitzpatrick assert that he is the logical successor of his former chief."

The Herald counts itself honored in being one of "his friends" and endorses this sentiment. Secretary Shaw should put Mr. Fitzpatrick in this office; he would do it justice and honor.

A BRILLIANT SCHEME.

Some amusement and a good deal of unfavorable comment has been caused by the visit paid last Monday by a party of state officials to the hospital for the insane at St. Peter. The party consisted of James M. Martin of the board of control, who acted as chaperon; Governor Van Sant, taken along presumably to lend an air of respectability and importance to the affair; Labor Commissioner O'Donnell, Dairy Commissioner McConnell, and the secretary of the live stock sanitary board, Dr. S. H. Ward.

The real object of the visit is not given out, but the public has been informed that it was for the purpose of improving the minds of the departmental officials named. It is not asserted that they had any legitimate business there, as that would entail proving that the insane patients are working people, milk cows or live stock, and even the cheapest of politicians would hesitate before adding any burden to the misfortunes of the insane.

It is freely alleged, however, that the visit is a part of a brilliant political scheme, entirely original with the Jameson-Martin third term boomers, for using the power of the board of control for their own political purposes, and, if successful, anyone who remembers the influence wielded by the state institutions a year or two ago when they and their friends were fighting the board of control bill in the legislature, will realize that with good management and some luck an exceedingly powerful and dangerous political machine might be constructed.

In the hands of unscrupulous and selfish politicians, such a machine would be a menace and a danger to the state, and would enable its manipulators to retain their hold on the public offices for an indefinite period.

THE AURORA BOREALIS.

The appearance of aurora borealis in the heavens a few nights ago makes of local interest a paper recently presented before the Academy of Science at Paris by Charles Nordman, in which he suggested that auroras may be due to Hertzian waves emitted by the sun. Experiment proves that, owing to the diffraction of the atmosphere, Hertzian waves, especially of great wave length, "turn corners," or, in other words, pass around intervening obstacles. The waves of the space telegraph, for example, surmount the intervening convexity of the earth between two distinct stations. It is not surprising, therefore, that auroras should be visible in the polar regions during winter, although the ordinary rays of the sun do not reach them. Mr. Nordmann, seeing that Hertzian waves have passed between Newfoundland, and England, a distance of about 30 degrees on a great circle of the earth, argues that at the equinox polar aurora should be most frequent within 30 degrees from the pole, and that has been found the case.

Adlai E. Stevenson says he is out of politics. It would not be right to drag him into it again. But he is in no danger.

THE OHIO DEMOCRATS.

The action of the Ohio Democrats in adopting a platform which represents the views of the radical element of the party is rather surprising. In view of the attitude assumed by the Iowa Democrats a few weeks ago, who adopted a conservative platform, excluding dead and buried issues and dealing only with questions of immediate interest, it was the natural presumption that the Ohio Democrats would be found pursuing a course calculated to secure the return of many Democrats who declined to endorse all the planks of the Kansas City platform and have been kept outside the party fold thereby, as well as to gain the support of thousands of Republicans who are dissatisfied with the policy of their own party.

But Tom Johnson won the day in Ohio, his strong personality winning in the face of the conservative sentiment that is undoubtedly prevalent among Democrats all over the country. The old bitter feeling against the McLean faction also did much to aid Mr. Johnson. The platform represents his views, but it is noticeable that he was shrewd enough to extend the olive branch to the conservative element by securing the endorsement of John H. Clarke, a Cleveland attorney and hitherto classed as a gold Democrat, for the United States senatorship. This action indicates a disposition on Mr. Johnson's part to secure harmony in the party, but the platform will hardly have such an effect.

THE HUMBERT SWINDLERS.

The sentences imposed upon the notorious Humberts by the French court were comparatively light, when the extent of their frauds is considered. For nearly twenty years this family lived in Paris robbing the people right and left and with no other assets than the cleverly concocted lies of Madame Humbert. This woman proved herself one of the shrewdest schemers and swindlers that was ever detected and brought to trial. So cleverly did she lay and execute her plans that for years she and her family lived in magnificent style and their reliability never questioned.

Therese Humbert was born some 50 years ago at Toulouse. Her maiden name was Daurignac and her mother kept a linen shop. M. Humbert was the son of a former minister of justice and lived in the house where the linen shop was. At the time of their marriage he had a little money—enough to enable the Humberts to buy a mansion in Paris and a couple of country estates, though not necessarily enough to pay for them. These properties constituted the capital on which the Humberts started. Having secured, by means of them, an entrance into society, Madame Humbert gave out her remarkable story about the Crawford millions and the will of which she was custodian, and began a life of magnificence on the money supplied by those who believed the story. She claimed that an American named Robert Henry Crawford had left a will by which an immense estate, consisting of cash and securities, was to be divided into three parts—one-third to go to Marie Daurignac, Madame Humbert's younger sister, and the remainder to his two nephews, Robert and Henry Crawford, but these heirs must pay an annuity of about $6000 a month to Madame Humbert. Another paper produced by Madame Humbert directed that all the title, deeds and securities of the late Robert Henry Crawford be sequestered and placed in charge of M. Humbert and his wife until Marie Daurignac became of age, when the division could be made. Accordingly, Madame Humbert bought a safe, and this safe, with the two papers described, were the only tangible evidence of the Crawford millions that she ever showed or that ever existed. On the strength of her own audacious stories she succeeded in borrowing sums aggregating, it is said, about $12,000,000. Finally, the suspicions of the creditors were aroused and the authorities seized and opened the famous safe. It was empty. There were no securities, no title deeds, no estate. The wealth on which the Humberts had been living for twenty years had no other basis than a clever woman's well-told tale. The Humberts fled to Madrid, but were arrested and taken back to Paris.

The punishment of these people was certainly deserved, and many of their victims were disappointed that it was not heavier. Madame Humbert is a dangerous woman to be at large. There is probably not another in the world her equal as a clever swindler. At the expiration of her sentence she may start on another career. As long as she is alive and at liberty it would be well for all the susceptible ones to be on their guard.

RELIGIONS IN GERMANY.

Germany has a larger percentage of Protestants among her church-going people than would naturally be supposed. Religious statistics of the German empire, according to the recently tabulated results of the census of 1900, show that 62½ per cent of the population are Protestant, almost all members of one or another of the various state churches, in all 35,231,104. Of Roman Catholics there are 20,321,441, chiefly in West Prussia, Posen, Silesia, Westphalia, Rhenish Prussia, Bavaria and Alsace-Lorraine. Of Greek Catholics there are 6472, and of "other Christians" 103,792. In the whole German empire there are only 586,833 who register themselves as Jews—fewer perhaps than in the borough of Manhattan, and yet there is an anti-Semitic political party in the reichstag which, to be sure, succeeded in electing but one member last June. Only 17,535 profess themselves as of none of these faiths. The Messenger, in discussing these figures, points out that if Roman Catholics would vote for ultramontane candidates in every district where they are a majority of the electorate, they would choose 146 representatives where they actually have 100. Evidently, with a very large number of Roman Catholic voters, political conviction outweighs priestly pressure at the polls.

UTILIZING SOLAR HEAT.

It is hardly probable that Duluth will ever enjoy the advantages of utilizing solar heat for heating water for household purposes, although such a method is rapidly becoming popular in the South, where it works very satisfactorily, and even in less favored places has been found useful. The apparatus for this purpose is simple, merely a sectional boiler of thin blackened copper, exposed on the sunny side of the roof under a glass cover very like a hot house frame, and suitably piped for supply and demand. An hour's exposure to full sunlight raises the water to a temperature from 30 degrees to 60 degrees Fahrenheit above that of the air, and as the heaters actually in use contain from 40 to 120 gallons, according to size, there is an ample supply of hot water through the hours of daylight. Solar water heaters of this kind have been installed on the roofs of many houses in Southern districts, and the system is gradually working into the more Northern states.

An Ohioan has found a substitute for rubber, but not for rubber necks.

HOTEL GOSSIP

"Yank" (U. D.) Newell, who has the "American Hobo" company here, is one of the oldest managers in the theatrical business, both in point of service and in years, who is still active, hale and hearty. "Yank" doesn't look forty-five, but there are some unfeeling persons who give him credit for twice that many.

Be that as it may, he's a better looking man today than many of them half that age.

He was at the St. Louis hotel for awhile last evening, and when he wandered around the theater last evening, he became somewhat reminiscent.

"I came to Duluth long before there was even an opera house. The first time I came in here was almost forty years ago and we had some company or other that played in what was called the Dramatic Temple. Your St. James hotel is where that used to be. There has been something of a change here, since that time," he said.

Mr. Newell, in the course of his conversation told how they used to "stand 'em up" down at Penn Yan, N. Y., back in 1856, when he took out the "Mirror of Ireland," and used to play the town three or four times a year. Washburn's "Lost Sensation" was another great winner in those years and used to fill the largest houses.

"I remember a new man we had with us as a comedian on a Western mining country trip one season," he said. "He was with us when we got into a remote little camp named Rico, in San Juan country, Colorado. The show that night—was 'The Hidden Hand.' He played the part of 'Wool.'

"It was our opening night and we performed in an old shack of a hall, up a narrow flight of stairs, lit by a kerosene lamp and seated with rough benches. It was our comedian's first trip on the road, and the boys in the company had loaded him up with stories of the wild acts of the natives, in whose eyes they said a man's life wasn't worth a cent, and that the said natives generally amused themselves between acts by shooting out the lights, or other fiery pastime.

"The show opened up and all went lovely until the end of the first act, when a burly miner, who was seated on the back of a bench, accidentally discharged his pistol while applauding the man, who had made a great hit with the Wild West boys.

"The comedian chattered and shook as the curtain went down, and then disappeared.

"He didn't show up for the next act, or the next, and the crowd out in front began yelling for him.

"Another search was made, but, though they found a first hiding place, he had run away from that upon hearing the yelling.

"After the show, he was finally located in the basement behind some rubbish, in a terribly frightened condition.

"'Don't shoot!' he moaned. I did the best I could.'

"I might add that his salary did the best it could in a thirst parlor for the rest of the week."

Talking of old-timer's stories, F. W. Courtenay, manager for Melbourne MacDowell, tells one about Vermont, which is not so bad.

He got into some small town with his company one night, where the prohibition laws seemed to be very strictly observed or very strongly enforced.

The organization was to get out the same night, and there was a late train, which left quite a bit of time after the show.

The business had been very good. Mr. Courtenay hardly ever indulges in even the smallest particle of stimulating liquor, but in the excitement of a rush of people into a theater, the glina of the metal at the box office reflecting on his eye is sometimes so strong as to upset his nervous system, with the result that at long intervals he has been known to take exception to his rule in a small measure.

All of which is in preface.

At the little Vermont town the business was good, and the "opry haouse" man also owned the drug store and dance hall and lodge rooms.

After the performance they went over to the drug store and "counted up," and when they were all signed up, Mr. Courtenay suggested that they might have a small nip of something.

This man shook his head, but after a lot of coaxing was finally persuaded and went into the innermost recesses of the safe and got out a bottle of apple jack and poured out two portions.

"I'm pretty keerful," he said. "Yaw see, I have been in business here nigh on ter twenty years. I have been a sellin' licker right along, and every year they fined me once, and that was about ekkal to the license.

"But here back awhile they have got pesky and fined me twice a year, and the business wan't payin' none too well. I told 'em they'd better look out, but they didn't believe me.

"Last week they had me up agin, makin' the second time this year.

"When I got up before the jedge I says, says I: 'Jedge, I want to give yer fair warnin'. If I git fined this time there won't be no licker sold here no mere.'

"But the jedge didn't believe it, and he fined me.

"Well, the next mornin' he came in after his morning nip, and I says: 'Jedge, yew can't have nuthin' today.'

"'Why, what's the matter?' says the jedge, surprised like.'

"'I mean just what I say,' I says, 'I told you yesterday that if I was fined I wouldn't sell no more licker. I'm all through.' The jedge was terrible mad.

"Well, sir, they've got up a perition, headed by the jedge to have me sell licker agin, but I'm goin' to fool 'em. I'll show 'em they can't make a fool out a me."

After a brain racking of something like eight months to invent material to tack on to individuals of all stations, the hotel reporter is finally going to assume responsibilities for once and spring a joke that he thought of before he got out of bed this morning.

There are several reasons for offering it as an original piece of work. First there is no one on the register today well enough acquainted with the perpetrator to stand for it; second he is going out of business in three or four days and if necessary can get out before the paper goes to press.

Well here goes: Feel like Speedy just before he dives.

"My son, tell me," shrieked the agonized mother, "the worst!"

"Be brave, mother, the wurst is yet to come," said the lad with tears in his eyes.

'Twas only too true.

That might have been sold to Puck or Judge for a couple of dollars and had our name signed.

THE WEATHER.

United States Agricultural Department Weather Bureau, Duluth. Synopsis of weather conditions for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m., (central time), Aug. 27.—The storm central Wednesday morning over eastern Montana and Wyoming has moved to Kansas causing light to heavy rainfalls throughout the central valleys and the Northwest. The barometer remains high in western Canada and Guf states. Very heavy rains occurred over portions of the upper Mississippi valleys and lower Missouri valley. It is much cooler in eastern Montana and Wyoming, light frost occuring at Lander, Wyoming. The winds in the lake region are fresh to brisk northeasterly with partly cloudy to rainy weather. The wind at New York is light from the northeast with cloudy weather.

WHITTLED TO A POINT.

Detroit Free Press: Mrs. Casual—Was your daughter's wedding a success?

Mrs. Candid—Yes, indeed; there wasn't a cheap present in the whole lot.

Judge: Chicago Man—Let's see. New York is the place you go through on your way to Brooklyn, is it not?

New Yorker—Oh, no. New York is the place that goes through you on your way to Brooklyn.

Chicago Post: The second to the prize fighter took his place in the corner.

"You will notice," he said, as he glanced at the bucket and sponge, "that I am snuperintendent of the punch bowl."

Puck: Rawson Rounder—I understand that Mrs. Lakeside is going to marry her former husband.

Grace Gadler—There's nothing in it. She told me herself that she could never marry that man enough to love him.

"Remember," said the serious man, "that money is not the only thing to be striven for in this life."

"Maybe not," answered Senator Sorghum, "but a whole lot of people think it is, and I am not egotist enough to try to set any new fashions."

New York Sun: Damocles smiled as he glanced at the sword.

"But," inquired the puzzled Dionysius, "doesn't it ever make you feel nervous?"

"Not a bit," replied the brave young man, "I have just had a vacation haircut."

Shuddering at the mere thought, his host arose and shook his hand in silent sympathy

Chicago Tribune: Constituent—Senator, how would you settle these labor disputes, if the matter devolved upon you?

Senator Trimmur—H'm—haw—well—er—there is a great deal that might be said on both sides of that question.

Constituent—I know it, senator, and you're just the man that can say it.

THE WOMAN IN THE CASE.

Since the day when sinful Adam turned state evidence on Eve,
And a flimsy web of guilt around his
wifey tried to weave,
Down through all the countless ages time has left along her trail
Has the female had to suffer for the doings of the male.

"'Twas the woman! 'Twas the woman," rang the cry through Eden's bowers
"'Twas the woman;" yet we hear it in these modern days of ours
As the false bewhiskered sinners desperately try to place
All the blame upon the shoulders of the woman in the case.

So 'twill be till time has ended, till the sun is stripped of light
And the earth is in the blackness of the never ending night.
Till the sounding of the trumpet calls the dead from earthly sleep
And the heavenly inspectors separate the goats and sheep.

Even at the bar of judgment when we're called upon to show
The extenuating features of our sinning here below
There may be full many cowards who will stand with brazen face
And attribute their transgression to the woman in the case.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Most any girl can make a man fall in love with her; few of them can make him stay there.

When a man settles down in life it's often because his creditors have made him settle up.

It is a race problem all right when the way a man's family grows beats the way his income ought to grow to keep up with it.

It takes two women longer to explain over a telephone why they can't go to lunch together than it does a dozen men to draw up plans to build a railroad.

The Difference in Seasons.

Atlanta onstitution: "Br'er Williams," said Brother Dickey, "you all time talkin' 'bout wantin' ter go ter glory in a chariot er fire. How'd you like ter try it in de middle er August?"

"Br'er Dickey," replied Brother Williams, "w'en I made dem remarks we wuz deep in December en de white snow wuz all over de ground!"

A Tropical Jamboree.

Chicago Chronicle: Recent proceedings in Panama confirm the conviction that if we dig a canal there we shall likewise have to undertake the job of keeping the peace in the neighborhood. If ever there was a case of an entire population being continuously drunk and disorderly Panama furnishes the example.

Mistaken Identity.

Burglar—Now, don't scold me, ma'am; I'm not your husband.

MISMATED

By Willard Jones.

Two men and two women, two romances and two tragedies—and the sequel, that's all.

But stay, perhaps it was four romances and four tragedies. Judge of that for your self from the story.

It was all natural enough—the most natural thing in the world, and very strange and unconventional, too. Two splendid young fellows, two attractive girls—all comrades from childhood. One young fellow, an artist by nature and environment, by heredity and cultivation; the other a matter-of-fact boy gifted with an allotment of common sense which amounted, if he only had known it, to positive genius; and two girls, one a beauty of so rare perfection that she would fill every aspiration of the most artistic mind—form, features, coloring, expression, al so perfect that she would have been an ideal model for any painter, sculptor or poet; the other a peculiar sort of girl, with none of the conventional attributes of beauty, irregula—even homely—of feature and complexion, and so far as to repel rather than attract admirers and friends, except that she was lithe of body and springy of step—but gifted with a fire of eye and a vivacity of movement and of manner that compelled attention and admiration even while the keen analysis and biting sarcasm of her original mind repelled it. With the one there was the attraction of physical perfection, with the other the more insidious influence of essential vitality.

Of course, Clarence Cole, artist that he was, was enamored of Gracia, with her soft, correct lines and rich glowing color. And equally, of course, John Bedwell, became the slave of Alice Beattle.

For years all four had been chums and companions. Clarence and Gracia had been accepted juvenile sweethearts, as also had John and Alice. So, in the natural order of things there were two weddings and the four young people were paired off in matrimony as they had been as weethearts, took a wedding trip together and settled down to live happy ever afterward after the manner of heroes and heroines in all well-regulated stories.

And now comes the strange part of it all.

Odd as it may seem, after these two well-paired young couples had been married for a fewlvemonth and had lived most happily, it all began to pall upon all four of them—in a way.

For the first few months Clarence lived in a perfect dream of bliss. All of the perfection of Gracia's physical perfection sank into his artistic consciousness. And Gracia—well, what more had she to desire than this handsome and talented consort—perfect in form, manner and devotion and advancing all the time in the estimation of the world?

And yet there was not the most perfect harmony of life and impulse with these two—sad as it may seem, Clarence sought,—alas, in vain—beneath the surface perfection of Gracia's wonderful beauty the real attributes of character promised so abundantly. And he found them not—alas and alack, he found them not! He saw all the promises turn to ashes and finally suspected that his beautiful wife was but a whitened sepucher—from his point of view. Of course, he asked too much, being an artist.

And Gracia? The long months brought to her also the bitterness of dead leaves. Her handsome and talented husband did not yield to her the adoration and happiness she had so warmly craved. She could not guess why, but there was something lacking—something real and essential to her nature. As the months went by he appeared more and more to her as a promise than a reality. She was not at all an idealist; she wanted to see and feel—not dream.

And so they drifted apart and came almost to despise one another, because, alas, they understood one another not at all.

And the other couple—John and Alice—life went almost as badly with them. Alice, with her superabundant intelligence and vitality, grew to feel as the months went by that her sturdy and commonplace husband did not understand her. She appreciated his sterling worth and his unyielding reliability, but she could always touch bottom—there was no depth to explore. Her unconquerable vitality rebelled at the hard-and-fast bounds she found in his character. She adored his manly physiognomy and his sturdy character and she told herself again and again that he was the sort of man to tie to—one of the salt of the earth; but her unquenchable spirit rebelled at bounds and rules, and it got so she airly hated figures, facts and reason. She longed for flights into the mystic realm of ideality, into those realms where vital forces could override rules and methods.

Well, you can see for yourself that John could not understand anything of that sort. Honest, conscientious, sterling John could move only along the lines of his own understanding. And he resented, in a manly and honest way the breach Alice had placed bqween them. He had disregarded no obligation, no duty, no sacrifice. He had been altogether unselfish and faithful, and somehow he had not succeeded in welding his life with that of his wife. His hopes, his ..eals had been shattered.

Now, mind you, all this time, while these thoughts and ideas had been percolating through the minds of these four simpletons, they had, all of them, been constant companions and friends.

So it was that the artistic mind of Clarence began to appreciate the depths and wealth of the nature of Alice—contrasting it to the narrowness and poverty of that of Gracia. And by that same token Alice awoke one day all of a quiver with an appreciation of the tremendous sweep of the nature of Clarence along the lines of her own aspirations.

It was a dangerous discovery, and as it came to these two people it nearly floored them.

The harder they fought the more tense the new situation grew. To the soul of each the commonplace qualities of wife and husband grew more oppressive as they realized in each other the joys of perfect appreciation and perfect fellowship. The end was certain as the multiplication table, and finally they gave up the struggle for conventionality and honor and resolved to shatter their vows and their reputations, to give up kindred, associates and home and wreck the structure they had been building since childhood and flee to an unknown country, there to begin a new life in which their mutual love would be ample compensation for all they left.

Brave in their resolution, but guilty in the consciousness of the great wrong they were doing their loyal consorts, the two slipped into a closed carriage on the evening of the 16th of June, 1899, and were driven rapidly to the depot, where they boarded a train bound for New York, there to sail for European shores, where they had planned to begin their new life.

In the meantime both John Bedwell and Gracia Cole had felt the widening breach in their respective homes, although neither had the slightest suspicion of the state of affairs between Clarence Cole and Alice Bedwell. Being thrown together much, Gracia began to take a new delight in the society of the sturdy John Bedwell. She could understand his mental attitude, his plain, every day talk, his natural human methods, whereas Clarence's high-strung, artistic impulses and idealities oppressed and bewildered her. And John, disappointed and puzzled at his failure to understand Alice and weld his life with hers, and resenting the attitude of inferiority she placed him in, looked with new eyes upon Gracia and realized her surpassing beauty. And as he talked more and more to her and found that she understood so thoroughly his thoughts and aspirations, his heart warmed toward her. Finally he awakened with a start to the realization that he loved her and that his love for Alice was dead. And presently she found her own heart had gone out to John. So when the fires of the new love had attained fever heat both were more ready to obey their impulses than the others, for they had not the condescending pity—rather a sting of injured pride.

John methodically wound up his business affairs and looked up a new location where he could re-establish himself safely, and it came to pass that on the evening of June 16, 1899, he entered a close carriage with Gracia and they were driven rapidly to the depot, where they boarded a train bound for San Francisco, there to take steamer for Australia.

Shortly before that hour the two couples, who had left the same depot on their wedding journeys only two short years before, and who were now fleeing from each other, passed through the gate but a moment or two apart, boarded the separate trains and were whirled away in opposite directions as fast as the steam monsters could carry them.

The strange part of the affair is that neither couple ever knew that the other had eloped, and the friends of both had no suspicion of anything wrong, but wondered deeply at the sudden and mysterious departure of the four.

LIGHTBODY'S NEWS.

Thursday, August 27, 1903.

News items under the above heading will appear in The Evening Herald from day to day. They relate to the S. W. Lightbody & Co. dry goods store located in Superior on the corner of 11th street and Tower avenue. Interstate cars run by its doors.

This store is the oldest dry goods store in Superior and deals in general dry goods and ladies' ready-made garments. It differs from other stores in several respects. It's a one-price store. It's a money-back store. It never makes extravagant claims. It sells goods of the highest quality at the lowest prices. In short, it's a "do-as-you'd-be-done-by" store. Perhaps you've been looking a long time for such a place to trade. If so, take the car or ferry and come over and see it. You'll more than save your car fare on what you buy, and will have had a pleasant trip besides.

The Lightbody name has ever been a guaranty of reliability — an important consideration if you're going to buy silk. The Lightbody store guarantees every yard it sells.

"Boxbay" is a soft, heavy plain silk for linings and waists. All wanted colors. 19 inches wide, 58 cents. 36 inches, $1.10.

No uncertainty about the Lightbody black taffetas. The 27-inch at 75 cents and the 36inch at $1.00 are extra heavy, lustrous and durable.

No doubt of a money's worth in buying 21-inch black peau de soie silk at $1.00 and 22-inch at $1.25. Both are very soft, heavy and lustrous. For a silk coat nothing can excel a 22-inch peau de soie at $2.00. It's as heavy and soft as a fine piece of kid; as lustrous as a satin duchess.

The old fashioned grosgrain silk is revived for coats and skirts — very heavy, 24 inches wide, $1.50 a yard.

"Cloth of Gold" is pure silk. No dye-stuff in it. It's a heavy canvas weave. Two shades, natural and dark natural. Two weights, $1.50 and $2.00 a yard.

Ask to see and handle the 19-inch colored taffetas at 75 cents a yard. They sell themselves. All colors.

Fancy silks in the new gun metal shades, $1.00 a yard.

SHE WANTED HER HUSBAND

Because She Found Him In Another Woman's Embrace.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug 27.—A husband and wife and a pretty girl created intense excitement in the heart of the bathing district yesterday afternoon. The husband who was disporting in the surf suddenly became exhausted under the steeplechase pier and yelled for help. After a struggle the life guards succeeded in bringing him ashore. The bather was bruised and bleeding from being dashed against the iron piling.

An unknown young woman who witnessed the thrilling rescue became excited with joy over hise escape from death and hugged and kissed the man. It may be that he was too dazed to resist.

A woman pressed herself through the crowd that gathered and appeared to be bent on reaching the side of the embracing couple. She got to him just as the young woman wipes the blood from the man's hand. Without saying a word the newcomer planted a terrific right hand hook in the man's face followed by several more.

The man broke and fled. The newcomer, who turned out to be the man's wife, then made for the girl who was running toward the water. The latter entered the breakers and the irate wife refused to follow. The wife ascended the steps leading to the boardwalk near North Carolina avenue, and, seeing the several thousand curious gazers, loudly exclaimed: "Well, if you want to see me, here I am. I've been married to that man for seven years. He was in company with another woman and I smashed him. That's all there is to it."

The throng applauded and dispersed. The pair are said to Mr. and Mrs. John Johnson, of Philadelphia.

ALL ON FIRE

A Duluth Citizen Tells How Relief Came.

Ever have Eczema?
Have any itching skin disease?
Itching almost drives you crazy;
You feel "all on fire."
Doan's Ointment brings quick relief
Cures Eczema, Itching Piles,
And all itchiness of the skin.

Mr. Warren Blossom of 519 Superior street east, says: "It is a pleasure for me to recommend a remedy of such sterling remedy as Doan's Ointment. For twelve years I sufered from eczema in a very bad form on the groin and upper limbs. The irritation was intense and few can realize what agony I endured. The skin assumed a coarse leathery appearance. I used ointment after ointment, wash after wash and bottle after bottle of medicine. Doctors did me no good and I despaired of ever getting rid of it. When I saw Doan's Ointment advertised and thinking that it probably might relieve me, if only temporary I got a box at W. A. Abbetts' drug store and commenced to use it. The first application cooled and relieved the burning irritation and by the time I had used one full box all signs of the trouble had left me and the skin was soft and smooth."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

LANGLEY'S AIRSHIP.

Professor Manley Will Be the Aeronaut.

Whitewater, Va., Aug. 27.—Indications are that Professor Manley will be the aeronaut in the first flight of the big Langley machine. This machine is constructed to carry one hundred and fifty pounds in addition to its own weight, and the chief assistant comes well under this. He has repeatedly tested the navigator's cabinet by getting into it, and from that station trying the management of the motor and steering apparatus.

Signs of activity were shown by the Langley airship experts late yesterday when Professor Manley decided to brave the scorching heat and ordered a bunch of his men on the superstructure. Several times the delicate wings were in danger of considerable injury, but fortunately most of the threatened accidents were averted just in time. One main supporting bar of a big wing which was being taken in was jammed into the aerodrome amidships.

A DISAPPEARING FAD.

This Time He Took Missionary Society Remittance.

Tacoma, Wash., Aug. 27.—Rev. Thomas Sullivan, a Congregational minister, who has been in charge of the Center street mission, disappeared from his home last Wednesday. He had received a remittance from the Home Missionary society, but thought the amount was not correct, and stated his intention of going to Seattle to have the error rectified.

It is since learned that he cashed a draft and purchased a ticket for Spokane. Two years ago Sullivan disappeared from his home in Chicago and nothing was known of his whereabouts for nine months, when it was discovered he had located in Tacoma. His wife and family here were left with 5 cents.

CURING OF CANCER

Edison Formulates New Theory as to Its Accomplishment.

Effects of Radium on Tissues of Human Body.

New York, Aug. 27.—Profiting by his observations of the effects on tissues of the human body when they are unduly exposed to the rays of the new element, radium, or the Roentgen X-rays, Thos. A. Edison has formulated a new theory concerning the cause and progress of cancer and he suggests a course of treatment. Mr. Edison watched carefully the progress of the cancer which developed from a slight flush on the back of the hands of his assistant, Charles Dailly, who has since lost his arms.

The disease had its origin in burns by the Roentgen rays. Mr. Edison believes that if the treatment he now proposed had been applied in Dailly's case in the beginning he would have been cured.

There are in the human body, Mr. Edison says, certain ameboid cells which are capable of movement and seem almost to be gifted with intelligence. Their sole function is to restore shattered and injured tissues. In the case of a cut, wound, or even an ordinary burn, nature, through these cells, seeks to work to restore normal conditions, and succeeds if no other influence interferes.

With a burn produced by radium or the Roentgen rays, Mr. Edison finds there are entirely different phenomena. The rays apparently destroy not only the tissue, but also the ameboid cells. The result is that the wound will not heal.

Nature, however, says Mr. Edison, does her best under these conditions. It is here that Mr. Edison thinks the cells display a species of intelligence, for when the cells in the neighborhood of the injury fail to heal the wound, they are themselves destroyed, and there is immediately a rush of fresh cells from other parts of the body to the seat of trouble. There seems then to be improvemnt, but it is only apparent. Soon a mass of reddish granulations, they attain enormos size and presently grow into what is known as "rose" cancer.

All this time there is a steady influx of ameboid cells, until the rest of the body is bare of them. Then the disease has full sway. As an antidote to this, Mr. Edison believes that the blood of a healthy person, untainted with cancer or other balignant diseae, will provide enough ameboid cells to overcome the injury. In practice some blood from a healthy subject should be drawn off into a sterile hypodermis syringe and then injected into the region of the part affected.

The disease would then be attacked by germs possesing the strength to conquer the malady. Mr. Edison was asked how he would apply the idea to cancer in an organ in the interior of the body, and not due to the injurious rays. He replied that, in his opinion, certain persons were affected peculiarly by certain foods that caused the destruction of the ameboid cells. Friction sometimes tended to destroy the cells, as in some cases of smoker's cancer of the mouth. The treatment of internal cancers, according to his theory, was, said Mr. Edison, a question to be solved by the surgeons and not by himself.

THE CHILDREN'S EVENT.

Yesterday was children's day at the department store of the Gray-Tallant Co., and the distribution of dolls' shirts brought out a crowd of little girls with dolls of all sizes and castes.

At one time four clerks were kept busy giving out the shirts to the anxious throng of children which filled the aisles in front of the underwear department. There were many amusing incidents during the morning. One little girl brought a doll's head, nearly as large as her own, carefully wrapped in a quilt, and wanted a shirt to fit.

The children were required to come with their mothers, but the number of mothers who were reported on the sick list belied the reputation of Duluth as a health resort. A resourceful little

Many tourists carried the pretty blue silk-plaited shirts to children in other cities, and the requests from the grown-up people for the shirts for souvenirs were almost as many as the children.

IRON MARKET DOMINATED

By Feeling That Prices Are Not Fully Settled.

Cleveland, Aug. 27.—The Iron Trade Review this week says: The iron market is still dominated by the feeling that prices have not yet fully reflected the changing relation between supply and demand. Thus far the buying by the leading harvesting machinery interests has been the only conspicuous development in August. Its pig iron purchases for its gray iron and malleable foundries are in the neighborhood of 75,000 tons, and contracts for 15,000 tons of sheets and 6000 tons of pipes and tubes have been added.

While some new and modern furnaces are starting up, adding to the make of foundry iron, the curtailment movement is greater and may soon become a factor of some moment.

AGAINST EXTRA SESSION.

Senators Urge President Not to Call One.

Washington, Aug. 27.—Having apparently succeeded in warding off an extra session of congress as early as October, the leaders of the Republican party are now concentrating their efforts to prevail on the president not to call an extra session at all.

In addition to this, and in view of the hopelessness of financial legislation in time to do any material good, members of the cabinet and important senators have already advised the president not to make prominent in his forthcoming message any recommendation for financial legislation as a remedy for present or future ills.

Senator Quay of Pennsylvania, Senator Platt of New York and possibly Senator Hanna of Ohio are opposed to any extra session.

AUTO CATCHES FIRE.

General Miles' Sister Has a Narrow Escape.

Northboro, Mass., Aug. 27.—Mrs. Anna Maria Sprague of Weston, sister of Lieutenant General Miles, while passing through town in an automobile was delayed a short time by the vehicle catching fire. The chauffeur seized a hose from a yard and turning on the water, soon extinguished the flames.

Mrs. Sprague's dress caught fire, but she was able to extinguish it before much damage was done. The automobile was left at a stable and the journey was continued by rail.

GAVEAWAY MILLION

To His Poor Relations to See How They Will Act.

Peculiar Act of Stephen B. Roath, an Eccentric Chicagoan.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—The Tribune says: An eccentric and aged stockyards millionaire, Stephen B. Roath, announced yesterday that he had just settled $1,000,000 on a chosen set of relatives, "just to see how they will use the money."

Roath was a lifelong associate of John B. Sherman, father of the Chicago stockyards, and has occupied the same room at the Transit house for thirty-eight years.

In giving away his fortune, Mr. Roath does not propose to wait till death shall reduce his hold on his heirs to the questionable influence which may be exerted via media from the other world. He makes it clear that upon the behavior of the beneficiaries depends the final division of the property. He expects an epidemic of good examples in his family.

The eccentric stockman is just now at his old home at Norwich, Conn., where he has completed legal steps toward carrying out his plan. He is said to have been attracted by the declared purpose of Andrew Carnegie and D. K. Pearsons to die poor. One peculiar feautre of his gifts is that practically all go to poor families—each receiving an independent fortune.

Mr. Roath is estimated to have another million, but he has not yet said what he will do with it.

The scheme for supervising the disbursing of his fortune is just another touch to the already eccentric career of Mr. Roath. The settlements he has made are as follows:

Mrs. Elizabeth Randall, his sister, $250,000.

Edwin A. Roath, nephew, $250,000.

"I had fun accumulating the money," said Roath yesterday in Norwich, "and now I want to see what my relatives will do with it. If I have done anything to make my relatives happy, I want to see the results, and I don't want to have anybody fighting for the money when I am dead."

Mr. Roath left the city for Norwich early in July and went about secretly arranging for the gifts. Stephen B. Meech, president of the Thames National bank, assisted him. Reports from Norwich indicate general rejoicing. The brother, Louis P. Roath, has two sons, one a conductor and one an engineer on the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad. Each will ultimately have $125,000. The son of Mrs. Jensen will enter Yale this fall after having given up this cherished purpose. Edwin A. Roath, employed for twenty years on the Norwich line, will now be able to give up steamboating and will take care of his quarter of a million.

It was when the old Lake Shore stockyards were at Twenty-second street that Mr. Roath came to Chicago, forty years ago. At that time John B. Sherman owned the old Bull's Head hotel, the rendezvous of the stockmen of those days. Mr. Sherman took a liking to Roath, who was 35 years old, and employed him as a clerk of the hotel.

When Mr. Sherman founded the stockyards in their present location he took Roath with him. Roath then became live stock agent for the Michigan Central, a position which he held for ten years. Later he went back to the stockyards company, where he was known eo every stock shipper as the man who signed the tickets on weights. He retired twenty years ago.

The Transit house was opened to the public on Christmas day, 1865, and that day Mr. Roath engaged room and board there. He has lived ther ever since, with the exception of the summers, which he invariably spent at Norwich, Conn. Unmarried and without a relative in the west, he was known here as a parsimonious old man who knew a good business proposition when he saw it.

Even while he was working as a clerk in the old Bull's Head, Roath was investing his savings under the advice of Mr. Sherman and later of Nelson Morris, who was also an old friend. He was one of the original stockholders of the First National bank and also of the National Live Stock bank. Besides these stocks his wealth is invested in Chicago City railway, Swift & Co., National Bank of America, Omaha stockyards, Kansas City stockyards, Union stockyards and Transit company of Chicago, Chicago Telephone company, and National Biscuit.

Many stories are told of the parsimonious habits of the old man. He was always dressed in the same black suit of an antique cut which his associates declared he had worn these twenty years, and till a few weeks ago wa snever seen wearing any but an ancient derby hat. It nearly broke the old man's heart when a stockman carried off the hat by mistake from the hotel dining room. But he did not buy a new one, for Clerk Dwyer gave him a castoff headpiece, which he wore when he departed for Norwich six weekss ago. His worldly chattels never exceeded in quantity what might be packed in a steamer trunk.

He took the trunk with him when he left Chicago, and this is taken as evidence that he does not intend to return.

Even the bartender at the Transit house has his reminiscence of the eccentric millionaire.

"Old Steve used to come in here after dinner every day," said he, "and buy a drink of whisky. Then he would go out without paying for it. About 5 o'clock he would come in and buy another drink, and then lay down a quarter for the two. He wasn't going to pay fifteen cents apiece, not Steve. We had to break Steve of the habit—of paying that way, I mean—and for weeks he wasn't the same man."

AT WEST DULUTH

The meeting of the West Duluth Commercial club tomorrow night is expected to be one of the most interesting and important of the year.

J. J. McGuire, of Lake Crystal, Minn., a partner of William Barnes, who is in West Duluth at present negotiating for the establishment of a new state bank, to take the place of the defunct Merchants' bank, arrived in the city last evening, and in company with his partner, will be present at the meeting of the club tomorrow evening, for the purpose of interesting citizens in the formation of a state bank.

If it is seen that the citizens are favorable to the establishment of such an institution, the bank will be opened.

Mr. McGuire is a banker of Many years' experience, and has a national bank in Lake Crystal, which has a capital of $200,000, in addition to two smaller state banks in other parts of the state.

Mr. Barnes and Mr. McGuire looked over the situation in West Duluth this morning and called on a number of the business men.

They also inspected the building formerly occupied by the Merchants' bank. An offer has been made to take over the liabilities and assets of the Merchants' bank, and advance the money to pay off the creditors, for a certain consideration, which has not yet been made public. This offer is being considered by Mr. Smith, and a definite answer will be given within a few days.

Prospects appear bright for the establishment of such an institution, and it will be welcomed by the merchants of this portion of the city, many of whom are already complaining of the inconveniences of being compelled to do all their banking at Duluth institutions.

The new bank will have a capital of at least $25,000 and will be under state inspection.

Three more signatures were added this morning to the document appointing H. H. Phelps trustee of the Merchants' bank, and prospects are good for securing the name of the remainder of the creditors within a few days.

The names of 114 depositors, representing about $25,000 of the assets, have been secured, and but nine men are yet to be heard from.

SUIT OVER HORSE DEAL.

Dr. S. F. Confer, the West Duluth veterinary surgeon, has returned from Scanlon, where he was called to give testimony in a suit concerning a horse trade.

George Beams, of Iron River, recently sold out a livery stable containing a number of horses to a Scanlon business man. The latter claimed that several of the horses were suffering from glanders, and he brought suit to recover the amount.

The trial was heard before a jury in the court of the justice of the peace, and it excited the greatest interest among the people of the vicinity.

Dr. McKay, the West End veterinary, was also present to give expert testimony.

The jury finally failed to agree, and Mr. Beams passed through West Duluth today on his way to his home in Iron River.

ATTENTION!
CREDITORS OF MERCHANTS' BANK.

Any persons who know themselves to be creditors of the Merchants' Bank, who have not signed the agreement for H. H. Phelps to handle the assets for the benefit of the creditors, are requested to present themselves at the office of Judge Stone, at West Duluth, Saturday, Aug. 29, between 3 p. m. and 9 p. m.

Any creditor who has not had the agreement presented to him for signature is requested to send his present address to Hansen Smith, 223 Manhattan building, Duluth, Minn., at once, as some persons whose names appear on the books of the banks as creditors, have not yet been located.

A. O. U. W. RECEPTION.

The members of the Degree of Honor of the A. O. U. W. held a reception last evening for the state grand officers, several of whom are in West Duluth at present.

Mrs. Larson, of St. Paul, the grand chief of honor, and several other officers were present.

It was the regular meeting night of the A. O. U. W., and the members of this lodge were also present to do honor to the state officers.

Refreshments were served by the ladies, and several of the grand officers made short addresses, telling of the work of the order.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

Patterson, Undertaker. 'Phone 3070.

Mrs. E. Filiatrault, of West Duluth, and Miss Marie Filiatrault, of St. Paul, have returned from a trip down the lakes. They visited relatives in Conneaut for several weeks.

D. W. Armstrong, a former resident of West Duluth, who has been visiting old friends here for several weeks past, will return today to his home in Tacoma, Wash.

The wedding of Miss E. A. Emard and B. S. Strongest, of St. Paul, will take place Monday in the St. James Catholic church. Father Feemely will perform the ceremony, after which the young couple will leave for a wedding trip to Chicago and St. Paul.

Abraham Johnson and family will leave today for Galesburg, N. D., where they intend to make their home in future.

The Sunday schools of the West Duluth Presbyterian church and the West Duluth Baptist church will hold a joint picnic tomorrow at Fond du Lac. The Newsboy will call at the Mitchell & McClure dock at 9:30 for the party.

C. F. W. Korth and family left yesterday to visit J. C. Wills in Bell, Wis.

Richard Schell has received a present of a valuable collie pup. It is a grandson of the famous Bozzie, owned by George Clayson, of Chicago.

The Ladies' Auxiliary, A. O. H., Division No. 2, will give a card social in Gilley's hall Friday evening, Aug. 28, for the benefit of the fund for the new St. James church. All are cordially invited.

THE DOG LAUGHED

At Prayer Meeting and Two Boys Arrested.

Sioux City, Iowa, Aug. 27.—Because a big, good-natured shepherd dog laughed during a prayer meeting and two healthy boys laughed, too, the latter were arrested and arraigned before two mayors of this county.

Schuberg and Peterson were the offending lads. It was at the home of Farmer Schmaukschnabele, near Smithland, where a prayer meeting was in progress, that the lamentable offense took place. An elder was praying fervently when the dog began his friskiness and is said to have really laughed and cut up other amusing capers. Boy-like, these two youngsters, peeping through between their fingers saw the canine cavorting around and they laughed. The meeting was broken up and later the boys were arrested. Arraigned before Mayor Clark of Smithland, they took a change of venue to Mayor Hills of Oto. County Attorney Whitney, summoned from Sioux City, to prosecute the boys, dismissed the case. He said he was a boy once himself and if he had seen a dog laugh in prayer meeting he would have laughed too, law or no law.

BOY BURIED ALIVE.

Digging For Gophers When the Earth Fell.

Callaway, Neb., Aug. 27.—Claus Christenseon, aged 12 years, was killed yesterday by being buried alive. The boy was hunting for gophers, accompanied by the dog, and when night fell he failed to come home. Searching parties discovered his dog sitting near the dirt walls of a canyon. An investigation disclosed the boy's feet protruding from a mass of earth which had fallen on him. When dug out he was dead. It is supposed he had attempted to crawl into a hole after some wild animal.

REUNION OF THE HOUSE

There will be a "call of the house" at the state fair grounds at 2:30 o'clock next Tuesday afternoon, Sept. 1.

The house members of the Minnesota legislature will have their first reunion since the close of the thirty-third session at the state fair at that time, meeting in the Farmers' Institute building. Invitations are now out, approved by Julius Schmal, chief clerk, and Dr. L. W. Babcock, speaker, and signed by the committee, consisting of W. A. Nolan of Mower county; W. A. Hinton of Martin county; and Geo. A. Armstrong of Hennepin county.

The reunion is purely of a social nature, and an interesting program has been prepared. Most of the Duluth members will attend, and Representative P. Ellard Dowling of Eveleth, is down on the program for a talk on "What the Iron Ranges Do For the State."

The program follows:

Address of welcome, E. W. Randall; response, Speaker Babcock; "My Opinion of the Last Legislature," Julius Schmal, chief clerk; "The State Capitol," W. A. Nolan, who was foremost in the fight against the increased appropriation for the completion of the new building, and who referred to it in one speech as "pile of rubbish"; "Recollections of the Last Session," J. H. Burns ("Bobby" Burns); "Hennepin county," George A. Armstrong; "What the Iron Ranges Do For the State," P. E. Dowling; "Equal Taxation," J. O. Haugland; "The Sanatorium," A. L. Cole; "The State Fair," George W. Wilson; "The Farmer," Jas. R. Hickey.

POOR FISHING THIS YEAR

North Shore Streams Not Yielding Good Catches of Trout.

North shore trout fishing has been the poorest this season in years. This is partly due to the fact that low water was reported in all of the streams, and partly to the depletion naturally resulting from steady fishing without adequate re-stocking.

The Grand Marais streams are running low in trout, and the Devilstrack river is almost exhausted. In the Flutereed, at Chicago bay, there is not twenty-five per cent of the fishing there was last year, and in Reservation river there is almost no fishing at all. The condition of the latter stream is partly due to the proximity of logging camps engaged in cutting reservation timber, which are located not more than a mile away, giving the men in the camps a chance to spend their Sundays fishing.

Rock fishing along the shore is as good as usual, but in no Minnesota stream has there been anything like the catches that have been reported in the past few seasons. Efforts will be made by those who frequent these places to have some of the streams re-stocked next spring.

A STRANGE ACCIDENT

New Orleans, Aug. 27.—"The rejection of the canal treaty by Colombia," said a gentleman recently who has been following affairs in that country very closely for the last several years, "reminds me of one of the numerous revolutions in that republic, and how it was brought to an end by an accident. I don't remember which one it was—I mean its number, for I have lost my memorandum in which I had the revolutions of the last 40 years arranged alphabetically—that is, the name of the rebel leader, with each one numbered. Admiral Jewett, Captain McCalla and another American naval officer named Judd, were central figures in the tragedy that brought the revolution to a sudden termination. Admiral Jewett, it seems, who was in charge of the American forces at Colon, sent McCalla ashore with a detachment of marines to protect the American interests. Jewett wanted to get away and determined, without warrant or authority, to get the rebel leader and talk the matter over with him. He sent for the fellow—I've forgotten his name—and he came down to meet the admiral. In the meantime the rebels fearing that something might happen to their chief, captured Judd and took him to the mountains near where the conference was to take place, to watch the palavering from afar, telling Judd that if any harm befell their leader his life would pay the penalty. Before Jewett arrived, it seems, the Americans learned of the capture of Judd, and, the rebels guarding him being in sight, they took the rebel chief, placed a rope around his neck and made him stand upon a flat car in full view of the rebels in the mountains. It was not their purpose to injure him, only to secure the release of Judd. But the some way the car got started down hill, the chief was yanked from the car and suspended in midair. Every one was so surprised they never thought of cutting the rope for some time, and when they did the rebel leader was dead and the revolution had thus been brought to an end. But that does not end the story: One of the officers, a gallant fellow, who was afterward released by the rebels, became ill and was sent to New York. He was later sent to the insane asylum where he is at this time, laboring under the hallucination that the rebels are still after him. It seems that when he left Colon he had a large chunk of silver and when he left the steamer at New York he wandered about the streets aimlessly for a time, being finally taken care of by the police, then sent to the asylum."

ALBERTA WON

Third Championship Race In Inland Lake Regatta.

Oshkosh, Wis., Aug. 27.—The Alberta, the Neenah yacht, won the third championship race of the Inland Lakes Yachting regatta yesterday, defeating the Comet II by seven minutes and the Kayoshk by ten minutes.

In Class B, Venture, representing Oconomowoc Lake, defeated Pluto after a sensational race by three minutes. The leading boats in the championship races, with their percentages, are as follows: Alberta, 357 2-10; Comet II, 278 2-10; Kayoshk, 257 1-10. The races were sailed in a 12-mile southeast breeze.

PAPA—Oh, what a pain! I believe I have a fever in the heart. 558

MAMMA—Nonsense, it isn't your heart, it's your stomach. Every time you eat, this hot weather, you get a sour stomach full of hot gases and acids, and you swell up until your heart hardly has room to beat. If you were not so obstinate, you'd take my advice and keep your insides cool by taking a CASCARET Candy Cathartic every night before going to bed. They work while you sleep and keep you regular in the hottest weather.

IS A BUSY PLACE

Crystal Bay on North Shore Coming Into Much Activity.

Development of Corundum Deposits on Large Scale Under Way.

Crystal bay, on the north shore of Lake Superior, which when it was known as Pickwick bay, was as idle and lonely as any other portion of that rocky shore, is now a busy scene.

The company that is operating the corundum deposit there, in which W. A. McGonagle and other Duluth and Two Harbors people are interested, is going ahead with the construction of a crushing plant, timber for which is being unloaded from the steamer Bradshaw at nearly every trip.

The deposit is the one that was controlled by the Minnesota Abrasive company, of which Charles A. Towne was president. The new company succeeded to the interests of the old one, and is going on to develop the property in a business-like manner.

There is now a building for the use of the company's employes, and the foundations are being laid for the crushing plant that will put the rock in shape to be shipped. This plant will occupy a building 50 feet by 60 feet, and concrete foundations will be laid for the heavy machinery.

The hill from which the corundum is to be taken is less than three-quarters of a mile back from the shore, and the rock will be conveyed to the crusher, on the shore of the lake, by means of an aerial tramway, worked by gravity. The loaded cars will carry the empty ones back by their weight as they slide toward the crusher.

The machinery for the plant is now being unloaded from the cars in Duluth to a scow which will be towed to fCrystal bay as soon as it is full. The bay makes a tidy little harbor, and is comparatively safe from the effects of northeasters. There is a sandy beach that permits vessels to run almost into shore, resting their noses on the sand.

Next summer the company will be shipping its product in the crushed state.

THROWN UNDER THE WHEELS

Cloquet, Minn., Aug. 27.— Special to The Herald.)—John Salo, a Finlander, while attempting to board a moving train Wednesday afternoon a short distance from the city, was thrown under the wheels, narrowly escaping instant death. He was brought to Dr. Johnson's office, where it was found necessary to amputate one of his legs.

Elmer Lake, an employe of the Cloquet Lumber company, was accidentally killed Tuesday while at work in the sawmill.

Dan Kennedy, a questionable character, was arrested Tuesday shortly after landing in Cloquet, charged with stealing a watch from a fellow-passenger on the Great Northern train. The victim did not discover his loss until within six miles of the city, and suspecting Kennedy, he immediately returned to the city and notified Marshal McSweeney. Kennedy in the meantime had found his way to the island and disposed of the watch. Although pleading guilty, he was placed in the lockup to await his trial.

Mr. and Mrs. James Duff made a trip to Duluth Tuesday.

Mrs. Bovee, formerly of Carlton, died Sunday at the residence of her son at Sioux Falls, S. D., where she had made her home for some time. The remains were brought to Carlton, where interment took place on Tuesday from the Presbyterian church, and was witnessed by a large number of sorrowing friends. The deceased, who was in her 80th year, is survived by one daughter, Mrs. T. H. McMillan, of this city, and one son in Sioux Falls.

Misses Foran and Patenaude were calling on friends in Scanlon Wednesday.

Mrs. J. McManus and daughter returned from Chippewa Falls Tuesday.

Anthony Shannon came down from Embarras yesterday.

Mrs. A. Young returned Tuesday from a brief stay with friends in Duluth.

Mrs. Cash was shopping in the Zenith City this week.

Miss Ione Kattenberg, the guest of Miss Eva Cookson returned to her home Monday.

Miss Augusta Anderson returned Tuesday from Duluth, where she was called by the illness of her mother.

Mrs. W. G. Dolan was a Duluth visitor Monday.

Mrs. A. Headman is quite ill with bronchitis.

Mrs. W. C. Cobb entertained a number of her friends Wednesday afternoon.

Edgar Dalzell made a business trip to St. Paul this week.

Mrs. H. Oldenburg, of Carlton, was a Cloquet visitor Tuesday.

Mrs. J. J. Delascaille, of Davenport, Iowa, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Lynds this week.

Miss Josephine Phellon returned to her home in Minneapolis Monday, after a brief visit with friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Bywater are spending a few days in Duluth.

Bert Winslow, of West Superior, is in the city this week.

The Misses Ella Shiels and Julia Peachan attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Bovee at Carlton Tuesday.

Mrs. Bovee and daughter Gladys left for their home in Montana Wednesday after an extended visit with friends here.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Standing on the trap of the gallows, his hands and feet manacled, the sheriff adjusting the black cap, Sam Stiles was respited Wednesday for two days by Governor Lanham. The negro was charged with having murdered Diomed Ward because of infatuation for his wife.

Great volumes of water are pouring down the Blue river, in Kansas, and the current was never known before to be so swift. Much driftwood is floating down. The river continues to rise last night at a rapid rate. The water now reaches the 14-foot gauge. No trains have reached Manhattan from the North since Saturday.

An unknown man killed at Emporia, Kas., Wednesday, by a Santa Fe train had a ticket in his pocket showing that he was traveling from Minneapolis to Denver. The only name found on his person was that of Vincent Gerald, 127 Union avenue, Minneapolis.

Gen. Nelson A. Miles, who came as the guest of the New Hampshire Veterans' association, arrived at the Weirs from California Wednesday. He was received with a salute of seventeen guns and escorted to the soldiers' pavilion for dinner. Wednesday afternoon Gen. Miles spoke at a camp fire of the association.

Driven insane by the heat, Earnest McQuade, a negro tracklayer employed by the Louisville City railway, struck Waverly Thomas, a fellow laborer, on the head with a pick ax. Reuben James, in attempting to get beyond the reach of McQuade, released a crowbar under a rail which, in springing up, cut a deep gash in James' neck. The injuries of Thomas and James are believed to be fatal.

The revenue cutter McCulloch dropped anchor in Victoria harbor Wednesday morning from Nome, having on board the sub-committee of the senate committee on territories. The members of the committee are evidently persuaded that Alaska should have a delegate in congress, but probably are not prepared to make him elective. The construction of a national highway from Valdez to Eagle Bay by government aid seems to be regarded with favor.

REMARKABLE SPECTACLE

Vesuvius Belches Forth Fiery Lava From New Opening.

Naples, Aug. 27.—The people of Naples and the environs witnessed a remarkable spectacle at noon yesterday. One thousand feet below the central cone of Vesuvius the volcano opened like a huge mouth, out of which belched a fiery stream of lava, which ran down the side of the mountain and at first seemed to menace the observatory. This building, however, is protected in the direction of the stream by a mound of lava, 200 feet high, which was thrown out during the eruptions of 1895 and 1900. The eruption occurred without warning whatever. There was no earthquake, detonation or rain of ashes, nothing but a clear stream of lava and red-hot stones, which were thrown to a height of 700 feet, producing an extremely beautiful effect as seen from Naples. The stream of lava, which was fifteen feet broad, had covered a distance of 2700 feet. It deviated later from the direction of the observatory, which is no longer menaced. The only danger is for the new electric tramway up the volcano, which, however, has thus far not been touched. The eruption already seems to be decreasing, and it is hoped that no damage will result from it.

The spectators far enough away not to be frightened stood entranced at the spectacle, but those nearer to the volcano were seized by panic when the eruption began and rushed down from the sides of the mountain and from the adjacent county to the villages of Portici and Rosini, which are built over the ruins of Herculaneum. The alarm in these villages was somewhat quieted by the mayor affixing notices declaring that there was no danger, and exhorting the people to remain calm.

The chief of police of Naples has gone personally to make a tour of the villages around Vesuvius in order to reassure the people and superintend any measure of protection which may be deemed necessary. The superstitious lower classes are agitating the expulsion of Professor Krum, of Munich, who predicted the eruption, declaring that he has the "evil eye."

A FATAL RIDE.

Pawtucket, R. I., Aug. 27.—Jennie Montague, a telephone operator, is dead, and her companion, John F. Bannon, is said to be insane as a result of a runaway last night. For half a mile the pair clung to their seat in the carriage. Then the girl jumped, and a few yards further Bannon followed her example. Miss Montague died an hour later. Bannon escaped with painful body bruises, but as soon as he learned of his companion's condiliton, he became mad with grief.

HAY FEVER'S CONQUEROR

Breathe Hyomei and Escape this Dreaded Summer Visitor.

By the use of Hyomei you can save an expensive trip to the mountains and escape weeks of suffering. This remarkable remedy for the cure of hay fever kills the germs of the disease, soothes and heals the irritated mucous membrane, if used two or three weeks before the time of the usual appearance of hay fever will prevent the attack.

The complete Hyomei treatment consists of a neat pocket inhaler, through which Hyomei is breathed, a bottle of Hyomei and a medicine dropper. The air taken into the lungs in this way is filled with healing balsams and forms a perfect safeguard aginst attacks of hay fever or rose cold.

Those who have had hay fever know how little help can be gained by stomach dosing in this disease. Hyomei is the only scientific yet common-sense treatment for the trouble.

It is easy enough for anyone to say that a remedy can give satisfaction, but S. F. Boyce offers to refund the money if Hyomei does not do all that is claimed for it, certainly inspires faith in the treatment.

Hyomei really gives you in your own home a change of climate, and hay fever sufferers know from past experience that this has been the only thing that afforded them relief. By breathing Hyomei a few times daily, you can save the expense and trouble of a mountain trip and avoid all danger of hay fever.

WATERING LANDS

Snake River to Moisten Area of 244,000 Acres.

Boise, Idaho, Aug. 27.—One of the modern miracles is irrigation. Wherever water has been applied to the lips of the thirsty earth the name desert has lost its signaficance. If it were possible for some old warrior of the bygone ages to pass this way again and see how portions of his arid haunt have been nursed into life by the skill of the white man, the sight would cause him to think he was the victim of some trick in magic.

The arid belt has been aptly described as an oversight of nature. The soil has the germs of life, but they remain dormant without water. In many instances there is an abundance of moisture nearby, but it has never had access to the famished land. In bringing them together man is getting the results that nature intended but failed to altogether provide for.

Providing water to quench the age-long thirst of these lost lands has given rise to many undertakings which are as novel as they are gigantic. One of these is in Idaho. On the Snake river—so called because it is as crooked as a reptile in a hurry—are the Shoshone and Twin falls, second and third, respectively, in importance to great Niagara. The last named have a fall of 184 feet.

Sloping gently to the westward from these falls is a tract of land 244,000 acres in extent, which is as barren as a floor, and where the sun is generally hot enough to blister the back of a jack rabbit. If the water can be saved from the falls and distributed over that area almost anything will grow upon it. That has been proven. The task of saving it is now under way. The whole scheme of canals and laterals will constitute a system requiring over 1000 miles of excavation. The main canal will be 80 feet wide at the bottom and will carry a volume of water ten feet in depth.

The farthest point where water will be delivered will be seventy miles from the falls. By the state of Idaho making application the land to be reclaimed by this scheme has been withdrawn from the public domain. This means that the United States government has transferred title to the state. Every buyer of a water right is to be a stockholder in the canal. When one-half the land, or one-half the capacity of the canal, is sold to settlers, after the completion of the system, they then take possession and control of it. Work on this giant undertaking began last April, and it will require three years to complete it.

In Utah another big undertaking will soon be under way to restore 160,000 acres of land. Up in the mountains of the Mormon state, only a short distance from the world-famous dead sea, there is a great shallow pond of water, about twenty-three miles long and eight feet deep on the average. This body of water is formed from the accumulation of melted snow from the surrounding mountains, and is really nothing more than a flooded plateau. When the dry season sets in the sun begins to steal the moisture from the lake, and during each summer takes away four feet of its depth by evaporation. This is a great loss, because in the plain below there is an immense district lying parched and lifeless for want of moisture. The problem is to stop the depredations of the greedy, thieving sun, and get this water into the valley.

First the area of the valley will be decreased and its depth increased. Depth reduces evaporation. Dikes will be constructed so as to cut off all the surrounding marshes. Then the bottom of the lake proper, which is not over sixteen feet deep at any point—there being stretches of many miles where a man could wade without getting over his head—will be dredged. The deposit taken from the bed of the lake will be used in filling the low marshes outside the dikes.

The distribution will be accomplished through the agency of the Jordan river, a stream which flows out of the Utah lake into the great Salt Lake. The plan of deepening the upper lake will make it a reservoir to retain the surplus water so that it can be used to gladden into life that yearning soil of the valley. A district thirty miles in extent will be redeemed by this plan. It should be understood that twenty acres of irrigated land is about as productive as 160 acres of prairie soil, so this district, thirty miles wide, is really equal to a strip of 150 miles of new territory in the rain belt. The authorities estimate that it will support over 500 families.

The men who are engaged in farming by the new method seem to be universally enthusiastic over its possibilities. One of them said: "It is no more difficult to learn to irrigate than it is to learn to run a self-binder or a hay press. Irrigation guarantees crops. We do not have to wait or pray for rain, but just simply put the water on at will. A man must know how to use his water, for instance, to put lots of it on tomatoes, and very little on potatoes. One great advantage is that we do not have to trust to luck to get rain when it is needed for the maturing crop, nor are we worried over the prospect of storms during our harvest."

Another authority said: "Any one unacquainted with irrigation and the conditions prevailing in arid regions, upon settling in an arid country will do well to heed the following suggestions: Grains, grasses and vegetables should be planted early enough to be brought up by the spring rain, so that they are well out of the ground before irrigation is required. This prevents the soil from washing and baking. When such crops have to be irrigated before they are up they are not generally so good. It is better to incur the risk of frosts, from which there is little danger, than by late planting, risk having to irrigate in order to bring up the crops.

"It is advisable for people of moderate means not to attempt the cultivation of too much land. Eighty acres is enough, 160 an abundance, 320 a misfortune and 640 a calamity. In those parts particularly favorable to fruit raising the mistake is frequently made by settlers in moderate circumstances setting out large orchards the first or second year. This is unwise, because during the first four or five years an orchard is a continual source of expense without affording any returns, and the result to settlers is serious embarrassment if not actual distress."

The Hon. F. T. Dubois, United States senator from Idaho, is one of the best posted men in the West on all matters pertaining to irrigation. When asked for a statement concerning the new law, he replied:

"The last congress passed the most comprehensive and far-reaching of all irrigation laws, which is generally known as the reclamation act. On the first day of the assembling of congress the senators, representatives and delegates from seventeen states and territoies, representing the entire arid and semi-arid belt, met in conference and appointed a committee of seventeen, one from each state and territory, to frame a general irrigation law.

"My colleagues selected me to represent Idaho, and I had the privilege of presiding over nearly all the meetings which were held during the following two months, when the committee met almost nightly, remaining in session each time for three or four hours. The conditions and necessities of the different states and territories were so at variance that it required the utmost patience, liberality and yielding of views on the part of all to harmonize the conflicting interests.

"Finally, however, the committee submitted the results of its labor (which with few changes, is the present act) to all the representatives from the seventeen states and territories. It was promptly ratified by them, and with this powerful force behind the measure it passed congress and became a law without much difficulty.

"The law fully expresses the intention of the general government, and is clear and explicit. By its provisions, all of the money derived from the sale of public lands is set apart—after deducting the expenses necessary to maintain the United States land offices—and is to be used by the secretary of the interior to build reservoirs and canals, to reclaim desert lands which are too difficult and too costly for private capital to reclaim.

"The lands under the canals constructed by the government are to be taken up by settlers under easy conditions. The laws of the respective states and territories are to be in full force as to the use and distribution of the waters, and the canals are to be turned over to the settlers when certain stipulated conditions are complied with. The reservoirs and works necessary for their protection remain in the possession of the government until the government itself, by specific act of congress, shall otherwise provide.

"The settled policy of congress to stimulate private enterprise in the development of the arid wastes, is not unchanged by this act. It is not the design of the government to store flood waters or appropriate streams which are needed for the successful carrying on of irrigation works already constructed by individual or corporate effort, but it was contemplated that the work done by private parties should be supplemented, through government aid.

"For illustration: All the waters of Boise river have been appropriated. Probably a vast amount of flood water which now runs to waste could be stored through a system of reservoirs at or near the source of the stream. This impounded water could be used in reclaiming vast tracts of land along the Boise river which cannot be reached by the natural flow of the stream. The water rights already acquired along the river would, of course, be respected and strengthened.

"The design of the law is to charge enough for the lands irrigated under the act to pay for the cost of construction of the work, and this fund to be used in other projects. The fund is thus made a perpetual one, and will be utilized until all lands susceptible of irrigation are irrigated.

"Under this act, lands shall be subject to entry only under the provisions of the homestead law, the commutation clause being eliminated, and in tracts of not less than forty nor more than 160 acres, and the right to the use of the water for land thus entered shall not be sold to any one land owner for a tract exceeding 160 acres.

"In my judgment, with the aid of this wise legislation, there will be a wonderful development, and the arid West will be transformed and made one of the great agricultural regions of the world."

The transformation of the arid districts is really a novel sight. Along the railroad right of way the ground is parched and brown, but just beyond the barb wire fence that little stream of life-giving fluid has caused the seeming miracles and the green carpet of meadow stretches over the floor of the desert. The telephone pole and the rural mail box have begun their invasion of the sage brush. The coyote and the jack rabbit are still retreating. Out in the blazing valleys, where desolation has so long been king, bronzed men sweat in the toil of planting seed, and happy women sing as they bustle about in the performance of household duties.

NAME WRITTEN ON BANK NOTE

Leads to Peculiar Affection of Two Young Ladies.

Binghampton, N. Y., Aug. 27.—A most peculiar romance, without a man for a hero, has culminated here in the meeting of Miss Edna C. Lindsey, of Dayton, Ohio, and Miss Clara Colby, of 359 Main street, Oswego, N. Y. Both are society women, Miss Colby being a wealthy social leader. Last September she placed her initials and last name on a crisp five-dollar note in a spirit of fun, giving her address—then, womanlike, she spent the bill.

The money in its transmission as currency found its way to Dayton, Ohio, and fell into the hands of Miss Edna C. Lindsey, of that city. She noted the name and address, and in a spirit of curiosity determined to discover the writer. She wrote C. E. Colby, telling that a bill evidently belonging to "him" had come into her possession, but received a reply saying it was or had been at one time the property of Clara Colby, who much desired a further acquaintance. The course usually pursued by members of the opposite sex which results in a wedding was pursued.

An exchange of letters was followed by an interchange of photographs; then, as usual, each fell in love with the other's picture, and, though both were women, it only seemed to intensify the remarkable attachment. Miss Colby asked her strangely found friend, Miss Lindsey, to "come East," arranging that each should know the other by wearing a red carnation. The invitation was accepted, and now Miss Lindsey is here. Each is charmed with the other's society, and they are inseparable companions.

INDIANA LABORER

Is Stumped By Falling Heir to Fortune.

Elkhart, Ind., Aug. 27.—After more than half a century of hard work as a common laborer, Moses H. Barron, of this city, has received word that he is heir to $1,500,000 estate left by a maiden aunt, Miss Fidella Barron, who died in New York three years ago.

For twenty-two years prior to his aunt's death he had called himself Scott, which was the name of his maternal grandfather, having adopted it to gratify a whim of his grandfather, because there was no male Scotts in the family. Barron is employed at present at the Elkhart Bridge works in an humble position.

The estate consists of rural and urban lands in various parts of New York state, with the bulk in Jefferson county. The property was acquired by the aunt herself, who was very close in her dealings, and exercised good judgmen in investing her hoardings, the land purchased by her growing rapidly in value. When asked what he expected to do with the money, Mr. Barron was "stumped."

THE BRIDE'S HEART BROKEN

When Her Parents Refused to Forgive Her Elopement.

Canton, Ohio, Aug. 27.—Mysterious circumstances surround the death of Mrs. Thomas Holsea, the three-weeks bride of this city, who was found in her home, 227 Saxton street. The woman was 19 years old and beautiful. A broken heart, the physician saw, was the cause of death. A post-mortem will be held by Coroner Schlitz to determine whether or not she had taken poison.

The girl was the daughter of J. K. Robson of this city. Previous to her marriage to Holsea she had been courted by another Cantonian, who met the favor of the girl's parents. They insisted that she marry this man, but she wedded Holsea.

Mr. and Mrs. Robson, the coroner says, refuse to forgive, and told her "never to darken their door again." The young woman grieved until death ended her tribulations. She is said to have developed melonchollia, which brought on acute insanity. Holsea suspected that she might attempt self-destruction, and kept her under close surveillance, but this morning he was called from the house suddenly, and when he returned a few hours later the form of his wife in her night clothing was found near their bedroom door. The body was yet warm, but the physicians, who were called immediately were unable to restore life. Holsea is prostrated. The funeral services will be held in the cottage where Holsea and his bride made their home.

ROOSEVELT'S SON

Wagers He Will Excell the President's Record.

Deadwood, S. D., Aug. 27.—Young Teddy Roosevelt will attempt to outride his father and make a better showing on horseback for one day than the president did on his famous ride from Laramie to Cheyenne, Wyo., during his Western trip last spring. It is said here that the young man made a bet with the president before leaving Oyster Bay that his record would be better than that made by his father.

The trip will be over rougher ground than was the president's, as young Teddy will go through the very heart of the Black Hills. The route chosen is seventy miles long, ten miles longer than the Laramie-Cheyenne trip. Relays of horses have been arranged for, but the date of the ride is not yet fixed.

IMPORTS OF PIG IRON

Are Proof There Is No Stagnation In Our Industries.

Cost a Much Larger Sum Than American Pig Iron.

Philadelphia, Aug. 27.—In a New New York letter to the Press, "Holland" says: A day or two ago a summary, carefully prepared, telling of the aggregate investments in the United States in the fiscal year ending June 30 of capital in building of all kinds, principally business structures in the cities and towns, demonstrated that some curtailment, some check in this activity was noticeable, the investment, in fact, being nearly one-sixth less than the investment of the previous fiscal year. Upon the same day that this compendium was made public there appeared from another and widely different, but equally authoritative, source the figures that told of a detail of the imports into the United States for the fiscal year ending June 30 last. It was of an article so utterly unromantic as pig iron, and the figures report that in the fiscal year just ended the United States imported of this raw material nearly 900,000 tons.

Those who have been very confident that the enormous liquidations that have been in progress in the Wall street exchanges during the summer would not hereafter be reflected, and therefore some dullness, something like stagnation in general industry would prevail, may find in these figures something that may cause them to pause and think. For while the depreciation in value of the stocks that are dealt in upon the floor of the exchanges may of themselves represent losses which on the whole the owners of or the speculators in these stocks may be able to endure without absolute loss of credit or financial ruin, yet exactly the kind of curtailment of which this liquidation was the manifestation is indicated in a part of the figures reported in the preceding paragraph.

That the United States should have imported nearly 900,000 tons of pig iron would be accepted by almost every one as of itself impressive proof of the magnitude of our domestic industries. It was, in fact, said in the year when this importation was being made that the domestic demand for American steel and iron products was so enormous that in spite of our many furnaces and forges, in spite of the superb facilities for production possessed by some of the greater corporations, in spite of the enormity of our iron mines, and the proximity of many of them to fuel, nevertheless we were unable to produce enough raw iron to make it possible for the manufacturers of the finished product to meet the demands that were made upon them.

That statement was for the time being perfectly true. Every iron and steel producer knew that our production of the finished article would not have met the demand if we had been unable to obtain from other countries a supply of pig iron and a very large supply. But it was said today by one who stands almost pre-eminent as a financier that if the United States cannot produce pig iron enough to meet the demands of the steel and iron producers then there is something that is amiss. We ought certainly to be able, if any country is able, to supply the market for raw iron no matter what the demand may be.

Behind the superficial and for the time being gratifying statement that the domestic market for iron and steel products was so enormous that we were compelled to import nearly 900,000 tons of pig iron there lies lurking the unfavorable impulse whose first manifestation is seen in the statement made at the beginning of this letter that there was a falling off in building operations in the last building year of about 15 per cent as compared with the next preceding year. It is true that some part of this falling off, and especially in New York city, it is to be traced to the friction contractors and builders have been compelled to meet with because of labor difficulties.

But the labor troubles explain only a part of this falling away, and when sufficient allowance is made for the cessation of building caused by strikes and lockouts there still remains a very monitory figure representing the curtailment in building, the checking of the enormous building expansion which was one of the most striking features of that unparalleled era of commercial and industrial and stock-manufactured expansion which has recently come to an end.

The experts of the iron and steel trade—and these have no superior in any trade—report that the pig iron that was imported into the United States during the fiscal year just ended was equal to the capacity of twelve furnaces producing 200 tons a day, or approximately equivalent to that capacity. But this raw material cost when laid down at the manufactories a much larger sum than the American pig iron would have cost.

POSED AS MINE BROKERS

In Philadelphia But Their Photos Adorn Rogues' Gallery.

New York, Aug. 27.—New York patrons of Clark, Drake & Harper, bankers and brokers, in the Orient building at Wall and Pearl streets, were surprised to learn that the front two-thirds of the firm was composed of Chappie Moran, alias Chappie Lewis, who is well known to the police, and who is a notorious confidence man and wire-tapper, and Larry Somerfield, who is under indictment for the Horse Shoe Copper Mining company swindle, for which four confederates are serving time.

The firm has closed its doors, and its handsome office furniture is in the hands of a marshal to satisfy a levy made when a check was drawn by William H. Harper, the junior member of the firm, in payment for last month's rent, was returned marked "n. g." Harper drew a check on a Butte bank. He lived in Montana before he came to New York.

Creditors of the firm will be more interested in learning that after leaving the local field Moran and Somerfield went to Philadelphia, where they have established offices in the Bourse building, adjoining the Philadelphia Consolidated Stock Exchange, under the firm name of Clark, Drake & Underhill.

The name of the Montana Copper Mining company, which they represented here, is printed in gold letters under the firm name. Clark and Drake, otherwise known as Moran and Somerfield, have made indirect efforts to secure memberships in the exchange. The fact, that their pictures are in the rogues' gallery in every big city has interfered with their chances of admission.

A reporter who called at the office of Clark, Drake & Underhill, in Philadelphia, and asked for Mr. Clark, was welcomed by Chappie Moran. When he saw that he was recognized Moran led the way into his handsomely furnished private office.

"I came here," he said, "to live down my past in New York. Friends tell me that a man who was as clever as I have been at crooked schemes could make more money by being on the level. I've put all my money into this business and I'm about broke. If you have to roast me let me down as easy as you can."

In the Bourse Building and the Philadelphia Consolidated Exchange, in which they aspire to membership, Moran and Somerfield have many companions who have achieved notoriety among the officers and active men in the exchange.

SPRING UP QUICKLY

Many Little Towns Growing In the Little Fork Valley.

Located In Advance of Railroads and Boom When It Comes.

"Few Duluth people realize the manner in which Itasca county, and the Little Fork valley are becoming dotted with little towns, and villages" said a prominent Duluth citizen, who has recently returned from a trip through that country.

"A town that has reached the age of three years is considered an old one. It has its mayor, aldermen, telephone, electric lights, churches, railroad and daily mails.

"But the new towns are springing up in advance of the railroads, and only await the coming of the road to boom in a manner that fairly takes the breath away from one who is not accustomed to this rapid way of doing things.

"Northome is a good example of this kind of a town. The town has been successively named New Bridgie, Phena and Northome, and it is now a full-fledged town with banks, hotels, churches and school houses, although the railroad has not yet touched there.

"It is not far distant, however, and it is only a question of a few weeks until the trains will be running into the town.

Ripple is another little city that promises to become a flourishing centre.

The growth of Nashwauk is well known to Duluth people. In a little over a year it has grown from nothing to a town of over two thousand inhabitants.

"Muscoda is the name of a town just platted and started on the Little Fork river. The territory about it is one of the most fertile agricultural regions in the state, and the records of the Duluth land office will show the manner in which the residents of this portion of the state are beginning to appreciate that. The surveyed townships in the vicinity of the Little Fork river are being settled very rapidly, and large numbers of settlers are going in on the unsurveyed townships, waiting for the plats to be filed at the land office, in order that they may have first chance at the land.

"Goodland, Snowball and Feely are names hat are probably unknown to the majority of the citizens of Duluth, yet they are ambitious and thriving little villages, destined to become some day, important farming and manufacturing centres.

"There are dozens of such little cities that have sprung up almost in a night in this north country, and even the residents of the locality have difficulty in keeping track of them all, while one who has not visited the country for a year or two, is amazed to find a thriving little village where he left a solitary settler's cabin or even an unbroken wilderness."

SERIOUS FIRES AT CHICAGO

Rock Island Freight House and Other Buildings Burn.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—The local fire department was worked almost to the limit last night, there being more fires burning at one time than there have been in the last ten days put together. The most serious fire of the night was that in the freight house of the Rock Island road, situated at the corner of Polk and Sherman streets. It is not known what started the blaze, but it is supposed to have originated in a carpenter shop in the building. The flames when discovered had made great headway and when the first engines responded to the alarm it was evident that the greater part of the structure was doomed. Special calls for additional engines were made and the fireboats in the service of the city were soon at work, but in spite of the department, the building and its contents were almost entirely destroyed. The freight house, which was a block long, 200 feet wide and two stories high, was filled with outgoing freight and it will be impossible for several days to state the loss with accuracy. It is estimated, however, that it will amount to $500,000.

Just before this fire broke out the store of A. H. Revell & Co., at Adams street and Wabash avenue, was damaged by fire to the extent of $40,000. Five other fires, which were small affairs, were burning at the time of the freight house fire. They were for the most part within a few squares of the freight house, and compelled the weakening of the department in its fight to save the Rock Island property.

At the time the fires were in progress the heaviest rain of the season was falling.

FOLEY FLED

Thinly Clad When the Indignant Husband Appeared.

North eVrnon, Ind., Aug. 27.J. E. Clark, alias James Foley, is in the city jail, and all on account of a woman. He came here a month ago and stopped at one of the leading hotels and registered as J. E. Clark of Washington, D. C. Two weeks ago his wife, a stunning-looking woman, joined him.

Yesterday the real J. E. Clark, from Washington, D. C., arrived here on the hunt for his wife, who he learned had bought a ticket from Washington to North Vernon. He got Policeman Gus Schwake and they went to the couple's room and knocked. After an interval she came to the door attired in a silk negligee, and the officer told her he wanted her companion, and they entered the room. When the enraged husband saw his spouse he slapped her soundly, and then spied Foley, who was in bed. The husband jumped on him with both feet, when he made a shoot for the door, and, attired only in his night shirt, ran through the hotel and yard and hid in the warehouse where he was unearthed and taken to jail.

Clark took his wife back to Washington. Clark says he will take her home to her mother.

DE WICKOFF ACQUITTED.

Havana, Aug. 27.—The criminal court yesterday afternoon acquitted Joseph De Wickoff, an American lawyer, of the charge of misappropriating $10,000 sent to him by Michael J. Dady, of Brooklyn, for the purpose of securing an option upon the aqueduct of Cienfuegos. The purchase was not consummated, and De Wickoff did not return the money. The contention of the defense that the power of attorney given by Dady to De Wickoff was not special but general; that Dady owed Wickoff more than $10,000, and that De Wickoff was justified in applying the money to that account. The court agreed that De Wickoff's business relations with Dady justified his applying the money to other purposes than the purchase of the aqueduct.

WEATHER MARKET

Market Has An Advance —Flax Is Dull and Steady.

Duluth Board of Trade, Aug. 27.—The wheat market today was a cent above the closing price yesterday at one time, but it fell off later, and while it closed with an advance it was not a large one. The weather condition in the Northwest is largely the cause of the bullish feeling. There were rains or threatening weather nearly everywhere yesterday and last night and much uneasiness is felt for its effect on the wheat crop of the Northwest. Cables were higher also. Primary receipts continue light. Export business was not heavy, however, the seaboard reporting only seven loads of wheat and 4 of corn.

The gain in December wheat in the Duluth market was ½c, while September advanced only ¼c. In the past week December has gained 1⅛c, and September only ¼c. In Minneapolis, September gained ⅝c and December ⅛c. In Chicago the gain was ⅝-½c in both options. Southwestern markets were stronger on the September, St. Louis gaining ¾-⅞c, and Kansas City, ½-⅝c. The December option was not so strong gaining ⅝c in both markets. In New York September was up ⅝c and December ⅜c.

The Liverpool market closed with an advance of ¾d. Paris was 1¼ to 2¼c lower. Antwerp unchanged. Berlin 1c higher and Buda Pest ¾c higher.

Primary receipts of wheat were 677,000 bus; last year 936,000 bus. Shipments, 195,000 bus; last year, 723,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 656,000 bus.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 294 cars, and at Chicago 81, a total of 345 cars, against 310 last week and 655 last year.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed unchanged to ½d higher. December corn in the Chicago market closed ¼-¾c higher, and December oats a shade higher. Primary receipts of corn were 514,000 bus, last year 990,000 bus. Shipments 619,000 bus; last year 119,000 bus. Clearances were 56,000 bus.

Trading in the Duluth market was quiet, September opened ½c up at 83c, sold at 83½c at 10:10 and then fell off, dropping to 83c at 11 and 82½c at 12:25. The close was 82¾c. December opened ¼c up at 80⅝c, sold off to 80⅛c and advanced to 81c, closing at 80⅞c.

Cash prices were unchanged at 5c over September for old No. 1 northern, 2c over for new No. 1 northern on track, and September price for new No. 1 northern to arrive. Sales were 25,000 bus.

Car receipts are increasing somewhat, but not very rapidly, owing to the unfavorable weather for threshing. There were on track today about 45 cars. The grain is grading especially well thus far. Out of 27 cars inspected yesterday, 21 graded No. 1 northern. Of the cars on track today about two-thirds are contract grade.

Flax was quiet and higher during the earlier part of the day, but weaker afterward. October sold ½c up to $1.01¼ and then fell to $1.00½ and closed at $1.00¾. This was unchanged. September and December advanced ¼c and November was unchanged.

In coarse grains rye was up ½c and oats ¼c. Barley is coming in in large quantities—58 cars posted today and about 50 on track.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat in store: Old No. 1 hard, 87¾c; No. 1 northern, 87¼c. New to arrive, No. 1 hard, 83¾c; No. 1 northern, 82¾c; No. 2 northern, 80½c. New No. 1 northern in store or to arrive in August, 84¾c; No. 2 northern, 82¾c. Macaroni No. 1, 60c; No. 2, 55c; September, 82½c; December, 80c; May, 83¾c. Flax in store, $1.00½; on track, $1.00¾; to arrive, $1.00½; September, $1.00½; October, $1.00¾; November, $1.01; December, $1.01¼; May, $1.04½. Oats in store, 25½c; on track, 25½c; to arrive in September, 25½c. Rye on track, 52c; to arrive, 52c; to arrive in September, 52c, Barley, 35@57c.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Opening In Wheat Strong On Higher Cables.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—The opening in wheat was very strong on higher cables and continued wet weather in the Northwest. September was ¼@⅜c to ⅝@⅝c higher at 81c to 81¾c and December ⅛c to ⅝c up at 82¾c to 82⅝c. There was extensive covering by shorts which offset selling by profit taking longs and the market held strong at the advance. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 294 cars with local receipts of 51 cars, 12 contract and the total receipts for the three points of 345 cars against 310 last week and 555 a year ago.

There was free selling later by yesterday's buyers with profits at the advance and a reaction occurred in September to 81c. December touched 83c before the market weakened, declining later to 82¼@⅜c. There was a rally toward the close on a forecast for showers and cooler in the Northwest, final figures being ¾@¼c higher for September at 81⅝c, with December up ⅝@½c at 82⅝@⅝c.

September corn was up ⅛c to ⅜c at 51c to 51⅜c and December correspondingly higher at 51¼@½c. Cables were about steady and the strong opening was partly in sympathy with wheat and partly on wet weather west. Prices held well at higher figures. Receipts, 211 cars, 22 contract grade.

There was an early decline in prices due largely to the easier feeling in wheat and conflicting crop advices, but prices generally ruled steady, September closing at 51c, a gain of ¼c after touching 51¼@⅜c.

Oats were also strong on weather, prices being unchanged to ⅜c higher, September at 34¾c to 35c and December at 30⅝@⅝c. There was good buying and prices held well. Receipts, 149 cars.

Provisions were quiet and somewhat easier with hogs. September pork was 5c lower at $12.60; lard, unchanged at $8.20, and ribs 5c lower at $7.62½.

Close: Wheat—September, 81¼c; old, 87¼c; December, 82¾@⅞c; old, 82⅝c; May, 84½c. Corn, August, 51c; September, 51c; December, 51¼@⅜c; May, 53⅝@⅝c. Oats, August, 34⅝c; September, 34¾c; December, 30⅛c; May, 38½c. Pork, September, $12.50; October, $12.67½; May, $13.02½. Lard, September, $8.25; October, $7.57½; December, $7.62; January, $6.97½. Ribs, September, $7.60; October, $7.70; January, $6.60. Rye, September, 52½c; December, 54½c; May, 56c. Flax, cash Northwestern, $1.01¼; Southwestern, 97c; September, 97c; October, 96c. Timothy, September, $3.20; October, $3.12½. Clover, October, $9.00. Barley, cash, 45@56c. Cash wheat No. 2 red, 82½@83⅝c; No. 3 red, 81½@82c; No. 2 hard winter, 81c; No. 3 hard winter, 80@80½c; No. 1 northern spring, 90c; No. 2 northern spring, 87c; No. 3 spring, 83c. Corn, No. 2, 51½@⅝c; No. 3, 51¼@⅜c. Oats, No. 2, 32½c; No. 3, 32@⅜c.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Threshing returns continue to bring good news to grain men. New York Mills, Minn., in a district where failure was expected has yields running from 10 to 17 bus. Alice, N. D., reports 15 bus of wheat, 20 of barley, 10 of flax and 15 of macaroni wheat. Crookston reports Northern Pacific north of Fargo reports yields from different fields of 15, 11, 9, 11, 13 and 16 bus.

Bartlett, Frazier & Co., Chicago: Our Liverpool house cables as follows: "The weather in England continues very unfavorable, and the heavy rains have done considerable damage. In France the conditions are favorable for harvesting. In Germany the weather continues unfavorable. Wheat is advancing, affected by the bad weather report. Corn is steady.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Cash business in Chicago yesterday was 400,000 bus corn, part of it No. 2. It included 25,000 yellow at 2½c over September in store, and 25,000 bus white at September prices. Chicago exporters sold 56,000 bus wheat to go out by the Gulf. The seaboard exporters bought 320,000 bus and 100,000 bus corn. Charters here were for 460,000 bus corn on the basis of 1c to Buffalo.

Cincinnati Price Current: Corn moderately improved, 2,000,000,000 bus or more now probable. Wheat situation not materially changed; tendency in interior to sell corn and hold wheat.

C. M. Boynton wires from Mason City, Iowa: "From Jefferson to Spencer, and Spencer to Mason City, the only good corn I have seeen in through central portion of state. Northern part is flat, and late corn does not look as well as a month ago. It has tasseled short and ears are very small and scattering, much of it will never make corn. In fact, in going over the state this time it strikes me that it will not produce much, if any more than it promised a month ago. What was good then is good now and has made good progress toward maturity. What was poor then looks even poorer now. The late corn is a sickly yellow, very short, and has no vitality, and I do not think much is to be hoped for it. It is my judgment that Iowa will need very good weather until Oct. 1 to raise two thirds of an average crop."

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market about ½c higher. It is higher here on cables and further rains caused covering of shorts early. The advance this brought was lost but the market reacted and closed strong. The situation seems too strong one. So far as conditions of supply and demand are concerned, we do not recall a time when the world's looked stronger. The vast majority of speculators in wheat have no conception of the value of these facts. They must have crop damage or war news or something sensational to maintain their courage. A market that advances on the demand for wheat in excess of supplies is too slow for them. They take their profits, if any, at a small advance and run from their holdings on small decline. Cash markets everywhere are strong and higher. With very little help from foreign buying so far, millers are unable to get supplies of wheat to fill their accepted orders for flour. Whether the northwest crop moves a week earlier or a week later is of minor importance, the question is, will it be wanted when it moves. We see nothing in the conditions hopeful to the bear on wheat.

Corn—Market is fractionally higher. Heavy rains throughout the West with indications rather favorable for cooler weather to follow are the causes. The crop is still in doubt and the weather still the important factor. The cash situation is about a standoff and the market has developed no decided tendency beyond scalping operations.

Oats—Market is a shade higher and quiet. As of late it sympathizes mainly with the action of corn and wheat. The best local holders seem disposed to unload their holdings on the strong spots. The cash demand continues a fairly healthy one and receipts moderate.

DULLNESS RULED

In Stock Marked and the Fluctuations Were Narrow.

Prices Sagged Early But the Closing Was Stronger.

New York, Aug. 27.—The opening movement of prices was irregular and within a very narrow range for prominent stocks. Erie was carried down ⅝ by realizing on the favorable annual report. Texas & Pacific and St. Paul fell about as much. Among the specialties Colorado Fuel rose 2, Anaconda 3¾ and Wheeling and Lake Erie second preferred 4, while North American fell 1¾.

Professional traders resumed their selling tactics of yesterday and forced prominent railroad stocks a large fraction below yesterday's close. The Western stocks and the coalers were the most agected, large sales of Atchison and Erie diffusing the weakness in kindred stocks. Anaconda moved erratically and reacted 1½. Snuff and Hide preferred dropped 2 and Erie second preferred, Rock Island and National of Mexico preferred 1. International Paper preferred advanced 1⅝.

Prices drifted sluggishly downward, losses reaching a point in St. Paul, New York Central, General Electric and Consolidated Gas, the last named ex-dividend and ex-subscription rights. Erie second preferred fell 1¼ and Paper preferred reacted 2, while Lead preferred gained a point. Bonds were irregular at noon. Rock Island bonds were weak.

Further progress toward a lower level was made by stocks in which there were dealings. Delaware & Hudson sagged 2 points, the Eries, Reading, Wabash preferred, Southern Railway preferred, New England, C. C. & St. Louis and Republic Steel preferred 1. Scarcely any of the usual favorites were dealt in and speculation was more lifeless than at any time since the market lapsed into its present rut.

There was a dull hardening of the market which amounted to only a small fraction. Reading second preferred fell ⅞, Chicago Great Western B and Norfolk & Western 1 and Realty preferred 2¾.

The list hardened to the neighborhood of last night's close and Amalgamated Copper rose ¾ over. Covering of shorts by earlier sellers seemed to be the only business involved. Close dull.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The list is easier. Copper and Steels are higher. There is not much in the way of news. All the statements on the leading properties as they appear are favorable. The whole market is awaiting developments of the corn crop and the money market. In the meantime there is no pressure of long stocks, and whatever little selling there is, is being done by bear traders. We do not believe they will succeed in dislodging any long stocks. As we have previously expressed ourselves we feel that apprehension of a tight money market is groundless. The weather is favorable for the corn crop and with even moderate results in that direction we look for a bull market later on.

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: The market may remain dull a few days, but the trend should be slowly upward. Purchases are in order on weak spots. I do not consider it safe to sell short in any case. With activity should come advancing prices.

Walker Bros. to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market ruled extremely dull all day and fluctuated between narrow dimits. Commission houses were doing practically nothing and the little trading that was done was of an entirely professional character. Prices sagged somewhat early in the day upon fears of complications with Turkey, but otherwise there was no news to affect the market. The closing was a little stronger.

Dow-Jones to W. H. Laidley & Co.: The tone was heavy after 12 o'clock. More distinct evidence of pressure than there has been for some days. London was only a light trader, but sold stock and the general tone was dispirited. Report from Washington that an American vice consul had been assassinated in Turkey has an unfavorable effect as involving possible European complications.

Bache to Paine, Webber & Co.: The Erie July gross earnings increase was $1,-200,000; net increase, $707,000. The Erie's annual report shows gross increase of $4,936,000; net increase, $2,937,000; surplus, $5,949,000, increase, $3,001,000.

The Louisville & Nashville, in the third week in August shows an increase of $44,000. From July 1, increase, $372,000.

TREASURY BALANCES.

Washington, Aug. 27.—Today's treasury statements shows: Available cash balance, $236,263,911; gold, $101,919,690; silver, $28,202,867; United States notes, $11,895,777; treasury notes of 1890, $4,124,624; national bank notes, $18,568,392; total receipts this day, $962,870; total receipts this month, $44,127,081; total receipts this year, $92,-738,657; total expenditures this day, $1,-620,000; total expenditures this month, $40,-180,000; total expenditures this year, $96,-568,189; deposits in national banks, $155,-562,413.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, Aug. 27.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 1 point to 2 points, the steadiness being imparted by the firmer steadiness being imparted by the firmer steadiness being imparted by general selling set in. September showing special weakness, declining to 117 against 11.30 at the opening, and October lost about 12 points with December and January selling from 5 to 6 points lower. At the decline offerings became slightly less pressing and the market ruled somewhat irregular.

Cotton spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 12.75; middling gulf, 13.00; sales, 8756 bales. Cotton futures closed barely steady; August, 12.27; September, 11.15; October, 10.48; November, 10.16; December, 10.13; January, 10.13; February and March, 10.12.

HIS EFFORTS UNAVAILING.

Many and varied are the tales told of the efforts of some girls and women, too, for that matter, to change the color of their hair to some hue more desirable than that of nature's bestowing, but it is safe to say that the effort of a boy of 16 wasting any gray matter worrying over his hair, whatever interest he may otherwise take in his personal appearance, says the Brooklyn Eagle.

There is one boy of that age in Brooklyn, however, who thinks that nature might have been more kind to him and who strenuously objects to his Titian head. He will have his mother and sisters assured him that his curly hair is "a perfectly lovely auburn shade and they just wish they had it." Everything in the way of tonic and hair oil that the boy could obtain he has secured and used, without in the least dimming its brightness, but he capped the climax my his latest exploit. From some source or other he got a bottle of ebony colored dye, warranted to take the fire out of the reddest hair that ever grew on humand head and to color the glowing locks inky black instead. Fearing discovery while in the act of changing red to black, the boy dobbed the mixture on hurriedly and without the aid of a mirror. Then he went to bed. The next morning he faced his astonished relatives at the breakfast table with the front part of his hair a dingy black, showing an ocasional strand of red, and the remainder of his locks as bright as they ever were. Explanations followed, so did a prolonged interview with the barber and a lecture on the folly of amateur efforts at hair painting. Nothing further has been attempted by the boy for a month or so, but he has not given up hopes of success by and by, and declares that "he's not going to keep on having red hair when he's a man, no matter what he has to do to change it."

ALL LIKED "ROUGHING IT."

The entire family was "roughing it"—that is, the members of the family called it "roughing it." They were located on the shore of a small lake, probably as far as two miles from the nearest village and a quarter of a mile from the nearest farmhouse, says the Brooklyn Eagle.

They believed in "roughing it" for a few weeks during the summer, they were proud of their ability to "rough it" without complaining, and they occasionally invited their friends to come and see them "rough it."

"Such a pretty place," said the father.

"The outdoor life does us so much good," said the mother.

"Roughing it is such jolly fun," said the son.

"The hardships add zest to life," said the daughter.

Then the visitors looked over the place and one of them said:

"Pretty little cottage you have."

"Designed by one of the best architects in the country," explained the father, proudly.

"The kitchen is a gem," said the mother; "a little crowded for three servants, perhaps, but it has every convenience."

"Nicely furnished, too," commented another visitor.

"No expense was spared," said the son.

"Aren't the Turkish rugs pretty?" asked the daughter.

The visitors nodded assent, but seemed puzzled. Finally one of them said:

"Excuse me, but-oh-where does the—the hardship come in?"

The family was aghast.

"Why, there's no plastering on the walls—just plain wood," said the father.

"And no stationary washstands," said the mother.

"And no gas—only hanging lamps," said the son.

"And you can see the floor between the rugs, and it's not hardwood," added the daughter.

"But we don't mind; we find 'roughing it' good for the health," they added all together.

WILL QUIT GRAIN

Line Boats Will Leave Grain to the Wild Ones.

August Has Been a Stormy Month on the Lake.

Line boats will not be carrying grain for much more than ten days or two weeks longer. The flour shipments will be picking up in about that time and will monopolize the carrying capacity of the boats. They would rather carry flour, for it brings better rates. In fact, they have been taking grain all summer only to fill such capacity as they could not obtain package freight for.

With the package freight boats out of the way the shippers will have to depend on wild boats. They are now offering to carry grain in September at two cents a bushel but up to the present time not a single cargo has been chartered as far as can be learned. Shippers expect to see the rate raised to 2 cents a bushel on Sept. 1.

It is too early as yet to tell what the movement of grain September will be. It depends entirely on the condition of the weather in the Northwest. Rains will mean a light movement and small business for vessel men. In that event they might have difficulty in maintaining the 2-cent rate. Fine weather will bring a big movement, especially if prices are at the level they now are, and would mean the maintenance of the rate without much difficulty and possibly a higher one.

A STORMY AUGUST.

Vessels Had Much Trouble This Month.

The past month has been one of the stormiest Augusts within the memories of lake sailors.

A thirty-five mile gale is blowing on the lake today, and is holding all vessels in port. Several are loaded, and lying at anchor waiting for the wind to moderate.

The tugs of both towing companies have been kept very busy today, as all vessels arriving require tugs to make their docks in the heavy wind.

No accidents have yet been reported, but the tug Schenck of the Great Lakes Towing company is doubtless having a heavy passage. She left last evening for Port Wing with the barge Allegheny in tow, and was to return this morning with the lumber barge, Interlaken. She left Port Wing at 11 o'clock, and will get the full benefit of the storm.

No fears are felt for her safety, however, as she is one of the best sea tugs in the harbor.

CHANNELS AT PORTAGE.

Engineer Gives Notice of Posting of New Buoys.

Superintendent G. A. Marr, assistant United States engineer in charge of the Portage Lake canal, has sent out the following notice to mariners:

"Two flag buoys have been placed just above High Point to guide vessels into the newly dredged channel on line of the Rouleau Point ranges. The black flag is on the same side of the channel as the black spar buoy, or the port side going up, and the red flag is on the same side as the red spar buoy, or the starboard side going up. Vessels will get the advantage of the best depth of the channel, which is 24 feet at the present stage, by passing midway of these flag buoys. This will bring vessels well in range of the Rouleau Point lights. Vessel captains, after passing the High Point red star buoy should favor the east shore for the best depth of water."

UNKNOWN STEAMER ASHORE.

Hancock, Mich., Aug. 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—An unknown steamer is reported ashore on Keweenaw, five miles west of Eagle river. The life saving crew from Portage Lake has gone to its assistance. The spot is one of the most dangerous on Lake Superior.

ROBLING BLOCKED PASSAGE.

Sault Ste Marie, Aug. 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Navigation in the Soo passage between Lake Superior and Lake Michigan was blocked until 9 o'clock today at the Dark hole by the barge Robling, which grounded there yesterday, the big boat swung around in the current and landed nearly across the channel. Deep draft vessels were today ordered not to pass the Robling. The blockade was raised by the release of the Robling.

RIVERS ARE RISING

Heavy Rains Are Doing Great Damage In Iowa.

Kansas City ,Aug. 27.—The Kansas streams continue to rise fast. At Lawrence the Kaw river rose during the night and at Stockdale, eight miles north of Manhattan, the Blue river is four inches higher than during the great June flood. Near Stockdale the Blue has broken from its banks and, cutting across the country, is taking a short course to the Kaw river and threatens to cut a ew channel. Many farms are under water.

A bulletin issued by the weather bureau announces that the Kansas river, at Kansas City, will rise from live to seven feet in the next forty-eight hours, and a rise of equal magnitude, it is said, is coming down the Missouri river from the north. If the waters meet at the mouth of the Kansas river here, as seems likely, great damage to bridges and business in the bottoms will doubtless result.

Burlington, Iowa, Aug. 27.—The worst rain of the season fell last night and this morning. The whole country is flooded and streams are out of their banks. Numerous small bridges are reported out, and it is feared much damage has been done to crops by washing out.

Council Bluffs, Iowa, Aug. 27.—At Corning eight inches of rain fell during the night. The Burling tracks were badly damaged and a number of downings are reported. Charles A. Pash, a horseman, of Clinton, was drowned by the derailing of a car in which he was riding. It is said there were a number of other persons in the car at the time, and that they were also drowned.

KILLED IN DUEL.

Two Hospital Physicians Meet In Alsace-Loraine.

Berlin, Aug. 27.—Dr. Sewarts, manager of the state sick insurance hospital at Muhlhazen, Alsace-Loraine killed Dr. Schloss, who was the leader of a strike movement on the part of outdoor relief physicians at Muhlhazed in a duel a day or two ago. The surviving physician and seconds failed to conceal the cause of death, but were found out.The police took possession of the body as it was about to be cremated at Gotha and the arrest of Dr. Schwarts followed.

The duel was the result of a controversy, lasting for months, between the management of the national sick insurance funds and several thousands of physicians employed by the free hospitals or outdoor relief.

ZWEIFEL ELECTED

Treasurer of the Northwestern Photographers' Convention.

St. Paul, Aug. 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Owing to the unwillingness of Thorwald Lee, of Minneapolis, to serve another term, John A. Gunderson, of Winona, was elected president of the Northwestern Photographers' association, at today's session held in Minneapolis. S. E. Egan, of Minneapolis, was made first vice president; C. W. Peterson, of Faribault, second vice president, and O. E. Johnson, secretary. J. R. Zwelfel, of Duluth, was elected treasurer. The vice president of North Dakota will be J. E. Passanault, of Candy; for South Dakota, H. E. North, of Watertown; for Iowa, J. A. Douglas, of Osage, and for Wisconsin, C. E. Noyes, of Chippewa Falls.

The next annual convention will assemble in St. Paul.

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

St. Paul, Aug. 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rev. Thomas F. Howard, aged 42 years, a Roman Catholic priest of Peoria, Ill., died at the home of his father, Thomas Howard here yesterday o fparalysis.

Ishpeming, Mich., Aug. 27.—William Sedgwick, president of the Peninsula bank, died last night after an illness of twenty months.

Thinks They Are Lucky.

Captain Charles L. Potter and John Sears who are on a trip over the lake Superior district are expected to arrive in Houghton tonight and will reach Duluth the latter part of the week. Major Sears has written from Memphis his pleasure that his brother has the opportunity of enjoying the lake Superior cool breezes. Major Sears says it is very hot in Memphis.

STORM DOES DAMAGE.

Marshalltown, Iowa, Aug. 27.—A terrific storm did much damage south of here in Jasper and Powshiek counties. Near Searsboro the corn crop is practically ruined. Roofs were blown from box cars and outbuildings were turned over. Railroad traffic is badly interfered with owing to washouts.

FRATERNAL CONGRESS

Elects Its Officers For the Ensuing Year.

Milwaukee, Aug. 27.—The National Fraternal congress today voted to meet next year in St. Louis, and elected officers as follows: President, Edwin O. Wood, Flint, Mich., supreme commander of the Knights of the Royal Guard; vice president, F. A. Falkenberg, Denver, head consul of the Pacific jurisdiction of the Woodmen of the World; secretary-treasurer, M. W. Pickett, Meadville, Pa., supreme recorder of the Ancient Order of United Workmen. The next congress will meet in the fourth week of September.

MOTORMAN RESPONSIBLE.

St. Paul, Aug. 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The coroners' jury, after listening to the testimony of twelve witnesses at an inquest Wednesday evening, decided that Lewis Hoffmann was responsible for the collision between the wrecking car and Truck No. 1 of the fire department, which resulted in the death of Patrick Fleming, at West Sixth and Seventh streets, Sunday afternoon.

ARGUMENTS STILL ON.

Georgetown, Ky., Aug. 27.—The entire day was occupied in argument in the Caleb Powers case without coming to an end of speechmaking.

ERUPTION DECREASES.

Rome, Aug. 27.—The eruption of Mount Vesuvius is slowly decreasing. The stream of lava has diminished in velocity, having widened to about one hundred feet.

BEWARE OF OINTMENTS FOR CATARRH THAT CONTAINS MERCURY as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

NOT ELEPHANTS.

Perhaps you think a life of a press agent is an easy one," said one of the publicity men the other day, according to the Chicago Inter-Ocean. "If you do, just hurry up and change your opinion.

"Yes, they all have to work hard. Pretty nearly every one of them has a particular pet hoodoo, too. Never heard of that, did you? Well, they nearly all have hoodoos. My hoodoo is elephants.

"I can't have anything to do with an elephant without getting into trouble. Yet I have been around elephants throughout my career. Three or four years ago, when I began dispensing publicity, I had to act as a sort of advance agent besides doing my regular press work, and one of my most important duties was to lay out the routes of all the parades.

"Now the great thing in laying out parade routes for an animal show is to select a course that will take the parade through the residential section. The ordinary small town especially in the East, is apt to have several bridges. That's where the trouble begins.

"I suppose you've heard that elephants are mighty ticklish about crossing bridges. Well, they are more than ticklish. They are chock full of cussedness on that particular point. Of courhe, I always picked out the route that had the fewest bridges and the strongest bridges, but I invariably had hard luck.

"When the parade had got well across one of my bridges and was about to cross another and get into the best part of the town, the lephants always knew me down hard. The big fellow of the herd always stopped at the bridge and turned up his trunk and then balked. Every other elephant always did the same, and the parade either had to choose another route or split in two. You know that if the big elephant who weighs two or three tons won't cross the bridge, the very smallest little baby elephant in the herd won't go near it, either.

"Finally, I threw up the job of laying out the parade route. I guess the show people weren't so sorry, either.

"I ought to have had the hoodoo in mind the other day when I got the hardest blow of all. Haven't heard of it? Well, the story began with me talking to the boss of the show about our mutual desire to break into print and get ourselves popular. Of course, I mean that we were trying to cook up some scheme to boom the show.

"We were still cudgeling our brains when along came a trainer giving our elephant a walk around the grounds. The beast certainly looked sort of tarnished.

"'She ought to have a bath,' said the boss casually.

"Then he shouted in a bantering way to the trainer and asked him why he didn't give the beast a dip. The trainer said that the elephant had never been in the water since the show started. I thought that I certainly saw my chance and I said:

"'Why not take her down to the water and give her a good bath? I can get pictures of the act and write the thing up. It's a great scheme.'

"The boss agreed and it was arranged on the spot that the affair was to come off with great solemnity and proper accompaniments the very next morning. Early that morning I sent word to all the newspapers that the great female elephant of the great show was going to have a real salt bath; and that it would be a good story.

"Well, we waited and waited for the reporters. They didn't come and we waited some more. Then, as they still had not arrived, I started out to investigate. What I found out was really the last blow on the elephant question as far as I am concerned.

"It seems that the first reporter to land from the train had sauntered carelessly into the first animal show in the place. That, of course, was the show that was our bitterest rival.

"The careless rporter struck my rival press agent at the gate and casually asked when the elephant was going to take her dip in the ocean. My rival tumbled in a second and five minutes later every elephant of the rival show—and they had five—was down at the beach.

"Of course, the rival show got the whole story and we, who had planned the whole thing, didn't get a line in the newspapers. Now, when anybody says 'elephant' to me I'm going to run."

DETECTIVE HAS A CINCH.

Put In Same Bed With Man He Wanted.

Even the half true yarns recounting the exploits of detectives rarely make reference to the almost weird streaks of bullhead luck which all of us occasionally have in snagging people we go after," said a noted New York sleuth who came down to Washington to "look around" during the typos' session, according to the Washington Star. "I myself have received a vast amount of credit that I never deserved since I became a fly cop, although, of course, I am bound to say that I've always taken these undeserved honors with a proper degree of blushing modesty. I haven't found it incumbent upon me to narrate to my superiors the lucky circumstance in connection with captures for which I have received the most praise.

"Only three years ago I made a haul for which I got the glad word in the newspapers all over the country, and yet it was a piece of work that any 18-year-old boy with a pear-shaped head could have pulled off, given the same amount of 1000-to-1 shot luck that drifted my way in connection with the capture.

"A young New York chap, the manager of a sizeable brokerage office in one of the uptown New York hotels, got into the speculative pond over his head during the absence of his employer in Europe. On the day before his employer was due to arrive in New York from the trip abroad the young fellow gutted the plant, taking not only a large amount of the old man's cash, but several tens of thousands of dollars belonging to customers of the establishment. Then he made a sudden duck of it. His employer found the works up on a kite when he got off the steamer on the following day, and scorched to headquarters in a devil wagon to tell about it. I was well acquainted with the absconder, as the hotel in which the brokerage office was located was a hang-out of mine, and so the chief tossed the case over to me. At the very outset of my preliminary inquiries among the embezzler's intimates I ascertained that the young fellow had often expressed a desire to some day visit Japan. Nine men out of ten have in their minds a certain country that they hope particularly to take a look at 'when things come their way,' and it is strictly the initial stunt of a detective, sent in chase of a fugitive, to find out from the latter's pals, if he can, the name of the country for which the jumper had, in his expansive conversational moments, expressed a desire to see. The young fellow, as I say, appeared to have had the Japan bug bad, and, although I had no other clew of the slightest value to his movements, I determined to take a chance on the presumption that he had it in mind to convey himself and his hastily annexed wad to the land of the 'rickshas' on the steamer which was scheduled to sail from San Francisco six days later.

"So I made the quick hike to San Francisco. I got there at about 10 o'clock at night, dog tired, and had myself driven to the Palace hotel, figuring on taking a long sleep before beginning the scour on the following day for my little man.

"I found the hotel jammed, with the lobbies still in an uproar even at that hour. The annual convention of the Native Sons of the Golden West, that close corporation of the Californians, was on, and the town was in the hands of tens of thousands of excursionists from all over the state. The night clerk of the Palace, a man I knew well, gave me the connerino grin when I scribbled my name on the book.

"'How'd you like to hunk up with another man?' the night clerk asked me, genially.

"'I'd just as soon sleep with a wet dog,' I replied. 'Why?'

"'Cause you've got to chum, if you're going to stay with us this time,' he replied. 'House is stuffed and cluttered to the roof. We're slamming 'em into rooms in sets of fours, and they're sleeping on billiard tables, in the halls, on top of the stationary wash tubs and in the sink. But I can put you in a room where there's only one other duck —New York fellow, he is, so you will probably be able to make out better with him than you might with what you conceited Manhattanites call a Juniper.

"I murmured a few phrases to the night clerk about the hanky-pankiness of an alleged town that couldn't give an old-time guest of a hotel a decent night's rest without doubling him up with a rank outsider, but the clerk only beamed under my grouchiness and told me that he was doing the best he could for me—which, of course, was the exact truth. But I told him that I'd take a poke around among some of the other houses to see if I couldn't get a room to myself, and I started out. All of the other hotels were in a worse stampeded state than the Palace, and the best that any of them could offer me was a chance to turn in with four other more or less riotous Native Sons. So I hiked back to the Palace, getting there at midnight.

"'Still got that vacancy with the civilized New York maverick?' I asked the clerk, and he told me that the vacancy still existed.

"'And you needn't take it so much to heart, old man,' the night clerk said. 'Wait'll you hear the beef the New York duck'll put up when he's gently requested to move over and make room for another.'

"The night clerk sent me up to the room occupied by the New Yorker, with the head bellman to help me in making an entry to the pre-emptied room. The head bellman banged on the door—deep snores were proceeding from the room—but there was no reply until the bellman slugged the panel for about three minutes with all his might.

"Then there came a voice:

"'What the devil's coming off here?

"And I guess perhaps I didn't stick my ears forward when I heard that voice. The man I was after had something the matter with his pipes, and he spoke in a high, raspy shrill tone that could have been recognized anywhere, once heard by anybody. The voice of the man in this room was the voice, I would have bet a million, of the man I was after. But I determined to do just a little more listening, for safety.

"'I'll be d—d if there is!' came back that piping voice from the room, in a tone of considerable wrath.

"'Aint no he'lp fo' it, suh,' sung out the bellman. 'Du cluk, he say de gemman dun got tuh sleep with yo' all. Open do do', please, sah.'

"'Open nothing,' shrilled the man in the room. 'Go chase yourself and give us a rest—nobody packs into this stall while I'm in it.'

"I reached out and yanked the bellman away from the door. Then I put my shoulder to the door, and in it went with a crash. Then I made a jump for the electric roller, turned on one of the lamps—and there was my man sitting up in bed, regarding me with natural enough amazement.

"'Hello, Freddie,' I said to him. 'You're it.'

"And that's about all. I occupied the same room with him that night, but I didn't go to sleep any—had 'em send me relays of black coffee so that I could keep my lamps open. The young fellow saw that the dance was all up and he consented to come back to New York with me without any trouble, and just eleven days from the time I'd started from New York I had my man back there and in the Tombs.

"They haven't got through hurling words of hot air praise into me yet for that 'achievement,' and yet as you perceive, it was just about equivalent to the stunt of the woman who sticks a pin in a race program and lands on a 200-to-1 shot that proceeds to spread-eagle his field after she's put her $2 on it."

ENTERPRISE FOR YUCATAN.

Mexican Government to Open Land of Dead Cities.

One of the dark places of the Western hemisphere is the peninsula of Yucatan, says the Brooklyn Eagle. With the exception of a narrow zone on the north coast, devoted to the cultivation of sisal hemp, and an equally narrow belt on the east, in which the cutting of mahogany, cedar and logwood is an important industry, the country is practically unknown. Much of it has never been explored and is occupied by savage tribes who have maintained their independence, first against the Spanish viceroyalty and later against the republican government of Mexico, until the present moment.

The Mexican government is now engaged in a determined effort to reduce the independent tribes to final submission; to make a thorough exploration and survey of the unknown and hitherto inaccessible portions of the peninsula, and to open up to industry and capital the great forests of the interior and the vast areas suited to the cultivation of textile plants.

The independent tribes of Yucatan have been a thorn in the flesh to the authorities ever since the republic achieved its independence. Collisions between the savage warriors and the troops have been frequent, although the reports that have filtered through the ordinary news channels to the Northern press have been few and meager. The most serious difficulty occurred thirty years ago, when the Indians destroyed the town of Bacalar and massacred many of the inhabitants. The survivors fled to British territory for protection, settling in Corosal, which from an insignificant cluster of native huts was transformed into the second city in size and importance in British Honduras. Minor disturbances have occurred almost every year since then, generally due to the timber cutters trespassing upon the domains which the Indians regarded as their tribal inheritance.

Not until 1900, however, did these disturbances become so serious as to excite the alarm of the Mexican government. In that year the tribesmen again descended upon Balacar, which had been rebuilt, but which had not regained its former importance. There and at Ascension Bay, farther up the coast, many settlers were killed, and thousands of dollars' worth of property was destroyed; but the timber cutters' camps along the Rio Hondo were the worst sufferers, most of the laborers being massacred and their stores of mahogany, logwood and rosewood being burned or cast into the river. Not until Gen. Bravo, with 3000 of the best troops of the republic, arrived at the scene of the disturbance were the Indians driven back into their retreats in the interior.

The result of this last uprising has been that the Mexican government has determined upon the complete and final subjugation of the tribesmen, the thorough exploration of the entire peninsula and the opening up of the wealth of its forests and its mineral deposits. Not less important than these will be the fact that the wonderful ruins of a past and forgotten civilization, that flourished in the golden age of the American tropics, will be rendered accessible to the archaeologist and the sightseer.

The independent tribes of Yucatan are of Maya origin and still retain home traces of the civilization that flourished when Tihob Izamal, Uxmal, Palenque and Menche were great and populous cities. They wear cotton clothing of their own manufacture, show much skill in architecture, have some knowledge of navigation, compute times and seasons from the movements of the heavenly bodies and possess an alphabet and a written language. Along with these inheritances from their enlightened ancestors, however, are many marks of barbarism. They paint and tattoo their faces and bodies, flatten the heads of their children, practice human sacrifice and make war with poisoned spears and arrows. Some of the tribes were subjugated by the Spanish viceroys, and for nearly two centuries were nominally Catholics. In 1848 these rose against the Mexican government, then too busily engaged in its unequal conflict with the United States to take adequate measures to coerce them into submission. Ere long they relapsed into the same condition of paganism as that of the more southerly tribes, which had never felt the white man's yoke.

Among the tribes that were never conquered are the Tzendils, Tzotzils, Quelens, Chols, Chontals and Lancadons. The last named tribe occupies the upper basin of the Usumacinta river, and is probably the most peoples remaining in North America.

Every one of the great groups of ruins which have made Yucatan famous as the New World Egypt is found in the immediate vicinity of a cenote. This proves that, however remote mayhave been the period when the civilization of the Mayas flourished, the same physical conditions prevailed then as now. More than sixty of these groups have been visited and partially explored, one of the largest of which is known as Lorillard City. It was discovered some fifteen years ago by M. Charnay, and was named in honor of the New York multi-millionaire, who defrayed the expenses of the expedition. How many more remain to be discovered in the unexplored regions inhabited by the independent tribes is only a matter of conjecture. That there are many is proven by the reports of captive Indians, and by the tales of rubber gatherers, timber cutters and prospectors who have ventured into the forbidden territory.

The island of Cozumel, separated only from Yucatan by the deep Yucatan channel, is the Mecca of the Mayas. In its deep forest are the ruins of their sacred city and of their most holy temple. Most of the island has not yet been explored by the inquisitive white man, which seems all the more remarkable when we consider the fact that its shores are skirted by every vessel sailing from New Orleans or Mobile to Central American ports, and that it is the first land sighted on crossing the gulf of Mexico. Its verdant, palm-covered shores have gladdened the eyes of many a seasick voyager, giving promise of speedy relief from his cramped, ill-smelling quarters in the little fruit-carrying steamers.

The Mayas possessed an extensive literature written on parchment, or a sort of native-made paper, folded like a Japanese screen, or on the white inner bark of a tree, which was then rolled like a school girl's essay. The bigotry or mistaken zeal of the Spanish monks and priests caused nearly all of these ancient manuscripts to be destroyed. Altars, monoliths, tombs and the walls of temples are often covered with the so-called calciuliform inscriptions, named from the resemblance of the characters to small rounded pebbles. No key to the deciphering of these inscriptions has ever been discovered.

The most important manuscript of the ancient Mayas that is now accessible is the "Chilan-Balam Book," that is, the "Interpreter of Oracles." It is the Maya Book of Fate, being to them what the Sibylline books were to the ancient Romans. It consists largely of interpretations of dreams, signs and omens; of prophecies, and of rules for forecasting the times and seasons. There are said to be sixteen copies of it in existence in the cutody of the leading towns and villages. They are, however, at all times accessible to the wise men of all the tribes.

It is hoped and expected that many more manuscripts may be found among the untamed tribes on the Guatemalan frontier. If this hope is realized, much of the history of the American continent before the conquest of Mexico may be revealed. This is, in fact, one of the most important resunlts that is likely to flow from the present effort of the Mexican government to explore the peninsula.

TO INSURE AGAINST STRIKES

Two Companies Make This Their Exclusive Business.

America has not the insurance mania as badly as England has but economic conditions have evolved strike insurance, the lattest commercial novelty of which the Englishmen as yet knows nothing, says the Brooklyn Eagle. Your true Britisher insures his life, and insures his house, he insures his vessel, he insures his freight, he insures his plate glass. He insures against robbery and he insures against accident. He insures against bank failure. He will not travel ten miles without buying a traveler's insurance policy. When he has nothing else to insure he insures the king's life, and those of various members of the royal family. That is the commonest British form of gambling. Theatrical companies, big dressmaking establishments, caterers, etc., do this as a matter of course, as an ordinary measure of protection against the loss of business which would necessarily follow the king's death and the consequent failure of "the season."

But the Britisher has not yet come to strike insurance, and the American has. Not only has some of the big existing companies opened strike departments, but two strike insurance companies have been organized, one in Waterbury, Conn., the other in Louisville, Ky. The Connecticut company is said to be especially well backed. Connecticut has had her fill of strikes during the last twelve months. In several places employers have organized to see one another through any financial stringency arising from labor troubles.

And labor approves of strike insurance. The workingman believes it will inure to his benefit. One labor leader is reported as having said that such insurance companies will accomplish at once what labor organizations have been trying for years to do. They will compel the unreasonable employer to recognize the rights of his employes. Just as fire insurance companies compel policy holders to take reasonable precautions against fire, strike insurance companies will compel employers to deal reasonably with potential strikers.

The Waterbury company only recently obtained a charter authorizing it to insure individuals or corporations against loss resulting directly or indirectly from the interruption or suspension of business "by reason of flood, epidemic, riot, strike, civil commotion or similar causes." The charter shows that assessments upon members are to be relied upon to provide funds for emergencies, and practically establishes at once a jury of arbitration, to which the employers are bound to submit, but which has no hold on employes. And this jury has, every member of it, a personal financial interest in persuading the employer to end the strike if he reasonably can.

The company may collect not only cash premiums for its policies, but may assess the holders thereof such further sums as are necessary to cover losses, not exceeding five times the amount of the cash premium. The policy holders agree in advance to pay such assessments if called for. If the company assumes the responsibility of every strike, regardless of who is at fault, it will probably lose money. If it doesn't, it undertakes at once to fix the responsibility for the strike, which will be far more difficult than to ascertain the amount of loss involved.

The Louisville company does not say just how it proposes to insure employers against loss through strikes. It does undertake to keep secret the names of the persons insured, on that strikers will never know whether they are striking against their employers or the insurance company. Probably they will not care—but that does not seem to have occurred to the company. It remains to be seen under what conditions a strike loss will be recognized as a claim against the company. And it rather looks as if it were fun for the employers but death to the company.

If any scheme can be worked out whereby strike insurance can be made a good business proposition, equitable to the insured and profitable to the company, there is undoubtedly "millions in it." But it is a little hard to see how, for instance, an insurance company could have paid for the losses involved in the existing building strikes. They run up into the millions. To a great extent these strikes are of the "sympathetic" variety, and Uncle Sam himself, though the old gentleman is pretty well-to-do, would think twice if he had to pay the piper. Occasionally there is a great conflagration somewhere—losses running up into the millions—and the insurance companies have to pay. Many are bankrupted by the operation. This year there have been strikes all over the country. No one can compute the cost to employers. But employers could well afford to pay big premiums for any insurance that would guarantee them against such losses. The question is, can any company undertake the job?

THE CRUISER OLYMPIA BUMPS ON THE BOTTOM

Sprung Leak But Was Not Seriously Damaged.

The Navy Wins a Decisive Victory In War Game.

Portland, Me., Aug. 28.—After an hour's bombardment today, the outer defences of Cape Elizabeth were captured by a force from the navy and 1600 men were landed. The outpost and signal station at Spurwink river also were taken. The moves of landing parties were covered by the fire of the fleet. With Long Island and the Cape defences in their hands, the navy now is in position to attack all other points by land as well as by sea.

A report published that the Olympia touched bottom Wednesday during the maneuvers has not been officially confirmed. The Press today says that she struck Star ledge in Luckes sound at a point where the chart showed twenty-six feet, but which sounded only twenty-four or two less than the Olympia's draught. The cruiser's bottom was damaged causing her to leak, but the water taken in was controlled by the vessel's dams and her injuries were not so serious but that she was able to take part in the maneuvers yesterday and today.

The capture of the signal station and search-lights at the two lights, the outer point of Cape Elizabeth gives the navy one of the most important points in the defense of the harbor. The navy was declared victor in all the morning movements.

BAD RAILROAD ACCIDENT CUTS SHORT FESTIVITIES IN ITALY

Train Full of Soldiers On Their Way To Join Army Maneuvers, Collided With a Freight Killnig Sixteen and Injuring Sixty.

Rome, Aug. 28.—A disastrous railroad accident has cut short the festivities and demonstrations in honor of the king and queen at Udine, the chief town on the eastern frontier, sixty miles from Venice, where the sovereigns had gone to view the grand army maneuvers. At 10 o'clock last night a train overflowing with soldiers collided with a freight train. The force of the collision was terrific. Those on board were thrown in all directions, and the coaches were broken up. Fifteen soldiers and one captain were killed and more than sixty injured, twelve dangerously. The colonel in command of the soldiers was among the injured.

Darkness rendered the confusion about the scene of the wreck extreme, while the terror among those who escaped injury was increased when the trains took fire a few minutes after the accident. Fortunately the flames were immediately extinguished. Special trains were hurriedly sent to the scene of the accident carrying physicians, who organized a corps of physicians and administered to the wounded.

King Victor Emmanuel visited the hospital in person later to see the victims of the accident.

WISCONSIN CENTRAL TRAINS IN COLLISION AT SILVER LAKE

The Passengers Received a Severe Shaking Up But Were Not Seriously Injured—Engineer and Fireman Badly Hurt By Jumping.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 28.—An Evening Wisconsin special from Racine, Wis., says: A south bound passenger train on the Wisconsin Central ran into a stock train which was being switched at Sylver Lake station. Engineer Shall and Fireman William Hoppe, of the passenger train, are reported seriously injured Both men reside in Fond du Lac, Wis. Two of the crew of the switch engine are also reported as seriously injured. The passenger engineer endeavored to stop his train before the collision, but finding it impossible he leaped from the engine with his fireman.

The engineer is badly cut about the head and body and a number of his bones are broken and it is said that he is internally injured. The fireman also was cut about the head and body and bones of his right arm were broken in two or three places and he is internally injured.

The passenger engine was thrown from the track and was wrecked. The wrecking crew has arrived from Chicago and is working to clear the tracks. The passengers received a bad shaking up at the time of the collision, but as far as known none were injured.

SHAFFER'S SENSATIONAL SUICIDE

Chicago, Aug. 28.—Facing his divorced wife, who had married again two days after the decree was entered two weeks ago, Herbert R. Shaffer last night lifted a vial of carbolic acid to his lips and said: "It's your fault, Minnie, good-bye."

Shaffer poured the acid down his throat and then struggled toward his former wife, at the same time threatening her life. The woman ran screaming from the room, calling to her husband to come to her rescue. Before Shaffer had taken a dozen steps he fell. Ten minutes later he was dead. The suicide took place at a house where the former Mrs. Shaffer and her present husband, Thomas Healey, are boarding.

PRIEST PRACTICALLY A PRISONER

Denver, Aug. 28.—Announcement is made by Bishop Matz, of the Catholic church of Colorado, that Father Cushing, who has earned much notoriety by his fight upon the bishop during the past twelve years, has been ordered by Archbishop Falconio to go to the Trappist monastery at Gethsemme, where he will be practically a prisoner for the balance of his life. Bishop Matz will pay all his expenses. Father Cushing is between 40 and 50 years old and is broken down in health.

Baltimore, Aug. 28.—The Rev. Don Luigi Sartoris, pastor of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church, Midland, Md., and a relative of Pope Pius, has sent his resignation to Cardinal Gibbons and will retire from active work in the ministry. His family name is Sarto. He is a native of Venice and wishes to spend the remainder of his life at his boyhood home. He is now 60 years old.

SPENT NIGHT ON MOUNT VESUVIUS

Naples, Aug. 28.—The correspondent of the Associated Press has just returned from spending a night on Mount Vesuvius with the special permission of the authorities to pass the prescribed limits. The scene was terrifying, but magnificent. Enormous masses of liquid fire flowed almost to the correspondent's feet, forming great mounds. Occasionally a mass of burning material became detched from the pyramid and rolled down the side of the mountain, the fast cooling lava in its turn detaching other masses until the whole became stationary at the bottom. The main stream of lava flowed down the volcano until stopped by the mounds of old lava, when it divided and filled up the valleys, the old and new masses meeting with such force as to cause loud detonations which shook the earth.

Today the eruption continues and the volume of lava is acquiring vast proportions. Detonations inside the volcano have caused the prediction that a more violent eruption may be anticipated.

RIVERS ARE HIGH

The Kansas Is Steadily Rising As Was Expected.

The Missouri Is Two Feet Above Danger Mark.

Kansas City, Aug. 28.—The predicted rise in the Kansas river at this point is being reported. From midnight to this morning the river has risen three feet, a total of 8 feet in 24 hours and it continues to rise at the rate of two inches an hour.

It is expected that the water will continue to come up at the present rate for another twelve hours at least. Further rains west of here last night are reported with the Kansas river at Lawrence, Topeka and Manhattan still rising fast.

As yet no serious damage has resulted here, the water being confined within the banks.

Early today big gangs of men were put to work at the temporary bridge here dislodging the driftwood that had begun to clog the stream at the structures. The work of replacing the James street bridge, the main wagon bridge between the two Kansas Cities has been stopped and efforts are now being put forth to save the part of the bridge already constructed which is threatened by driftwood. The lack of transportation facilities is working great hardships to the people of the cities.

The Missouri river at Kansas City at 10 o'clock today had risen nearly two feet in the past twenty-four hours, and the marking was 4.10. The danger mark is 2 feet. An additional foot rise is expected in the next twenty-four hours.

STATE AND SCHOOL TAXES.

Larger Amount Due This Year Than Last.

St. Paul, Aug. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—State Auditor S. G. Iverson issued a statement yesterday showing that on July 1, $1,307,579.88 state and school taxes were due from the counties. The amount due Aug. 1, 1902, was $1,121,546.63. The difference is accounted for by the fact that St. Louis, Cook and Beltrami counties had not reported June settlements by July 1, 1903.

The total tax for the year, including a state tax of 1.3 mills and a school tax of 1.23 mills, aggregated $1,927,064.98. This added to the balance due Aug. 1, 1902, and to the additional taxes reported makes a total of $3,049,891.24. In the October, February and May settlements the counties paid $1,742,311.36, leaving a balance of $1,307,597.88 due on July 1, 1903.

INTEREST IN RECIPROCITY

Which Languished In Cuba Is Now Reviving.

Havana, Aug. 28.—The interest in reciprocity with the United States which had been languishing for several months is reviving. The newspapers are urging the Cubans in spite of their previous discouragement to again join hands with the friends of reciprocity in the United States in an endeavor to make the approval of the reciprocity treaty with the United States certain.

President Palma has denied the petition of several commercial and manufacturing organizations, for a suspension of the tax on manufactured products and industries, enacted by the Havana provincial council.

NECKLACE FOUND.

Its Loss Created Consderable Excitement However.

Winsted, Conn., Aug. 28.—While returning from a church concert, at Norfolk, the wife of Col. Frederick M. Alger of Detroit, lost a pearl and diamond necklace valued at $5000 which was a wedding gift from her husband's father, the senator from Michigan. The interior of the church and the grounds outside were searched without success. Just as the police were to be notified the missing necklace was returned. It had been found hanging upon the lace skirt of a New York lady who also attended the concert. Apparently it had fallen from its owner's neck and caught in the fabric of the dress.

NEW CORPORATIONS.

St. Paul, Aug. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Articles of incorporation were filed with the secretary of state yesterday by the following companies: Thompson Electric company, St. Paul, capital $25,000; incorporators, Frank B. Thompson and Ralph D. Thompson, St. Paul; William G. Gordon, Stillwater. Rogers Iron Mining company, Duluth, capital $300,000; incorporators, J. L. Washburn, W. D. Bailey and Victor Stearns, Duluth.

HUNDRED CATTLE KILLED.

Racine, Wis., Aug. 28.—Fast passenger train on the Wisconsin Central railroad came into collision with a freight train at Silver Lake this morning shortly after daylight. Four trainmen were badly injured and a hundred cattle killed on the freight train. The passengers escaped injury.

YOUNG BANK PRESIDENT.

New York, Aug. 28.—Carl Rudolph Schultz, 27 years old, has been elected president of the Equitable National bank. He is the youngest president of a national bank in New York, and is the youngest but one in the United States. Schultz was graduated from Yale at 21. His wife was Miss Shields, of Canton, Ohio, niece of Judge William R. Day.

CAVALRY IS NO GOOD

Gen. Miles Says That Branch of Service Is Obsolete.

Last Recommendations to Department Are Made Public.

Washington, Aug. 28.—Lieut. Gen. Nelson A. Miles' last communication to the war office was made public today through unofficial sources in the war department. It is in the form of a letter to Secretary of War Root. In it are recommendations for the improvement of the army service. The general regards the cavalry as obsolete, saying the automobile will take the place of the horse in the next war. For that reason he advises reducing the cavalry branch to the minimum and the building of military roads of strategetic importance throughout the country in time of peace. Gen. Miles' letter substantially is as follows:

Headquarters of the Army, Washington, Aug. 7, 1903.—The Honorable the Secretary of war: Sir: Within the past year I have seen the principal part of the army, wherever it has been serving, have carefully inspected the defenses of the Pacific coast, and within the last few months have inspected some of the principal fortifications on the Atlantic and gulf coasts. There are some features concerning the army that I deem it my duty to lay before the authorities.

At the commencement of the Spanish war, when we had well-trained, thoroughly-equipped, hardened and experienced cavalry, a portion of it was obliged to remain at Tampa, and in its place newly organized troops were sent to the front. Now, that was either all wrong, or the present organization of the army, with the great expense incident thereto, is unwise and injudicious, and this subject requires, in my judgment, the serious attention of the government.

It is safe to say that there are tens of thousands of men in our country who are in the saddle every day, who are skilled in landcraft and use of arms, and who can be easily converted into a most formidable corps of mounted men. In fact, there could easily be mobilized in our country at least ten times as many mounted men, many of whom have had military service, as could be landed on our shores by any government or governments within any reasonable time. We have 100,000 men accustomed to the saddle and rifle that could be used to quickly overrun either Canada or Mexico; hence the disproportion of our mounted forces to that of the main body of the army is unnecessary and injudicious.

The marvelous development in modern arms—rifles and machine guns and quick-firing field artillery—renders the cavalry as formerly used on the battlefield obsolete, while the wonderful development in the use of motor power and electrical appliances has rendered the horse far less important than formerly. These facts are doubly significant and should be recognized by the military authorities and the government.

There is, however, a corps or force required in our army that could be rendered of great utility, not only to the military but to the people. This power is being recognized by European governments, and I have several times recommended its use by ours. It will be utilized in the next war, and preparation for its use by our army should no longer be neglected. I have reference to the bicycle, motor cycle and the automobile, which they have developed to that extent that they have become a most valuable means of communication and transportation. Five regiments of cavalry should be discontinued and a corps of five regiments organized, thoroughly trained and constantly employed in the use of these modern appliances.

The modern appliances of road building are vastly superior to those formerly used (in fact, the work is now done principally by machinery), and this corps should be supplied with all the recent inventions and improvements for that purpose.

The millions of dollars that are now uselessly expended for one-third of the mounted force could in this way be utilized in bringing about a great improvement in the army.

NELSON A. MILES,
Lieutenant General.

TROUBLE OVER A PIER.

St. Johns, N. F., Aug. 28.—The French commodore on the Newfoundland station has protested against the erecting by an American mining company of a shipping pier at York harbor, on the French shore, where the company is now working a copper mine. The French claim that the pier is an infringement of their fishery rights. The matter promises an international difficulty, as the American company threatens to appeal to Washington if work on the pier is stopped.

THE STATE FAIR.

St. Paul, Aug. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The scene of the state fair is rapidly assuming the appearance of a great exhibition. Many exhibits are already installed in the principal buildings. Several herds of cattle, sheep and hogs arrived yesterday, and many of the race horses are on the grounds. The horses now on exhibition at the Iowa state fair will not arrive until Sunday, but the other exhibits will be on the grounds by tomorrow night, and everything will be ready for the opening of the fair Monday morning.

SENATORS AT SEATTLE.

Seattle, Aug. 28.—Senators Dillingham of Vermont and Burnham of New Hampshire, Patterson of Colorado and Nelson of Minnesota, comprising the senatorial party which went North two months ago to investigate Alaska's needs, have arrived here. They will not favor a territorial form of government for Alaska at this time, but they think that Alaska should have a delegate in congress.

IDE TO SUCCEED WRIGHT.

Oyster Bay, Aug. 28.—President Roosevelt announced tonight that Henry C. Ide, at present a member of the Philippine commision would be designated as vice governor when Gen. Luke Wright assumes the office of governor general.

SIXMASKED MEN

Lock Several Men In Refrigerator Car as a Joke.

Topeka, Kas., Aug. 28.—A special to the State Journal from McFarland, Kas., says: Early this morning six masked men, heavily armed, appeared at the Rock Island depot and started to enter the office door. Conductor Monehan of a freight train which had just pulled in, and Night Baggageman Charles Toler, saw them and hurriedly attempted to block the door, but the robbers forced an entrance and, after taking their money and watches, beat the railroad men into insensibility.

They then rifled the depot of its contents and, going hurriedly to the eating house, held up and took all the valuables from half a dozen men on the platform employed at the round house, and a part of the train crew. Passengers at the lunch room scurried upstairs and blocked the entrance effectively. The bandits then looted the eating house cash register and silverware, doing their work in a cool manner. Then apparently as a joke, they marched and carried six of the Rock Island employes, including the night hostler and Baggageman Toler, and locked them in a refrigerator car and disappeared.

Two hours after the robbers disappeared, Sheriff Frey had organized a posse and started in pursuit. The bandits were headed towards Topeka.

EDUCATION BILL A LAW

Manila, Aug. 28.—The new education bill has just become a law. It appropriates $73,000 to cover the expenses of the first year. It further provides that one hundred of the best qualified students securing at least 75 per cent on each subject at an annual examination to be held in each school district shall have the privilege of going to the United States to complete their education at institutions to be disgnated by the governor. The competition is moreover devoted to the pupils of public schools and to Filipinos of from 16 to 21 years, and physically sound. These students are required to take the oath of allegiance, promising with the approval of their parents to faithfully study for the full course and upon returning to the Philippines to take a civil service examination accepting later, if successful, an appointment.

BUYS COAL LAND.

Pittsburgh Company Secures Henry Oliver Holdings.

Pittsburg, Aug. 28.—The Pittsburg Coal company has just closed the deal for the purchase of all the coal land holdings of Henry W. Oliver, of the Kline Coal company, Chamberg County Coal company and the Second Pool Coal company for a sum approximating $1,000,000. The tract comprises about 4500 acres, and the purchase gives the combine practically all of the Pittsburg coal in the first pool outside of that held by the Pittsburg Terminal and Railroad and Coal company. The tract lies near Finleyville, on the Wheeling division of the Baltimore & Ohio.

NOTABLE VICTORY

Gained By Liberals In the Argyllshire Elections.

London, Aug. 28.—The Liberals gained a notable victory in Argyllshire, where, on Wednesday last, was held the first parliamentary by-election fought on the fiscal question raised by Colonial Secretary Chamberlain.

J. S. Ainsworth, the Liberal candidate, who represented free trade, was elected by the great majority of 1586 over Charles Stewart, Unionist, who stood for protection.

RACINE MAN KILLED.

Racine, Wis., Aug. 28.—Veneil Peshek was killed in the presence of three children this morning, by a Northwestern switch engine five miles north of Racine. Peshek in 1895 was convicted of killing his wife by throwing her out of a buggy, was sentenced for life and two years ago was pardoned.

MRS. WINTON SUICIDES.

Cleveland, Aug. 28.—Mrs. Alexander Winton, wife of the president of the Winton Automobile company, committed suicide early today by throwing herself into the lake. Mrs. Winton had been in ill health for several months. She arose from bed early this morning during the temporary absence of her nurse and disappeared. Subsequently Mrs. Winton's body was recovered from the lake.

For the Assassination of Consul Magelssen.

U. S. Warships Ordered to Turkish Waters.

Oyster Bay, Aug. 28.—President Roosevelt received a telegram today from the state department transmitting him a cable from the Turkish foreign office, disclaiming any responsibility for the murder of Consul Magelssen, and expressing regret that it should have occurred. Official information of the murder sems to be lacking in the Turkish foreign office, as the communication expresses some doubt of the report.

Secretary of State Hay arrived here today to meet an engagement made with the president prior to the receipt of the news of Magelssen's murder. The president and secretary considered in all its phases the situation which has arisen. The information yet at hand is indefinite, but it is expected that details of the crime from an official source will be forthcoming soon.

Washington, Aug. 28.—The action of Acting Secretary Darling in ordering the Brooklyn and San Francisco to proceed to Beirut without waiting for the Machias meets with the hearty approval of the state department. The condition of affairs and the methods of the Turkish government, as already developed, indicate to officials here that only a show of force will secure the redress demanded. It is believed that the dispatch of ships to the scene of the murder in such haste will convince the porte that the United States means to make all its demands effective. The American fleet will be useful in protecting Americans who are located in the disturbed districts of Turkey and Macedonia, and further will furnish a refuge for those who are near the sea coast and may suffer from the disorders.

Mr. Loomis has cabled Mr. Leishman that the Brooklyn and San Francisco will sail at once for Beirut, and that the Machias will follow as quickly as possible.

Another urgent appeal has reached the state department from the American board of missions at Boston that immediate steps be taken for the protection of the American citizens at Beirut. The board's dispatches from there for several days have represented the situation as extremely grave.

At the Euphrates college at Harpoot are fourteen American teachers, besides women and children, and property to the value of $100,000. It is learned that there is an American college at Beirut in which are a number of American teachers. No word has reached the state department regarding any attack on them.

Minister Leishman, in his cablegram to the state department received over night, confirms the press dispatches regarding the news of the dynamiting of a train twenty-three miles outside of Constantinople, stating that many were killed.

Constantinople, Aug. 28.—News of the assassination of United States Vice Consul Magelssen, at Beirut, Syria, while he was driving homeward Sunday, reached here yesterday morning. The assassin is unknown and there are no further details.

United States Minister Leishman, upon hearing of the outrage, proceeded at once to the foreign office to confer with Tewfik Pasha. Lack of proper protection for the public in Beirut has been commented upon for some time. The porte has even sent a commission of inquiry there, but nothing resulted.

Considerable forces of troops have been stationed in the various suburbs of Constantinople, as a precautionary measure, in view of the appearance of insurgents less than 100 miles from the capital.

A trainload of troops was dispatched yesterday from this city to Tcherkeskoi, vilayet of Adrianople, near which place three Bulgarian villages were recently attacked by Circassians and their inhabitants massacred.

The troops sent to reinforce the garrison of Kirk-Kilisseh, thirty-two miles from Adrianople, were routed by insurgents, whose numbers in the vilayet of Adrianople are estimated to be 6000.

London, Aug. 28.—The foreign office has received a dispatch from the British consul at Beirut notifying the authorities here of the assassination of William C. Magelssen, the United States vice deputy consul at that place. No details are given, and this, coupled with the fact that there have been no

HALF-BREEDS ARE CAUSING THE TROUBLE AT LEECH LAKE

The Full Blooded Indians Can Be Reasoned With But the Half and Quarter Breeds Are Trying to Incite An Outbreak.

St. Paul, Aug. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—"Disgruntled half-breeds and quarter-breeds, who are just out of jail after serving sentences for selling liquor to the Indians are the ones that are trying to stir up trouble on the Leech Lake reservation," said Deputy United States Marshal Frank Tufts, of Walker, Minn., who was in St. Paul yesterday. "The full blooded Indians can be reasoned with and do not care to use violence to secure their demands, but it is different with these half breeds, who are always looking for trouble.

"However," continued Mr. Tufts, "I do not think there will be any serious outbreak, notwithstanding the rumors around the reservation. The better class of Indians, and especially by one who has recently been released from prison, where he spent several months on a charge of selling liquor to his fellows. Maj. Scott, the agent at the reservation, has been making a determined crusade against the bootleggers and the saloonkeepers at Walker, and the jails in the vicinity have been well filled for the past few months.

"Most of those arrested are half or quarter breeds. These men have been agitating among the tribesmen that the government is trampling on their liberties in closing the saloons at Walker, and they are also using the delayed settlement of the timber difficulties as a basis for creating discontent."

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER INSANE

Chicago, Aug. 28.—Dominated by the same delusion, haunted by the same fear of unknown enemies, inseparable even in their mental weakness as they had been for years in health, Mrs. Anna Olovitch and her daughter Ada have been committed to Dunning by Judge Wheatley and a jury in the insane court at the detention hospital. Mrs. Anna Olovitch is 50 years old, her daughter is 20. They are Russian Jews, the girl was born in England and the father has been dead many years.

The daughter became seized with the delusion that some unknown enemy was endeavoring to suffocate her by blowing a deadly powder through keyholes and crevices and under doors and windows. The mother sought medical aid and worried herself until she was seized with the same delusion.

GIRL'S THROAT MYSTERIOUSLY CUT

Richmond, Mich., Aug. 28.—Twelve-year-old Agnes Douglas' throat was cut last night while she was sleeping with her father and her physician today says she cannot recover from the wound. The child's mother was at a neighbor's last night and the father says he awoke and found Agnes bleeding on the floor. He says she must have fallen against a plate of glass that was standing in the room which was later found broken. No statement can be gotten from the child owing to her condition. Douglas has not been arrested. Justice Heath has summoned the sheriff of the county to investigate the case.

IT WOULD BE WORSE THAN DEATH

London, Aug. 28.—The Shanghai correspondent of the Times says Viceroy Chang Chi Tung has informed the tao tai of Shanghai that if the consular body will surrender the editors of the reform paper, Supao, who are accused of seditious writings, the Chinese government will give an understanding that they shall only be sentenced to imprisonment. It is too be hoped, adds the correspondent, that Great Britain will not accede to the Chinese request, because summary execution would be more merciful than Chinese imprisonment. The viceroy of Nankin has ordered the rearrest and trial of four reformers who were recently arrested for delivering subversive lectures and liberated on the American missionaries guaranteeing their reappearance.

HARD BLOWS FOR ROYALTY

Tolstoi Bitterly Attacks Emperor William and Czar Nicholas.

New York, Aug. 28.—Copies of Count Leo Tolstoi's pamphlet, suppressed in Germany, have reached this country. It is entitled, "Thou Shalt Not Kill," and is an argument against the present state of society, which permits war and nourishes anarchy. The writer says in part:

"Kings and emperors should not be indignant when such murders as that of Alexander II, or Humbert, occur, but should, on the contrary, be surprised that such murders are so rare, considering the continual and universal examples of committing murders they themselves set the people.

"Kings and emperors are surprised and horrified when one of themselves is murder, and yet the whole of their activity consists in managing murder and preparing for murder. The keeping up the teaching and exercising of armies with which kings and emperors are always so much occupied, and of which they are the organizers—what is it but preparation for murder?

"What must indeed be going on in the head of some William of Germany, a man of limited understanding, little education and with a great deal of ambition, whose ideals are like those of a German 'yunker,' when any silly or horrid thing he may say is always met with an enthusiastic 'hoch' and commented on as if it were something very important, by the press of the whole world?

"He says that the soldiers should be prepared to kill their own fathers in obedience to his command. The answer is 'Hurrah!' He says the gospels must be introduced with a fist of iron, and again we hear, 'Hurrah!' He says that the army must not take any prisoners in China, but kill all, and he is not placed in a lunatic asylum, but they cry 'Hurrah!' and set sail for China to execute his orders.

"Or Nicholas, who, though naturally modest, begins his reign by declaring to venerable men, in answer to the desire they express of being allowed to discuss their own affairs, that their hope for self-government is a senseless dream. And the organs of the press that reach him and the people whom he meets praise him for it. He proposes a childish, silly and untruthful project of universal peace at the same time that he is ordering an increase of the army, and even then there are no limits to the laudations of his wisdom and his power. Without reason he senselessly and pitilessly offends the whole of the Finnish nation, and again hears nothing but praise.

"At last he starts the Chinese slaughter, terrible by its injustice, cruelty and its contrast with its project of peace, and he gets simultaneously applauded from all sides, both for his own conquests and for his adherence to his father's policy of peace. What must indeed be going on in the heads and hearts of such men?"

END OF BITTER FIGHT.

"Two physicians had a long and stubborn fight with an abcess on my right lung" writes J. F. Hughes of Du Pont, Ga. "and gave me up. Everybody thought my time had come. As a last resort I tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. The benefit I received was striking and I was on my feet in a few days. Now I've entirely regained my health." It conquers all Coughs, Colds and Throat and Lung troubles. Guaranteed by all Druggists. Price 50c, and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

DULUTH TAKES THE FIRST

Duluth Wins From Superior In a Prettily Played Game.

Noldin and Doll Do Fine Work—Lagger's Great Base Running.

NORTHERN LEAGUE.

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Winnipeg	61	24	.718
Grand Forks	51	35	.593
Crookston	49	35	.583
Duluth	39	47	.424
Fargo	33	55	.375
Superior	24	57	.296

In a hard and straining fray the White Sox delivered the goods yesterday.

Superior put up an article of ball that would have been a credit to any team and Duluth only won through Lagger's daring base running and Crippen's timely single.

Weather conditions were anything but favorable and the shivering fans were prepared for a comedy of errors—in fact anything but the sensationally clever work of both teams.

Noldin only gave Superior two hits up to the ninth inning, but with two men out in that round Page and Spellicey connected safely and it looked like a tie score for a time. Noldin then took a brace and struck out Houle.

Doll, for Superior was a surprise. He pitched big league ball and had the heavy hitters of the White Sox reaching vainly for the most tantalizing out curves that ever headed for a plate. He had ten men struck out but Howard dropped two third strikes, cutting the strike-out number down to eight.

Duluth scored in the first with two men out. Lagger hit a sharp one to Spellicey who footed it and by dint of a hair-raising sprint Lagger reached second. He crossed the plate on Kennally's single.

In the seventh Duluth scored two more. Lagger reached first on an error by Houle. He went to second on a passed ball. Brockway reached first over the Big Four route and while Lagger was stealing third he purloined second. With two out Crippen broke off a pretty single to right and Lagger and Brockway crossed the plate.

Superior came very near accumulating several runs in the ninth. With two men out Page ripped off a double and Spellicey scored him with a single. Houle then struck out but it was a trying moment for the fanatics.

Winnipeg had no trouble winning from Grand Forks with "Chesty" Cox pitching. Dellar started the game but retired early on account of a lame arm. Corbett pitched for Winnipeg. The score:

	R.	H.	E.

Brockway, recently from Calumet, made his first appearance at second and did splendidly.

Shaw played right field yesterday about as well as any of them. He cannot hit as hard as McCoy, but he covers lots of territory.

Umpire Harris seems to be about right. There was very little kicking on his decisions yesterday, despite the fact that a blinding dust made correct judging of balls and strikes rather difficult.

The Superior team has changed so much that only Spellicey remains of the nine that played the first Duluth-Superior game at Athletic park this season. Incidentally it may be said that the present team is composed of about as gentlemanly a lot of players as have been seen here this year.

Discouraging reports come from Winnipeg regarding the condition of King, the fast little short stop of the Superior team, who was struck on the ear recently by a pitched ball. It is feared his skull is fractured.

Winnepeg will start off on a barnstorming tour the Sunday after the close of the season. They propose playing through Minnesota, Iowa and Wisconsin, and expect to meet the St. Paul team for a series of five games.

So far this season Duluth has won twenty and lost fourteen games on the home grounds.

Fargo will play Bismarck next Sunday.

LA RITA WINS

The First Race For Lipton Cup.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—In a 20-knot breeze La Rita, sailing under the colors of the Chicago Yacht club, yesterday took the first of a series of three races being sailed on Lake Michigan for possession of the Sir Thomas Lipton cup. Sprite, also a representative of the Chicago Yacht club, came in second, 2 minutes and 45 seconds after La Rita had crossed the finish line. Hoosier came in third, Little Shamrock fourth, Pilot fifth and Outlaw sixth. The finish between Sprite, Hoosier and Little Shamrock was very exciting, the three 21-footers finishing almost together. La Rita's time for the course, which was twice over a triangular course, six miles in length, two miles to the legs, was 2 hours 10 minutes and 50 seconds. She took the lead at the start and was never headed.

Privateer, entered for the contest by the Columbia Yacht club, scuffered an accident to her rigging just before the starting gun was fired and was unable to compete.

The second race of the series will be sailed Friday over a windward and leeward course.

FALL TERM

Will begin at the Duluth Business University, for day and evening classes on Monday, Sept. 7. College office open from 8 a. m. until 8 p. m. each week day until the opening. IOWA POPULISTS

Meet at Des Moines and Nominated State Ticket.

Governor—L. H. Weller, Nashua.

Lieutenant governor—S. T. Harvey, Des Moines.

Judge of supreme court—J. A. Lowenberg, Ottumwa.

Railroad commissioner—Walter McCullah, Davis City.

Superintendent of public instruction—Hilo Bunce, Stuart.

The ticket was named without contest, but there was a spirited debate over the platform. One faction, headed by Howard Case, desired to eliminate the demand for the referendum and confine the party's appeal on this line to the initiative. The convention decided to endorse this plank providing for the initiative alone and to use the phrase "initiative and referendum" elsewhere, thus satisfying both sides.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Public Printer Palmer has made the statement that the order for the taking of the oath of allegiance by all employes of the government printing office was neither directly or indirectly the result of the controversy between the Bookbinders' union and Assistant Foreman Miller.

A special to the Inter-Mountain from Missoula, Mont., says: Samuel Cohen, who says he is from Spokane, confessed that he blew up the Northern Pacific bridge at Livingston last month. When arrested near Arlee, Mont., he was trying to buy dwnamite. He said his mission earth was to correct certain evils and to destroy railroads, which, he says, are trusts.

Another world's record for the half-mile track of 2.08¾ was made by George H. Ketcham's Cresceus Thursday afternoon at Dayton, Ohio. Ketcham drove him. Cresceus was paced by Mike the Tramp, driven by Dr. A. Scott Ives, of Montreal, and by a steam automobile, driven by Mr. Denzer.

Daniel Connell and Clyde Livingston, of Peoria, Ill., were both instantly killed Thursday night. A portion of the electric light system of the city became "grounded" during a storm. Connell attempted to turn on an electric light in a saloon and was instantly killed. Livingston met his death in a similar manner at his residence. Several others were shocked.

R. E. Davis, president of the First National bank of Park Rapids, Minn., was drowned in Fish Hook lake Thursday afternoon. Mr. Davis was sailing on the lake with a party of friends, among them his aged father, who resides in Madison, Wis. A fierce squall came up, which snapped off the mast, knocking Davis into the water, where he perished, despite the efforts made to rescue him.

At Kent, Iowa, a locomotive and seventeen freight cars on the Burlington road went through a bridge that had been weakened by high water, carrying down with it the engineer and fireman. Both escaped by swimming to shore. Two and one-half inches of water fell over Creston and vicinity after midnight Thursday night in six hours, washing out the tracks and destroying much stacked hay and grain.

WENTWORTH LOCATED.

Principals In Sensational Elopment Are Found.

New York, Aug. 28.—George E. Wentworth, the college graduate, lawyer and clubman who created a sensation in December, 1900, by deserting his wife and eloping from this city with pretty blue-eyed Marie Louise Ackerman, has been found by his friends in Minneapolis. He has written to his former friend, M. A. Peoli of 244 W. One Hundred and Fifty-seventh street. He is happy, he says, practicing his profession and making more money than ever before.

The letter contains numerous messages from acquaintances, one of which is to R. M. Putnam, his former law partner, telling him to charge the indebtedness that he left unpaid to profit and loss, as he will soon be able to make good.

Miss Ackerman is a daughter of the late George Ackerman, who was president of the Tenth National bank. She had one brother with whom her father's estate, valued at $30,000, was divided. While preparing to take a civil service examination she fell in with Wegtworth who helped her with her studies. It is said the couple have been married. Mrs. Wentworth has obtained a divorce.

Miss Ackerman's relatives say they would forget all if "Lou" would return, but they do not wish to see Wentworth again.

ROBBER CAUGHT.

Farm Hand Entered Postoffice at Amiret, Minn.

St. Paul, Aug. 28.—(Special to the Herald.)—Postoffice Inspector Smith arrived in St. Paul yesterday from Amiret, Minn., where he arrested Hugh Hendon, a farm hand, on a charge of robbing the postofice at Amiret, Aug. 20. The inspector recovered about $50 and stamps taken from the post office.

Hendon was taken before the United States commissioner at Mankato and he waived examination. He was held to the grand jury.

FOREMAN FOUND DEAD.

Washburn, Wis., Aug. 28.—Oscar Anderson, a foreman at the dynamite plant, near this city, was found dead yesterday near where his crew were at work. A few minutes before his body was found he had been around giving directions to his men and when he was missed, and search was made for him, the dead body was discovered with the face partially submerged in a pool of muddy water where he had fallen in a fit. Anderson was from Superior, and he came here only last Monday. He has worked around here before, and was well known, although he is not known to have any relatives living in this part of the county.

Empire State Express In Foot-Ball.

The New York Central's Empire State Express is recognized as the swiftest and surest train operated by America's greatest railroad, and considered the very best means to cover the ground in the time required. It is for this reason that the Harvard University football team named their best and surest play of the season of 1902 the "Empire State Express," for they believed it to be the most reliable play in their program. It was successful throughout the season until it met Yale's "20th Century Limited" play, which was just as swift, safe and sure, but had longer endurance and was "limited" only by the size of the field. The names of the rival teams very correctly describe the difference in the famous trains, the "Empire State" running only from New York to Buffalo, while the "20th Century Limited" makes the nine hundred and eighty miles between New York and Chicago in twenty hours every day of the year. Great is the New York Central and great are the trains it operates—swift, safe and reliable—From the Brooklyn Standard-Union.

AFFECTED HIS MIND.

Miner's Reason Shattered By Companions' Sufferings.

Levais Dueca, an Austrian miner, who was crazed by witnessing the agony of his companions imprisoned under a cave-in at the Chisholm mine recently, was adjudged insane in probate court yesterday. Dueca was one of the first to go to the relief of the men that were imprisoned, and he was present when one of the men was uncovered, still alive, only to meet death a little later by a lesser cave-in. When this accident occurred, and his comrades have been unable to induce him to return to work since. During his examination yesterday afternoon he complained that some one with fine wires was cutting his body to bits. Tis home is at Houghton, Mich., and the authorities will take him there.

THE BATES ESTATE.

Court Appoints Guardian and Custodian of Property.

Mrs. Elizabeth A. Corey was yesterday appointed guardian of Lorna Bates, the 9-year-old daughter of the late Dr. Stuart Bates. R. S. Powell was appointed custodian of the estate in probate court. This is the outcome of a controversy between the relatives of the child. The guardian is her grandmother, with whom she has lived ever since she was a year old. They have lived in Faribault. Mrs. Corey's bond was fixed at $500 and Judge Powell's at $5000. The estate amounts to $10,000.

Duluth Wins From Superior In a Prettily Played Game.

NORTHERN LEAGUE.

Superior	24	57	.296

In a hard and straining fray the White Sox delivered the goods yesterday.

Superior put up an article of ball that would have been a credit to any team and Duluth only won through Lagger's daring base running and Crippen's timely single.

Weather conditions were anything but favorable and the shivering fans were prepared for a comedy of errors—in fact anything but the sensationally clever work of both teams.

Noldin only gave Superior two hits up to the ninth inning, but with two men out in that round Page and Spellicey connected safely and it looked like a tie score for a time. Noldin then took a brace and struck out Houle.

Doll, for Superior, was a surprise. He pitched big league ball and had the heavy hitters of the White Sox reaching vainly for the most tantalizing out curves that ever headed for a plate. He had ten men struck out but Howard dropped two third strikes, cutting the strike-out number down to eight.

Duluth scored in the first with two men out. Lagger hit a sharp one to Spellicey who rooted it and by dint of a hair-raising sprint Lagger reached second. He crossed the plate on Kennally's single.

In the seventh Duluth scored two more. Lagger reached first on an error by Houle. He went to second on a passed ball. Brockway reached first, over the Big Four route and while Lagger was stealing third he purloined second. With two out Crippen broke off a pretty single to right and Lagger and Brockway crossed the plate.

Superior came very near accumulating several runs in the ninth. With two men out Page ripped off a double and Spellicey scored him with a single. Houle then struck out but it was a trying moment for the fanatics.

Public Printer Palmer has made the statement that the order for the taking of the oath of allegiance by all employes of the government printing office was neither directly or indirectly the result of the controversy between the Bookbinders' union and Assistant Foreman Miller.

A special to the Inter-Mountain from Missoula, Mont., says: Samuel Cohen, who says he is from Spokane, confessed that he blew up the Northern Pacific bridge at Livingston last month. When arrested near Arlee, Mont., he was trying to buy dwnamite. He said his mission earth was to correct certain evils and to destroy railroads, which, he says, are trusts.

Another world's record for the half-mile track of 2.08¾ was made by George H. Ketcham's Cresceus Thursday afternoon at Dayton, Ohio. Ketcham drove him. Cresceus was paced by Mike the Tramp, driven by Dr. A. Scott Ives, of Montreal, and by a steam automobile, driven by Mr. Denzer.

Daniel Connell and Clyde Livingston, of Peoria, Ill., were both instantly killed Thursday night. A portion of the electric light system of the city became "grounded" during a storm. Connell attempted to turn on an electric light in a saloon and was instantly killed. Livingston met his death in a similar manner at his residence. Several others were shocked.

R. E. Davis, president of the First National bank of Park Rapids, Minn., was drowned in Fish Hook lake Thursday afternoon. Mr. Davis was sailing on the lake with a party of friends, among them his aged father, who resides in Madison, Wis. A fierce squall came up, which snapped off the mast, knocking Davis into the water, where he perished, despite the efforts made to rescue him.

At Kent, Iowa, a locomotive and seventeen freight cars on the Burlington road went through a bridge that had been weakened by high water, carrying down with it the engineer and fireman. Both escaped by swimming to shore. Two and one-half inches of water fell over Creston and vicinity after midnight Thursday night in six hours, washing out the tracks and destroying much stacked hay and grain.

WENTWORTH LOCATED.

Principals In Sensational Elopment Are Found.

New York, Aug. 28.—George E. Wentworth, the college graduate, lawyer and clubman who created a sensation in December, 1900, by deserting his wife and eloping from this city with pretty blue-eyed Marie Louise Ackerman, has been found by his friends in Minneapolis. He has written to his former friend, M. A. Peoli of 244 W. One Hundred and Fifty-seventh street. He is happy, he says, practicing his profession and making more money than ever before.

The letter contains numerous messages from acquaintances, one of which is to R. M. Putnam, his former law partner, telling him to charge the indebtedness that he left unpaid to profit and loss, as he will soon be able to make good.

Miss Ackerman is a daughter of the late George Ackerman, who was president of the Tenth National bank. She had one brother with whom her father's estate, valued at $30,000, was divided. While preparing to take a civil service examination she fell in with Wentworth who helped her with her studies. It is said the couple have been married. Mrs. Wentworth has obtained a divorce.

Miss Ackerman's relatives say they would forget all if "Lou" would return, but they do not wish to see Wentworth again.

ROBBER CAUGHT.

Farm Hand Entered Postoffice at Amiret, Minn.

St. Paul, Aug. 28.—(Special to the Herald.)—Postoffice Inspector Smith arrived in St. Paul yesterday from Amiret, Minn., where he arrested Hugh Hendon, a farm hand, on a charge of robbing the postofice at Amiret, Aug. 20. The inspector recovered about $50 and stamps taken from the post office.

Hendon was taken before the United States commissioner at Mankato and he waived examination. He was held to the grand jury.

FOREMAN FOUND DEAD.

Washburn, Wis., Aug. 28.—Oscar Anderson, a foreman at the dynamite plant, near this city, was found dead yesterday near where his crew were at work. A few minutes before his body was found he had been around giving directions to his men and when he was missed, and search was made for him, the dead body was discovered with the face partially submerged in a pool of muddy water where he had fallen in a fit. Anderson was from Superior, and he came here only last Monday. He has worked around here before, and was well known, although he is not known to have any relatives living in this part of the county.

Empire State Express In Foot-Ball.

The New York Central's Empire State Express is recognized as the swiftest and surest train operated by America's greatest railroad, and considered the very best means to cover the ground in the time required. It is for this reason that the Harvard University football team named their best and surest play of the season of 1902 the "Empire State Express," for they believed it to be the most reliable play in their program. It was successful throughout the season until it met Yale's "20th Century Limited" play, which was just as swift, safe and sure, but had longer endurance and was "limited" only by the size of the field. The names of the rival teams very correctly describe the difference in the famous trains, the "Empire State" running only from New York to Buffalo, while the "20th Century Limited" makes the nine hundred and eighty miles between New York and Chicago in twenty hours every day of the year. Great is the New York Central and great are the trains it operates—swift, safe and reliable—From the Brooklyn Standard-Union.

AFFECTED HIS MIND.

Miner's Reason Shattered By Companions' Sufferings.

Levais Ducca, an Austrian miner, who was crazed by witnessing the agony of his companions imprisoned under a cave-in at the Chisholm mine recently, was adjudged insane in probate court yesterday. Ducca was one of the first to go to the relief of the men that were imprisoned, and he was present when one of the men was uncovered, still alive, only to meet death a little later by a lesser cave-in. When this accident occurred, and his comrades have been unable to induce him to return to work since. During his examination yesterday afternoon he complained that some one with fine wires was cutting his body to bits. His home is at Houghton, Mich., and the authorities will take him there.

THE BATES ESTATE.

Court Appoints Guardian and Custodian of Property.

Mrs. Elizabeth A. Corey was yesterday appointed guardian of Lorna Bates, the 9-year-old daughter of the late Dr. Stuart Bates. R. S. Powell was appointed custodian of the estate in probate court. This is the outcome of a controversy between the relatives of the child. The guardian is her grandmother, with whom she has lived ever since she was a year old. They have lived in Faribault. Mrs. Corey's bond was fixed at $500 and Judge Powell's at $5000. The estate amounts to $10,000.

HARD BLOWS FOR ROYALTY

New York, Aug. 28.—Copies of Count Leo Tolstoi's pamphlet, suppressed in Germany, have reached this country. It is entitled, "Thou Shalt Not Kill," and is an argument against the present state of society, which permits war and nourishes anarchy. The writer says in part:

"Kings and emperors should not be indignant when such murders as that of Alexander II, or Humbert, occur, but should, on the contrary, be surprised that such murders are so rare, considering the continual and universal examples of committing murders they themselves set the people.

"Kings and emperors are surprised and horrified when one of themselves is murder, and yet the whole of their activity consists in managing murder and preparing for murder. The keeping up the teaching and exercising of armies with which kings and emperors are always so much occupied, and of which they are the organizers—what is it but preparation for murder?

"What must indeed be going on in the head of some William of Germany, a man of limited understanding, little education and with a great deal of ambition, whose ideals are like those of a German 'yunker,' when any silly or horrid thing he may say is always met with an enthusiastic 'hoch' and commented on as if it were something very important, by the press of the whole world?

"He says that the soldiers should be prepared to kill their own fathers in obedience to his command. The answer is 'Hurrah!' He says the gospels must be introduced with a fist of iron, and again we hear, 'Hurrah!' He says that the army must not take any prisoners in China, but kill all, and he is not placed in a lunatic asylum, but they cry 'Hurrah!' and set sail for China to execute his orders.

"Or Nicholas, who, though naturally modest, begins his reign by declaring to venerable men, in answer to the desire they express of being allowed to discuss their own affairs, that their hope for self-government is a senseless dream. And the organs of the press that reach him and the people whom he meets praise him for it. He proposes a childish, silly and untruthful project of universal peace at the same time that he is ordering an increase of the army, and even then there are no limits to the laudations of his wisdom and his power. Without reason he senselessly and pitilessly offends the whole of the Finnish nation, and again hears nothing but praise.

"At last he starts the Chinese slaughter, terrible by its injustice, cruelty and its contrast with its project of peace, and he gets simultaneously applauded from all sides, both for his own conquests and for his adherence to his father's policy of peace. What must indeed be going on in the heads and hearts of such men?"

END OF BITTER FIGHT.

"Two physicians had a long and stubborn fight with an abcess on my right lung" writes J. F. Hughes of Du Pont, Ga. "and gave me up. Everybody thought my time had come. As a last resort I tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. The benefit I received was striking and I was on my feet in a few days. Now I've entirely regained my health." It conquers all Coughs, Colds and Throat and Lung troubles. Guaranteed by all Druggists. Price 50c, and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

TO BREAK RECORD

August Likely to Show Up Very Badly For Weather.

Less Than Six Clear Days In Duluth's Best Summer Month.

August, 1903, will probably break all records at the local weather bureau for wet and rainy summer months.

Of the first twenty-eight days of the present month the sun has failed to shine on 10. Of the remaining 18 days, 12 have been partly cloudy, with more or less rain and but 6 have been clear.

The average record for August is about 10 clear days, 13 partly cloudy and 8 cloudy.

Since Aug. 12 the sun has shown its face during the entire day but once, and of those 16 days seven have been cloudy, 8 partly cloudy and 1 clear.

For seven successive days the report of the weather bureau has been either cloudy or partly cloudy, and the wind has held almost steadily from the northeast, bringing as is the rule, wet and cold weather.

The prevailing winds have been from the northeast throughout the month, and the old rule, that a summer northeaster lasts three days, has been proved a fallacy.

But little hope for a change is held out by the weather man. The probabilities for tomorrow are for showers, with gradually decreasing winds, and it is likely that for the remainder of the month at least, the report will show cloudy or partly cloudy days. This will leave but 6 clear days out of 31, and it will badly shake Duluth's reputation for delightful summer weather.

June of last year also showed a large surplus of rainy days, and although July was credited with its full share of fine weather, the summer on the whole has been more than ordinarily cold and wet, according to the records of the weather bureau.

IMPORTANT HEARINGS

Commercial Bank Matters To Come Before Judge Morris.

Two important hearings will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock in the matter of Charles F. Leland and the wrecked Commercial bank.

The first case is that of the petition of H. H. Phelps in the case of L. N. Case, H. H. Phelps and G. H. Martin against Charles F. Leland.

Mr. Phelps brought suit to recover a certificate of deposit of $660 on the American Exchange bank, which he deposited in the Commercial bank, shortly before the bank closed its doors. He claims that it was fraudulently received by the officials of the bank, whom he claims, were aware of the condition of the bank's affairs.

An order was issued by Judge Morris for Mr. Leland and Deputy United States Marshal Stephen Picha, to appear and show cause why the certificate should not be delivered to Mr. Phelps, and the case will be heard tomorrow.

The second case is a petition of a similar nature, filed by F. A. Sills. He deposited a warrant on the state treasurer for the sum of $87.50 shortly before the closing of the bank, and the charges are similar to those contained in the petition of Mr. Phelps.

In both these cases the papers deposited can be readily identified, and not negotiable. The case therefore will present a different legal aspect from the claim of any who may have deposited cash after the bank officials are claimed to have known of the bankrupt condition of the bank's affairs.

From Hawthorne Track During the Races.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—Hawthorne track today was cut off from the rest of the world so far as telegraphic communications is concerned. President Fitzgerald, of the Racing association, this morning notified the telegraph companies to discontinue their wire connections with the track indefinitely. He stated that he did not want any report of the odds or running of the races to be sent out during the day, the inference being that the dissemination of such information kept down the attendance at the track.

FRANKENFIELD.

CRUISERS SAIL

Brooklyn and San Francisco Leave France For Beirut.

American Board of Missions Makes Appeal to Government.

Nice, France, Aug. 28.—The United States cruisers Brooklyn and San Francisco left Ville Franche this evening for Genoa and Beirut.

Boston, Aug 28.—The appeal of the American board to the government at Washington on behalf of the American citizens at Harpoot is based on a series of incidents which, to the mind of the board managers indicate increasing danger to the interests of the American residents. Not only has the appeal been made to the state department but a letter has been sent to President Roosevelt asking for an opportunity to present him the situation. The request for an interview with the president was made in a letter yesterday and the effort of the board has the endorsement of the lieutenant governor, Curtis Guild, Jr., a friend of President Roosevelt, who also has written to the president urging that the board's request be granted.

The board's first appeal was made because of an attempt to burn the American college at Harpoot, news of which was received by cable last Monday. The second appeal was made also on Monday when a cablegram was received from W. W. Peet, treasurer of the American board at Constantinople, saying that the fanaticism at Harpoot was almost beyond control and that the delay of action would be dangerous. This cablegram from Mr. Peet was mailed from Constantinople to Vienna to avoid censorship and was cabled from Vienna, Aug. 23.

"Vienna, Aug. 23.—Norton wires fanaticism Harpoot almost beyond control. Delay of action dangerous.

"PEET."

As far as the American board has been advised, the attempt to burn the American college, the date of which is not known, resulted in little damage, as the building was of stone. The fact that the attempt was made, however, is viewed as evidence of the hostility of the Turks toward civilizing influences and an increasing daring in their attitude toward the United States. The situation in East Turkey was presented by the board officials, and is that when demand was made last December that American institutions in Turkey be granted the same concessions as those of other governments, promises were considered a sufficient answer by the Turks. The promises were not kept, and the matter was not pushed, which, it is claimed, encouraged the Turks last June to seize Tenekejian, a native teacher in the mission schools, on a charge of sedition. In spite of protest by the prisoner's friends, he was kept in confinement, and the American board appealed to the state department.

The result of the appeal was a request that the Turkish government see that the man have a speedy trial and prompt release if innocent, and that in the case of innocence being established, his culminators be punished. Thus the case has stood since June, Mr. Tenekjian being still in confinement, and the American board expresses the belief that fearing nothing, the Turks with growing fanaticism did not hesitate at setting fire to the college buildings.

Knowledge of these facts, emphasized by the cable announcing the growing danger, have prompted the board managers to do everything possiblue to gain the attention of the state department and of the president himself.

Paris, Aug. 28.—The Turkish embassy here has no information regarding the assassination of Mr. Mageissen. The ambassador, Munir Bey is absent at Berne, and his private secretary, M. Chesnel, said he was fully satisfied that the assassination had no connection with the troubles in Macedonia, owing to the distance of Beirut from the seat of disorder. The city of Beirut is comparatively progressive, and no animosity exists there against foreigners, as shown by the fact that it is a favorite resort of foreign tourists.

Berlin, Aug. 28.—A semi-official statement, published here concerning the murder of the United States vice consul at Beirut, says: Should Turkey ask the advice of the imperial government in this matter, the imperial government would not fail to impress on the former the necessity for giving the American government the fullest satisfaction."

DR. SCHWARTZ RELEASED.

Berlin, Aug. 28.—Dr. Schwartz, manager of the state sick insurance hospital at Muhlhausen, Alsace-Lorraine, who was arrested in connection with Dr. Schloss, wso was the leader of a strike movement on the part of outdoor relief physicians at Muhlhausen and who was reported to have been killed by Dr. Schwartz in a duel three or four days ago, has been released from custody, the suspicions of the police not having been supported by the testimony.

PORTS WILL BE SEIZED

If Demands of United States Are Refused By Turkey.

Washington, Aug. 28.—If Turkey does not comply promptly with each and every demand of the Washington government, Rear Admiral Cotton will be instructed to seize one or more ports and hold them until the American demands are granted.

Minister Leishman's withdrawal will shortly follow in case Turkey refuses to comply with the American demands. In that event the Aemrican legation will be in charge of the British minister.

Acting Secretary Loomis today cabled Consul Havnal at Beirut inquiring for further particulars of the assassination of Vice Consul Magelssen, and also as to the condition of affairs at Bsirut. Mr. Loomis also cabled United States Consul Thomas Norton at Harpoot as to the reported outbreaks there and danger to American citizens. Secretary Hay is expected here next week.

POWERS CONTINUES

Argument In His Own Defense Before Jury.

Georgetown, Ky., Aug. 28—Caleb Powers resumed argument in his own defense before the jury this morning. He will be followed this afternoon by States Attorney Franklyn. Powers declared to the jury that the star witness of the commonwealth, Wharton Golden, was swearing to keep out of the penitentiary and that Henry Youtsey was swearing to get out of that institution.

He denied that he ever had any connection with Youtsey, and pointed out that the testimony shows that he had not known Youtsey thirty days before the shooting. He made a strong point of the fact that the testimony shows no personal communication with Youtsey by him until the day before the shooting.

POSTPONEMENT ASKED

For Meeting of Venezuelan Claim Arbitrators.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 28.—In consequence of the inability of Dr. Lardy, the Swiss minister at Paris, and Professor Matzen of the Copenhagen universlay, to serve as arbitrators at The Hague in the claims of the allied powers for preferential treatment in the settlement with Venezuela, the foreign office has requested the postponement of the date, which was Sept. 1, of the first meeting of the tribunal until after arbitrators are secured..

HIT BY TRAIN.

Robert Russell Has Leg Broken Near Cloquet.

A man named Robert Russell was struck by the engine of the west-bound Great Northern passenger train No. 13 about five miles west of Cloquet this morning. One of his legs was broken and he was internally injured, though not fatally. He was taken to Grand Rapids and placed in a hospital.

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

Houghton, Mich., Aug. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—William Lapp, for forty-five years a resident of the copper country, and pioneer in the development of Lake Superior properties, and one of the oldest mining engineers in the United States, died last evening at his home at Hancock of old age, aged 77. He was elected first clerk of the village of Hancock, March 10, 1863. He is survived by four children, Henry Lapp, Miss Jennie Lapp and Mrs. Lincoln Willeben, of Hancock, and Julius Lapp, Chicago.

Boston, Aug. 28.—Frederick Olmstead, the noted landscape architect, died today at Waverly, Mass., aged 81 years.

A POPULAR VICTORY

Budd Doble Cheered Upon His Return to the Turf.

He Had His All at Stake on Kinney Lou.

New York, Aug. 28.—If ever the trotting turf has had a popular victory it was that scored at the Empire City track when that grizzled veteran of the harness racing world, Budd Doble, drove Kinney Lou to victory. Time was when Budd Doble was the recognized king of reinsmen. But that was a decade or more ago.

And so, when the man who, in nearly a generation of racing, had never once had his honesty impunged, drove his good green trotter, Kinney Lou, to victory in the Empire City stakes, there came such a roar of cheering as must have tickled the ears even of that quiet, modest man of the sulky.

But the public generally could not know what the stake was in that race. There was more in it than a mere purse of $5000. Victory meant much to Budd Doble—defeat meant even more. Victory meant that he would have a new lease of life in the sulky. Defeat meant practical ruin and his permanent retirement from the turf.

Kinney Lou must have had some sort of a horse idea of what depended on him. He must have known that if he had failed to poke his muzzle across the wire in front of his rival's the stanch friend who held the reins would never hold them over him again.

The good brown son of the famous Kinney surely knew that he was pledged; that in the stream of fortune he had been put in pawn for some $4000 by the man who was guiding him on in the fury of his speed. And so in a burst of speed that surprised even Budd Doble, Kinney Lou went on unfalteringly and took the stake from the hitherto unbeaten John Taylor and winner of the $10,000 Merchants and Manufacturers' stake at Detroit. Not only did he win the $2500 purse in the fastest time ever made by a "green" horse—one that has never made a mark—but he cleaned up a considerable sum in the pools for his famous driver.

Budd Doble and Kinney Lou with so much at stake, formed an unbeatable combination. One hundred yards from the wire the long, lithe horse came on with such a burst of speed as lifted old-time turfmen off their feet and set them cheering as they hadn't cheered since the glorious days of Dexter and Goldsmith Maid and Maud S and Mattie Hunter.

Kinney Lou almost went begging in the pools. In one he sold for a paltry $15, while Jay McGregor brought $250. John Taylor $200 and the field $25. This was about the estimate placed on the chances of the son of Kinney by the wise ones. Budd Doble quietly brought some of these pools, for he had confidence in Kinney Lou. Even after he had taken the first heat in such commanding style he sold in the pools for $50, while the field went like hot cakes at $100.

But Kinney Lou knew. The great steel muscles of legs and body worked as never before, and he trotted the first mile in 2:09 flat, with John Taylor at his throatlatch. The second mile he covered in 2:07¾, just to show the cheering crowd what he could do for Budd Doble.

Incidentally it was the Budd Doble of days who held the reins over Kinney Lou, was the Budd Doble who had broken records with that game mare Nancy Hanks. Expert reinsmen saw such an exhibition as they have warmed the cockles of their hearts. They saw Budd Doble come down the stretch in an old-time whirl of speed. They saw him seemingly lift Kinney Lou over the wire a winner by an eyelash. It was not "old" Budd Doble, but "young" Budd Doble, the man who wins the confidence and respect of a horse instead of using whalebone to terrorize him and thus get speed out of him.

They saw again the man who astonished the whole world by driving the great Dexter a mile in 2:17¼, beating all world's records for the distance.

For nearly ten years Doble has been out of the going, as turfmen are wont to say. After his victories with Nancy Hanks—taking "tin-cup" records—he dropped out of sight. "Young blood" displaced the veteran reinsman. Fortune began to frown on him in his declining years. Time was when he could sign his check for $250,000 and have it honored, but unfortunate investments gradually encroached and at last Budd Doble, the driver who had earned $250,000 with Goldsmith Maid alone, found himself fortuneless. But now with such good bread winners as Kinney Lou and The Roman in his stable he seems in a fair way to retrieve his fortune, even though his hair is grizzled with 64 years of life.

The only blemish that ever came to Doble came during a race some ten or twelve years ago out at the old Fleetwood track. In one of the hotly contested heats he and John Kelly, who was un behind Directum, clashed and Doble struck Kelly across the face with his whip. He was fined for the offense.

Doble once saw a horse hitched to a butcher's wagon in San Francisco. At that time he was driving for Senator Stanford and was in the hey-day of his fame. He liked the way the horse stepped out in front of the butcher's wagon, so he bought him, paying $90, the butcher congratulating himself on the sale.

Within a year that butcher's horse, called Occident by Doble, covered a mile to sulky in exactly Dexter's world's record time of 1:17¼.

WED IN CIGAR STORE.

Was Heiress to Half a Million Dollars.

Philadelphia, Aug. 28.—Heiress to half a million dollars and prominent in society in West Philadelphia, Miss Meta Colton Fell, throwing conventionalities to the winds and seemingly utterly forgetting the man to whom she was supposed to be engaged, went to Chester on a trolley car and was married secretly to her cousin, Richard L. Jenks, also prominent in business and social life in this city. Nor was that all, for the couple was married by Alderman Garvine in a dingy cigar store where the alderman holds his court.

"I would not have married them if they had told me they were first cousins" said the alderman yesterday, "for it is against the law. I think the woman is about ten years younger than the man. He had his divorce papers with him and they were dated Dec. 15 last. After the ceremony they asked me to keep the wedding secret for a week or so, but it seems to have leaked out somehow."

The bride is a granddaughter of George M. Troutman, since dead, and a cousin by marriage of Mrs. Van Rensselaer. Her father, who was from Faulkland, Del., died last February. Three or four years ago the engagement of Miss Fell to John Snyder was announced, but in April, 1901, the engagement was broken. Then Charles H. Wheeler, professor of mathematics in the Drexel institute, became a seemingly successful suitor. That her cousin, whose bride she now is, was paying attention to her was known to only a few intimate friends, and they thought it signified nothing serious.

Without the knowledge of any of their relatives and friends, Mr. Jenks and Miss Fell boarded a trolley car bound for Chester. Immediately after their arrival there they went to the Washington house and inquired of the clerk where they could procure a marriage license.

"Alderman Garvine can marry you," said the clerk, "and he will obtain the license for you."

JUDGE JUDD OF TENNESSEE

Praises Cleveland But He Favors Olney For President.

Salt Lake, Utah, Aug. 28.—Judge Judd C. Judd, of Knoxville, Tenn., a former federal judge, who was appointed by Cleveland, is here on a visit. He said:

"I am a Democrat of uncertain leanings, ideas and principles, but I am not sure but that it would be the best think to have Mr. Roosevelt in the chair another year. There is a world of discontent in the country. Labor has run things with a high hand for some time, and the unions have become so imbued with the spirit of rebellion that they are trying to say to the business interests: 'Run things to suit us or we will ruin.' Then they use dynamite, murder, etc., until anarchy reigns.

"It is an every-day occurrence and it needs a man in the presidential seat who is not afraid to do things, to call out the troops if necessary and to subdue the disorderly mobs. Roosevelt is such a man. While I consider Mr. Cleveland the greatest living American, yet I do not see how he can be nominated for the presidency a fourth time. He is 66 years old in the first place, and in the second place this third-term sentiment is not dead. The people won't have it. Mr. Cleveland is a power in his party and his hand will be felt heavily in the convention.

"I favor Mr. Olney's nomination because he is a man who has the confidence of the whole country. While he did not either repudiate or take up Bryanism, he kept still and voted the Democratic ticket. He is keen, alert, steady upon a strain, longheaded and far-sighted, and is both politician and statesman; politician in the sense that he is able to manage men, while they don't seem to know it. I think he can beat President Roosevelt, but with any of the other men, such as Gorman, Parker, Gray and Whitney the enemy would have a walk-over."

Judge Judd was territorial judge of Utah years ago and has many friends here. He was on the bench here during Utah's stirring days when Brigham Young was in the saddle.

WONDERFUL MACHINE.

Turns Out Thousands of Words Per Hour.

Philadelphia, Aug. 28.—Still another achievement is credited to the fertile inventors of the Pollak-Virag rapid telegraph system. While at the present time the system seems to be burdened with insurmountable difficulties of application, the resourcefulness of its inventors may yet place it on a practical commercial basis. It will be remembered that by this system as high as 50,000 words can be transmitted per hour.

It does not need much laudation to bring about a proper realization of the ingenuity of the inventors of a machine which can turn out written messages. A machine that can write in script at the rate of many thousand words an hour is certainly a marvel, even in these days of mechanical wonders. The original receiving apparatus produced a written, or, to be more accurate, photographic record, in which the alphabet was represented by a continuous line that was very difficult to read. In the later form of the receiving device the outlines are so nearly those of the usual script form that they can be read without any difficulty by anyone.

The Pollak-Virag is one form of machine telegraphy. The messages are prepared on a continuous strip of paper by means of properly spaced perforations, and these slips are then fed into the transmitting apparatus. At the receiving station the impulses sent over the line by the current, which is impressed with the vibrations produced by the conventional-spaced perforations of the prepared tape, cause the deflection of a beam of light from a tiny mirror, lighted by a miniature lamp. These deflections take the form of script writing. They are permanently recorded by being thrown onto a strip of sensitized photographic paper, which is immediately passed through a developing bath. As the strips come from the machine at a terrific rate, many feet a second, great difficulty was experienced in developing means for their rapid development and of drying. Automatic means have finally been provided, so that the strips run immediately through a developing bath, and afterward dried by artificial means, and are in a condition to be read in ten to twelve seconds.

AN EGYPTIAN ARISTOCRAT

Wants University President to Meet Him at Station.

Columbia, Mo., Aug. 28.—Students from Egypt, Scotland, Mexico and the islands of Cuba, Jamaica and Uorto Rico, as well as from other foreign countries, will study agriculture at the Missouri Agricultural college next year. Recent mails brought in big buddles of foreign letters from prospective students containing inquiries as to the college and other matters demonstrating that the fame of the Missouri Agricultural college has extended to foreign lands.

A letter from the secretary of the board of agriculture of the Island of Jamaica inquires as to Missouri cattle, horses and mules, announcing that it is the intention of that government to purchase Missouri stock on a large scale. With the view of cross-breeding them with native animals.

Students from Scotland and the Argentine republic are especially interested in the American system of state experiment stations, and the Argentine republic has a special representative now in school here studying the system with a view to establishing similar institutions in that country on the American plan.

But the most extraordinary communication yet received is from an Egyptian youth, who announces to Professor F. B. Mumford of the Agricultural college, that he is just preparing to start from Alexandria for Missouri university. He calmly announces that he is an aristocrat, will travel first-class and expects President Jesse to meet him at the station.

"He can identify me," says the letter, "by my red Egyptian tarbouth on my head."

The letter is dated at Bulkeley station, Alexandria, Egypt, and is signed Gobran Salem. It has caused a considerable stir at the university and it is probable that not only President Jesse will be at the station, but a delegation of students on the lookout for a youth with a red turban on his head with a view to spiking him for a Greek letter fraternity or sizing him up as possible football material. Gorban Salem will enter in the agricultural department with the view to introducing American methods of scientific husbandry in Egypt.

KENTUCKY BOY

Started Home From Chicago and Has Disappeared.

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 28.—Somewhere between Chicago and this little Clifton Young, aged 12 years, is lost or missing. He started from Chicago for this city last Wednesday morning, but the lad has not arrived and no information can be obtained concerning him, although his baggage has been here several days, and it was through this that the disappearance was made known. The baggage agent communicated with his uncle, W. J. Young, the local trotting horse man, and requested instructions for disposition of the baggage. Chicago was next communicated with and it was found the lad had left on time. His relatives are distressed and fear something unusual has befallen him.

WINE SUPPERS BY HOUSEMAID

Decked Girl Friends Out In Absent Mistress' Gowns.

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 28.—Arraigned in the police court were Lucy Franklin, the pretty housemaid of Godfrey Caswell, of No. 334 North Main street, and her friends Esther J. Strong and Viola Mayhew, with whom she had shared in the round of pleasure which began with the departure of the Caswells two weeks ago.

Miss Franklin's guests did not consider themselves suitably attired, so their hostess placed at their disposal a fine selection of fashionable wearing apparel belonging to her mistress.

The wine suppers, to which a few favored young men were invited, caused comment. Rumors reached Mr. Caswell, who returned home unexpectedly, accompanied by Police Inspector John H. Boyle. Cocktail glasses ornamented the tables in the parlor, wine bottles, opened and unopened, strewed the dining room and countless cigarette ends had left their imprint on the carpets. Photographs of matinee idols had been accorded honorary positions, the motto "God Bless Our Home" having been ruthlessly torn from the wall.

The protestations of repentance by the young women were not accepted by the irate Mr. Caswell. The girls offered no plea in court and their cases were continued for sentence.

STRONG BLUFF

Worked By a Burglar on the Police.

Marion, Ind., Aug. 28.—"What is the matter? What do you want here?" demanded Daniel Hayes of two officers who captured him in the home of John Sharkey at 10 o'clock Monday night. A neighbor saw a light at the Sharkey residence and knowing that the family was visiting in Greenville, Ohio, notified the police that a burglar was robbing the house.

When the officers called at the Sharkey dwelling they were greeted by Daniel Hayes as above. Hayes showed no excitement and ordered the officers to leave, claiming he was in possession by orders of the owner. He made his bluff so strong that he convinced the officers, who left him in charge.

Sharkey was communicated with at Greenville and said he had not given Hayes permission to enter his residence and requested that the intruder be arrested. The police returned to the house, but Hayes had left. Hayes has a police court record.

MAKING MONEY.

Guileless Filipinos Engaged In Wholesale Counterfeiting.

Washington, Aug. 28.—The War Department has been informed that four-fifths of the population of Lepanto-Benton, a province of Northern Luzon, is engaged in the business of wholesale counterfeiting.

The system is carried on by the Igorrotes, and originated in Spanish times. The natives take the copper from the mines, batter it out into the shape of coins and stamp these with the old Spanish stamp.

Merchants come up from the coast to buy the coins and get them at the rate of one hundred and twenty for one peso, Mexican. Fifty or a hundred miles distant these merchants get a Mexican peso for eighty of the coppers. Thousands of them are in circulation in Manila.

The natives do not understand that it is against the law to make bogus coppers. They were not both ered by the Spaniards and they are not anxious to learn American ways. The civil guard has been sent to teach them a lesson.

The new currency law will go into effect Sept. 1.

Save the children. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is just as good for children as it is for adults. Mrs. Henry Carter, 706 Central street, Nashville, Tenn., says: "My little boy now three years old and has been suffering from indigestion ever since he was born. After using one bottle of Kodol he is a well baby. I recommend it to all sufferers." Sold by all druggists.

FRIENDS JOKED

And He Popped and Wedding Followed.

Bedford, Ind., Aug. 28.—The story of a short courtship and a wedding has just come to light. Miss Nancy McCracken of West Baden, 23-years old, an orphan, pretty and with some money told friends she wanted a husband and a good home. She came up on the Monon train, which was sidetracked at Paoli for ten minutes.

Dr. William J. Cadle, seventy-one years old, a wealthy physician of Hilham, was at the Paoli mineral springs taking treatment, and a friend who knew the girl laughingly told him there was a chance. The doctor acted on the banter. He does not look to be more than fifty years old, and when he offered Miss McCracken his hand and home she accepted.

The couple came to Bedford, a woman's tailor made up a handsome wedding trousseau, and they went to Judge Fletcher, who married them before many of the doctor's friends. A reception in Stone's hotel followed.

developments since the assassination was reported, leads the British officials to conclude that no anti-foreign uprising has occurred.

New York, Aug. 28.—In the large Syrian colony here the news of the assassination of Magelssen, vice consul at Beirut, caused much comment. It was believed that he had either fallen a victim to the fanatical hatred of a Mussulmans for a Christian, or because of his efficient and earnest labors in behalf of his country.

Chancellor MacCracken of New York university, who has just returned from Beyrut, where he visited his sick son, started home about July 15. He said:

"The murdered vice consul was prompt, intelligent and able in the transaction of business. The American consulate under his chief easily held the first place in reputation among the foreign consulates in Beyrut. The Syrian Protestant college, which exists under a board of trustees chartered by the state of New York, found the vice consul a helpful friend. He promoted zealously a field day held this year, and helped to secure the attendance of the governor of Lebanon, who came with full staff and a military band playing national airs. Wagelssen's courage in pursuing criminals probably caused the assassination. Old residents of Beyrut had assured him that for Christians to appear in court against Moslems to testify to their crimes was to invite assassination. A recent murder of a man in American employ had been left almost without inquiry because witnesses were completely terrorized."

Several native Syrians expressed the belief that the murder was not political but the result of a personal affair.

Oyster Bay, Aug. 28.—President Roosevelt issued orders last night that the European squadron, under command of Admiral Cotton, should proceed immediately to Beirut, Syria, to be in readiness to support any demand by the United States on Turkey on account of the assassination of W. C. Magelssen, United States vice consul at Beirut.

The president manifested anxious interest in the announcement of the assassination of Vice Consul Magelssen, the first information concerning which was conveyed to him by a representative of the Associated Press.

Shortly afterward he received from Acting Secretary of State Loomis a telegram communicating to him Minister Leishman's cablegram concerning the murder and advising him of the steps already taken by the state department.

The president is in close communication with the department, and will be kept fully advised of the details of the incident as they are ascertained.

For several days President Roosevelt has been following closely the developments of the situation in Turkey. With that country in such a turmoil as now prevails, almost anything is likely to happen. With a view to considering the subject the more carefully, the president and Secretary of State Hay had arranged for a conference at Sagamore Hill. The secretary is now en route to Oyster By.

In the absence of definite information concerning the assassination of the vice consul, the president will take no decided step beyond that already taken in ordering the European squadron to Beirut. This action is viewed as a precautionary measure. It is the determination of the United States to support its demands on Turkey for the punishment of the murderers of Consul Magelssen, but until the circumstances surrounding the murder are known officially and precisely, the United States, it is said, will not take any drastic action.

Washington, Aug. 28.—Minister Leishman has cabled the state department that he called at the foreign office again last night and pfesented the demands for an immediate investigation into the assassination of Vice Consul Magelssen at Beirut. The minister for foreign affairs, while denying all knowledge of the affair and attempting to discredit the report, upon the insistence of Minister Leishman promised that an immediate investigation would follow, and that the Turkish government would take immediate steps to find and punish the guilty.

Mr. Leishman states that Macedonian conditions are growing constantly more acute and that the situation in that section is very grave. In his cablegram to Minister Leishman last night regarding the report of the American board of missions that an attempt had been made to burn the Euphrates college buildings at Harpoot, Acting Secretary Loomis instructed him to demand of the Turkish government that it take immediate steps for the protection of the lives of all Americans there.

The Brooklyn will proceed with all speed to Beirut and will not wait for the Machias, which is a much slower vessel. Acting Secretary Darling this morning telegraphed the commanding officer of the Machias at Genoa for him to follow the Brooklyn to Port Said, where he is to coal and await orders. It is expected that the San Francisco will accompany the Machias.

La Crosse, Wis., Aug. 28.—William C. Magelssen, the vice consul murdered at Beirut, Syria, was born in Bratsburg, Fillmore county, Minn., Oct. 19, 1873.

He was educated in the Lutheran college at Decorah, Iowa.

After remaining there several years, he went to Sioux Falls, S. D., where he edited the Sioux Falls Echo for three years. Afterwards he returned to the Lutheran college and finished his course. It was while in Decorah that he was appointed vice consul at Beirut, Syria, by President McKinley. He was vice consul to his brother-in-law, G. B. Ravndal.

Recently he received word from United States Senator Knute Nelson that he would probably be transferred to some other post and promoted, according to tidings in his last letter home.

He leaves a father, Rev. Christian Magelsson, and mother, of Highland Prairie, Minn., and three brothers, Rev. H. G. Magelssen, of La Crosse; L. D. Magelssen, a grocer at Vermillion, S. D., and N. S. Magelssen, a theological student. There are also two sisters, Mrs. G. B. Ravndal, wife of the consul at Beirut, and Miss Catherine Magelssen, who lives at home.

Rev. Magelssen, of this city, said the government would be asked today to have the remains sent home for interment.

Paris, Aug. 28.—The assassination of the American vice consul at Beirut attracts much attention here, but no information has been received in official circles or other quarters concerning the details. The last Beirut report received at the foreign office was dated July 7. As Beirut heretofore has been considered quite outside the range of Turkish disorders, the French officials say the gravity of the situation depends on whether the shooting was done by a Turkish soldier, which would make the case similar to the assassination of M. Rostkovski, the Russian consul at Monastir, which, the officials add, would warrant a demand on Turkey similar to that made by Russia.

It is officially stated that if a squadron goes to Turkish waters, the action of the United States will not be regarded by France or the other European powers as having any political significance in connection with the near Eastern situation. It is pointed out that the United States has always refrained from taking part in the near Eastern complications, the European powers assuming the burden of that question. A leading official likened the presence of an American squadron in Turkish waters to the demonstration made by the British and German warships in Venezuelan waters, the purpose in each case being to command respect and enforce the collection of demands, and not having any connection with the general political condition.

The latest of the advices received here show that the Russian squadron, which was at Iniada, off the east coast of Turkey, was withdrawn to Sebastopol, where it is awaiting further orders. Italy has one warship, Austria has one and France has one in Turkish waters, but in each case large squadrons are held in reserve for action if the situation becomes serious. The gravity of the conditions in Turkey is further shown by an official report just received from Philippipolis, giving the details of the revolutionary plot to blow up the Oriental express. One of the plotters has been designated to sacrifice his life by boarding the train and throwing the bombs. This plot probably was connected with the dynamiting of the omnibus train at Kuleliburgas, but the Philippolis report establishes the fact that the original plan was aimed against the leading trans-European express, for the purpose of impressing the world with the magnitude of the disorder.

The reports received here from the French consuls at Salonica and Monastir are more reassuring. They say they have no further fear for their lives, unless the Turkey soldiers become lawless. The reports add that forty-nine Turkish battalions have been withdrawn from Albania and concentrated aroun Salonica as the Albanian disorders have been crushed.

The most remarkable feature of the report discloses the fact that the Turkish force, which totalled 50,000 men when the troops entered Albania six months ago, has now been reduced to 35,000 men, showing a loss of 15,000 troops. Few of the soldiers died of disorders. The loss was chiefly in men killed while crushing the Albanian uprising.

The Lake Superior Consolidated Company Will Log Extensively.

Sault Ste Marie—More than two thousand men will be employed in the lumber woods this fall and winter by the Lake Superior Consolidated company, which will log extensively in the woods north of the Canadian Soo.

Already a number of camps have been established and a thousand or more men have been put to work.

There is practically no idle labor in the two Soos, and not only Canada, but the Upper Peninsula as well, is being scoured with no great success for the help required. Considerable of the season's cut will be pulp wood.

Houghton—The organization of an Upper Peninsula baseball league has been proposed. The project has met with much favor, and arrangements are now under way to call a meeting of the various managers and others to further the scheme. The plan as suggested calls for an eight-club association, to include Calumet, Lake Linden, Hancock, Dollar Bay, Ishpeming, Escanaba, Marquette and Sault Ste Marie. Baraga and Crystal Falls are aspirants for membership in the proposed league.

Munising—Bears are reported to be unusually numerous in the country about Munising. There is scarcely a camp at all remote from town that is not habitually visited by members of the brulin tribe, while Finn & McCann's camp has been the haunt of an old bear and her cubs nearly all summer. At Ironwood, up on the Gogebic range a number of black bears have been killed north of the city recently, and it is said that these animals are becoming more numerous in that section every year.

Menominee—The lives of the family of Otto Frenzel, who lives on Grand boulevard, near Poplar Point, Menominee, were attempted a few nights ago by unknown persons. The parties who tried to do the deed had piled straw and shavings around the building and then saturated it with kerosene. A large dynamite fuse nearly twenty feet long had been stretched from the straw to the woodshed. The fuse was burned, but the straw failed to ignite. The police are investigating, but so far have secured no clue to the identity of the guilty parties.

Menominee county will this week send two more patients to the Newberry insane asylum. One is Joseph Manci, aged seventy, the man who attempted to cut his wife's throat and then commit suicide, previous to which he had taken $200 in bills, the savings of a daughter, and set the money afire. The other is Mrs. Solomon Rotter of Birch Creek, also aged about seventy, who has made repeated efforts to hang herself.

WOULD NOT GIVE UP MEN.

Paris, Aug. 28.—A dispatch from Las Palmas published here says the French cruiser Galilee, which has arrived there from Cape Jubi, West Africa, reports that the government of that place refuses to give up the five men who were captured from the expedition landed on the Moorish coast of Jacques Le Baudy, who intended to found there an empire of his own without orders from the sultan of Morocco.

MAY HAVE BEEN MURDER.

People Who Know Mrs. White Think So.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 28.—It is believed here that Edith White may have been murdered by some man who accompanied her north and who left the account to hide the crime. B. S. Shields here says that late in the eighties Mrs. White ran away from her husband with another man. Later she left this man for still another. Her husband some years later found her and took her back, but it was only a short time until she left him again and that was the last ever heard of her. She was a beautiful woman and if she was not murdered and the account left to cover up the crime, then her penitence was for the wrongs she had done her husband.

H. H. Cheatham says: "After leaving White in Mankato, Mrs. White went to Minneapolis, where she studied dentistry and opened an office. After leaving Minneapolis she went to Chicago where she opened a dental office and did well. She remained in Chicago until about three years ago, when we heard she passed through Seattle on her way to Alaska."

INVESTIGATION ASKED.

At the earnest request of Chairman Tams Bixby and his associates, comprising the Dawes Indian commission, the secretary of the interior wil have a thorough investigation made of the alleged irregularities in the Indian territory. According to Mr. Brosius, who makes the charges, members of the Dawes commission and other officials in our Indian service are stockholders in companies organized for the purpose of securing options on Indian lands. Millions of acres will, under the terms of the law, become alienable in a few years. Certain of the lands, after the allotment in severalty now in progress under the Dawes commission is completed, may be sold or leased by the Indian owners within one year; other allotments cannot be disposed of for five years. In every case the allottee must reserve for himself or herself a homestead of forty acres which cannot be alienated for twenty-one years, or during the lifetime of the allottee. The situation is much confused. Options have sometimes been disposed of by thriftless Indians before the allotment had actually been made.

The Dawes commission ought to complete its work in about one more year. Its chairman is Tams Bixby, of Minnesota. His associates are Clifton R. Breckenridge, of Arkansas, minister to Russia during President Cleveland's last term; Thomas R. Needles, a seasoned Illinois politician and officeholder, at one time a state senator and at another a United States marshal for the Indian territory, and ex-Governor Stanley of Kansas. All of these men except Stanley are charged with being stockholders in these companies, recently formed and having headquarters at Muscogee, Vinita and Eufaula.

Mr. Hitchcock has not the authority to dismiss these commissioners, should be find the Brosius charges substantiated, since they were appointed by the president and confirmed by the senate. Some weeks ago the commissioners were notified that any connection on their part with these land-owning companies would be regarded as a serious impropriety; they were also requested to withdraw from any concern of that character in which they had a financial interest. Secretary Hitchcock is hopeful that the finding will show that this request at least was heeded.

The commissioners indignantly deny the allegations of Mr. Brosius and in their communication to the secretary of the interior explicitly ask that the investigation be made so thorough that their characters shall be vindicated and their integrity and fidelity to duty be firmly established. Their letter rings with honesty and candor and it is hard to believe that they are guilty. Those who know Mr. Bixby feel certain that he will be cleared of all charges of wrong-doing.

TRAINING NURSES.

The training of young women as nurses has become an important educational as well as industrial enterprise of late years, and is making steady advancement. The demand for professional nurses has grown rapidly and in many cities the supply is not nearly sufficient for the calls for them. The nurses' training schools in nearly all the hospitals of the various cities of the country are filled to overflowing and there are usually many applicants on the waiting list. An interesting work has been undertaken by the Philadelphia School of Nurses, in alliance with the American National Red Cross, in the training of young women in the small towns of the country, who shall be subject to the call of the Red Cross or the government for prompt nursing service in the event of national calamities or in the event of war. Four states have been selected in which to inaugurate the work—Maryland, Pennsylvania, Delaware and New Jersey—but it is the intention to extend the work to every state of the Union in the course of tome. The sum of $100,000 has already been guaranteed in support of the work, and a special committee representing the movement has as its head Hon. William N. Ashman, judge of the orphans' court of Philadelphia. The purpose is to select a number of young women from each of the small towns in the states mentioned, and give them a thorough training in the science of nursing, at no expense to themselves. After graduating they will be able to practice the art of nursing as suits them best, their only obligation to the training school being their willingness to serve as Red Cross nurses whenever the call to duty comes. The work is in furtherance of the ideas recently promulgatd by Miss Clara Barton, national president of the Red Cross, and will no doubt carry a far-reaching benefit to the small towns and rural communities of the country.

Many young women are especially well-fitted to become nurses, and as this movement advances through the different states it will afford opportunities for many which they would otherwise not obtain.

The teachers of Harvey county, Kan., in convention assembled, have resolved that the right to court and be courted is an inalienable right which the board of education cannot take away. Right they are. If the board's rule were carried out everywhere the human family would finally be extinguished.

It took eight men to force a man in St. Louis into a bathtub. Anyone who has had experience with St. Louis water will not be surprised that he objected so strenuously.

A Cincinnati judge has decided that a woman's infatuation for her pastor is not proof of insanity. The love-persecuted pastor, however, is likely to be driven insane.

THE PRESIDENT'S CALLERS.

The habit of the newspaper correspondents stationed at Oyster Bay of sending out the name of every visitor, who calls on the president at his summer home, and the object of his visit, is proving a great advertising scheme for second and third-rate politicians and ambitious aspirants for public favor. A lot of these men call on the president for the sole reason of having the fact spread broadcast to their constituents. They visit Sagamore Hill and then, returning to the railroad station, tell the reporters what was said to the executive. Some people seem to attach an importance to this, without the slightest regard as to what impression the talk may have made on the president. There would be more vacation for the president were he farther away from the beaten paths of travel, or still better it would be if he could convince American newspapers that they had no interest in the opinions of his callers. Now a trip to Oyster Bay for the middle-tier statesman is a short cut to fame. From one end of the country to the other his views appear as those of a "Solon."

Eventually, it should become the custom for no one to call on the president, especially at his summer home, without prearrangement through correspondence. The more considerate and modest people are doubtless doing that now, while those whom the president least wants to see rush forward, delighting in the assumption that they know him so well that no formalities are necessary, beyond sending in their cards. With the rapid growth of population and the improvement of transportation facilities, it has become an almost killing operation for any president to see all the persons who think they would like to see him, and especially is so when such a visit offers so extraordinary a premium to the notoriety-seeker, or the aspirant for office. Any prospective candidate for congress would be helped in the district by having his name appear in the newspapers as calling on the president to discuss with him the weighty affairs of state. In consequence, every president learns to discriminate between the information delivered to him for its own sake and that which is whispered into his ear in order that somebody may say that he has done so.

Some method should be devised by which the president can have greater freedom when attempting to enjoy a vacation.

OF NOT MUCH BENEFIT.

Some of the administration organs have been praising the brilliant diplomacy of Secretary of State Hay, because he obtained two open ports in Manchuria from China, it being also announced that Russia would give her approval. On the face of things it looked as if it was really a triumph for American diplomatic methods, and that Secretary Hay was entitled to felicitations. But while it may be accounted a great victory diplomatically, the opening of these "ports" is really of not much value to the United States or any other nation.

One of the ports which is to be regarded as "open" is Ta-tung-Kau. Most people, when they read about the great diplomatic triumph that had been achieved by Mr. Hay, supposed this was a large city with a magnificent harbor. They will be surprised to learn that it is not. The Pekin correspondent of the London Times investigated, and this is what he reports: "On the Chinese side of the mouth of the Yalu is the town of Ta-tung-Kau, with 5000 inhabitants. From the anchorage to the shore is a distance of four miles by a narrow channel, or rather ditch, which is dry at low water. This is the port which America desires China to open to foreign trade." There is not much generosity about opening a port that cannot be opened, and in such a case the question of an open or shut door cuts little figure. Diplomacy is a wonderful thing and frequently is farcical.

THE FARMERS' ADVANCEMENT.

As one by one the barriers which have compelled the practical isolation of the farmer in material and social advancement are removed, the inhabitants of the rural districts are making rapid strides in intellectual improvement. In years past it has been difficult for them to keep in touch with the world, but with the improved means of communication and conveyance, all is now changed. The greatest factor in this changed condition is that of rural free delivery of mails, while the cheap rural telephone service has worked wonders in putting the farmer in touch with the more thickly settled portions of his state. In many regions trolley lines are affording a rapid means of conveyance to the urban centers and good roads afford opportunities for meetings and gatherings in thinly settled localities that were not practical before. The movement for the improvement of country roads has of late received new impetus from its connection with the problem of the consolidation of the rural public schools and the transportation of pupils to central schoolhouses. The transportation vans constitute another important link, uniting the farm with the community, errands of various kinds being done by the drivers. Traveling libraries may be easily maintained in connection with this system of schools. The school gardens and well-kept grounds of these central schools may serve as examples for the improvement of the yards about the farmhouses. The schoolhouses may be used for Saturday and evening lectures, meetings of societies, etc., and thus become general centers for the intellectual and social life of the community.

Labor saving machinery has wrought wonderful changes on the farm. Much of the drudgery for both women and men has been removed and more time is given for study and social enjoyment. Take it all in all, the condition of the American farmer and his family has undergone a change that has kept well in the lead with the progress of the present generation.

There is a story afloat that Elihu Root retires from the cabinet in order to get into closer touch with New York politics, with the idea of running for governor next year and seeking the presidential nomination in 1908. It is a laudable ambition. The Republicans could hardly find an abler man for the presidency.

The vegetarians who insist upon eating uncooked food have their theories somewhat shattered by the case of a little Iowa girl in whose stomach peas that had been swallowed whole sprouted and caused her death.

It was too bad that the Reliance could not have finished within the time limit yesterday. Sir Thomas must now endure the agony again of seeing the Reliance run away from the Shamrock.

HOTEL GOSSIP

"Well the beauty of this," said the native as he drew up his chair close to the blazing grate at the Spalding this morning, "is that we know the fall is going to be fine," and he sank into the depths of his seat, sighed and felt happy.

"Beauty? Did you hear someone say beauty? Beauty?" said a stranger who came up on the boat this morning, just out of the sweltering heat of Eastern Michigan. "This is the most optomistic community I ever have seen, at least."

"Why," he continued, "anybody that even has the faintest hint that they are to think the word beauty, let alone speak it, today, could conjure up visions of beauty in the presence of Red Handed Carrie Nation or Calamity Jane.

"Nobody minded the wetness or the chill, but there was a funny motion on that boat last evening, that pained the greater part of the passengers. The lake was stirred up pretty badly, and the ride up Lake Superior was a long one, though the drive of the wind seemed with us all the way."

"Well, continued the native, now this reminds me of one day several years ago when the North West and North Land first started running into Duluth.

"The first few trips happened to be hot in Duluth. When the boats would get in the tourists fwould rear and find fault because it was too warm here, and they had heard so much about Duluth being a cool place, and then to find it warmer than in New York city. They were d'sappointed all around and didn't care who knew it. The breeze came through the hotel lobbies and scorched the delicate turnists, who wore their muslins and linens and light, fluffy things on shore.

"Well, it got noised around that Duluth was very warm—in temperature—and the people used to dress very lightly.

"On one of the trips there was a large crowd of ladies and gentlemen, all dressed in the summer hot weather clothes, and they got to shore.

"That crowd hadn't got very far on the way up to hotels when they discovered it was boiling hot. They were mad; mad all over, because it had been cool on the lake, and a little exertion made it appear hotter than it really was here.

"The crowd got to the hotels all right, when suddenly and very quietly there came a little split in the atmosphere, a gentle movement of the breezes, and a 'northeaster' was upon the city.

"Well, you'd ought to have heard that crowd. They had to shiver and shake while the hotel was getting steam up and lighting up fire in the grate. It was just about this weather after the storm hit us.

"Now you can see why there is a beauty to this. When this weather is away, another kind takes its place. We need this for purposes of comparison."

"I still am unable to grasp it," said the stranger.

"Then you look on the wrong side of things," was the discouraged response.

Beyond Range of Hope.

Baltimore American: Wireless telegraphy is one of the great triumphs of modern progress, but, apparently, wireless streets are still beyond the great inventive forces of the day.

Comparative Smoothness.

Detroit Free Press: Secretary Wilson is proudly exhibiting the first silk spun and reeled under the sympathetic auspices of the department of agriculture. The silk is said to be just as smooth as Senator Allison.

Wise Man of the East.

Brooklyn Eagle: Turkey may have found some unexpected friends. In apologizing to Russia and yielding to its demands it saves its European territory for the present, keeps the Russian war ships out of its waters and avoids mixing up severeal other nations in complications over the Black sea question. It has probably acted on advice of those unexpected friends. Yet the friends were advising on their own account.

Tribute to General Miles.

Cleveland Leader: The fine tribute which was paid by the Grand Army of the Republic to General Nelson A. Miles should serve to warm the cockles of that old soldier's heart and brighten the days of his retirement from active duty. It is really worth more to him than all the honors that have come to him during his career as a soldier or the title upon which he retired. This tribute came from the men who participated with General Miles in the memorable and sanguinary conflict from 1861 to 1865—men who braved the dangers of battle and felt the privations and hardships of army life in camp and upon the march. It is the tribute of the veterans of the union army to one of their commanders who distinguished himself upon many battlefields.

Gambling in Staple Products.

Springfield Republican: What Secretary Wilson of the agricultural department has to say of the injurious effects of the corner in cotton is sound and to the point. It is proving a serious temporary blow to the cotton manufacturing industry of the United States and cannot but prove permanently hurtful to the cotton growing industry by stimulating the opening of new fields in other parts of the world. What is surprising is that the secretary does not go on to urge the enactment of laws for the suppression of gambling in staple products.

THE WEATHER.

United States Agricultural Department Weather Bureau, Duluth. Synopsis of weather conditions for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m., (central time), Aug. 28.—Showers fell over the central valleys, lake region and Northwest, being heavy at Pittsburg, Detroit, Davenport, St. Paul, Moorhead, Bismarck and Miles City. The Kansas storm has moved to the Ohio and upper Mississippi valleys. Pressures are high over Gulf states, central Canada and northward from Wyoming. Another low is developing over British Columbia. It is cooler in the central west, but easterly except brisk to high on extreme western Superior, with cloudy to rainy weather over the whole district.

LAUGH AND LOOK PLEASANT

Washington Star: "If some men," said Uncle Eben, "was as quick to answer de factory whistle as dey is to respond to de dinner bell dey would fin' life easier."

New York Sun: "When I first met my wife I thought she was one of the most economical women in the matter of clothes I had ever known."

"You met her at the seahore, I suppose?"

Philadelphia Press: "Mr. Gruff," began the caller, "I don't want to disturb you—"

"Very considerate of you to come in here just to tell me that," said the busy merchant. "I appreciate it, sir. Good-day!"

Chicago Tribune: "'Twas the foine corpse he made," remarked the first mourner.

"He did so," replied the other. "Shure Oi niver seen him look so loife-like as whin he was layin' ther dead."

Somerville Journal: Never use a toothpick on the street. A pick ax is much better, particularly if the street is hard.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "They have the grasshopper scare might bad out in Montana."

"What's the latest?"

"Why, they didn't dare to put a green fireman on one of the trains for fear the 'hoppers would eat him."

Judge: Corinne—When I get married I shall make my husband give me all his salary.

Vivian—I shan't. I shall allow him to retain 75 cents each week so he can keep his own end up with the boys and not be a cheap old thing when he's out.

New York Sun: Queen Elizabeth was priding herself on being up to date.

"Yes," retorted Mary Stuart, "I notice that you always have the latest wrinkle."

From that moment the doom of the Scottish sovereign was sealed.

The Spectral Clock.

George Hyde Preston in Lippincott's: That clock haunted me. As I was going out from that lonely room I saw that the clock was going too; but I stopped it!

"Not so fast!" I hissed, thrusting back both its hands.

Then I set it—under the mattress.

Heavens! I could hear the clock ticking in the bedclothing.

The clock had often alarmed me, but never like that.

I seized it in my trembling hands and gazed at its white face. "Your hours are numbered!" I muttered. That was plain—on the face of it.

I wound it up tight—with a rope.

Then I ran wildly down the hall.

The clock ran down too!

I sprang from the cliff and watched to see the clock spring. It did! and struck twice—heavily—against the rocks.

And lay still with hands over its white face.

"Your time has come!" I shrieked—"and gone!" I added sorrowfully, snaking it and holding it to my ear.

Then I woke up!

Yes, My Boy.

"Papa, may I take my auto
In the country for a ride?
I will start out early, papa,
And be home by evetide."

"Yes, my boy, you have permission—
You may go where'er you choose;
But if you would get back some time,
Take along your walking shoes."

Better Luck Next Time.

Chicago Inter Ocean: No reflection should be cast upon the name of Sir Thomas Lipton's yachts until he tries and loses with another of the same brand. It is the four-leaf Shamrock that is said to be lucky.

Music as Advertised.

Harvard Lampoon: "Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming," with illuminated cover. "Trust Her Not!" for 50 cents. "I Would Not Live Always," without accompaniment. "See the Conquering Hero Comes," with full orchestra. "When the Sun Shall Set No More," in C. "The Tale of the Swordfish," with many scales "After the Ball," for second base. "Home Sweet Home," in one flat.

It Is Really a Shame.

Indianapolis Journal: And in a few days it will be the same old story of "Good-bye, S'r Tumm'ss! Better luck next time!" What Sir Thomas really needs in his hunt for the cup is a man that knows how to build fast yachts and another man that knows how to sail them. It is really a shame to take the money under present conditions.

Not to Be Caught.

New York Tribune: An amusing incident occurred on a certain railway not long ago. "Professor" Debevoise, a well-known ventriloquist, was bidding adieu to some friends, when one of them presented him with a little fox terrier, to which he had taken a great fancy.

The train began to move, and there was no time to get a dog ticket; so Debevoise popped the dog into a small hamper which was labeled "Professor Debevoise, ventriloquist," in bold letters.

When the conductor came through the car the dog began barking, which drew his attention to the hamper. He looked at the hamper and then read the label. Turning to Debevoise with a knowing wink and a broad grin, he said:

"All right, all right; I ain't taking any just now. I've been up against that before."

A WISE MOTHER

By Ex-Congressman William H. Hinrichsen.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Gertrude Lansing had been carefully reared by a sensible mother, and, in spite of the fact that she was naturally romantic, the success of her training was shown in her acceptance of the proposal of marriage made her by Horace Gaylord at the end of her second social season. True, sentiment had caused her to decline several good offers during the seasons, or until she became convinced that Albert Winturn, whom she thought she loved, would never suggest marriage, though he was profuse in his expressions of devotion.

Albert was poor, though of good family, and Gertrude, one of several daughters, could not expect from her father, who was only rich and not of the rich rich, more than a moderate dower or inheritance. Albert was handsome, and his manners were perfect, and, being wise in his generation, saw the necessity of marrying wealth, although, as he told himself, it was a great sacrifice to give up the beautiful Gertrude.

The situation became apparent to both of them during her second season, and so she accepted Mr. Gaylord, the head of the great banking house of Gaylord & Co., and they were married after an engagement of the usual length. Horace Gaylord was 45 and Gertrude 20, but he was very rich, belonged to her set and was a presentable man of whom no wife need be ashamed. Yet Mrs. Gaylord tried to think of herself as a martyr to circumstances and strove to thrust aside the happiness which her husband fairly forced upon her.

Albert still remained her friend and was one of the most frequent callers at the Gaylord residence, and, while his devotion to her was marked, it did not reach that point where scandal could use it.

It was a year after their marriage that Mrs. Gaylord noticed that her husband appeared to be growing very fond of Mr. Winturn. This pleased her and flattered Albert. The friendship of a leading man in the business world was valuable to a young man with his fortune to make, and, being wise, he carefully cultivated that friendship.

"I think I shall offer young Winturn a position in our bank," said Mr. Gaylord to his wife. "There is a vacancy that is being sought by the sons of some of the best names on the street, but I think I shall offer it to Albert before considering other applications."

"You are very good," said Mrs. Gaylord, and she began unconsciously to like and respect her husband, who was powerful enough and kind enough to be of use to her friend.

Winturn gladly accepted the proffered position, for it was one not only to aid him in securing a rich wife, but to render his footing in the social world more substantial and to identify him with the leading business group of the city. The duties of the position were light, the salary good and all concerned seemed well pleased with the progress of events.

It was only a month later that Mr. Gaylord called Albert into his private room at the bank and asked him to be seated. "My young friend," he said, "your services in this house up to this time have been a test only, and I am now ready to announce that the trial has been satisfactory."

"Thank you, sir," said Albert.

The banker continued: "You know that Smith, my confidential secretary, has been given charge of our branch business in San Francisco and has departed to assume his new duties."

The young man bowed, his heart beating.

"I have determined," said Mr. Gaylord, "to offer you the position vacated by Mr. Smith."

Albert could hardly conceal his joy. The position of confidential secretary to the head of this great establishment was one of which any man, young or old, might be proud. He murmured his thanks and said: "The duties of the position are strange to me, sir, but I hope to please you."

"Well," said the banker, "your duties will be fairly easy to learn. They will consist mainly of your attendance at the bank, the entertainment of visitors of distinction while I am busy or absent, and a general supervision of affairs as you become acquainted with the details of the business. There is also a social side to the position. From your knowledge gained here you will assist Mrs. Gaylord in preparing her list of guests for the entertainments we shall give, for you know we have to a certain degree to combine social and business affairs. You will also be called upon occasionally to escort Mrs. Gaylord to the opera and elsewhere when I am absent or otherwise engaged."

"I shall not shirk my duties," said the secretary-elect.

"There is another duty which will no doubt prove disagreeable," said the banker, "but it is unavoidable. You are aware, perhaps, that no person connected with this institution except myself and secretary is permitted to enter this room."

Winturn nodded.

"This is a cast iron rule and must not be broken, and it makes it necessary for you and me to perform the janitor work within these four walls. It may seem irksome at first, but you will soon get used to it. I used to do the work myself and I really enjoyed handling the broom and duster after awhile. Do you think you can learn to sweep?"

Albert was not pleased with this prospect of doing even light janitor work, but he dared not refuse and expressed himself as satisfied.

"I shall show you about the janitor work immediately," said the banker and brought from a closet a long gingham apron, a paper cap, a pair of cotton gloves and the necessary implements used in removing dust.

Albert went to work at once, consoled by the remark of his employer, who said: "Of course no one must know that you do this sort of work. That is better kept secret."

"Gertrude," said Mr. Gaylord at the breakfast table, "if you have no other engagement, I should like you to call for me at the bank at three this afternoon."

Mrs. Gaylord only looked inquiringly at her husband, for he had never made such a request before.

He explained by saying: "There is a set of emeralds at Clifford's which I think would please you. I am at leisure at that hour, and if you can come we will examine them together."

"At three?" said Mrs. Gaylord, with animation.

"Yes, and please be prompt, for I have other engagements later."

"I shall be there," said the lady, and she decided mentally that her husband was, after all, a handsome man.

"Come direct to my private room," said Mr. Gaylord, as he left the house.

She nodded pleasantly and thought of the emeralds.

It was exactly three o'clock when Mrs. Gaylord entered her husband's office. He was waiting for her evidently, for he had assumed his hat and cane.

There was another person in the room, a person clad in a long apron, paper cap and cotton gloves, holding in his hand a long-handled carpet sweeper. She failed for an instant to recognize in this garb her friend, Albert Winturn, and he in confusion pulled off his paper cap and waited for her to speak.

She nodded coldly as to a servant and took her husband's proffered arm.

"You can go for the day when you get through with that work, Winturn," said Mr. Gaylord, carelessly, as they passed from the room, and Albert with a strange feeling of depression closed the door behind them.

Mrs. Gaylord was pleased with the emeralds and praised her husband's taste. She carried the jewels home with her.

He escorted her to the opera that evening and after their return she said: "Ing and after their return she said: "I hope, dear, you can find time for a short trip to Europe. I think I should enjoy a sea voyage."

"I can make time," he replied, promptly. "When shall we start?"

"As soon as I can get ready. And, dear, with your consent I shall on our return revise our social list. There are several people who have grown tiresome to me."

"Who, for instance?" he asked.

"Albert Winturn for one, and some others I think of."

"I shall leave it all to you" he said, with no change of voice or feature.

Mr. Winturn's services in the bank just now. I've been up against that before."

LIGHTBODY'S NEWS.

Friday, August 28, 1903.

Recent arrivals are tailor-made suits and skirts; children's chiefs; blankets, both cotton and wool.

Your little girl should have a new long coat to begin school with. They're made of kerseys, zibelines and heavy mixtures. Made with full capes; with half capes; with shoulder capes; without capes; with and without storm collars; with plain coat sleeves; with puff sleeves; with fancy sleeves; with belts; without belts; with plain backs; with inverted pleated backs. $3 to $12.

The new handkerchiefs are displayed on the tables in the south aisle. Better values than we ever had before and more of them. Prices as low as if on special sale. We don't much like the name "Special Sale". It so often covers a humbug.

5 cents buys one of the following: a pure plain linen hemstitched handkerchief; a fine cambric handkerchief with either white or colored embroidery; a cambric handkerchief with an embroidered corner and initial, or one with lace corner and initial; a gentleman's plain white or colored bordered hemstitched handkerchief.

15 cents is the price of any one of the following: a ladies' initial handkerchief with embroidered butterfly in one corner; a sheer laundered handkerchief; a very sheer unlaundered one; a gentleman's fine hemstitched one; a gentleman's extra large size initial one.

Anything else you want in higher priced handkerchiefs.

Sheer linen centers for lace handkerchiefs, and a profusion of both machine and hand-made laces for making them. Hand-made Cluny, Maltese, Duchess, Armenian and Val laces by the yard and in handkerchief lengths.

Fashion's Late Creations

NEVER has fashion allowed such a wide latitude of selection as she grants this season. In suits, long-skirted coats with loose sleeves, blouse fronts generously trimmed, will perhaps be the general favorite with Duluth ladies. However, "the East" is paying much attention to the tight-fitting "corset model" jacket and we have a nice showing of these in consequence. The instep length skirt is perhaps the favorite length. The fullness at the bottom of the skirt has not decreased, but rather shows a decided increase in the garment, conforming strictly to fashion's latest. Fancy mixtures, neat effects in the newest weave goods, covert cloths, zibelines and many of the new rough surfaced cloths in plain colors are the fabrics of which these goods are made. LONG LIFE ENDED

Capt. Edward Persons, Lake Captain For Fifty-five Years, Dies.

Sailed Into Chicago When It Was a Little Village.

With the death of Edward Nathan Persons, news of which was received last evening by his son, J. K. Persons, of 5130 London road, there passes away one of the most interesting figures in lake marine circles.

Capt. Persons died yesterday afternoon at the home of his daughter, Mrs. H. I. Proctor, of Ogdensburg, N. Y.

He was connected with transportation on the lakes for over sixty years of his lifetime. He was born Aug. 30, 1814, and was consequently 89 years of age at the time of his death.

His career as a captain began in 1832, when he was 18 years of age. He assumed command of a small vessel at that time, and from then until 1886 he was known as one of the most prominent masters on the lakes. His name was linked with that of Capt. Bradley, of Cleveland, as the most interesting figure among lake captains.

In 1832 he went from Watertown, N. Y., to Cleveland by stage, the trip taking ten days. At Cleveland he assumed command of his vessel.

He rode on the first railroad cars that ever traversed New York. The train was afterwards exhibited at the world's fair in Chicago. The engine was capable of attaining a speed of eight miles an hour and was considered the "limited express" of those days.

Capt. Persons sailed into Chicago when that city had a population of 300 souls, and the river was as yet unbridged.

He sailed into Duluth in 1876 and 1877, when the city was but a small hamlet. Other cities have grown up under his eyes from villages to great commercial centers, as he navigated the waters of the lakes in vessels that steadily increased in size.

He was pilot of the steamer Chase, when he decided to retire and settle with his son in Duluth. During his lifetime he had been master of many vessels, at one time sailing a ship which was at that time considered of mammoth proportions, as it was capable of carrying 8000 bushels of grain.

In spite of the rough scenes through which he had passed in his lifetime, Capt. Persons maintained his integrity of character, and was ever revered as an honest and upright man. He was noted among sailors as being a man who was never known to use profane language.

Capt. Persons is survived by three sons and his daughter in Ogdensburg. The sons are: J. K. Persons, of Duluth; George R. Persons, of Ishpeming, and Charles E. Persons, of Joplin, Mo.

For eight years after his retirement he lived with his son in Duluth, and made many friends among the Lester Park people. Then he decided to move to Ogdensburg and spend the remainder of his life with his daughter. He has resided there for the past five years, which he has spent in a rest earned by sixty years of an active, useful existence.

the confectionary store was owned by John Boyer, the well known Fourth ward politician.

FINED FOR SMUGGLING

New York, Aug. 28.—The court of appeals has fined Captain Harry B. Chamberlain $500, the ordinary fine for smuggling, with the difference that he did not smuggle for personal gain but was caught bringing in unmanifested dutiable goods in packages addressed to prominent military officers and their families from the port of Hong Kong while he was acting as quartermaster on the transport Seward.

$200 Reward

The above sum will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the party or parties who maliciously destroyed the cable belonging to this company in First alley, by boring through same. A liberal reward will be paid for any information concerning this act that any person may be in possession of. DULUTH TELEPHONE COMPANY,

STOLE A LOT OF WHISKY

Burglars Get a Case of It and Lose It Again.

Burglars broke into the wholesale house of the Sattler Liquor company at an early hour this morning and stole a case of very fine whisky.

As they were walking along Michigan street figuring on a glorious time absorbing the contents of the case, Officer Brennan turned down toward them.

The thieves immediately abandoned the prize whisky and made their escape in the darkness. Officer Brennan took the whisky in custody and it is now at police headquarters.

Entrance to the liquor house was gained by the breaking of a window in the rear.

LAKE AVENUE FIRE

Starts In Saloon and Threatens Candy Store.

Fire broke out in a saloon at 206 South Lake avenue at 2:20 o'clock this morning.

It worked through a partition into a confectionary store next door and for a time threatened some of the oldest buildings in the city.

The fire department got the blaze under control, however, and according to underwriters the loss is very light.

The building where the fire originated is occupied by B. J. Madden's saloon and

A STRONG MAN.

He Ousted Timber Men From Their Lands.

Twelve parties claiming to be the owners of a bit of property near Duluth have begun suit in district court against Albert Carlson, alleging that he wrongfully performed the prodigious feat of ousting the whole dozen of them from their land and maintaining possession of it for six years. The plaintiffs are Thomas N. Carter, J. P. Haxall, J. P. Winston, John H. Middendoff, E. D. Addison, Edmund B. Addison, Rosalie W. Rutledge, Arthur M. Rutledge, Mary W. Harrison and Edmund D. Addison. The property is the northeast quarter of the northwest quarter and the northerly fifteen feet of the southeast quarter of the northwest quarter of section 32, 50-14. The plaintiffs claim that Carlson ousted them July 1, 1897, and they seek the recovery of the property and $300 damages. Greene & Wood are the attorneys.

NEW ELEVATOR COMPANY.

Ball Elevator Company Is Incorporated.

The Ball Elevator company this morning filed articles of incorporation in the office of the register of deeds. It is authorized to handle, buy, sell and store grains, and its principal place of business is Duluth, though it may do business and maintain offices anywhere in the United States. The corporation begins Sept. 1, and lasts thirty years. The capital stock is $10,000 and the limit of indebtedness is the same amount. The incorporators are John H. Ball of Duluth, president and treasurer; Robert Dunn of Duluth vice-president; and Herbert R. Spencer of Duluth, secretary.

DIVISION IS CUT

Supt. E. C. Blanchard's Old Division Is Made Into Two.

Railroad Men Say Rate Cutting Is All Over.

The transfer of Division Superintendent E. C. Blanchard to Duluth from Minneapolis has caused the general superintendent of the road to cut the present Minnesota division in two, and where Mr. Blanchard had the 700 miles of track between St. Paul and Fargo, two men will now be engaged.

The division includes the Fergus Falls branch, the Red River branch, and the Little Falls branch, besides the main line.

The lower portion of the old division will be designated the St. Paul division, and will comprise 304 miles of line. It will consist of the main line as far as Staples, the Little Falls branch as far as Brainerd, the Little Falls & Dakota branch, and also the lines to White Bear, Stillwater, and the Minneapolis cut-off line. This branch will be in charge of M. M. Fowler, whose promotion was recently announced.

The other division will be known as the Minnesota division, and will extend from Staples to Fargo, including the Red River and the Fergus Falls branches. H. A. Sovereign will have charge of that division, which will consist of 436 miles of track.

The transfer of Mr. Blanchard, who formerly had control of the Minnesota disivion, takes from that division one of the most competent men of the company, and the placing of two in his stead is something of a compliment by the road.

Mr. Blanchard will take charge of affairs at this end of the road Tuesday, when G. E. Vanderslice relinquishes his hold of the directing powers of the division.

WAR IS OVER.

Railroad Rate Cutting Said to Be Ended.

No changes have been made in the New York rates and the Chicago rates out of Duluth under the war figures.

It was announced at one of the ticket offices this morning that the rate would stay at $25 until the sale time expired, and that the cutting or meeting rates was finished.

There is heavy travel out of Duluth to Chicago, and probably a couple of hundred have made the trip so far, the New York travel being split between the South Shore and the Omaha and Wisconsin Central.

The trains out of Duluth for the past two days have been running with extra sleepers and every berth filled. It has been a feast for the traveler who travels only on low rates, but the railroad men claim it has been a serious hindrance to the regular business, and that the traveling public has been much inconvenienced by the heavy business.

Railroad Notes.

President W. F. Fitch of the South Shore road, arrived in Duluth this morning on a trip of inspection from Marquette. He will be here a day or two.

Frederick Hebart, editor of the Engineering and Mining Journal of New York, arrived in Duluth yesterday and is up on the ranges today, looking over the iron country. He will leave for home this evening.

Wilhelm Maceo and party of engineers from Germany went up on the range today for a stay of several days and will spend their time looking over the ore transportation facilities and the methods of mining which prevail in the Minnesota mining country. The party will visit all the principal mines, and will spend another day or two in Duluth upon their return from that trip.

John Cain, freight soliciting agent of the Northern Pacific, returned this morning from a visit to the Pacific coast over the line he works for. Mr. Cain has been away ten days

MINNESOTA VOLUNTEERS

Sixth Regiment Will Hold Reunion at Harriet Island.

St. Paul, Aug. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Sixth Minnesota volunteers will hold a reunion at Harriet island next Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. The St. Paul members will be hosts, the ladies providing dinner. Of the 361 members probably about 120 will attend. Col. William Crooks, the first colonel of the regiment, now living at Portland, Ore., is president.

The survivors of Brackett's Minnesota battalion and the Minnesota members of the Fifth Iowa volunteer cavalry will hold a reunion at the state capitol at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning. The association was organized last year with about seventy-five members. Maj. John W. Cramsie of St. Paul is president.

KILLED IN COLLISION.

St. Louis, Aug. 28.—Two freight trains on the Missouri Pacific met in a head-on collision today near Valley Park, west of here, killing Brakeman Marshall and probably fatally injuring Engineer Christene and Fireman Saunders. The engines were completely wrecked and several cars were smashed, blocking traffic for several hours. It is said the wreck was caused by a misunderstanding of orders.

DINED WITH WILHELM.

Berlin, Aug. 28.—United States Consul General Richard Guenther of Frankfort-on-the-Main, dined with Emperor William at Cassel today, when the emperor banquetted 10,000 civil officials and prominent inhabitants of the province of Hesse-Nassau at the castle and on the grounds there.

SARGENT TO RUN

Will Dispute With J. G. Miller For Republican Nomination.

James W. Sargent, the well-known conductor on the Northern Pacific passenger trains between Duluth and St. Paul, is an avowed candidate for the Republican nomination for railroad and warehouse commissioner. It was announced in The Herald during the winter that it was quite likely that he would become a candidate, but Mr. Sargent is now out for the nomination, and is quietly beginning a canvass.

Mr. Sargent has been running out of Duluth on passenger trains for ages and ages, and there is not a railroad man in the Northwest that is better and more widely known than he. He will undoubtedly make quite an effective fight for the place.

There will be two vacancies on the commission this time, both Joseph G. Miller and Ira G. Mills retiring. That is, their terms expire, though it is likely that both of them will be candidates for re-election. Mr. Sargent's fight will probably be more directly against Mr. Miller, as the former has been for many years a resident of Duluth, though at present he is living in Minneapolis. He is making his start early, and so far no candidates have been announced besides himself,, neither of the retiring commissioners having announced their candidacy.

MRS. MOORE BREAKS HER HIP.

Binghamton, N. Y., Aug. 28.—While entering her bathroom at her home in Greene, N. Y., Mrs. N. S. Moore slipped and in falling broke her hip. It is feared the injury will prove fatal. Mrs. Moore is the mother of J. H. and W. H. Moore, the Chicago capitalists who control the Rock Island system.

ACCIDENT ON STEAMER.

Bremen, Aug. 28.—The North German Lloyd steamer Neckar, bound for Baltimore, while off Terschling, an island in the North sea, yesterday, burst her main steam supply pipe, which scalded the third and fourth engineers and seven stokers. The vessel is returning here for repairs.

PIANO HISTORY

As seen and experienced by shrewd buyers and honest dealers, centers strictly around the only two absolutely artistic pianos in the world—

STEINWAY AND KNABE

For more than sixty years they have held the center of the stage.

They have a safe, secure hold on the affections of the artist and the music-loving public of the entire universe.

STEINWAY PIANOS have been sold for as much as $60,000.00 for one single instrument. KNABE PIANOS have sold for as high as $25,000.00 for one single instrument. There never has been another piano manufacturer who ever attempted to build a strictly art piano—yet we know of dealers who will attempt to get an artistic price for even a poor, very poor imitation.

Many people think the case makes the artistic piano, and are led to believe this to their sad disappointment after they have parted with their money.

How seldom you find these two noted historic world-wide reputable pianos—the Steinway and Knabe—handled by one dealer.

THE DULUTH MUSIC CO. carries thousands of dollars yearly wrapped up in these two noble instruments, and how little is this appreciated! How little do Duluth people realize what we have done, and are still doing for lovers of high art in pianos at an enormous expense.

Everyone cannot afford the luxury of a Steinway or Knabe, yet they pay the price for a much inferior instrument that has never been countenanced by an artist, except when paid to do so.

Special sales, advertising bargains, is business and all right—but these sales do not appeal to buyers of artistic instruments.

Why pay an unreasonable price for a piano that has never attracted the attention of the musical world, when just a few more dollars will secure you a Steinway or a Knabe—the pride of two great continents as the only artistic pianos ever built.

There are 500 piano manufacturers in the United States—only 10 per cent of this number produce high grade or standard pianos.

Now we kindly ask those who anticipate the purchase of a piano to investigate what we have laid down for their own benefit.

Don't let the unscrupulous dealer lead you to believe that their instruments are as good, or as expensive to produce as a Steinway or Knabe. There are none built that cost anywhere near their value—but some dealers will ask as much for them.

STEINWAY & KNABE Pianos involve many vast improvements and important patents little appreciated by the public which other manufacturers have not completed, hence the extra cost of production.

Therefore, above all, in choosing an instrument, the necessity of knowing that the maker is faithful and honest to the demands of his calling should be clear to all buyers to avoid deception.

THE DULUTH MUSIC CO. is a valuable factor to Piano Purchasers.

Other good Pianos which our vast and untiring experience have proven above reproach are:—The Ivers & Pond, noted for its popularity in large musical conservatories of the world.

EMERSON—a Piano of National Reputation—over 80,000 now in use in as many satisfied homes—the best piano on earth for a moderate price.

KRANICH & BACH—an old time-tried favorite, built by men of thorough experience and noted for their scientific knowledge of piano making.

We also have a large and well selected stock of LUDWIG, SMITH & BARNES, RICHMOND, WILLARD, LELAND, REMINGTON, DYER BROS. and others at prices according to their standing.

BARGAIN PIANOS A large list of bargains in Pianos returned from rent now on our floor at ridiculously low prices. These can be exchanged for better ones at any time you so desire, allowing you what you have paid to apply on the better one.

THE PIANOLA The wonder of the Twentieth Century, the most perfect, simple, complete and least complicated of any player on the market. Endorsed by all leading musicians of the country. Can be played by any one.

Large library of the latest and best music; new numbers coming in constantly.

TO SEARCH FOR GOLD

Texan Company Formed to Bring to Light Buried Treasure.

Hidden From Freebooters at the Bottom of a Lake.

Houston, Texas, Aug. 28.—A stock company composed of Judge McCarthy, of Eagle Pass, Texas, president; J. C. Carr, secretary, and H. W. Bailor, treasurer, together with a number of the wealthiest men of the western portion of the state, has been formed for the avowed purpose of searching for $2,500,000 in Spanish gold, said to be the property of the Church of Rome, buried in 1863 in the Brand Water Hole in Dimmit county.

The treasure, according to the records of the church and archives of the Spanish government of Mexico, was buried as a method of preservation.

On Nov. 23, 1863, the caravan escorting Prince Leon de Valesques and his wife, Princess Josepha, from Mexico City to San Antonio de Bexar, was attacked by freebooters under the command of Luciano Mendosa. A six days' battle followed and on Nov. 29 the freebooters swept over the camp, carrying all before them. But two of the defenders escaped. Before the final attack, the treasure was sunk beneath the surface of the water in the lake, and is supposed to still be there.

Of the two survivors one was a priest known as Hipolito Jimenez, the other was an unknown trooper. Both were captured by Indians. The soldier married among his captors.

The churchman escaped to a Spanish settlement and later prepared a complete history of the events of the six days. This written account is now in the possession of the priests of the ancient city of Ajimaga. It declares the treasure to belong to the Church of Rome. In the archives of the Mexican government is a brief account of the loss of the caravan and the slaughter of all who participated therein, together with the burial of the treasure. Already searching parties have explored the battleground, unearthed the bodies of a man and woman, and collected proof of what is considered confirmatory of the story of Jimenez. At present the searchers are raising money for the search.

Since the day of the battle, continued rains and the action of the elements have almost filled the lake that once existed along the course of the creek, where the money is supposed to be concealed. It is believed that the chests of Spanish gold were thrown in the water near the shores as they existed at the time of the battle. For this reason the plans of the company are such as to cover cost of extensive excavations around the water hole that still marks the spot.

The caravan set out from the City of Mexico, May 1, 1863. It was under the command of Col. Antonio Musquez. San Antonio was then the center of the province of Texas, and thither the three troops of cavalry were dispatched, along with the prince and princess whose task it was to win over and civilize the Indians and spread the power of the Catholic religion. To them was intrusted the treasure.

The story of the buried gold for years was considered nothing more than an Indian legend, but in 1873 O. D. Baker, of Beaumont, Texas, took up the investigation.

He organized a searching party composed of Capt. Terrasas of the customs department of Eagle Pass; Col. J. C. Carr, of San Antonio; Capt. C. C. Akers, and Light Townsend, of Eagle Pass; H. W. Baylor, sheriff of Uvalde county; Judge I. L. Martin, of the Thirty-eighth judicial district; H. P. Greshem and N. F. Watkins, of Uvalde. On July 29 the party reached the spot.

There unmistakable signs of the battle were discovered. A small swivel cannon was unearthed before night of the first day. With darkness came a terrific storm. The water in the creek became a torrent. In the morning a skull was found where it had been washed from the earth by the action of rain.

Work the next day was begun on the eastern hillside. A hard substance was struck and examination showed that the petrified box of an ancient cart had been found. It was lifted, and beneath it were the petrified figures of a man and woman lying side by side. Silver spurs still hung to the feet of the man and a rusty sword of elaborate workmanship lay by his side.

The increasing flood in the creek forbade further search at that time and the party returned.

MIDGET

We'ghing Less Than Two Pounds Is Dead.

Circleville, Ohio, Aug. 28.—Little Emma Harriet Butts, the smallest mite of humanity of record, died Monday of general collapse, aged 4½ months.

At birth Emma balanced the scales at 1½ pounds, and six weeks later barely tipped the beam at 1 pound.

At no time in her brief existence did she exceed 2½ pounds in weight.

She was perfectly formed, and her tiny little hands and feet were marvels of symmetry and beauty. Her head was small, but well shaped, and her mouth so small that for weeks after her birth she was fed with a spoon.

INITIATES CLASS

Fidelity Lodge, No. 105, A. O. U. W., Receives Sixty-six New Members.

Interesting Ceremony of Initiation Takes Place at the Armory.

An interesting initiation of members into a fraternal organization took place at the Armory last evening, and was among the largest ever received by a similar body in the city at one time.

For the past month Deputy G. M. W. Ehle has been in the city working in the interest of Fidelity lodge, No. 105, A. O. U. W., and the success which he has had has been almost phenomenal. Fidelity lodge is now the largest of the five lodges in the city, having a membership of over 500.

All of the preliminaries connected with the initiation were conducted in the lodge room at the Kalamazoo hall, and it was after 10 o'clock before the new members were lined up in the Armory to receive the instructions of the order. Of the 114 applications acted on by the grand lodge, seventy-seven policies were returned, and out of that number sixty-seven were initiated.

Master Workman Stephens was the installing officer, and supporting him on the platform were the following officers of the lodge: G. M. W. Fred H. White, Duluth; D. G. M. Capt. H. R. Hare, St. Paul; D. G. M. W. Peter O. Olsen, St. Paul; D. G. M. W. James McDowell, Duluth; J. W. Shepherd, financier No. 10, Duluth; P. M. W. Nels Anderson, Duluth; P. M. W. J. H. Powers, Duluth; P. M. W. B. P. Molter, Sherburn, Minn.; P. M. W. A. C. McIntosh, Duluth; D. M. G. W., A. Farrington, West Duluth.

Back of the platform was conspicuously displayed the charter of the lodge, and more than 500 of the members turned out to assist in installing the new members. The ritual was conspicuous for its absence, and therefore the work was facilitated. Brother Stephens performed the initiation without a hitch. The average age of the membership of the class was less than twenty-seven years.

When the degree was given the new workmen were formed into an angle, making an anchor, symbolical of one of the fundamental principles of the order, and presened a very imposing sight.

At the close of the initiation three cheers were given for Fidelity, after which the meeting adjourned to Kalamazoo block, where a sumptuous banquet was spread. A number of toasts were given and responded to by prominent members of the lodge, and one of the most enthusiastic meetings of the Ancient Order of United Workmen was brought to a close about the early hours of the morning.

THE RAILROAD PAID THE BILLS

Expense of Western Tour Not Charged to President.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 28.—Private advices from Washington state that President Roosevelt's recent tour across the continent, costing nearly $25,000 for mileage, entertainment, etc., of the presidential party, was paid for by the railroad on which he started from and returned to Washington.

Some surprise has been expressed by those who learned of the facts, owing to the president's well known liberality in entertaining as well as his public and private utterances on the subject of the proper conduct of public officials. Inquiry developed, however, that more than one president has allowed the railroad companies to pay every cent of the expense, including the entertainment of all members of the presidential party on such trips from start to finish. The above statement comes from sources friendly to the president, and hence must be taken as official.

HE INVOKED BLACK ART

To Help Him Choose Between Blonde and Brunette.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—Even with the aid of the black art, two matrimonial advertisements, an ax and a search warrant, Fritz Schulze couldn't tell which woman he wanted to marry, and he was therefore sued for $10,000 damages, with the prospect of a pair of breach of promise suits to follow.

Vacillation and superfluity of advice seem to have been the undoing of Schulze, who lives at 16 Cass street, and has apparently promised to marry both a blond and a brunette. Miss Minnie Morwitz, 493 North Francisco street, is the light-haired young lady in the case, while Mrs. Ida Schwarz, 1430 West Madison street, is the victim whose raven tresses were severely injured by Schulze's alleged use of an ax on July 15. It is on this ground that Mrs. Schwarz filed the damage suit, but her attorney, M. Emmett Clare, is authority for the statement that both she and Miss Morwitz consider this case but a preliminary skirmish. The real action will occur, they say, when the breach of promise suits are started.

According to the bill filed by Attorney Clare, Schulze wished to get married a year ago, and being a cautious man, decided to leave the choice of a wife to the matrimonial bureau. This venture is said to have been made in Milwaukee and to have led him to meeting Mrs. Schulze, whom he had known thirty years before as a little black-eyed girl in Germany. It is alleged that a marriage was at once arranged, but that the bride unfortunately urged that the ceremony be postponed for a month or two.

During this interval, it is declared, Schulze came to doubt the wisdom of his choice, and accordingly again advertised for a wife. Miss Moritz was the woman who replied. To her also Schulze is said to have proposed marriage and to have tried to assure the correctness of his choice by getting a fortune teller's verdict upon it.

A document which is to be offered in evidence as exhibit A shows that the necromancer promptly advised his client to marry the brunette, not the blond. Consultation with a second clairvoyant, it is asserted, resulted in a directly contradictory verdict. To and to Schulze's despair Miss Moritz and Mrs. Schwartz are said to have met at a picnic at this time, and to have compared matrimonial notes with disastrous results.

It is alleged that Schulze then attacked Mrs. Schwarz at her home with an ax, injuring her severely. Soon afterward he obtained a search warrant and went through her house to recover valuable papers he claimed to have left there. On one of these visits he is said to have relented and to have left the following note tucked coyly away in a flower pot:

"Dear Ida—Haven't you any heart for me? FRITZ."

Schulze was formerly a farmer in South Dakota. He is said to be quite well to do.

FOLEY BOYS ARE LUCKY

Will Some Day Inherit George Primrose's Prestige and Wealth.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—Luck made the profoundest bow to the Foley brothers when, four years ago, it carried them across the path of George Primrose. Up to that time Dame Fortune had but gingerly dealt with the prepossessing lads who danced and sang with Mr. Primrose at the Highlands a week ago. But "the tide in the affairs of men" came early and with a big, big wave. Now they are Mr. Primrose's proteges, understudies, whom he will soon adopt and some day endow with handsome corner lots and enough to build brownstone fronts thereon.

Four years ago, when Mr. Primrose was organizing the Primrose-Dockstader minstrel company, he cast about for two lads who could duplicate himself and his former partner, the late "Billy" West, in their original dances.

Paul Dresser, the author of "On the Banks of the Wabash," knew Willie and Johnny Foley, sons of a struggling widow of Brooklyn, N. Y. They had never been on the stage, but had learned buck dancing by watching from high perches in the gallery of Hyde & Behmans the different vaudeville dancers who came to that house.

Mr. Dresser took them over to New York, and, in Mr. Primrose's office, they showed what they could do. The knowing eye of the best of all dancing minstrels at once recognized the pliable material and the alert readiness of the young exhibitors of their skill. He took them up and taught them his original charming art. They have traveled with his company ever since, and are now his partners in vaudeville. He is not only their tutor, but the kindest of foster-fathers and gentlest of friends. The boys love him and he loves them. His arms twine about them as readily off as on the stage. He watches over their health and morals, and encourages them to save money out of their liberal salary he pays them. They draw $75 each a week, and out of this they send to their mother $40 weekly for the support of herself and their two younger sisters.

A year ago, when "Billy" West, Primrose's former partner, lay dying at the Palmer house, Primrose's company played a minstrel engagement in Chicago. Daily he visited his old friend and partner, and told him much of the Foley boys, who were even then dancing the same old steps he and "Billy" had immortalized throughout many years. Mr. West expressed a desire to see the boys dance, and bewailed his inability to come to the theater.

"I'll bring them right up here," said Primrose. The next day, in burnt cork and costumes, Johnny and Willie Foley were driven in a carriage to Mr. West's hotel and in his room, with Primrose beating time, they danced to a dying minstrel. Now and then the feeble hands of West joined in, gently clapping rhythm to the boys' steps. It was a never-to-be-forgotten sight. Two young lads, at the beginning of a fortunate career, chock full of health and happiness and the bubbling spirits of life, dancing memorable steps to the man who had helped to make them famed throughout America.

There were tears in the eyes of Primrose and in those of West, and Mrs. West cried aloud. Only the boys smiled and danced. Suddenly Mr. West stopped them.

"No, George," he said, "that isn't right! They left out one step!"

It was the most difficult one of them all. The lads were not perfect in it, and it was left out of their dancing repertoire.

Mr. Primrose explained to West the cause of the omission, and then the dance was finished.

"Which boy dances on my side?" again asked West, deeply interested.

"This one here."

"What's his name?"

"His name is Willie."

"His name is Willie, too," mused West, now breaking into tears, as he looked back upon the happy days when he was Willie, the minstrel boy, and the delight of lovers of minstrelsy.

The strange, heart-touching meeting ended with a promise from West that each of the boys should have a watch as a gift from him, and that the one to be owned by Willie Foley should be inscribed as a token from "William H. West to Willie Foley."

"Billy" West is dead, and George Primrose has abandoned minstrelsy at the height of his glory and with a snug fortune in the bank, to be piled up still higher by his enormous vaudeville receipts. The Foley brothers are starting in life amidst the smiles of fortune and the plaudits of thousands, the intimate affection of Primrose and the prestige of his minstrel fame.

SHE SENT

Eloquent Love Letters But Could Not Write.

Toledo, Ohio, Aug. 28.—Deceived into marriage by love letters is the rather unique plea William Wegner makes in his answer to a petition for divorce filed by his wife Minnie. When he married his wife he thought she was bright, educated and intelligent, but he states that he has been deceived. He carried on a lot of correspondence with his wife before the marriage, and these love letters were so beautifully written, and with such a dash and style of expression, that he thought none but a clever woman could breathe such eloquence of love.

After marriage, he says, he soon learned that his wife was illiterate, and couldn't even write her own name. Then he commenced thinking about the loving courtship letters, and he says he found that they were all written by a school teacher, who was employed by his wife to do so. After the marriage he sent her to a business college, so as to do all in his power to teach her to read and write.

Divers persons, he states, have asked him how he came to marry her, but he says he has never been able to answer the question. It is still a mystery in his own mind.

FORMER WIFE BEAT RIVAL

And Attacked the Husband Whom She Had Arrested.

Cairo, Ill., Aug. 28.—Wrought up to a frenzy because of the treatment she had received from an alleged faithless husband, Mrs. Sophia Smeltzley attacked him in open court and assaulted the woman who, it is alleged, robbed her of him. Mrs. Smeltzley came here a few days ago and found her former husband living with another woman. She had him arrested and he was tried in the county court before Judge Dewey.

Smeltzley produced a marriage license which showed that he was legally married to Mattie Miller at Jonesboro, Ark., some months ago, and as the Alexander county circuit court had given him a divorce from his wife Sofia last February, the court discharged him.

Wife No. 1 then attacked her rival and bore her down upon a table. The women were separated by court officers. She gave her former leige lord a parting blow as he was leaving the room.

Mrs. Smeltzley states that the divorce was granted without her knowledge, and that she will take steps to have it set aside, as it was obtained upon false testimony. She claims she was married to John Smeltzley at North Manchester, Ind., in 1876, and that two daughters were born to them. In 1894, she says, her husband, who is a sawmill man, became infatuated with Mattie Miller at Hoovers, Ind. At that time, so Mrs. Smeltzley claims, he was interested in a mill there, and she worked in the office. Since then he has worked at various places in Kansas, Arkansas, Kentucky and Illinois, and Miss Miller has been in all of these places with him.

BROTHERS REUNITED

As Result of Billygoat Eating Revenue Stamps.

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 28.—The newspapers have been instrumental in rejoining a family of Irish extraction for the first time since their immigration commenced from the Emerald Isle. Publication recently of a Memphis goat eating all the revenue stamps off a whisky barrel, which contained its full quantity of whisky, brought about the discovery that Patrick Griffin, a resident of Columbus, Ohio, a politician and a well-to-do grocery man, was half brother to J. J. Griffin, owner of the Memphis goat.

Revenue agents passing the store of J. J. Griffin, noticed that the whisky barrel was minus more than $30 worth of the necessary stamps. An attempt was made to confiscate the whisky, but Griffin employed legal talent and proved that the goat had eaten the stamps.

The fact was duly chronicled in the papers, and J. J. Griffin though that the last act in the unusual incident had passed when a mail carrier delivered him a letter in which Patrick Griffin, of Columbus, wanted to know something about the county in Ireland that his family originated from. The correspondence that followed revealed the fact that they were half brothers, although they have not seen each other in twenty years and believed each other dead.

A LARGER QUART

State Law Requires Large Measure For Sale of Milk.

An Increase of Twenty-two Per Cent In Its Size.

Duluth milkmen who have not kept very close track of the grist of new laws and new shapes of old ones turned out of the legislative mill at the last session are likely to receive a severe jolt shortly.

They are using quart measures which are far below the size required by the new laws, and in a short time they will be called upon to make the change or suffer the penalty, which will be something of a surprise to many of them.

For many years the milk dealers of the state have been using measures based upon a standard provided by the laws of 1878, which measurement fixed the standard quart at 57.75 cubic inches.

The new law, known as the Shove law, regulating various measurements, increases the quart to 70.5 cubic inches, an increase over more than 22 per cent.

What stirred the matter up was the action of the Minneapolis milk dealers in combining to raise the price of milk. This resulted in getting the state dairy and food department to investigate the laws more thoroughly, and it was found that besides the new dairy and food law, requiring many new and wholesome things in connection with the milk and cream business, the Shove law increased the size of the quart measure. Milk dealers, therefore, will have to get new measures based upon the lawful standard, and will have to have them stamped with their size by the seal of authority. If they do not they may be compelled to pay a fine as high as $100 or be imprisoned in the county jail for not more than ninety days. In cities it is the sealer of weights and measures who must approve the measures, and outside of the cities the county treasurer must do it.

The Shove law, passed at the last session, left the standard quart at 57.75 cubic inches for everything except beer and milk, but for these two commodities it provided a distinct system of measurements. The gallon is to contain 282 cubic inches, the half gallon half that, the quart half the half gallon, and the pint half the quart. This makes the quart 70.5 cubic inches.

So that people who have been buying milk out of the old quart measures have been getting 22 per cent less than the new law entitles them to. Having stirred the matter up in Minneapolis, the dairy and food department will undoubtedly proceed to take similar action here, as it is necessary that the laws should be as rigidly enforced in Duluth as in Minneapolis.

Superior May Join.

The Duluth Commercial club has extended a cordial invitation to Superior to join with Duluth in preparing for the exhibition at the St. Louis exposition, a bas relief map of the cities at the head of the lakes. This is called out by a complaint in a Superior paper that Duluth is not treating that city rightly by preparing a map showing Superior a blank. Designer Stevens, who prepared the map showing Duluth at the Chicago fair, is working upon the Duluth map now, and it will be complete and elaborate.

THE MAIDEN PERSISTENT

Loses a Title But Sues to Recover Money Loaned.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—Count Paulin Edmund de Falkenstein Falkowsky, nobleman in Austria and piano agent in Chicago, while awaiting the remittance of return passage money to the fatherland, has been hauled into court for the loans of a one-time sweetheart.

To secure the title of countess and secure a home in a ducal castle, Miss Leokadia Fabienski says she gave him $500. She says she also loved him. After taking her money and kisses in a most plebian manner he married another girl.

The romance of the fortune-hunting count first came to light when Miss Fabienski was discovered hanging onto his coat tails while he leaped for a Milwaukee avenue cable car. Like a faithful retainer she stuck to her count until five policemen arrived on the scene. The fortune of war were against the nobleman and he pandered in the dungeon of the Rawson street police station that night.

Later he appeared before Justice Severson. Miss Fabienski told how her title-hunting scheme had come to naught, and how she plotted revenge. For nights she had patroled the sidewalk in front of 11 West Iowa street—the Chicago "schloss" of the Austrian count and countess.

Finally she was rewarded by seeing him kiss the countess and start for the Milwaukee avenue cable tracks. At the critical moment she made a flank move on his coat tails and his dignity was rolled in the mud of Milwaukee avenue. The count says he owes only $2, and that he is only awaiting a remittance from his father before starting back to his Austrian castle.

DIED IN HYSTERICS.

Would-Be-Bride Warned Not To Marry.

Clinton, Iowa, Aug. 28.—"You are to marry my father, but God grant that you may never experience the treatment which my own mother received. I believe you to be a good woman, deserving of a good home and a better fate awaits you than to be married to such a man."

The above words are purported to have been spoken to Mrs. Hannah Beer by the son of a man whom she was to marry. Three hours after they were uttered the woman was a corpse, having died, the doctors stated of a broken heart.

According to report Hannah Beer was engaged to marry John Pont in September. She was seated at the supper table in the home of Fred L. Fritz, near Rio, at which table was also the son of Pont, who warned the woman against marrying his father. The woman became hysterical and died three hours later. Both father and son were so prostrated that neither could attend the funeral.

ATTEMP TO MURDER.

Sauk Center Man Fired at Twice.

Sauk Center, Minn., Aug. 28.—A. L. Irwin, a grain man of this place, responded to a knock upon the door of his house at 10:30 Wednesday night, and was confronted by a masked man who asked for money. When the demand was refused, the man opened fire, but missed Mr. Irwin who then dodged inside and slammed the door.

A second shot was fired through the panel, the bullet lodging in Irwin's shoulder. He is not seriously wounded. His antagonist is believed by many to have been a lunatic or some person holding a grudge against him.

Jamaica Hurricane Means Big Shortage In Banana Crop.

California Fruits Cheaper, the Independent Growers Cutting Prices.

As the result of the Jamaica hurricane the price of bananas in this country is expected to advance. It is already very firm and a considerable raise is expected.

The plantations in Jamaica were practically devastated by the hurricane which swept over that island, and it will be at least a year before that country is in a position to ship any quantity of the fruit to the outside world.

Jamaica has been for years the principal source of supply for banana dealers the world over, and now that the supply is cut off a scarcity of the fruit is expected. Receipts of bananas at New York have sometimes aggregated as much as forty carloads per day, by far the greater part of which came from Jamaica.

Since the news of the hurricane prices of the fruit in New York have risen materially, and other Eastern points have felt the effect. In Duluth no material change in price has resulted, although the dealers have felt the effect of the higher prices in New York, and are looking for a stiffening here.

California fruit has weakened in price during the past week. Exorbitant prices have been the rule up to the present time, but shipments of the independent California fruit growers have been larger during the past two weeks, and the Fruit Growers' association has been compelled to cut prices.

The potato crop promises well this year. The price has dropped from 6 to 7 cents during the past week, and the tubers are now selling at 60 cents per bushel. The Minnesota crop promises to be very large, and a reasonable price will doubtless be maintained throughout the winter.

Pumpkins are now coming in freely. The first shipment was received about ten days ago. They are from Minnesota, and they will soon be plentiful on the local market.

The apple crop promises to be exceptionally good this year. The quality of the fruit is the feature. The shipments that are being received at present are of some of the finest early stock ever seen on the local market, and the fall and winter apples promise well.

Grapes are now being received freely. The Michigan grapes are now on the market, Concords and Delawares, and the price has fallen slightly during the past week.

Meat prices have remained about stationary during the past week, with the exception of pork chops, which are selling for 12 cents. The trade has been brisk.

Spring chickens have taken a substantial drop in price during the past week, and are now selling at 13 and 14 cents a pound. The crop this year has been a good one, and it is not likely the extreme shortage of last year will be experienced. Trade in poultry has been brisk during the week and the shipments large.

Sues For Damages.

Ole Knudsen, a miner employed at the Lincoln mine, yesterday afternoon began suit against the Minnesota Iron company for $5700 damages for personal injuries. He fell ten feet into a ditch, he claims, getting a broken shoulder and an injured spine that paralyzed his right arm. He alleges that the hole into which he fell, which crossed the path used by the miners in going to their work, was left unguarded and without a warning light, and that he fell into it in the night while going to work.

WAR ON THE TRUST.

Independent Automobile Builders Prepare For Litigation.

New York, Aug. 28.—It was learned that there will be formidable opposition on behalf of the smaller independent manufacturers against the control of the trade in gas automobiles by the construction of licensed auto manufacturers. This opposition will take a peculiar form and one that makes a hard battle in the courts over the Selden patent certain. The news of what is being done was divulged by W. H. Chamberlin, of Chicago, whose plan it is. Mr. Chamberlain is a lawyer, who was assistant patent attorney under President McKinley and also is a former secretary of the Chicago automobile club.

BEDE TALKS AT HIBBING

Hibbing, Minn., Aug. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Hon. J. Adam Bede gave the oration at Hibbing's tenth anniversary and carnival. Over 5000 people listened to the eloquent congressman on the first day of the carnival. He was introduced by Hon. Martin Hughes, of this city. Mr. Hughes said ten years ago a party of explorers broke their way through the wilderness in the forest, in which the voice of man had never before been heard, to the place where Hibbing, the metropolis of the Mesaba range, stands today. Among the members of the party were Frank Hibbing and A. J. Trimble, of Duluth. From that day until this has the never-tiring hand of man wrought the progress that has placed Hibbing where it is at the present time. Those men had holes drilled in the ground, borings saved and assayed, and we all know the rest of the story, viz., that in Hibbing district has developed a bed of Bessemer ore the richest in the world. He then introduced Mr. Bede as a man whose name is honored and reverenced in every home in this city.

"I am glad," said Mr. Bede, "to have a part in the celebration of this city's tenth anniversary, which is today the greatest iron ore city in the world. I congratulate you on your size, enterprise and prosperity on this your tenth birthday. With your 10,000 population you are but in your infancy. However, it's first the blade, then the ear and afterwards the full corn. You are merely in the blade.

"Despite a few evidences of crudeness, which of necessity must characterize every new community, Hibbing during a remarkably short period has grown into a real metropolitan city. You have men here from every part of Europe, from Asia. Every state in this great republic is represented here, and the African thrown in. You have your full quota of churches, banks, business establishments, schools, and it remains only for time alone to make you one of the very important commercial centers of the inland cities of the Northwest.

"You have in your midst over thirty iron mines, and this is only a beginning at mining in your district, and thirty mines is but a small view of your resources, as daily new discoveries are being made. Men are going down into the bowels of this community, and the strata of ore which girds it round and round, is no less than a book of mysterious inscriptions, in which, when properly understood, means unmeasurable wealth.

"Then the lumber interests contribute much to your city's prosperity. You have a compound revenue—fair as the morn and as clear as the sun, a heritage any city might well court. Your city has given employment, and the best of wages, to hundreds of men, and consequently you have been different from most cities, for you have been free from strikes. Competent judges estimate your timber alone is good for eight or ten years yet to come. Your schools and your public buildings are an honor to your city, and I hope you will never lose sight of the fact that the greatest thing in making a people great is not only wealth, but love of home and a belief in somebody greater than man. I congratulate you on this your tenth anniversary. I wish you development and prosperity in the years to come, which assuredly is yours."

CLERK PLAYED BALL

While Couple Waited For a Marriage License.

Belleville, Ill., Aug. 28.—A game of baseball at the park yesterday between the "leans" and "fats" of this city, in aid of charity, caused a delay of the marriage of Miss Bertha Hemp, of St. Louis, to Casius Schaefer, of Indianapolis.

The couple had planned a quiet wedding here as a surprise to friends. Upon their arrival they found the license office closed, due to Clerk Charles Rhein being engaged with the "leans" at the game.

The couple sought him out, but he told them he was a member of the lean team and would not leave. They decided to wait until the close of the game, when Rhein issued the license and they were married.

WILL TEACH BY MACHINE

Naval Academy Instructor Says Discs Will Replace Books.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—Summer girls and their temporary or permanent affinities will sit in hammocks while companionable talking machines deliver effusions of love from popular novels, when the prophecy of Professor H. Marion, of the United States naval academy at Annapolis, is fulfilled. The professor told a score of Chicago university professors and ambitious language students in Cobb hall yesterday that 'it would not be long before printed books would be classed with "wall sweep" clocks and that libraries would be made up of talking machine discs.

Professor Marion is an advocate, with Professors Schripture, of Yale; Cushachs, of Annapolis, and De Sumichrast, of the advanced "talking machine" method of teaching the languages. It was yesterday at Cobb hall, during a demonstration of this method, which has been successfully tested at the naval academy, that the speaker outlined the larger scope of the invention.

"In time," he declared, "these discs will take the place of text books. Paper-backed novels will disappear, and instead of reading printed books the literateur will only have to put a disc in his talking machine and have the novel read to him in the living voice of its creator.

"Imagine what it would mean to us now could we hear Shakespeare's voice reading 'Hamlet' to us, or could hear the voice of Hugo reciting chapters from 'Les Miserables.'"

But Professor Marion was not speaking to convince his hearers of the value of the new talking machine for fiction readers so much as for the students of languages. He declared that the new pedagogical methods of teaching the languages overcame the necessity of linguists wasting valuable time in teaching pronunciation.

"By the use of the talking machine it has been shown," he urged, "that the pronunciation of foreign words can be taught in a short time with an accuracy unacquired by any other method. We have discs here on which are lessons in French spoken by Professor De Sumichrist, of Harvard, and in Spanish by Professor Cusachs, of Annapolis. When a student mispronounces a word it is only necessary to refer him to a certain disc.

"Each student will own his talking machine. He will go to his room, place the disc in the machine and listen to the correct pronunciation of the word."

Professor Marion predicted it would not be long before "circulating libraries of records" would be established. He urged the value of the talking machine for the teaching of English in the island possessions.

"The talking machines will not die of fever," he said, "and they never get out of patience."

FOUND HIS SISTER

After a Search That Was Kept Up Nineteen Years.

A Pathetic Feature of the Meeting Is Her Insanity.

Denver, Col., Aug. 28.—After a nineteen years' search for his sister, William Hannaflus, of Van Wert, Ohio, located her in the insane ward of the county hospital.

Shortly before noon Mr. Hannaflus rushed into the court house and sought George Bachenburg, investigator of poverty cases.

"It's she!" he cried. "I've found her at last—crazy."

Then the poor fellow broke down and cried bitterly. Nineteen years ago Susie Ferry left her home at Van Wert, Ohio, for parts unknown to any of her relatives or friends. She was married at that time, but her husband is said to have mistreated her. She had considerable property, but this was soon dissipated, it is said, owing to her husband's conduct.

Determined to rid herself of him at any cost, the sorrowing woman left her home and wandered all over the country.

Several years later Ferry learned that his wife's mind had become unbalanced, and that she was in the state insane asylum, having been committed there from Fremont county. Ferry secured her release and brought her to Denver, where she was placed at 1352 Hazel court.

Soon after this George Kaylor, of 2321 West Thirty-first avenue, signed a complaint that Mrs. Ferry was insane, and the woman was committed again, but this time to the county hospital, where she has been confined in the ward for the insane ever since. Her husband went to California a long time ago and is still there.

During all these nineteen years Mrs. Ferry's brother, William Hannaflus, maintained a search for her.

The meeting between brother and sister was sufficient to move the hearts of the hospital people, accustomed as they are to pathetic sights.

"Nineteen years of search at last fruitful," Mr. Hannaflus said, "but to find her in an insane asylum. Her mind has undoubtedly become turned owing to her husband's former treatment of her. I shall take her to Van Wert and nurse her back to health if I can."

WONDERFUL TALE OF LIFE

Has Been Nun, Wife, Actress and Dying In Poverty.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 28.—Dying in poverty at the city's almshouse is Mrs. Josephine Andrews, who in her life of 65 years has run the whole gamut of human emotions.

She has experienced both wealth and want; has been the loved daughter of a well to do and distinguished family, and a mendicant depending upon public charity for the food she eats and the roof that shelters her.

She has taken the vows of the cloister and has been both wife and a mother.

She has experienced the austerity of a convent and the glitter and glare of the fotolights of the stage.

When a child Josephine Bunkley was playing in a churchyard in Norfolk while her negro mammy stood guard over her. Seeing a procession enter the sacred edifice she persuaded the old negro woman to take her inside that she might see what was going on. It was a Catholic church and the beautiful ceremonial caught the child's fancy. From that day she thought of becoming a nun and in time she accomplished her purpose and entered a convent in Maryland and took the vows.

The unvaried routine of the convent wore upon her and it was not many years before she longed for the freedom which had been hers in her Norfolk home. She planned an escape and effected it. Stealing from the walls one night at midnight, she walked alone about twenty miles through the darkness. She made her way to Virginia and back to Norfolk. Arriving there she wrote an account of the life in the convent and showed it to a gentleman in Norfolk, who, after making some alterations, published it. A bill of injunction was granted to suppress the publication.

Miss Bunkley then rewrote her story which is full of startling reference to the alleged inside workings of St. Joseph's institutions at Emmettsburg, Md. In closing it the former nun urged that some law be passed to require commissioners to enter all institutions where the vows of absolute divorce are taken, and the commissioners inquire of every inmate whether she be there by her own volition or by compulsion.

After her escape and return to her home Miss Bunkley would not see a confessor nor would she attend mass. She would have nothing to do with the church, of which she had been a votary. Later she married a man named Andrews, and had one son. Both husband and son died, and the former nun went on the stage. She played in this city in the old Metropolitan hall, and many persons now living here remember having seen her before the footlights. They say that she was a beautiful girl and was possessed of considerable talent.

But misfortune gathered around the woman. Old age and poverty came on together. Some six years ago Mrs. Andrews was received as an inmate at the almshouse in this city. There she has remained since, except for occasional visits which she pays to a brother who lives in Eastern Virginia. She will not talk of him further than to say that he is kind to her. After these visits she invariably returns.

Some days ago Mrs. Andrews was taken seriously ill. The physicians told her that she had only a limited time to live, and she sent for a priest of the Catholic church. Father Magri, of St. Peter's cathedral, received her confession and gave her the comforts of the church.

CRUSHES OUT THE LIFE

The most loathsome and repulsive of all living things is the serpent, and the vilest and most degrading of all human diseases is Contagious Blood Poison. The serpent sinks its fangs into the flesh and almost instantly the poison passes through the entire body. Contagious Blood Poison, beginning with a little ulcer, soon contaminates every drop of blood and spreads throughout the whole system. Painful swellings appear in the groins, a red rash and copper colored splotches break out on the body, the mouth and throat become ulcerated, and the hair and eye brows fall out; but these symptoms are mild compared to the wretchedness and suffering that come in the latter stages of the disease when it attacks the bones and more vital parts of the body. It is then that Contagious Blood Poison is seen in all its hideousness. The deep eating abscesses and sickening ulcers and tumors show the whole system is corrupted and poisoned, and unless relief comes soon this serpent disease tightens its coils and crushes out the life. The only antidote for the awful virus is S. S. S. It is nature's remedy, composed entirely of vegetable ingredients. S. S. S. destroys every vestige of the poison, purifies the blood and removes all danger of transmitting the awful taint to others. Nothing else will do this. Strong mineral remedies, like mercury and potash, dry up the sores and drive in the disease, but do not cure permanently.

STUDIES FROM THE OLD TESTAMENT

FROM SAMUEL TO SOLOMON--- DAVID SPARES SAUL

International Sunday School Lesson For Sunday, Aug. 30, 1903

Samuel 26:5-12, 21-25. "And David arose and came to the place where Saul had pitched; and David beheld the place where Saul lay, and Abner, the son of Ner, the captain of his host; and Saul lay within the place of the wagons, and the people pitched round about him. Then answered David and said to Ahimelech, the Hittite, and to Abishai, the son of Zeruiah, brother to Joab, saying, Who will go down with me to Saul to the camp? And Abishai said, I will go down with thee. So David and Abishai came to the people by night; and, behold, Saul lay sleeping within the place of the wagons, with his spear stuck in the ground at his head; and Abner and the people lay round about him. Then said Abishai to David, God hath delivered up thine enemy into thine hand this day; now, therefore, let me smite him, I pray thee, with the spear to the earth at one stroke, and I will not smite him the second time. And David said to Abishai, destroy him not; for who can put forth his hand against the Lord's anointed, and be guiltless? And David said, As the Lord liveth, the Lord shall smite him; or his day shall come to die; or he shall go down into battle, and perish. The Lord forbid that I should put forth mine hand against the Lord's anointed; but now take, I pray thee, the spear that is at his head, and the cruse of water, and let us go. So David took the spear and the cruse of water from Saul's head; and they gat them away, and no man saw it, nor knew it, neither did any awake; for they were all asleep; because a deep sleep from the Lord was fallen upon them.

Then said Saul, I have sinned; return, my son David; for I will no more do thee harm, because my life was precious in thine eyes this day. Behold, I have played the fool, and have erred exceedingly. And David answered and said, Behold the spear, O king! let then one of the young men come over and fetch it. And the Lord shall render to every man his righteousness and his faithfulness; forasmuch as the Lord delivered thee into my hand today, and I would not put forth mine hand against the Lord's anointed. And, behold, as thy life was much set by this day in mine eyes, so let my life be much set by in the eyes of the Lord, and let him deliver me out of all tribulation. Then Saul said to David, Blessed be thou, my son David; thou shalt both do mightily, and shalt surely prevail. So David went his way, and Saul returned to his place."

Golden Text: "Love your enemies, do good to them which hate you. Luke 6:27.

DAVID THE OUTLAW.

It is no mere picturesque title to call David an outlaw. He was in very truth outside the pale of law during the time that succeeded his parting with Jonathan. The king sought his life as truly as rulers ever sought the lives of such outlaws as once infested so much of our western country. When Jonathan said, Go in peace, it was impossible for David to literally obey the farewell injunction, for he was compelled to resort to arms to protect his very life. He did not dare go to the home of his people at Bethlehem, for that would have been to invite royal displeasure on all his kindred as well as upon himself. So he sought an asylum in the wild country that lay toward the south. His flight was so sudden that he made no preparations for food and shelter.

There is often an inclination to exalt the heroes of Bible story to far loftier heights of moral attainment than they ever attained. They were very real human beings, many of them with failings that would severely shock the moral sense of any Christian community today. They were of their time and environment and attained greatness only in proportion to the degree in which they rose above the spirit of their times. On his flight from the court David went straight to Nob, a city of the priests, situated a little south of Gibeah, Saul's capital. David naturally passed by it in his journey toward the south hill country. He knew the priest in charge there, and stopped in his breathless haste to request food and a weapon. The priest was startled by his unexpected and unattended appearance; but David was quick-witted, and gained the confidence of the priest by a palpable falsehood, which secured for him the bread he requested for himself and for those whom he said were awaiting him near by. By the same means he got the famous sword he had captured from Goliath; but a misadventure befell him there. Doeg, one of Saul's servants, was there on some religious errand and heard what transpired between David and Ahimelech. Having a villainous disposition, he treasured up what he heard for use when a convenient occasion should make it serve his interests. David did not tarry longer than necessity required. He hastened away from his native hills to seek refuge among his hereditary enemies, the Philistines, probably thinking that none of them would recognize him. But there he counted amiss, for as soon as he entered Gath, some of the servants of the king said, Is not this David? and they began at once to relate how great a man he was in his own land. This frightened the young fugitive, and he undertook a subterfuge to gain his escape. Feigning himself mad, he sought an opportunity and escaped to the vicinity of the valley of Elah, where he had overcome Goliah, to a limestone country full of caverns suitable for places of refuge, and many of which are to this day inhabited. Adullam lies about ten miles northwest of Hebron, and not over a dozen miles from the home of Jesse. In some way word came to Jesse's family that David was hiding in that vicinity. So they all fled to him, probably because they had begun to feel that the king's enmity was apt to fall upon them at any time.

Others came to him who were not of his family, men who had been unfortunate, who had felt the grind of debt or the gnawing of discontent, who knew the political power unpleasantly; these gathered about his leadership and followed him in whatever quest promised food or excitement. David's parents were getting old and could not share with him the fortunes of desert life. He wished to secure for them a safe retreat until better days should dawn for him. To the mountains of Moab, whence his ancestress, Ruth, had come, he betook himself, and there found the king ready to care for his father and another. He himself lingered in a place secure from his enemies until Gad, a prophet of God, who afterwards became a spiritual adviser and biographer of the young outlaw, told him to return to his native hills.

Again, therefore, David busied himself with caring for the safety of himself and his men in the forests not far from the caves of Adullam. Saul heard of his return from exile, and, calling his people about him, made a peculiar speech in which he arraigned all his servants for not having appraised him of the disloyalty of David. It was a speech such as only an infuriated man could have made. It showed a distorted mind, narrowed by its own frenzy. Doeg, the Edomite, who had seen David at Nob, told a parti-colored story of what had transpired there. This threw Saul into a rage against the priest Ahimelech: he had him called at once, examined him, and then maliciously caused him and all his family to be put to death, one only escaping, Abiathar, the son of Ahimelech. He hastened to join the standard of David, carrying with him the ephod, which was the garment worn by the priests when they consulted the urim and thummim, a sort of approved Hebrew oracle. David welcomed him cordially, saying, "Abide with me, fear not; for he that seeketh my life seeketh thy life; for with me thou shalt be in safeguard." Thus Thus David gained another religious mind to assist him in his struggles. Gad, the prophet, and Abiathar, the priest, seem to have played a very important part in the development of the young man's life at this period.

David's band was not idle during all this period of wild life in the wilderness. There was much general disorder that needed a strong hand to quell it. Saul's government did not afford the needed protection against the hostile tribes of the neighborhood. Shepherds and others who were following pursuits of peace felt the hardships arising from the repeated depredations on their property. They welcomed the protection that David eagerly afforded them. With his men he was almost instantly at any point where his services were needed. An instance of this service was the case of the attack on Keilah by the Philistines. David was intent on going to the relief of his fellow-countrymen at once; but there was objection on the part of some of his men. He sought the Lord's guidance, perhaps through Gad or Abiathar, and decided to pursue the enemy, which he did with great success, overtaking them and, regaining all the spoil that they had carried off, he returned it to the people of Keilah. But they were exceedingly ungrateful, as was shown in their great readiness to deliver David into the hands of Saul. As soon as Saul heard that David was in Keilah, he said with seeming relish, Now he is in a walled city and cannot escape us. David consulted his oracle again and learned that the people of the city would not protect him; so he fled in that dire extremity suggested by the words which say that he went "whithersoever they could go."

While in the wilderness of Ziph David was cheered by a visit from his friend Jonathan, who "strengthened his hand in the Lord." This expression has a picturesque beauty that one ought not to spoil by an effort to interpret it. Its significance is devout and indicates the power that can be exercised by an intimate friend in leading one to close relations with God. Jonathan's words of prophecy were very strange, for they indicated that he understood and acquiesced in the divine purpose to make David king in his stead. Furthermore, Saul himself understood this fact. It was probably pushing him on in his persecution of the young soldier.

The report came to Saul that David was hiding in the wilderness of Ziph; but the king would not go in pursuit until he had been thoroughly assured that the one whom he sought was actually there. He knew the subtlety of David and how shrewdly he had been evading him. But his care was all to no avail, for his coveted prize again evaded him and went over to the wilderness of Maon. Saul followed on, but was still on the fruitless chase when he was called away to resist an invasion of Philistines, and David sought refuge in the region of En-gedi.

It was while in this vicinity that David met with the unpleasant experience with Nabal. As a reward for his protection from various foes, David was accustomed to receive food and supplies from the shepherds and herdmen. To Nabal's sheep shearing David sent men requesting such things as Nabal could send him; but they were received with churlish treatment, and their report filled David with indignation toward Nabal. Vengeance was at once sworn against the man; but before it could be executed, the wife of the churl came down bearing abundant supplies and offering ample apologies for the treatment her husband had accorded David's men. The supplies and apology were accepted. The woman made a deep impression on David, and after her husband had died from the effects of his debauchery, yielded to David's suit and became his wife.

A GENEROUS FOE.

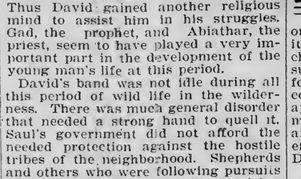

That David never harbored any ill-will toward his king is well shown by the incidents of chapters 24 and 26. In the former incident David had the king fully in his power without the latter suspecting it; but did not lift his hand against him, although urged to do so by his confederates. After the king had started on his way, David went out and cried after him to know why he heeded the words of men who tried to make him believe that David was seeking his life. That such an idea was false was evident from the fact that on that very day when he, David, had had the king in his own hands so that he could have killed him, he did nothing worse than cut off a piece of his garment, as evidence that he had been so near. He firmly avowed that he would do the king no hurt; he called upon the Lord to be witness to his asseveration; his action that day was evidence that his heart was not full of the wickedness that Saul thought was there. Who was David, anyway, that the king should come out to hunt him down? Surely the king was doing a thing very much beneath his dignity! David adroitly suggested that it was not of the king's own motion that he was doing such a thing, but that someone who had the king's confidence was abusing it. This same suggestion was renewed in the incident recorded in the twenty-sixth chapter.

Saul's reply to this first overture of the young fugitive was very profuse and humble. With much show of affection he replied, calling to "my son David," and confessing that David was more righteous than he. But the most surprising part of the language is that which refers to David's future and declares as clearly as Johathan had so recently done that David would surely be king. Had Samuel before his death made known to Saul the truth about his successor? David was destined not only to become king, but the kingdom would become established in his hand, a strange sight it was to see the king who only a moment before had been seeking David's life, all at once heaping blessings upon his head and compelling him to make a covenant that he would not destroy the house of Saul when he had come to the throne!

The incident narrated in the twenty-sixth chapter is very similar to the one just commented upon. The Ziphites tried to deliver David into the hand of his pursuer. It seems that David had not put much confidence in the good will of the king, so he had continued to rely upon his men and his wits for protection. Saul pitched his camp one night by a hill and David was in the near-by woods. At night, taking two trusty men with him, David penetrated to the very heart of the king's camp and took away the king's sword and water cruse. He was tempted to kill his majesty, but refused to do it, saying, Shall I put forth my hand against the Lord's anointed? It was of the Lord to dethrone the king, but no subject might venture to lay hands upon the head of the one whom the Lord had anointed. From the top of an adjacent hill he rallied the captain of Saul's army and inquired of him why he had not taken better precautions to protect the king from assault, displaying the evidences that he had penetrated to the heart of the king's camp. The king answered the call, having recognized the voice of David. The conversation that ensued was much the same as had transpired on the former occasion. Saul was very earnest in his promise not to injure David in the future, and asked him to return to him; but David had learned by bitter experience not to put too much confidence in the shallow promises of his lord, so he contented himself with requesting that someone be sent to carry the king's spear and cruse back to him.

David's plea for fair treatment was just and forcible; yet he went his way as before, not trusting himself in the king's hands. He was generous to his great foe, but tempered his generosity with caution. Six times he was delivered through the providence of God from the power of Saul. At the first Jonathan refused to enter into the conspiracy to kill him, and saved his life. Then Saul hurled a javelin at him, which he easily evaded. His wife let him down through a window and saved him from the next plot of the ging. The spirit of prophecy came upon those next sent to effect his destruction. He was supernaturally warned of the treachery of the men of Weilah and had time to escape the hand of Saul there. Then when Saul was pressing hard upon him in the wilderness, a Philistine invasion called away his pursuer. And now the table seems to be turned and David has opportunity to reveal his magnanimous spirit, how he could be reviled and yet harbor no ill will, even as his greater son loved and prayed for the very people who compassed his death.

HAS FILLED FORTY TRUNKS

Lady From Orient Finds Joy In Department Store.

New York, Aug. 28.—Came she out of the Land of the Dragon, the honorable little lady who is the spouse of Li Ching Hso, nephew of the great Li Hung Chang, himself of most honorable station, being the representative in Peru of his gorgeous imperial majesty of the sacred city of Pekin. Now, therefore, for several days to come do they honor the humble and wholly worthless borough of Manhattan, staying at the Hotel Griffou, in West Ninth street.

Oh, but she, the honorable little lady whose name, Li Shu, may be spoken softly like the sweet breath of the flower, does like New York! My, but Mrs. Hso likes it so well she can hardly get over it.

And lest credence to the full should be withheld from this worthy statement, here shall be told the tale of Mrs. Li's forty trunks. In the land of the Dragon, there the women go timidly, pitty-pattying forever under the austere glance of the honorable her husband, or the honorable the relative of her husband.

They just don't know a thing about shopping. There aren't any big department stores in China.

And behold the winsome, dainty, dimpling Mrs. Li, how her soift almond eyes sparkle with the sweet joy of life as she remembers. For she's been shopping. Murmured she with vibrant softness to her honorable husband, and smiles were upon his face, as in English as perfect as the Pyrian spring, he said:

"My little wife says there is nothing on earth so wonderful as the American department stores. She is all wonder and delight. She has bought and bought and bought—there were so many pretty things.

"Indeed, very well do I know the fascination that the department stores have for her. When we arrived in New York we had fifteen trunks. Now we have forty. We had to buy them to hold the things my charming wife bought in the department stores. She has bought gifts for everybody in far off China. But if we do not soon leave New York I will beo bliged to hire a whole freight train to carry away the trunks of my wife.

"As for me, I want to—to—to see the ponies run around the track. I am most curious also to lay a bet. Moreover, if possible, I will see a baseball game. Oh, everything is very wonderful. But my wife merely does she ask to go to the department stores in pursuit of perfect happiness.

"Li Ye Shew, my son, who is 2, is stricken by the American girl. This morning he conducted a desperate flirtation with a charming, golden-haired little girl who started under a big white lace bonnet from her place in her riding chair by the park."

It appears that Li Ye Shew confided to both his honorable parents that he fain would have kissed her of the Occident who was under the white bonnet.

FIRST NAVAL POWER.

Col. Brassey Comments on This Country's Greatness.

Boston, Aug. 28.—Lord Brassy, president of the London chamber of commerce and a recognized authority on naval matters, has arrived from Montreal on his way back to London. In an interview, speaking of the various naval powers, he made the statement that the United States, with their tremendous resources, were undoubtedly the first naval power in the world.

He said it was not in the present number of their ships, but in their resources, for, if the United States so desired, they could outdo any nation in the world in the matter of naval appropriations and not feel it, as would the others, not excepting England.

He predicted, owing to present conditions, at least, a partial disarmament of the continent—in France, Germany and Russia. He also predicted a bright future for Ireland, owing to the abolition of the dual ownership in land, and said this would gradually lead to important measures for self-government in that country.

"Its only a question of time," he said, "raising the fleet of the United States to any degree. Potentially, the United States is incomparably the greatest naval power in the world. If it came to a question of competition you have greater resources than we have."

BETRAYED BY DAVITT.

Murderer Who Escaped From Prison Is Recaptured.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—Betrayed by an attempted greeting of Michael Davitt in Chicago, only the intricacies of international law are now saving James Lynchehaun from a speedy return to the hardships of a British prison Lychehaun, sentenced for the murder of his landlord in Ireland, escaped from a dungeon of Marysborough prison last September.

Scotland Yard detectives and members of the Royal Irish contabulary searched for him in vain until Michael Davitt came to the United States. When the noted Irishman was in the United States he was approached by the escaped convict in the corridor of the Grand Pacific hotel. Instead of taking his outstretched hand, Davitt denounced Lynchehaun and the man fled in fright from the hotel.

Pinkerton detectives traced him to Indianapolis, Sergeant Andrew Young, of Cork, an Irish constable, had also traced Lynchehaun's wife and son from their Mayo county home to the same city. Monday morning the officers discovered him at his Indianapolis home. He was immediately arrested by a United States deputy marshal and extradition proceedings begun.

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 28.—Edward Norris may not be compelled to spend his remaining years in the almshouse. He celebrated his 105th birthday last week by going "over the hill to the poor house." His case has stirred J. F. Norris, business manager of the Actors' National Protective Alliance of Chicago, who wrote Mayor Rodenbeck, saying that while he does not know that the aged man is a relative of his, he is willing to give him the benefit of the doubt. He offers Norris a good home for the rest of his life. The letter was read to Edward Norris at the almhouse and he shook his head as if undecided what to do.

There is not much consolation for the teetotaller in the case of Mr. Norris. He has drank steadily all his life and enjoys his pipe. He thinks that if he had been deprived of these consolations his life would have been shorn of several of its most blissful years.

LUMBER IN ORIENT

A Chance For Competition By the Pacific Coast Lumbermen.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, Aug. 28.—(Special to the Herald.)—The lumber markets of the Orient and the share which the United States is likely to have in supplying them, is the subject just now of some attention by the Department of Commerce & Labor through its bureau of statistics. The bureau recently received and published reports of American consuls in the Orient which announced the arrival of the first cargo of lumber in the Chinese market by a Russian vessel from Vladivostock. This fact opens the question of future competition for the Oriental market between the American lumber interests on the Pacific coast, on the one hand, and that of the Russians in Siberia and on the Yalu river, on the other. In both cases enormous resources are awaiting development. The American industry of the Pacific coast has the advantage of organization on a large scale and of mechanical equipment unequalled by that of any other field of the world. This is evidenced by the rate of annual production. Unofficial estimates put the annual cut of lumber and shingles of the three Pacific states at four billion six hundred milion feet, of which California supplies eight hundred and sixty million feet; Oregon seven hundred and forty million feet, and Washington two billion two hundred million feet. At this rate it is calculated that the forests of the Pacific coast will be exhausted in forty years.

As it would naturally be expected, the Pacific lumbermen have been rapidly enlarging their area and volume of commercial distribution, both in the foreign and domestic markets. According to figures gathered by the bureau of statistics, the redwood shipments from upper California, mostly to San Francisco and the southern coast, in 1902 amounted to two hundred and sixty million five hundred and ninety-seven thousand six hundred and five feet. In addition to this, the California coast alone in 1902, received six hundred and six million one hundred and two thousand nine hundred and eighty two feet of pine and fur, in 1901, four hundred and three million two hundred and forty-five thousand five hundred and forty feet and in 1900, three hundred and seventy million two hundred and fifty eight thousand nine hunred and thirteen feet. The rate of increase, as will be seen by comparison of these figures, is enormous.

Further north on the coast the trade in lumber has been expanding with corresponding strides. Shipments by water alone at Seattle were five hundred and sixty four million four hundred and seventy two thousand eight hundred and one feet of lumber in 1902 and five hundred and six million nine hundred and sixty-four thousand seven hundred and forty-nine feet in 1901. A movement of almost equal proportions is taking place to points in the interior by rail. In 1902 rail shipments to the interior amounted to five hundred and sixty-two million one hundred and seventy-five thousand feet and in 1901, to three hundred and sixty-four mill on five hundred and thirty thousand feet. The number of shingles sent east of the Missouri river and, in many cases, as far as the lakes, amounted to five billion eighty million six hundred and forty thousand in 1902. and to four billion four hundred and eighty-five million six hundred thousand in 1901. The traffic furnished to railroads in 1901 aggregated fifty-two thousand three hundred and thirty seven cars of lumber and shingles from Seattle alone, and sixty-nine thousand two hundred and thirty-one cars in 1902.

Rail shipments from Tacoma, including both lumber and shingles, were three thousand one hundred and forty-one cars in 1900, four thousand five hundred and twenty cars in 1901 and six thousand and twenty-six cars in 1902.

Portland, Oregon, shows a traffic toward the interior by rail, ranking next to Seattle in importance. In the calendar year 1900, eleven thousand nine hundred and eight-six cars of lumber were shipped from this port, thirteen thousand five hundred and seventeen in 1901 and fifteen thousand eight hundred and seventy-six cars in 1902.

As the above figures indicate, one of the most notworthy facts in connection with the development of the Pacific coast lumber trade is its increasing contribution to the trans-continental tonnage for railroads on the way back from the Pacific coast eastward. The opening of the Mississippi valley to the Pacific coast lumbermen likewise brings the export trade from the coast into closer relations with the demands of the domestic consumer. The consumer in the Mississippi valley is directly interested in the progress of lumbering, both in the northwestern states and in the southern states as main sources of supply. The entire east is chiefly dependent on both of these sources. Consequently all domestic industries and interests, relying on the lumber supply of the future, are concerned with the prospective ability of any foreign competitor to share the foreign market, and thus to affect the rate of domestic output and its ratio to domestic demand.

The relative importance of foreign to domestic demands, so far as the Pacific coast is concerned, is not easily ascertained. There are, however, a few figures bearing on the subject. The principal mills of the state of Washington for 1892 reported that three hundred and eighty-six million one hundred and seventy-two thousand three hundred and eighty-eight feet were sent to coastwise destinations, and one hundred and fifty-three million one hundred and fifteen thousand six hundred and fifty-four feet to foreign destinations. If this ratio holds good for the coast as a whole, it would appear that nearly thirty per cent of the output goes to foreign and seventy per cent to domestic uses.

From present indications the United States has nothing to fear from her rivals in the lumber trade of the Pacific. Ultimately, the Philippine Islands will no doubt contribute materially to the supply. The trade from the Pacific coast of the United States is now in a strong position.

During the fiscal year, 1902, the United States exported one billion four hundred and two million four hundred and ninety-nine thousand feet of lumber and sawn timber, of which two hundred and twenty million eight hundred and forty-seven feet were sent from the Pacific coast. The exports of wood and manufactures thereof, advanced from twenty six million dollars in 1893 to fifty-seven million dollars in 1903; lumber, the largest item, increased in value from nine million dollars in 1893 to twenty-one million dollars in 1903.

Since 1898 the Chinese empire, Hong Kong, British Australasia, Peru and Chili, have, together doubled the value of American lumber imported.

Vendor of Liquor to Indians In Clutches of Law.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Egan—A United States marshal arrived in Flaundreau and arrested a stranger for selling intoxicating liquor to an Indian, named Lovejoy, who resides at Egan. This is not a new practice but the offenders are hard to locate. The marshal took his man and several witnesses to Sioux Falls where they will appear before the United States court.

An interesting case has developed at Trent. Mrs. Dora Husatoe is charged by physicians of practicine medicine and obstetrics unlawfully, or without a regular physician's license. Complaint was made to the state's attorney and application for a warrant demanded, but the state's attorney denied it. He informed her, however, that unless she ceased the practice he could not deny further applications for warrants. It is reported that she has consulted her brother, W. H. Dockstader of Dell Rapids, who is well to do, and that he says he will spend $10,000 if necessary to test the validity of the law.

Aberdeen—Sheriff Cole and Chief Thompson made a capture that is considered important. They became aware that there was a "plant" of stolen hardware near town, and had watched only about half an hour when two men drove up with a horse and buggy and proceeded to load the stuff. The officers made a rush in the dark and caught one man, the other getting away though shot at several times. In the "plant" were found eight new shotguns of fine make, several revolvers, a lot of razors, over 100 pocket knives and other articles. The officers also have the horse and buggy, which has not been claimed and which, it is believed, was also stolen.

Huron—A warrant of arrest has been placed in the hands of Sheriff Kerr for Bert Dawson of Wessington. Dawson is a Christian minister, and has been in the west part of Beadle county for several months, supplying pulpits. He is jolly and companionable, and won numerous friends. He was married on the 16th inst. to Miss Dena M. Johnson. He was to have preached in Wesshington last Sunday, but failed to appear and later it was discovered that he and his wife had departed for new fields, taking with them a span of driving horses and other property upon which a friend held a chattel mortgage.

Sioux Falls—Six Sioux Indians of the Lower Brule reservation, Anthony Blackbird, Charles Long Turkey, Splendid Horn, Paul Councilor, Mitchell Quilt and Samuel High Elk, appeared before Judge Carland and pleaded guilty to the charge of cutting green timber on the reservation. Judge Carland sentenced each of them to a term of sixty days in the Brule county jail at Chamberlain.

Deadwood—The new trial demanded by Mrs. Otto P. Th. Grantz in her damage suit against this city has been denied. Mrs. Grantz sued the city for large damages for a fall alleged to have been received from a defective sidewalk.

Armour—Karl Krull, living ten miles northwest, lost his barn and three horses by fire. A granary and 1000 bushels of wheat were saved. The fire was started by a small boy playing with matches. The loss is $1000. No insurance.

Scotland—Alfred Brown has signed a contract with the postoffice department to erect a solid chalk rock building for a postoffice by Nov. 1. The government has leased the building for five years at an annual rental of $250 a year.

Iona—Recently about thirty cattle and horses have died on the ranges in this neighborhood from a mysterious cause, which has now been discovered to be anthrax.

Lead—John Pjalas, a Finlander, will probably die from the effects of a fall in the Homestake mine. He sustained a fracture of the skull.

Belle Fourche—Peter Miller, a young man, killed himself with a shotgun. He had been jilted by a young lady of Belle Fourche.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Minot—The wrestling event between Gotch and Olson, catch-as-catch-can, in which Gotch agreed to throw the Norwich giant three time in an hour, was easily won by the former in forty-one minutes. Gotch, after the match, issued a challenge to wrestle any man in America, and will put up a forfeit of $1000, except as to Jenkins, of Ohio.

Railway traffic, according to reports reports received here from incoming railroad crews, is badly crippled between here and Havre, owing to numerous wash-outs and the softening of the roadbed on the Great Northern, caused by thirty-six hours of steady rain, which is still in progress.

Grand Forks—The meeting of the bankers of the state was called to order Thursday morning in the United States court room at 10 o'clock. F. W. Cathro was called to the chair temporarily. The address of welcome was made by Tracy R. Banes and was a very pleasing effort. The response was by S. S. Lyons, of Fargo, and was in humorous vein. Committees on permanent organization, by-laws and enrollment were amounted to report at the afternoon session, after which an adjournment was taken. The attendance is large from all parts of the state and a strong organization is promised.

THE STAGE

"Pink Dominoes" was presented at the Mertopolitan last evening and marked the return of the stock company to comedy after a season of melodrama that extended over two weeks or more. The comedy is a pretty one and the large audience was entirely pleased with it. The four principals, Miss Marshall, Miss Carter, Mr. Forbes and Mr. Reynolds, were excellent, all finding congenial roles. The action revolves around the four characters taken by these members of the company and the story is a very entertaining one.

The specialties were excellent.

This play will be given for the remainder of the week and with the usual matinee tomorrow.

Last evening at the Lyceum "An American Hobo" was again presented. This evening a scenic melodramatic production entitled "Over Niagara Falls" will be given.

Tomorrow afternoon and evening, "Down Mobile," one of Lincoln J. Carter's stirring melodramatic productions, will be seen.

AT WEST DULUTH

Three young couples are due to approach the hymeneal altar in West Duluth in the near future, and three names will be added to the list of West Duluth's young matrons.

The first of the weddings will occur Monday morning in St. James' Catholic church, when Miss Emily Emard of West Duluth and Bennett Charles Strongest of St Paul will be united in matrimony.

The bride has conducted a millinery establishment in West Duluth for some time past, and the groom is an employe of the Northern Pacific railroad. They will live in West Duluth after the wedding.

On the following day Miss Blanche Laundre and John McDonald will be married by Father Feehely in St. James' church. The bride has resided in West Duluth since her early childhood and is very well known and popular young lady. Mr. McDonald is also well known in West Duluth, and is a member of the firm of McDonald Bros.

The third wedding will occur on September 23, in the Swedish Lutheran church, when Miss Nanie Alice Olsen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Swen Olsen, and Emil E. Johnson will be united in marriage. Miss Olsen is a member of the Lutheran church choir, and has a host of friends in West Duluth. Mr. Johnson is an estimable young man, and well known in this section of the city.

REMOVAL OF POLES.

Question to Come Before the Commercial Club.

The question of hurrying the removal of the telephone and telegraph poles from Central avenue to make way for the paving, will be taken up at the meeting of the West Duluth Commercial club, at the meeting this evening, if time remains after the discussion of the foundation of a new banking institution, to take the place of the defunct Merchants' bank.

The contract for the paving has been let, and P. McDonnell, the contractor, purposes commencing work in the near future. The poles have been ordered removed to the alley, by the council, and the citizens are anxious that the work shall be commenced at once, in order that work on the street may not be delayed. The poles of the street car company will also be set back even with the sidewalk.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

Patterson, Undertaker. 'Phone 3070.

The Ladies' Auxiliary, A. O. H., Division No. 2, will give a card social in Gilley's hall Friday evening, Aug. 28, for the benefit of the fund for the new St. James church. All are cordially invited.

Otto Ecklund left yesterday for a short outing to Port Arthur and other north shore points.

L. Ranning, an employe of the Merrill & Ring mill will leave tomorrow for California, where he expects to engage in business for himself.

R. L. Mayham will leave tonight for Belle Plaine, Iowa, where he has been offered a responsible position with the Northwestern road.

Children's Shoes at Lauermann's.

Edward Girard, the three-year-old son of Mrs. A. Girard who is the guest of Mrs. Edward Dormedy, caused his parents and the West Duluth police no little anxiety yesterday afternoon, by wandering away from his home. He was finally located after a three hours' search, by Patrolman Butchard, at Grand and Forty-ninth avenues.

The heavy wind of yesterday blew in the front door of the North Star Shoe company, on Central avenue, breaking a large pane of glass.

Miss Gertrude St. Germain has returned from a two weeks' visit with friends at Calumet.

F. E. Green left for Hibbing this morning, where he was called by the serious condition of his father, who was injured in a runaway accident.

There will be two dances in West Duluth on Labor day. The uniform rank of the Modern Woodmen will give a dance in the Wieland & Wade hall, while the Foresters will hold forth in the Great Eastern.

Rev. Stevenson, pastor of the M. E. church at Proctorknott has returned to the city with a bride, who was formerly a resident of New Jersey. A reception will be given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Stevenson this evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William McCullom.

ATTENTION!
CREDITORS OF MERCHANTS' BANK.

Any persons who know themselves to be creditors of the Merchants' Bank, who have not signed the agreement for H. H. Phelps to handle the assets for the benefit of the creditors, are requested to present themselves at the office of Judge Stone, at West Duluth, Saturday, Aug. 29, between 3 p. m. and 9 p. m.

Any creditor who has not had the agreement presented to him for signature is requested to send his present address to Hansen Smith, 223 Manhattan building, Duluth, Minn., at once, as some persons whose names appear on the books of the banks as creditors, have not yet been located.

A BOY SAVES CRAZY WOMAN

Risks His Life By Crawling Along Narrow Ledge.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—While an insane woman barricaded in a room in the Sherman house, was standing at the telephone and ordering an imaginary "Mary" to prepare dinner for her husband, a 14-year-old boy was risking his life to save her from herself.

The woman, Mrs. Emma Hell, of Rockford, Ill., with her husband, Victor Hell, had been a guest at the hotel for several days. On Tuesday evening she became violently insane, and after locking the door of her room went to the window and climbed out on the ledge. Persons in the street and attaches of the hotel feared that she was about to jump to the ground, but if such were her intention she changed her mind.

Re-entering her room, Mrs. Hell went to the telephone, where she gave detailed instructions to the fancied maid. For almost an hour she stood at the 'phone, and while she was so occupied her frantic husband was appealing to the hotel management to reach her before she could throw herself from the window.

Preparations were being made to burst open the heavy oak door when another plan was suggested. A volunteer was called from among the bell boys to climb out of the window of an adoining room and crawl along a narrow ledge to the window of Mrs. Hell's room, through which he could enter and unlock the door.

Edward Frazer, the smaller of the boys, offered to make the attempt and soon was creeping along the ledge, which was only four inches wide. Within the woman could be heard at the telephone still giving orders to "Mary."

The bellboy reached the window safely and started to open it when Mrs. Hell noticed him and ran to stop him, but he threw up the window before she could could reach it. In doing so one foot slipped from the ledge, but he retained his hold on the window sill and drew himself into the room, where he unlocked the door.

Mr. Hell and others rushed in, and Mrs. Hell was then taken to the detention hospital.

The woman created a scene in the county court.

"You are sitting as my judge now," she said to Judge Wheatly, "but I will one day sit as yours."

Mrs. Hell's 4-year-old son died some time ago, and from brooding over his death her mind is thought to have become affected. She was committed to the Elgin asylum.

DIVIDENDS WILL BE SMALLER.

New York, Aug. 28.—Everything indicates that the total industrial dividend disbursements in September will be smaller than for any previous month this year, the declarations thus far announced amounting to $15,457,571. This compares with $17,900,000 in August and $31,283,409 in March, a high water mark for the year.

GOT LICENSE

But Never Asked the Lady to Marry.

Tiffin, Ohio, Aug. 28.—Several days ago Wallace Schorger, of Republic, came to this city and secured a license to marry Mrs. Lulu Ashlum, also of that place. Mrs. Ahlum came here to consult an attorney in regard to the matter.

She states that the first knowledge she had of Schorger's act was gained in the county papers. She also claims that she never promised to marry Schorger, that he never asked her, and that since securing the license he has not even broached the subject to her.

She declares flatly that she will not marry him.

SUIT FOR DAMAGES

For a Breach of Promise to Marry.

Pittsburfg, Pa., Aug. 28.—Pearl M. Ohl, who recently preferred charges of obtaining money under false pretense against James B. Vonspiegel, Ashland avenue, Chicago, has entered suit for $5000 for breach of promise. She alleges Vonspiegel asked her to marry him on Aug. 7, that she accepted two days later, and that the marriage license was secured Aug. 12. Miss Ohl asserts he left Detroit to be back Aug. 18 and marry Aug. 20, and that he was in jail Aug. 22. He is accused of borrowing $3 and a signet ring from his fiancee and failed to return either. Vonspiegel is said to have posed as the president of a mining company. Miss Ohl resigned her position as a school teacher to marry him.

WALLACE SAYS

That the Other Planets Are Not Inhabited.

New York, Aug. 28.—Alfred Russell Wallace, whose treaties on man's place in nature, and an assertion therein that the earth is the center of the entire stellar system, excited so much controversy among scientists in the early part of the year, replies to his critics in the current issue of the Independent. He repeats his belief that the earth is the only inhabited planet. Professor Wallace admits that his former article was written hastily and made "several suggestions and admissions which were of little importance to my general subject, but which laid me open to adverse criticism."

His first article, he adds, has led him into a much deeper study of the whole subject and the conclusions he has reached will be embodied in the forthcoming work.

"Careful study of the whole subject during the preparation of this work," he says, "greatly strengthened the position I took in my first article in that portion devoted to biology, physics, the earth and the solar system especially. I found that such delicate adjustments of physical and chemical conditions were required in the development and maintenance of life as to render in the highest degree that it is improbable they should all be again found combined in any planet; while within the solar system this improbability approaches near, indeed, a certainty."

MARKET IS WEAK

Fails to Advance In Face of Bullish Northwestern News.

Wet Weather Menace to Harvested Grain—Flax Unchanged.

Duluth Board of Trade, Aug. 28.—The wheat market is a surprise. All the news is favorable to an advance and a sharp one and yet the market fails to act upon it. The weather in the Northwest is about as unfavorable as it could be for harvested grain. Every point reports rain and it has continued for several days, being heavier last night than ever at many places. Grain men admit that unless the weather following these rains is favorable the wheat cannot help being damaged. Weather abroad, too, is reported to be none too favorable, poor in England but fairly satisfactory in France. Besides that receipts continue at the low level they have kept for weeks and sales for export are fair. The total worked yesterday was said to be 43 loads. St. Louis reported this morning considerable flour worked. To favor the bears there were predictions of better weather and the statement of the Argentine shipments for the year thus far which showed a total of 56,394,000 bus., against 18,812,000 bushels in the same period last year. The Modern Miller was somewhat bullish, reporting demage by rain to grain not stacked in Kansas and Nebraska.

The Liverpool marked closed ⅛-½d lower, Paris unchanged to ¼c lower and Berlin ¼c lower.

In the Duluth market the December option which has been very strong for a week was weak today, losing 2c while September closed unchanged. In Minneapolis the same was true, the earlier option closing ⅛c off and the later ¼c off. Chicago September was a shade lower and December ⅜-½c lower. New was off ¼c on both. St. Louis was unchaanged for September and a shade lower for December and Kansas City ⅜-½c lower for September and the same for December.

Argentine shipments this week were 480,000 bus., against 1,952,000 bus., last week and 72,000 bus. last year. Primary receipts last week were 815,000 bus., against 972,000 bus. last year. Shipments 190,000 bus., last year 835,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 400,000 bus.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis 329 cars, and at Chicago 144, a total of 483 cars, against 261 last week and 617 last year.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed with a decline of ¾d. In the Chicago market December corn closed ¼c lower and December oats a shade higher. Primary receipts of corn were 375,000 bus. last year 174,000 bus. Shipments 220,000 bus. last year 254,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 18,316 bus. Argentine shipments this week were 3,528,000 bus. against 2,912,000 bus last week and 1,112,000 bus last year.

Trading in wheat was active on the Duluth board. September opened ¼c up at 83¼c sold at 83¾c at 9:30, and sold off to 83¼c at 9:45. It then bulged again to 83½c at 10:45 and fell off to 83¼c at 10:25. It held fairly steady around that point for some time and then fell off again toward the close, which was at 82¾c, yesterday's closing price. December opened ⅜c up at 81¼c, sold at 81⅜c and fell to 80⅜c, closing there ½c below yesterday.

Cash prices continued at 5c over September for old No. 1 northern, 2c over for new on track, and September price for new to arrive. Sales were 25,000 bus.

Flax was dull and steady, closing unchanged on all options except November, which advanced ¼c. Argentine shipments of flax this week were 256,000 bus, against 216,000 bus last week and none last year.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—Old No. 1 hard, in store, 87¾c; No. 1 northern, 87¾c; new, in arrive, No. 1 hard 83¾c; No. 1 northern, 82¾c; No. 2 northern, 80¾c; new, on track, No. 1 northern, 84¾c; No. 2 northern, 82¾c; Macaroni, No. 1, 66c; No. 2, 55c; September, 82¾c; December, 80¾c; May, 83¾c. Flax, in store, $1.00½; on track, $1.01½; to arrive, $1.00½; September, $1.00⅛; October, $1.00¾; November, $1.01¼; December, $1.01¼; May, $1.05. Oats, on track, 35½c; to arrive, 35½c; to arrive in September, 35¼c. Rye on track, 52c; to arrive, 52c; to arrive in September, 52c. Barley, 35@57c.

Cars inspected—Wheat, 53; last year, 33; oats, 2; rye, 10; barley, 37; flax, 9; last year, 3.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Futures Opened Unchanged and Trading Light.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—Cables were depressing factors, but wet weather was the predominating influence and wheat futures opened unchanged to ¼c up with September at 81⅛@81¾c and December 82¾c. Trade was largely local, of light volume, and prices receded somewhat after a strong start, holding a little lower than the opening. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 338 cars, which with local receipts of 144 cars, 18 of contract grade, made total receipts for the three points of 482 cars, against 261 last week and 617 a year ago.

On buying by elevator interests influenced by relatively higher markets in the Northwest, September touched 81¾c, and December sold up ⅛c, but the strength did not hold and prices reacted to 80¾c for September, the close being a shade under yesterday at 81@1⅛c, while December closed weak at the bottom, 82⅛. ⅜@½c lower.

Corn opened about steady with September unchanged to ⅛c lower at 50⅝@51c and December a shade higher to a shade lower at 51¼@¾c. Warmer weather was reported from the corn belt and the rain lost part of its bull strength, prices declining early to ⅜c. Receipts 484 cars, 71 of contract.

Prices held steady at a small decline closing ⅛@¼c lower for September at, 50⅜@⅞c, and with December down ½c at 50¾@¾c.

Oats opened a little easier, September starting at 34⅜c and December at 26¼c. A fair demand from commission houses soon forced the former to 35c and the latter held about steady at the opening. Receipts 157 cars.

A strong hog market caused a firm opening in provisions, which ranged 2½@15c higher, September quotations being as follows: Pork, $12.55; lard $7.27½@7.40, and ribs $7.02½@7.05. Buying and selling were scattered.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Chicago Record-Herald: There have been very large engagements of ocean freight for flour this week. One line, which has about one-third of the ocean tonnage, has booked 200,000 sacks of flour within three days. If the other lines have contracted in proportion the flour engagements have aggregated about 600,000 sacks. The business is not helping the ocean rate any, however, Ireland has been doing the flour buying late.

Chicago Record-Herald: "I have been in business at St. Louis for twenty-nine years, but it is the first time in my experience the millers there are going to store for their wheat supplies in August," said C. H. Spencer. "We have evidently had our run of wheat at St. Louis. There were only 27 cars there today, and one dealer, who distributes wheat to millers through the South, wanted twenty of them. The millers all through Missouri and southern Illinois have been exerting themselves from the beginning of harvest to secure supplies. The soft winter wheat as is left now has been either purchased by local users or will be marketed by farmers very slowly.

"I do not believe consumption this year would be appreciably affected by an advance in the wheat price to $1. I am looking for dollar wheat. The foreigners are not buying much. But if they should start the question is where they would secure their supplies. The whole visible in this county is about the consumption of thirteen days. There has been no accumulation so far since harvest, and it does not seem possible we will have oppressive stocks at any time this year. The advances as they come will be no consumptive demand, and in spite of the speculator who seems incredulous of the price."

"Every other man in wheat is afraid the northwestern wheat movement will tip him over," says F. P. Frazier. "Perhaps the movement, when it starts, will for a time give us lower prices. But I believe the price will start up about the time the spring wheat movement gets fairly under way, and when those who want wheat can get it. The present cash premium at Minneapolis is ridiculous, and buyers are waiting for it to disappear. The foreign crop situation is unquestionably bad."

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market is unchanged to a shade easier. There is no change in the cash situation. Receipts small and demand everywhere good. The speculator both here and in Europe seems to be governed by the weather. He is afraid to hold wheat for fear the sun will shine. In the meantime great damage has undoubtedly been done both in Europe and in this country. The flour demand seems an urgent one. There is nothing that we can see that indicates any change in the conditions in the immediate future. We still advice buying wheat on the breaks and would ust as soon have the nearby options as the deferred futures.

Corn—The market was a little easier and dull. Further wet weather through the corn belt and slight lowering of temperatures were not considered important. Traders are still waiting for something important in the development of the crop situation. In the meaantime it is simply a scalping market. Nothing in the cash situation to materially change prices.

Oats—The market is irregular and there seems squads whiech maintain the prices of nearby futures, while the large speculative holders will let go moderately of their lines. We still feel that oats wil sypathize mainly with the changes that take place in the price of corn.

Modern Miller: Heavy rains in Kansas and Nebraska have inflicted serious damage to wheat where not stacked, the greatest to the Nebraska crop. No loss in quantity but a decided deterioration of the grade. Somewhat larger offerings of hard winter wheat, but of soft winter are still extremely small. Preparations for the next crop are progressing. In the Southern regions the crop is seeded and most of it up.

A Hamburg cable says: "Although the German crop looked splendid some five or six weeks ago, we have since that time had such enormous quantities of rain that instead of favorable, the crop now looks very unfavorable and higher prices may be looked for." Argentine cables say the estimated increase of acreage is 20 per cent, and the early planted are as well advanced.

Broomhall cables: Lower price for wheat is due to bright weather in United Kingdom and France. Argentine crop news very favorable. United Kingdom crop estimated 10,000,000 less than last year when it was 60,000,000.

Chicago: The failure of the wheat to respond to the weather in the Northwest seems due to the fact that the crowd here has all the wheat it can handle and is getting outside help. The foreign news has been bearish this morning. This mood is influenced some by the prediction of better weather for the Dakotas.

APATHY IN STOCKS

Dullness Prevailed During Greater Part of the Session.

Prices Sagged Towards the Closing, Which Was Heavy.

New York, Aug. 28.—Opening dealings in stocks showed no changes from recent conditions. Only a few securities were dealt in at all and the price changes were narrow and irregular. Otherwise there was no change in exces of half a point.

Several of the leading stocks were bid up and the room traders took hold of the general list. Union Pacific and Copper were the leaders with gains of a point each. Rubber Goods, preferred, and Anaconda rose 2¼. Rubber Goods and Locality, preferred, 2; Wabash, preferred, Consolidated Gas and Sugar, preferred, 1¼, and Leather, preferred, 1. Republic Steel, preferred, declined a point, but made a full recovery later. Northern Central sold at 190, compared with 246, the previous sale on Sept. 25, 1902.

The market fell back into an apathetic condition, and only a few specialties moved perceptibly. Consolidated Gas rose 5½, Anaconda 3½, General Electric 1½ and Evansville & Terre Haute 1¼. Des Moines & Fort Dodge lost 1¾ and Canada Southern a point. Bonds were irregular at noon.

Buying orders were more plentiful after 12 o'clock and the demand was much better for the grain carrying stocks. St. Paul, Atchison and Southern Pacific improved a point or over. Union Pacific and Amalgamated increased their earlier rise, the latter 2 points and Reading 3 points on covering of the air and an elimination of weak accounts both long and short, with the resultant return of the speculation to something like normal. The factors to be reckoned with the coming month are cotton, corn and John D. If we knew what John D. was doing we could afford to ignore the crops and everything else. The market is ripe to advance smartly, but if John D. wants lower prices he can put them down almost as easily as he can put them up. The oracles and traders generally are bearish, subject to rallies.

New York to Coe Commission Co.: London was the chief buyer of Anaconda this morning and bought sparingly of other stocks, about 500 shares will cover the entire business. The principal reason given for the strength of prices was the better copper outlook taken as indication that the Standard Oil interests were better disposed toward the market. It is surmised that Harris & Gates have tried to depress the market. They have been big sellers of Atchison, St. Paul and Erie and continued to offer the realty stocks.

F. M. Dick to Paine, Webber & Co.: Stocks have been more active and decidedly stronger than for some time past. Toward the close reactionary fluctuations showed. There was much discussion of the treasury's relief plan which in spite of its improbability influenced sentiment. Many bullish rumors were in circulation but few of these were worthy of consideration. The trading was largely professional. Indications point to a fairly good bank statement.

Waldorf to Coe Commission company: Observant brokers say that even the absence of absent operators, who were at the yacht races, hardly explained today's remarkable dullness at the stock exchange, which they ascribe to the general indisposition to speculate. Neither encouraging crop reports nor good earnings have any influence at the moment, while the prevailing stagnation is an incentive which spurs speculators for the decline to renewed effort. Yet it is remarked that long stocks do not come out in quantities however. The important interests are said to be buying Missouri Pacific, Atchison and ther grangers on the scale down, notwithstanding the strength of wheat and corn, which they attribute to the prospect of an excellent demand rather than a shortage in yield.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market is firm and working higher. There is the same absence from pressure of long stocks which has been apparent for some weeks past. The only change is that the little increase in the desire to buy. As we see conditions the secretary of the treasury will hardly be called upon to help out the money market. Conditions everywhere are on a solid basis and a demand on the New York banks this fall are likely to be less than ever before. We still feel that the conditions of a year ago are now reversed and that stocks will gradually work higher.

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: Business continues at a standstill. It is doubtful if there has been a smaller marginal long interest since the summer of 1896. The bears are likewise not doing much. Out of the violent movement of two and three weeks ago has come a clearing of the air and an elimination of weak accounts both long and short, with the resultant return of the speculation to something like normal. The factors to be reckoned with the coming month are cotton, corn and John D. If we knew what John D. was doing we could afford to ignore the crops and everything else. The market is ripe to advance smartly, but if John D. wants lower prices he can put them down almost as easily as he can put them up. MUNSEY BECOMES Sole Owner of the New York News.

New York, Aug. 28.—On application of counsel for Frank A. Munsey, Justice Davis in the supreme court signed an order vacating the temporary injunction obtained by Col. W. Brown, restraining Munsey from selling the New York Daily News at auction. At the same time, Justice Davis signed an order discontinuing Col. Brown's suit. When asked what these orders meant, Attorney Charles E. Russmore, who represented Mr. Munsey, said: "Mr. Munsey has acquired Col. Brown's interest in the Daily News. He said that Munsey would continue to publish the paper. By purchasing the 140 shares of stock of the Daily News Mr. Munsey becomes the sole owner of the plant.

MODERN FAGIN

Teaching Boys To Pick Pockets In Chicago.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—William Saunders, colored, who has been likened by the police to Fagin, the criminal of fiction, was arrested yesterday, the police say, while instructing a class of young men, all of whom were white, in the art of picking pockets. Besides Saunders, fourteen of his alleged students were arrested and locked up at the Des Plaines street police station. Of the fifteen men arrested it is said that an even dozen have served one or more terms in the penitentiary or the Pontiac reformatory. For several months various thefts and petty robberies, besides more serious crimes, have been traced to the vicinity of Aberdeen and Van Buren streets. Yesterday morning Detective McDonnell was informed that if the house at Aberdeen and Van Buren streets should be raided, not only the leading criminal but many of his students could be arrested.

The five detectives who have been working on the case went to the house. The place was surrounded, but when McDonnell and Barry entered it by the front door the house was deserted. Going to a barn in the rear of the house Saunders and fourteen boys were found.

"I had a running, itching sore on my leg. Suffered tortures. Dean's Ointment took away the burning and itching instantly and quickly effected permanent cure." C. W. Lenhart, Bowling Green, O.

IN MARINE CIRCLES

Past Twenty-four Hours Has Been Unusually Nasty Weather.

Remarkable Loading Record Made By Great Northern Ore Dock.

Tugmen agree that last night was one of the "dirtiest" nights seen at the local port in many months.

The wind was blowing a gale, and the rain was falling in torrents. The demands on the tugmen were greater than in ordinary weather, and the men put in a night of hardship.

No serious accidents have yet been reported on account of the storm, although several vessels parted their tow lines, and had narrow escapes from collisions with docks and other obstructions.

Sailboats and other small craft in the harbor suffered rather severely on account of the weather, however.

A small gasoline yacht, belonging to Prescott Wyman, which was tied up in the vicinity of the pavilion at Park Point, was torn from its moorings and drifted over to the Superior shore, where it beached. It was found this morning by the owner. The damage was not great, as the boat ran ashore on a sandy beach.

A rumor was current among vessemen this morning that a boat had gone on the north shore. It was attributed to the captain of one of the boats that came in this morning, but no confirmation of the rumor could be obtained nor did any of the vesselmen believe it.

As a matter of fact, the storm did not seem to extend very far down the lake. Most of the boats arriving last night and this morning did not run into the storm until about 6 o'clock last evening, notwithstanding the fact that it raged here all day.

Several sailboats, which were tied up on the harbor front, also dragged their anchors, and several drifted a considerable distance from their moorings, although no serious damage is reported.

Vessels are still detained in the harbor on account of the weather, and the departures during the past thirty-six hours have been very light.

The Huronic arrived this morning from Sarnia with a large load of freight and a long passenger list. The passengers report a very stormy trip up the lakes, and the percentage of seasick persons as very large.

The weather man promises decreasing winds tonight and tomorrow, however, and the vessels that are loaded in the harbor will be able to get away.

MAKES GREAT RECORD.

Great Northern Dock Makes Great Time Loading Ore.

The record for fast loading of iron ore has been broken and so signally that it seems almost incerdible to believe that the time made was possible.

This morning the Great Northern railroad dock at Allouez bay put 5376 gross tons of ore into the steamer James H. Hoyt in exactly thirty and one-half minutes.

In that remarkably short space of time twenty-four men put that great amount of ore in the boat and had the steamer ready for fastening down the hatches and proceeding on her way.

It is believed that at no place on the lakes has this wonderful record been approached.

Merrill Taken In Custody For Employes' Wages.

The tug J. B. Merrill of the Independent Towing company was attached this morning by United States Deputy Marshal J. G. Mallory.

The tug was libeled in the United States district court by Albert Ceal, a former employe of the company.

Mr. Ceal was employed on the Merrill under Capt. William Jones. He claims the sum of $324.18 to be due him, in payment for his services as engineer on the tug.

He claims to have been employed for 87 days during the spring and early summer, on the tug, at a salary of $116.29 per month, making a total of $337.23. He claims to have received but $13.05 in wages during that time, leaving a balance to his account of $324.18.

For this sum he asks judgment from the court.

The marshal took possession of the tug this morning, to guarantee the payment of the account, should the case be decided in favor of the plaintiff. It is likely that the company will furnish bonds for the amount, and the tug will be given back into their possession.

The Merrill is one of three tugs operated by the company, the other two being the Dowling and the Carpenter. She is a vessel of 17 tons, 54 feet in length, 13 feet in beam and 6 feet in depth.

TRADE IMPROVES SLIGHTLY.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The grain trade was so far improved today, compared with yesterday, that a shipper could be found now and then who said he might want a vessel before the day was over. Rates were nominally unchanged at 1 cent.

IMPROVEMENT IN LUMBER.

Cleveland, Aug. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Brokers, who give attention to lumber, think they see a little improvement ahead on account of an increased inquiry for vessels from the Georgian bay district. They have reports of very large quantities of lumber sold and piled on the docks at the head of Lake Superior, but are lacking in explanations as to why it is not moving. There is no change in coal or ore.

THE BUCKLEY STRANDED.

Sault Ste. Marie, Aug. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The steamer Edward Buckyley, bound down with cedar, stranded at the foot of the dike. Tugs have gone to her assistance.

VESSELS SHELTERED.

Detour, Aug. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—A northeast gale prevails on Lake Huron today. Sheltered here are the Sheriffs, Mowatt, Adella Shores and Schoolcraft and barges.

FORM TEAM HERE

Third Regiment Crack Shots Will Meet In Duluth.

State Team Will Shoot In Washburn Interstate Trophy.

Crack shots of the Third infantry will come to Duluth next week to compete for places on the regimental rifle team.

From the regimental teams a state team will be selected which will endeavor to win back the Washburn trophy, now held by the National guard of Illinois.

The best shots of Illinois, Minnesota, Iowa, Michigan and possibly Indiana will participate in the competition for the Washburn trophy, and the Duluth shoot next week will be in the nature of a preliminary for the Third regiment men aspiring to represent Minnesota in this important event.

The shooting will begin on Tuesday and continue for four days, the contesting guardsmen being encamped near the local rifle range at Thirteentn avenue West and Thirteenth street

It is estimated that at least twenty-five distinguished marksmen will be here, including all the men that made high scores during the range work at Lake City several months ago.

Duluth will be represented by Maj. F. E. Resche and Lieut. Whitaker, of Company A; Corp. Carl Anderson, of Company C; Musician Simpson, of the regimental band; and Sergeant Schali, of Company A.

Local guardsmen are anxious to have good weather during the four days practice shooting and say they are confident of landing several Third men on the state team.

The withdrawal of Wisconsin from the Interstate shoot for the Washburn trophy is being discussed with considerable spirit by the local guardsmen. Wisconsin is ostensibly not shooting "because the rules governing the contest are absolute" but the Duluth guardsmen say there must be some other reason as the rules are sufficiently modern for the other states.

Through to California Without Change of Cars.

The Minneapolis & St. Louis railroad will operate two weekly tourist car lines to California this season.

VIA THE "SCENIC LINE."

The first car will leave St. Paul, Thursday, Sept. 10th, at 8:00 p. m., continuing each Thursday thereafter, and will run via Omaha, Denver, "The Scenic Route," through Colorado, Ogden, Salt Lake City and Southern Pacific, arriving San Francisco, 4:25 p. m. following Monday, and Los Angeles, 1:00 p. m. Tuesday.

VIA THE "SANTA FE ROUTE."

The second car will leave St. Paul, Wednesday, Oct. 21st. Train No. 2 at 9:00 a. m., continuing each Wednesday thereafter, and will run via M. & St. L., Iowa Central, Wabash to Kansas City; thence the popular Santa Fe system, through New Mexico and Arizona, arriving Los Angeles, 8:00 a. m. following Sunday.

The rate for double lower berth through to the coast is $6.00 from St. Paul and Minneapolis. For full information as to rates and berth reservations, apply to agents, or address A. B. CUTTS, G. P. & T. A., Minneapolis, Minn.

Home Visitors' Excursions.

"The North-Western Line" will sell "Home Visitors" excursion tickets, Sept. 1st, 8th and 15th, and October 6th, to points in Indiana and Ohio, at one and one-third fare for the round trip. Tickets good for return passage 30 days from date of sale. For further information, call at 405 West Superior Street.

TENACIOUS HUSBAND

Rounds Up His Erring Wife and Man She Eloped With.

He Hung to the Trail For a Year and a Half.

After a year and a half of strenuous endeavor, Frank Trask, a Ferndale farmer, has at last located and caused the arrest of his eloping wife and Thomas Sly.

Mrs. Trask was arraigned in the municipal court late yesterday and bound over to the grand jury, the bail being fixed at $250. Sly is also in jail awaiting the meeting of the grand jury.

Mrs. Trask and her husband lived happily on a farm near Verndale in Wadena county for many years and have several children. Thomas Sly dropped in on the scene of domestic happiness about two years ago and started something doing around Mrs. Trask's heart.

Finally she left her home, husband and children and eloped with Sly. They were traced to Dakota but immediately left the town in which they were discovered. The husband continued searching for his wife and finally heard of them in a little Wisconsin town. When he reached there they were gone and nothing more was heard of them until a few weeks ago, when persons that knew Mrs. Trask discovered them living at Hibbing as Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sly.

The husband went to Hibbing, secured the arrest of Sly. The wife, escaped and went back to Verndale. She was arrested there Wednesday and brought to this city yesterday. The husband has turned his farm over to a brother at Verndale and is staying in this part of the state for the purpose of prosecuting Sly and his former wife.

SORRY FOR HIS FOLLY.

"Welcher" Says He Deliberately Plunged on Races.

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 28.—The young man who welched on the bookmakers last week for something like $35,000 has sent a letter to a wealthy relative of his in a western city in which he discourses at length on the cause and effect of his plunging and his future plans. A copy of this letter was seen here. In part it reads:

"The stories that you have seen in the papers regarding my overplay are true. I regret the publicity more than I can tell you, and it is needless to say I regret the predicament in which I find myself. I played beyond my means, and hoped to recoup by one last big plunge. The last effort, of course, failed, and I was landed high and dry. I cannot plead insanity, because I was thoroughly well aware of what I was doing. I thought at first of committing suicide, but I was restrained from so rash an act by the thought of the added disgrace to the family name.

"I am going from here to Paris and from there, I think, to South Africa, In another land I hope to regain what I have lost, and if I do I shall pay you all the money you have lost through me, and I shall pay every one else I owe. This is the best assurance I can make at present."

Although this letter was sent several days ago and the young man was reported to have sailed in the Cedric last Friday, it was reported tonight that the welcher is ill in bed in his lodgings in New York.

LITHOGRAPH OF ROOSEVELT.

Berlin, Aug. 28.—Emperor William met Hans Feichner, the court portrait painter, some days ago and asked him to make a lithograph drawing of President Roosevelt, Feichner's lithograph of the emperor having been most widely circulated in Germany. Feichner did so, and showed the result to the emperor, who had two copies struck off. One of these will be sent to Mr. Roosevelt. The emperor kept the other one for himself. No more copies will be taken from the stone.

SIR THOMAS ADMITS

That Reliance Is Much Better Boat Than Shamrock.

Says American Development and Brains Have Britons Beaten.

New York, Aug. 28.—Sir Thomas Lipton, aboard the Erin, declared today in an interview that he would never challenge again for the America's cup until a man had been found in England who equaled Nat Herreshoff in yacht building. The baronet admitted his disappointment at his failure, and frankly said that he had no hope of winning even a single race. He said:

"American brains and development have us beaten. If the day ever comes when England produces a Herreshoff, then I will challenge for the cup again. It will not be until then. It is unpleasant to be compelled to admit it, but the brains in boat-building are on this side of the water. Herreshoff is a wizard. His work is wonderful. None can have admired the Reliance more than I have. She is the best boat by all odds and has won on strict merit.

"I am a most disappointed man. My hopes were high when I left home, for I surely believed we would carry back the cup.

"Yesterday's fluke only prolonged the agony for me. I do not want to win on any slips, and I regretted the Reliance's failure to get over the line as much as anyone could."

Sir Thomas was asked why it was that Shamrock III was not given more sail area. He replied that he trusted everything regarding construction and design to the best of England's talent. He complimented Capt. Barr, and said that he had no fault to find with the way in which Shamrock had been handled.

"I hope," he said, "that we will get a good 25-knot breeze and a heavy sea tomorrow. Then we will have had all the chances on the calendar to try out Shamrock's qualities."

The baronet praised the hospitality and generosity of Americans, and expressed the belief that many of them wanted to see him take the cup.

"They would push Shamrock over the line ahead if they could, I believe."

ASKS PHYSICIANS

To Put Crippled Son Out of Misery.

St. Louis, Aug. 28.—"Give the boy carbolic acid and put him out of his misery," was the prayer of the father of little Joseph Hammer to the physicians operating upon the youth, who had been run over by an Iron Mountain train. The boy is but 14 and his arm was taken off at the shoulder and his leg a few inches below the body. Should he survive his injuries he will be a hopeless cripple, a burden to himself and friends. He cannot wear an artificial leg, as there is nothing to which it can be attached, nor can be hold a crutch under the stump of his arm. As both the lost arm and the leg are on the right side, this makes his case even the more pitiable.

EXPLORATORY WORK

Has Been Started on the Old Cliff Mine.

Houghton, Mich., Aug. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Exploratory work has been started at the old Cliff mine in Keweenaw county, which has been idle since 1884. It was among the most famous producers of the Lake district and was developed on a fissure vein. During its life it earned $2,407,620. It was noted for its mass copper, one piece taken out in 1854 measuring twenty by eighty feet. The developments so far indicate it carries the Kearsarge lode, but values are speculative. The mine is also rich in silver. It is now in the hands of the Bigelow syndicate.

SHOWING IS POOR

Few Teachers Passing the State and County Examination.

Only Twenty-one Out of Sixty-seven Go Through.

The result of the recent state and county examinations for teachers' certificates held in Duluth was appalling.

It was probably also heartbreaking to some of the teachers.

Sixty-seven young men and women took the examinations, and only twenty-one, or less than 30 per cent succeeded in reaching the required percentages.

Many of those that failed have been teaching. Some are under contract to begin teaching next Monday, when the country schools open, while others have already begun in schools that opened earlier than others. These will have to drop their work, for they cannot teach under the law. Those that are under contract to teach and have failed in their examinations must throw up their contracts.

Practically all that applied for second grade certificates failed altogether, while some that applied for first grade certificates got only second grade certificates.

Twenty-one teachers received state certificates of the first and second grades. This did not supply the demand, so County Superintendent Park was compelled to issue permits to ten others who failed to pass entitling them to teach for limited terms. These permits are simply makeshifts, to keep the schools running. They are generally short-lived, running for five or six months, though the holders will have chances at the next examinations to make good before they are dropped.

This is the worst showing ever made in this county, and it is doubtful if worse results have attended examinations in any county of the state. Some times the percentage of successes in this county has run as high as 89, against less than 33 1-3 this time.

Some of the applicants complain that the examinations were unduly trying. Another reason for the large number of failures is that there was no summer school for teachers in which they could brush up their knowledge during the summer. Over-confidence in their powers is responsible for the failure of some.

The list of teachers that received certificates and permits is as follows:

Sara Beattie, Carlton; William Gormley, Elizabeth Bagnell, Irene Bagnell, Jennie Callahan, Superior; Frances L. Parmalee, Mattie Logan, Virginia; Mary McHolland, Two Harbors; Harriet Dennis, Ely; Mary Foster, Frances Zygmanski, Joseph A. Sun, Rose A. Sullivan, Alvina Shaligren, Mabel Reid, Anna S. Larson, Mary Maleska, W. G. Massingham, Alice G. Webster, Jennie Westaway, Mamie Tibbetts, Nettie Trolander, Frances T. Pineo, Alba Davis, Fred R. Huntoon, Johanna Johnson, Judith Anderson, Marion K. Bain, Rosa Grettum, Dorcas McGann, Gladys Shaw.

LAWYERS ELECT NEW OFFICERS

Establishment of Court of Patent Appeals Recommended.

Hot Springs, Va., Aug. 28.—At the morning session of the American Bar association today, the following officers were elected: James Hagerman, Missouri, president; John Hinckley, Maryland, secretary; Fred F. Waldhams, New York, treasurer. New members of the executive committee are: Francis Rowe, Philadelphia; P. W. Meldrim, Georgia; Platt Rogers, Colorado; M. F. Dickinson, Massachusetts; Theodore S. Barnett, Virginia; W. P. Breen, Indiana, and Everett P. Wheeler, of New York, chairman of the committee on international arbitration which deals chiefly with the award made by the arbitration of the Pius fund. The committee on law reporting and digesting reported the following resolution:

"Resolved, that in the opinion of the association, it is important that the rapid increase in number and volume of reported cases in the United States should be checked. That it is not desirable that opinions should be published which discuss merely questions of fact, or which reaffirm without modification some obviously well settled principles of law. That the judges should consider and decide which of the opinions are not for publication having in view the true purpose of reporting and the rapid increase of our reports and that the reports should respect this decision and use further discretion of their own in omitting cases of no value in the illustration or development of legal principles."

The resolution was lost by a decided vote.

The report of the committee on patent, trademark and copyright law recommended the establishment of a court of patent appeals by congres for the determination of patent, trademark and copyright cases having jurisdiction of all appeals and writs of error in those cases, its decisions to be final, subject only to such power of review by the supreme court as shall be necessary to preserve the jurisdiction vested in that court by the constitution. The draft of a bill for the creation of the court accompanied the report. The bill provides for a court of seven judges, the chief justice to be appointed by the president from among the circuit judges. The chief justice of the supreme court of appeals to designate the other six from among the judges of the United States circuit courts. The chief justice of the court is to receive a salary of $12,000 a year and associate judges $11,800 a year.

The proposition occasioned considerable debate.

SERIOUS CHARGE

Brought Against Theodore Bisonnette at Houghton.

Houghton, Mich., Aug. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Theodore Bissonnette, of the Lamaraeux-Osceola mills, has been remanded to jail in $1000 bail, charged with an unnatural crime. Alice Prince, his 12-year-old stepdaughter, is the complainant. Bissonette says he drove the girl a way from home because of her immoral conduct, and she takes this means of shifting the blame for her misdeeds.

Unpaid For Goods.

Two former merchants of Hurley were taken in custody by the local police this afternoon at the request of the Hurley authorities. They are accused of larceny, but the men claim that they simply brought unpaid goods to Duluth after failing in the tailoring business at Hurley. They are Mayer Polinsky and Julius Albert. Yesterday they called at the Central police station to try to rent an upstairs room for a tailor shop, not realizing that it was a police station until they got inside.

STORM AT SANDY HOOK.

New York, Aug. 28—A driving rainstorm from east by south swept across Sandy Hook this morning and increased in violence as the day advanced. There was no danger to the racers, however, for although the storm was bad outside the Hook, the bay was quite calm owing to the direction of the wind. There was absolutely nothing being done, the crews and owners alike keeping in comfortable quarters.

VARDAM NOMINATED.

Jackson, Mis., Aug. 28.—There seems to be no doubt left now of the nomination of James K. Vardam in the primary election of yesterday as the Democratic candidate for governor of the state. Partisans of Judge Critz are conceding the election of Vandam and partisans of the latter candidate are claiming 10,000 majority.

Two Hundred Brave the Weather and Go to Hibbing.

Third Regiment Band Taken Along—Two Harbors People Go.

The northeaster did not deter a lot of brave people from turning out to take the special train to Hibbing this morning on the Commercial club's excursion to the Hibbing tenth anniversary and carnival, now in full blast in that lively village on the Western Mesaba. It was cloudy and cold and windy, but a couple of hundred Duluthians, headed by the Third Regiment band, were on board when the train pulled out of the Union station, bound for Hibbing.

Long-distance telephone messages from Hibbing this morning were to the effect that the weather was not so terribly bad up there, and that it was a decided improvement over that in Duluth. A special car came on from Two Harbors, bringing the baseball club of that city and a party of residents of the village on Agate bay.

Reports from Hibbing today were that the carnival was a great success, and that the people of Hibbing were laying themselves out to give their visitors a good time.

DEGREE OF HONOR

Interesting Convention of Order Held In Duluth.

The Degree of Honor last Tuesday held its annual convention at the head of the lakes, Progress lodge, No. 6, being the entertainer. The address of welcome by Miss J. Grover was very ably rendered, and several papers and topics were thoroughly discussed. Speeches and addresses were made by the grand lodge officers, and Grand Master Workman P. H. White. Supper was served to all visiting members, and ice cream and cake was served in the evening.

A boulevard drive was enjoyed Wednesday afternoon by the ladies. Those composing the party were: Mrs. A. Nelson, of Morris, grand chief of honor; Mrs. Frances Buell Olsen, St. Paul, grand recorder; Mrs. L. Purdy, Duluth, grand chief of ceremonies; Mrs. L. Schroeder, St. Paul, deputy grand chief of honor; Mrs. J. Stewart, St. Paul; Mrs. J. Johnston, St. Paul; Mrs. E. Butchart, chief of honor, Progress lodge, No. 6; Mrs. F. Ayers, Progress lodge.

ORDER FOR HEARING APPLICATION FOR APPOINTMENT OF ADMINISTRATOR.—
State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis —ss. In Probate Court, Special Term, Aug. 14, 1903.
In the Matter of the Estate of Emma Haglin, deceased:
On receiving and filing the petition of Charles L. Haglin, of the County of St. Louis representing, among other things, that Emma Haglin, late of the County of St. Louis in the State of Minnesota, on the 13th day of May A. D., 1902, at the County of St. Louis died intestate, and being an inhabitant of this County at the time of her death, leaving goods, chattels, and estate within this County, and that the said petitioner is the husband of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to Charles L. Haglin granted;
It is ordered, that said petition be heard before said Court on Monday the 14th day of September A. D., 1903, at ten o'clock A. M., at the Probate office, in the Court House in the City of Duluth, in said County.
Ordered further, that notice hereof be given to the heirs of said deceased and to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Duluth Evening Herald, a daily newspaper printed and published at Duluth, in said County.
Dated at Duluth, Minnesota, the 14th day of August, A. D. 1903.
By the Court,
J. B. MIDDLECOFF,
Judge of Probate.

ORDER TO EXAMINE ACCOUNTS, ETC.—
State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis —ss. In Probate Court, Special Term, August 12, 1903.
In the matter of the estate of Frank L. Thayer, deceased:
On reading and filing the petition of Nora P. Thayer, executrix of the estate of Frank L. Thayer, deceased, representing, among other things, that she has fully administered said estate, and praying that a time and place be fixed for examining, settling and allowing the final account of her administration, and for the assignment of the residue of said estate to the parties entitled thereto by law.
It is ordered, that said account be examined, and petition heard by this court, on Monday, the 7th day of September, A. D. 1903, at ten o'clock a. m., at the Probate Office, in the Court House, in the City of Duluth, in said county.
And it is further ordered, that notice thereof be given to all persons interested by publishing a copy of this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Duluth Evening Herald, a daily newspaper printed and published at Duluth, in said county.
Dated at Duluth, Minn., the 12th day of August, 1903.
By the court,
J. B. MIDDLECOFF,
Judge of Probate.

WIND AND WAVES TOO MUCH FOR BIG YACHTS

Committee Orders Third Race Postponed.

Will Probably Be Sailed Next Monday.

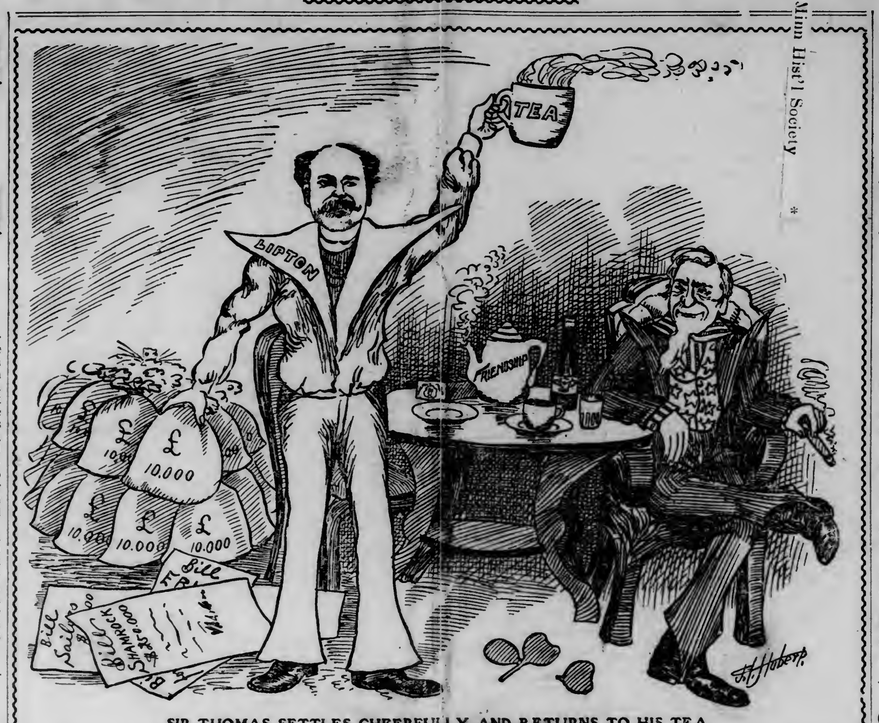

New York, Aug. 29.—For the first time in the history of America's cup races, a race has been postponed because of too much wind. Today the third of the present series of races was to have been sailed. Following the futile attempt of Thursday, when there was not enough wind to complete the race within the time limit, it was earnestly hoped by yachtsmen that today's contest would be decisive and the series completed. Ten hours after Thursday's drifting failure a storm broke over the cup course and raged about Sandy Hook. The water was tumbled into waves that troubled even an ocean liner. The wind blew with a velocity estimated between forty and fifty miles, and the rain driven before it obscured the vision beyond a mile or two.

Within the sheltering bend of Sandy Hook, where the two racers rode at their moorings, the water was comparatively quiet this morning, while across the sandy peninsula on the ocean side the surf boomed as it broke upon the beach. At 7 o'clock the regatta committee met at the New York Yacht club house and decided to postpone the race for the day. The meeting was then adjourned until 1 p. m., when a decision as to the race being sailed Monday will be reached. In the meantime a tug was sent to Sandy Hook to secure the feeling of Mr. Iselin and Sir Thomas Lipton in the matter, and upon the return of the tug definite action will be taken.

A prominent member of the yacht club said this morning that he was in favor of a race Monday and now that Sir Thomas has openly expressed himself upon the abilities of both boats, and acknowledged himself defeated it was thought advisable by many of the members of the yacht club that the race be sailed Monday, and the series completed as soon as possible.

SIR THOMAS SETTLES CHEERFULLY AND RETURNS TO HIS TEA.

POWERS FOUND GUILTY; SENTENCED TO DEATH

Ex-Secretary of State to Suffer Full Penalty.

Previous Sentences Were Life Imprisonment.

Georgetown, Ky., Aug. 29.—The jury in the case of ex-Secretary of State Caleb Powers, charged with complicity in a conspiracy to murder Governor William Goebel, in January, 1900, today found the defendant guilty and imposed the death sentence.

Powers was setnenced to imprisonment for life at his former trials. It was on his motion that he secured the new trials each time.

This verdict has caused great excitement among the friends of other defendants in these cases.

The third trial of ex-Secretary Caleb Powers for complicity in the murder of Governor William Goebel, in January, 1900, closed today with the penalty of hanging for the prisoner, who had been in the penitentiary for three years on a life sentence.

The verdict of the jury, "guilty and the punishment of death," was reported in court at 11:20 today. Several hundred persons crowded the court room when the verdict was read. Powers sat unmoved while his attorneys asked for time to make a motion for a new trial. Arthur Goebel broke down from the strain on hearing the verdict of guilty.

Arthur Goebel, the brother of the victim, is a prominent merchant at Cincinnati and he spent his time and fortune in the prosecution of those accused of being in a conspiracy to kill his brother.

Powers has been convicted twice before, this being the third trial, in which the jury brought in a verdict of guilty against him.

EX-PRESIDENT G. CLEVELAND MAKES A HUMOROUS SPEECH

More Interested In Protection of Buzzard's Bay Than About All the Hoary Headed Infant Industries—A Future Fisherman.

New York, Aug. 29.—Former President Grover Cleveland has been making merry with the members and guests of the Old Colony club at a clam bake on Marshall's Island, says a Times special from Bourne, Mass. The feature of the day was a short humorous address he made.

"I hope," said he, "that the club will persevere in its efforts toward the unremitting preservation of the Buzzard's Bay fisheries and I am willing to take out all the benefits of the club in fishing.

"Within the past few years I have been widely jeered and derided for spending so much of my time fishing. For those who jeer and deride me, I have only a quiet and unqualified contempt. I go fishing because I like it and I hope that I will continue to go fishing until as near the end of the chapter as possible.

"I should like to say right here that I am more interested in the protection of the fishing at Buzzard's Bay than about our hoary headed infant industries. I care more for these fishing interests than I do about the policy of the next federal administration.

"I hope that the Old Colony club will keep up its fight for the protection of the fisheries. Let there be no relaxations nor compromise. Keep up the fight unceasingly.

"Perhaps some of you are aware that an interesting event has recently taken place in our domestic circle. I am proud to say that another future fisherman has quite lately increased the population of Buzzard's Bay by one. Some people are in the habit of telling fish stories and some people are able to tell the exact weight of the fish they catch, so they claim. put fish scales into requisition and weighed my latest catch honestly and the tally was an even nine pounds."

THE REPORT OF KILLING OF CONSUL MAGELSSEN AN ERROR

Was Made In Transmission of a Cipher Message—It Appears That Several Shots Were Fired at Consul But He Was Not Hit.

Washington, Aug. 29.—A decidedly new turn in the case of United States Vice Consul William C. Magelssen, at Beirut, Syria, who was reported to have been assassinated last Sunday, developed last night when it became known that the report was incorrect, and that although Mr. Magelssen had been shot at he had not even been injured.

This information came to the state department last night in a dispatch from United States Minister Leishman, at Constantinople, who said the mistake in making the original announcement was due to an error in the transmission of the cipher dispatch from Consul Ravidahl, at Beirut, in reporting the incident to the minister.

The dispatch from Mr. Leishman followed closely on the Associated Press bulletin on the same subject, which had been shown to the prominent officials of the government. The dispatch from the minister was communicated to the president at once, at Oyster Bay.

Acting Secretary Loomis declined to make public the text of Minister Leishman's dispatch, but he gave a summary of its contents. As stated in the press dispatches, it shows that Mr. Magelssen had been shot at by some person at the time unknown to the officials, but that he had not been hit.

The local Turkish officials were prompt to express their regret at the occurrence, and were exerting themselves to apprehend the would-be assassin, but thus far had been unsuccessful. The minister's dispatch also said that Consul Ravidal had reported

WATCHED BURGLARS ROB BANK

Bangor, Me., Aug. 29.—The four or five men who demolished the vault of the Brewer Savings bank last night eluded the police, and this forenoon were dodging an armed posse in the woods beyond Bangor. The robbers secured about $300. They were watched at their work in the bank by a number of persons, who made no attempt to molest them because of their guns. When the burglars left the bank they fired a dozen shots. Nearly a score of policemen, deputy sheriffs and citizens armed themselves as soon as possible and started in pursuit.

UNION STILL STANDS BY PARKS

New York, Aug. 29.—At a meeting of the United Housesmiths' and Bridgemen's union plans have been adopted which will enable Sam Parks to continue from his place of confinement in Sing Sing prison his work as business agent of the union, and particularly the resistance to signing the employers' arbitration agreement. The union voted confidence in Parks and decided to continue his salary of $48 a week, regardless of his incarceration for extortion of money from employers.

The Sing Sing prison physician, who has just examined Parks, says he is suffering from tuberculosis and cannot live more than one year.

AMERICANS IN DANGER FROM FANATISCISMS OF MUSSULMANS

Oyster Bay, Aug. 29.—It developed today that the cablegram from Minister Leishman, at Constantinople, transmitted late last night to President Roosevelt, contained, in addition to a statement of the incorrectness of the announced assassination of Vice Consul Magelssen, at Beirut, an important report upon the situation in the Ottoman empire. Minister Leishman takes a serious view of the condition of affairs in Turkey. Minister Leishman apprehends serious trouble and indicates his belief that American interests and lives are in peril on account of the fanaticisms of the Mussulman population.

The minster's report confirmed information received by President Roosevelt and Secretary Hay from unofficial sources. For these reasons, it was decided by the president that Admiral Cotton's squadron should proceed to Turkish waters, in accordance with his original orders, notwithstanding the inaccuracy of the report of the assault on Magelssen. In any event, that was regarded by this government only as an incident. The fact that the assault upon the consul was not attended by a fatal result simply modifies the action of the United States by removing one serious phase of a situation that otherwise may become intolerable very soon.

It has not been decided definitely whether or not Admiral Cotton's fleet will rendezvous at Beirut as originally ordered. The destination of the vessels will be determined by developments of the Turkish situation.

Secretary of the Treasury Shaw, after a conference with the president which continued far into the night, left today on an extended trip through the middle West. He will deliver two or three addresses while on his journey. He probably will not return to Washington before September 15.

Washington, Aug. 29.—The state department today received a cablegram from Minister Leischman in which he states that advices from the American consuls at Harpoot and Beirut were to the effect that while the Americans in those places are in danger of suffering from an uprising at anytime the situation was not at the time of sending the dispatches as grave as earlier reports would indicate. Mr. Leischman has been instructed to notify the Turkish government that it must keep the peace and that it will be held to a strict accountability for any lawless act towards American citizens.

Washington, Aug. 29.—Secretary of State Hay returned to his desk in the state detpartment this morning. It was said that his arrival in Washington at this time was not due to the occurrences in Turkey, but in accordance with arrangements made at the time of his departure for Oyster Bay. Mr. Hay said that while uprisings in the Turkish dominion were more or less chronic, the present state of affairs assumes the proportions of an insurrection of considerable magnitude. He would not disclose the contents of the cablegrams received last night from Minister Leishman, but said that the minister's advices were that the erroneous report on the assassination of Mr. Magelssen was due to the use of the wrong code number and not to any error in transmission. The information given in the cablegram was that the governor called at the consulate and offered prompt action and would make every effort to find out and punish the would-be assassin.

Mr. Leishman further advised the secretary that several of the consulates have reported to the governments that the conditions of the city of Beirut at the present moment are unsafe.

With the view to furnishing Secretary Hay with the fullest facts concerning the reports which have come from the missionaries in Turkey, a committee representing the board of American missions will call upon him tomorrow or Monday, he having indicated a desire to meet such committee and obtain from them all information in their possession.

Washington, Aug. 29.—The navy department has received a cable message from Capt. Henry McCrea, in command of the gunboat Machias, saying that he had finished coaling ship and that it would sail at once from Genoa to Port Said.

A message also was received today from Admiral Cotton announcing the arrival of the Brooklyn and the San Francisco at Genoa, and saying that they had begun coaling.

Acting Secretary Darling has advised Secretary Hay that as soon as the Brooklyn and the San Francisco finish taking on coal they will sail for Beirut under present orders.

Full text of the dispatch of Minister Leishman bearing on the Magelssen affair, with the exception of the one received last night saying that the vice consul had not been killed, is as follows:

"Therapia, Aug. 27.—Secretary of State, Washington: Just received telegram from consul of the United States at Beirut, advising me that our vice consul was assassinated last Sunday night while driving in carriage. Murderer unseen and unknown. No explanation is given for delay in reporting the case, but consul adds that reply of governor is unsatisfactory. Have asked for further particulars and will at once make vigorous representations at the sublime porte. "LEISHMAN."

Therapia, Aug. 29.—Secretary of State, Washington: I have made proper representations to the sublime porte with reference to the assassination of the vice consul, but pending reception of fuller details, and also your instructions, I have made no demands other than asking for explanations, which the minister for foreign affairs assured me would be given immediate attention.

"The troubles in Macedonia become worse and more extended each day, and outside of the necessity which may present itself of sending a ship to Beirut to force a proper apology. It seems to me advisable to keep a ship within easy reach of the Turkish waters, in order to be in a position to more fully protect American citizens should the revolution assume more alarming proportions.

"The insurgents have become more aggressive in Eastern Roumania since Russian war vessels arrived, and the passenger trains from Europe were blown up with dynamite this morning, about fifty miles from Constantinople, killing or wounding most of the passengers. LEISHMAN."

"Therapia, Aug. 27.—Secretary of State, Washington: Minister for foreign affairs has just sent me word stating that reported assassination of American vice consul entirely false, adding that the security in Beirut district is perfect. Am without further advices from Consul Ravndal and unable to account for such conflicting statements. Will report further as soon as I can obtain necessary information. "LEISHMAN."

London, Aug. 29.—The officials of the foreign office here are greatly puzzled over the error in its official cable message announcing the assassination of William C. Magelssen, the American vice and deputy consul at Beirut, Syria. They reiterated today that the message was transmitted through the British ambassador at Constantinople from the British consul at Beirut. No correction has been sent either by the ambassador or by the consul.

ADVOCATES OF PEACE

View the Playing of Naval Battles With Alarm.

Mystic, Conn., Aug. 29.—The Universal Peace union at its closing session today adopted a series of resolutions or "convictions."

The preamble says that with all encouragement on the demand for peace, "we are still confronted with obligations resting upon peace societies and all advocates of peace to remove the causes and abolish the custom of war."

The resolutions set forth that the duty of the hour is to overcome all conditions that make war possible by teaching the principles of peace and arbitration in schools and universities, by practicing them in every day life and by multiplying courts of arbitration. The increase of the army and navy, the building of battleships for Turkey and other foreign governments with all improvements of American genius, the farcial and expensive playing of naval battles on the coast of Maine and the unrestricted sale of fire arms, is viewed with alarm. Lynching is declared to be a monstrous peace breaker and state and national legislation looking to its suppression is demanded. Race hatred and prejudice is pronounced a menace to peace.

United action to prevent the petty jealousies and disagreements in governments from growing into national and international contentions and wars, should be sought and newspapers should not be war makers by being sensational and unwarranted news mongers.

ST. PAUL READY FOR REUNION OF ARMY OF THE PHILIPPINES

First of the Delegates Have Already Arrived. The Sessions Will Begin Next Week and a Very Succesful Event Is Promised.

St. Paul, Aug. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Plans for the entertainment of the army of the Philippines are being completed. Yesterday at a meeting of the executive committee it was found that almost $2000 has already been raised for the entertainment of the visitors.

The first of the delegates to the reunion of the army of the Philippines to be held in this city next week arrived early yesterday morning—a delegation from St. Louis headed by Captain Chas. D. Comfort, president of Lorance B. De Witt camp and Albert E. Fout. They made the trip by boat and came early in order to open headquarters for the Missouri contingent. St. Louis will make an effort to secure next year's reunion, and with this purpose in view a large band of shouters will follow the early arrivals. Open house will be maintained at St. Louis headquarters during the three days of the reunion.

The delegates from St. Louis are only six in number, as there is but one camp in that city. Missouri did not furnish a Philippine regiment and the camps in that state are made up of Philippine veterans who now make their homes there. However, St. Louis delegates now in the city are confident that they will land the ext reunion.

MINNEAPOLIS STRIKERS MAY NOT BE ALLOWED TO RETURN

Indications Are That Contractors Will Suspend Operations For the Present and Many Men Will Be Without Work During the Coming Winter.

Minneapolis, Aug. 29.—(Special to the Herald.)—As the strike situation now stands it looks as though the contractors will not allow any of the striking unions to return to work this fall, but will inaugurate a lockout if the men desire to return to work. The long session of the Building Trades' council Thursday night did not result in any change of the council's attitude on the bricklayers' position, and the master builders feel that this practically ends the matter.

The master builders say it would be inconsistent to recognize the laborers' union, as the Building Trades council does not recognize it. Then again a general strike of all the building trades may result shortly.

G. P. Gubbins, president of the Bricklayers' union, is expected in Minneapolis shortly with Herman Lill of the Laborers' union. W. D. Huber, president of the carpenters' and joiners' will also come here.

The master builders have notified the committees of the striking bricklayers and laborers organizations that they will hold no further conferences. This means that the builders have decided to suspend operations for the present at least and the general opinion is that they do not intend to do any more work until spring. This will throw many men out of work.

A MERGER OF COPPER COMPANIES

Houghton, Mich., Aug. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—A merger of the Copper Range Consolidated Mining company and the Trimountain will be broached at the stockholders' meeting called on Sept. 8 in Boston. This is generally understood here and in Boston, and means that the Copper Range will pass into the control of Lawson and Burrage, who are closely affiliated with the Amalgamated Copper company. William A. Paine, president of the Copper Range, has always held that the property should never become affiliated with the Amalgamated until it could be shown that Copper Range would be benefited. He believed the recent slump was engineered by the Amalgamated interests to secure control of the Copper Range, which consists of the Champion and Baltic mines and Copper Range railway, while Trimountain only has one mine. The merger would give the Trimountain the better of the deal. Lake people in general look upon the merger with disfavor. It is understood the stock will be changed share for share.

WILL PATTERN AFTER MINNESOTA

St. Paul, Aug. 29.—Thomas H. Carter, former United States senator from Montana, was in St. Paul yesterday. Senator Carter stopped in St. Paul on the way home from Washington and spent some time investigating the method of conducting the state fair. It is the intention to establish a state fair at Helena, to be modelled along the lines of the Minnesota fair. Recently he began a series of investigations into the methods and policies pursued here, and became much impressed with the general efficiency of the Minnesota system.

It is known that a tenative offer was made to at least one of the officers of the Minnesota state fair board to take the management of the new fair to be established in Helena. The offer was not accepted, and the matter dropped for the time being.

Senator Carter is one of the commissioners in charge of the St. Louis exposition and will return East this fall on the way to St. Louis.

NEW TRACK USED

East End Street Car Service Returns to the Normal.

Superior Street Paving Work Is Progressing Very Favorably.

Street car service to the East End resumed its normal today through the medium of the new trackage between Third and Eigth avenues east, and the necessary but annoying delays at either end of the temporary trackage have been done away with for the rest of the season.

Service through the East End will continue on the old schedule, uninterrupted for the rest of this year, and next year, up to the time the street improvement begins beyond Sixteenth avenue east.

General Manager Warren promised that the new trackage beyond Third avenue east would be ready for use today, but the company did even a little better and began using the eastbound track shortly after 7 o'clock last evening, the temporary track at the side being used for westbound cars.

Early this morning the trolley wire was moved over for the westbound tracks, and the East End and Lakeside cars are now running smoothly and on time, while the improved track on the upper side of the street is fast disappearing.

The new paving work is progressing satisfactorily between Third and Eighth avenues east, and now that the street car service is resumed on the old schedule the inconvenience brought about by the condition of the street will not be much noticed.

The concrete foundation on the lower side of the street is completed and that on the upper side of the street will be finished following the removal of the temporary car tracks, which will not be many days at the longest. The new brick is already being placed alongside the car tracks and the brick for the pavement on the lower side of the street will be pushed all of the coming week.

The contractors have until Nov. 1 to complete the paving work but at the present rate of progress the work is quite likely to be completed before that date.

This morning the street railway company put a force of nearly one hundred men at the track work at the corner of Third avenue West and Superior street, where entire new curves and street crossings are being put in.

As soon as the cars stop running this evening the rails will all come up and the new steel will replace it in time for uninterrupted car service past the corner and up the hill, tomorrow morning.

New Suit House.

Wednesday, Sept. 2, the new cloak, suit and millinery store at 20 West Superior street will open its doors for business with a thoroughly up-to-date stock, selected from the fashion centers of the East. The manager, Charles L. Gray, is well known to the trade, having been engaged in this line of business for over fifteen years in Chicago and New York. The new business promises to create for itself a splendid patronage.

THREW HIM DOWN STAIRS

Hotel Proprietor Resents Insulting Remarks of an Employe.

Alphonse Gentile swore out a warrant yesterday against Arthur Williams, proprietor of a hotel at 611 West Superior street, for assault in the third degree. This morning Mr. Williams appeared in municipal court and pleaded guilty to simple assault, his fine being $1 and costs. The complaining witness did not appear. According to the defendant's story of the case, the complaining witness did not get quite all that was his due, for he made an insulting remark to Mrs. Williams that the husband happened to overhear, and Alphonse was promptly thrown down a flight of stairs by the incensed husband.

Personal Injury Claimant Has One Leg Broken Five Times.

Andrew M. Johnson has asked the district court for $25,000 damages for personal injuries, of which he claims to have received superfluity.

He is a millwright, and according to his story was employed in the Cloquet sawmill of the Johnson-Wentworth company in 1901. The refuse conveyancer became clogged, and he was ordered to investigate the difficulty and clear out the obstruction. He found a large piece of wood in the way, and was cleaning it out when the machinery was started up.

He alleges that his foot was caught and crushed, and held there for an hour. His right leg was broken in five places, his right knee wrenched out of joint, and he received numerous other minor injuries. He alleges that the company were negligent in starting the machinery while he was at work. Gjertsen, Rand & Lund of Minneapolis, are the attorneys.

TO TURN IT DOWN

Appeals Board Not Likely to Approve Percentage System.

Will Discuss New Grading System In Minneapolis.

The plan of grading wheat in Minnesota on a percentage system will come up before a joint meeting of the state boards of grain appeal in Minneapolis next Tuesday, and it is very likely that it will be turned down.

The members of the Duluth board of grain appeals, E. H. Pugh, G. J. Strang and J. K. Stone, will leave Monday for Minneapolis to attend the meeting.

The meeting is called for the purpose of establishing grades for the coming crop year. The proposition to instal a percentage system of grading came from a government official who will be in Minneapolis Tuesday to explain the matter to the boards, and it will be thoroughly discussed.

The proposition is not popular on the Duluth board. It is felt that the Minnesota grades as established at present are entirely satisfactorily, and that nothing is to be gained by making a change. At the same time it is said that the new system would entail an additional expense of several dollars per car, and would involve the necessity of employing a much larger force.

For these reasons it is very doubtful whether the proposed change will be made.

The Duluth members will return Thursday.

GOT FOUR RECRUITS.

Lieut. Deiss Gets New Men For the Army.

Very good success has attended the operations of the United States army recruiting office which Lieut. George A. Deiss re-established here last Monday, after spending the summer in North Dakota.

Four recruits have been received this week, which is pretty good considering the exacting nature of Uncle Sam's demands, which bar out a good many applicants. Three of the four recruits went into the coast artillery, and were sent to Fort Flagler, Wash. The other went into the infantry, and was sent to Columbus barracks, O.

Recruits are being received for all branches of the services, including the hospital corps. This is a branch of the army that offers pretty good inducements. The pay runs from $16 per month for privates to $45 per month for first-class sergeants, and the opportunities for advancement are greater than in any other branch, almost.

Averages For the Month In Thirty-Two Years.

The mean normal temperature in Duluth during September is 56 degrees, according to the data compiled by the local weather office from the records of the past thirty-two years. The warmest September was that of 1897, with an average of 63 degrees, and the coldest was that of 1886, with an average of 51 degrees. The highest temperature reached on any September day was 94, Sept. 1, 1894, and the lowest was 29, Sept. 29, 1899. The average date for the first killing frost is Sept. 20. The average precipitation for the month is 3.86 inches, and the month has an average of thirteen days with .01 of an inch or more. The greatest amount of precipitation in any twenty-four consecutive hours was 2.96 inches, Sept. 24, 1873. The average number of clear days is nine, partly cloudy days twelve, and cloudy days nine. The prevailing winds are from the northeast, and the highest velocity was seventy-eight miles from the northeast, Sept. 16, 1881.

Dr. MITCHELL

That truth is stranger than fiction is demonstrated every day at 17 East Superior street, where Dr. Mitchell is healing the sick by his wonderful healing influence. If the marvelous cures that have been published in the daily papers for the past five year should originate in a person's brain to embellish a story of fiction, it would not seem strange. But to have such cures actually made right here in our midst, every word of which is true, it borders on the marvelous.

Dr. Mitchell treats all chronic diseases, as well as curing weak men in any and all stages.

It seems as though all diseases are alike to this great healer, he cures them all. The stories of his wonderful cures of hopeless cases, told by the happy patients themselves read like a romance or the miracles of Bible times. There is no question of the doctor's sincerity in his claim that all diseases can be cured by his marvelous method; and one can hardly doubt his ability to carry out his claim, after having talked with people whom he has cured quickly and safely of all kidney and liver disease, lung and stomach trouble, consumption, constipation, rheumatism, neuralgia, catarrh, bronchitis, paralysis, diabetes, lost vitality, nervous debility, insomnia, blood poison, female weakness and ailments, eczema, salt rheum. It matters not what the disease, nor how long standing, nor how many doctors or remedies have failed, he has repeatedly renewed the youth of old men and women; has often instilled into jaded men and women new vitality, health and strength. To weak, weary women he has brought the light and happiness of health. He has cured the crippled and healed the sick, and he has gone about this quietly, unostentatiously, but nevertheless with the unbounded success that is winning him the gratitude of all sick and helpless men and women. He is indeed a remarkable man doing a remarkable work, and every sick and suffering person should avail themselves of the opportunity of being restored to perfect health. Many have saved a sick friend's life by sending them to him, or their name and address. If you cannot come to the office and get treatment, take the home treatment.

LOOK OVER TERMINALS.

Great Northern Officials Examine Flour Capacity.

Assistant General Freight Agent Kimball, Chief Clerk Kenney, of his office, and General Agent McGuire, of Minneapolis, all officials of the Great Northern road, arrived in the city this morning.

The party is here and at Superior looking over the terminals, and are investigating conditions at this time to ascertain the condition of the warehouses in connection with the question of how much flour can be brought in and placed in the warehouses for shipment by boat to the East.

The Minneapolis millers have evidently made a demand for accommodations for their flour for shipment down the lakes, and intend to get all their mill product up here as it is turned out of the mills, till navigation closes, and after that use the rails around by Chicago or over to Manitowoc and across to the Michigan connection for the East.

The party is overnat Superior this afternoon, and what determination they have arrived at is not known. It would not be improbable if larger quarters were constructed for this business.

JOHNSON'S OPPONENTS

In Democratic Party Threaten To Bolt Ticket.

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 29.—Mayor Tom Johnson's bold defi. "We must rid the party of the old timber; we must rid it of men who put fabionalism above principle," in his speech at the Democratic state convention, has been taken up by the anti-Johnson forces, who openly declare that they will knife the Cleveland man and the entire Democratic ticket.

It was only by the greatest persuasion on the part of the more conservative Democrats that the anti-Johnson men were prevented from holding a rump convention. Ex-Congressman John J. Lentz, a rabid free silver man and a life-long friend of Mayor Johnson, declared in his personal organ here that the endorsement of John H. Clarke, of Cleveland, for United States senator, is a source of great weakness to the ticket. Thus it appears that Lentz and his large following have already gone back on the ticket. Clarke is counsel for the Nickel Plate railroad, and it will be interesting to note how he will discuss the corporation plank of the platform. Besides, he is a gold Democrat, and voted against Bryan in both of the latter's campaigns. It is stated on good authority that the anti-Johnson Democrats will form a coalition with the Republicans to beat Johnson and his ticket. The rank and file are bitterly opposed to Clarke, because of his gold standard views.

FAIRBANKS AND DAN PATCH

Will Be Monday's Attractions at State Fair.

St. Paul, Aug. 29.—(Special to the Herald.)—Senator Charles W. Fairbanks of Indiana, and Dan Patch, the fastest pacer in the world, will be the two attractions at the state fair on Monday the first day, only.

Far diferent kinds of entertainment will be offered by the man and the horse Senator Fairbanks will give the opening address on the grounds at eleven o'clock. He is a distinguished orator, with a fluent speech, and picturesque delivery that have won him a prominent place in the United States senate, where he is serving his first term.

Dan Patch has been before the world only a few years, but he holds the world's record for pacing, 1.59, and will try to beat it.

Dan Patch's event will be a part of the race program in the afternoon.

ALTERCATION OVER A FLAG

Police Called to Quell Trouble In a Restaurant.

New York, Aug. 29.—An appeal to the police has followed a scene of considerable excitement in the main dining room of a Fifth avenue hotel restaurant arising from an altercation over the American flag. Col. George R. Dyer, of the Twelfth regiment, New York national guard, a captain in the same body and a stranger are the persons said to have been the principal figures.

Dyer and the captain were dining together. Yachting favors were distributed with the ice cream. They were miniature yachts, one bearing the American flag and the other an Irish flag. When these were placed before the militiamen, a stranger at an adjoining table arose, took the Irish flag from the captain's favor and placed it about the American emblem. The captains indignant response was to cast the green emblem upon the floor. Immediatly the faces of the three men flushed with anger and there was a heated altercation. Scores of diners, many of whom were women, arose in alarm. Col. Dyer stepped into the street and summoned an officer. The latter refused to arrest the stranger unless he committed an assault. Finally, the colonel and his companion visited the precinct police station and demanded the arrest of the stranger but were unable to procure it without a warrant, and the matter was dropped.

HAPPINESS

Of Matrimonial Venture Soon Brought to End.

New York, Aug. 29.—Magistrate Poole yesterday held Dr. Bernard Brandies, dentist, on a complaint sworn out by his wife, charging cruelty and non-support.

She says she came to New York from Winnipeg last March, and met a woman marriage broker, who promised to find her a husband. The broker sent her to the dentist, and she fell in love with him. A big wedding was arranged. The woman placed $2200 to her husband's credit in the bank. Her mother was present at the ceremony, and everything was lovely until her mother went home, when her husband began abusing her. She demanded the money she had given him, and they had trouble. She is a pretty blonde, and says she still loves her husband.

SECRETARY SHAW

May Place Internal Revenue Receipts In Banks.

Washington, Aug. 29.—Secretary Shaw has a plan for increasing the federal deposits in the national banks by about $40,00,000 in case the condition of the money market should become such as to require aid from the government. The law authorizes the secretary of the treasury to deposit government receipts with regularly constituted national bank depositories, in his discretion, the only restriction being that customs dues shall be changed into the treasury proper. The funds deposited in the banks, therefore, are internal revenue receipts.

Mr. Shaw has not positively decided to increase the federal deposits in national banks, but he is willing to do so if the money situation requires it.

ROOSEVELT IS CRITICISED

For Cable of Condolence Upon Death of the Pope.

Utica, N. Y., Aug. 29.—At the session of the New York and New England conference of the Lutheran synod of Missouri, Ohio and other states, the action of the city, state and national officers in taking official notice of the death of Pope Leo XIII and expressing condolences and high esteem without denominational distinction was discussed at length. Resolutions of protest were outlined and drawn up. The resolution refers to President Roosevelt's official tender of sympathy on the occasion of the pope's death, as follows:

"Whereas, it is clear to our minds that the president in officially sending condolences to the papal secretary of state on the death of Leo XIII and other officials, in similarly paying their respects, have taken it upon themselves, without any authorization, whatever, to speak in behalf of all Christianity of the country, and have thereby actually and practically denied the governmental principles for which the fathers of our country bled and died, have abused their office and violated the trust and confidence reposed in them by the people.

"Therefore, be it resolved that we, satisfied that in this we are voicing the sentiment of all loyal Americans, do most earnestly and emphatically protest against any action taken by the president and other public officials with reference to the demise of the late pope, whereby they accorded official recognition to the papacy, and furthermore we do protest against any act or move on the part of the government officials, high or low, irrespective of party affiliation, whereby the traditional lines separating church and state might be obliterated and the very pillars on which rest the glorious liberties of this country be shaken."

Copies of the resolutions were forwarded to President Roosevelt at Oyster Bay and the state department at Washington.

WORK OF INSURGENTS.

Rumors of Blowing Up of Turk sh Barracks.

Sofia, Aug. 29.—An unconfirmed report is in circulation here that the insurgents have blown up the barracks of the Turkish troops at Adrianople.

The Bulgarian population on the frontier greatly resents the governments severe measures to prevent the crossing of insurgent bands. The government is receiving many complaints cahacterizing its attitude as unfair and unpatriotic.

Considerable indignation has been aroused by the arrests of Bulgarians who have arrived at Constantinople. It is said that all Bulgarians are arrested, irrespective of class or business immediately after they arrive at the Turkish capital, and that they are only released after a searching inquiry, coupled with the personal assurances of the Bulgarian diplomatic agent. A number of villages in the frontier district of Dubnitza have been burned.

NEGROES PETITION

For Release of Persons Imprisoned For Peonage.

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 29.—Judge Thomas G. Jones of the United States court, has received a petition signed by several hundred negroes of Coosa and Tallapoosa counties, asking him to suspend the sentence of George and Burances Cosby, who pleaded guilty to holding negroes in a condition of peonage. The petition stated that these cases have caused a bitter feeling between the two races. The petitioners believe that the peonage system is broken up and further says that the Cosbys were good citizens of the community. It is indicated that this will be followed by mass meetings in the interest of harmony. It is stated that the relations between the two races are considerably strained. The petition was circulated by influential colored men of the two counties.

POLITICAL DEAL.

How L. L. Willians Earned and Lost Appointment.

Washington, Aug. 29.—The department of the interior has announced the withdrawal of the appointment of Lewis L. Williams as a member of the Alaskan boundary commission to the St. Louis world's fair, and thereby hangs an interesting tale.

When Williams' appointment was proposed some days ago it caused a storm of protests from Republican politicians, led by former Senator Carter, who objected to Williams on the ground that he wa sthe Democractic national committeeman for Alaska and the only member of the commission who would draw the salary of $2500 provided, because the others were already in the government service.

It has developed, however, that Judge Ryan, first assistant secretary of the interior, made the appointment on the recommendation of ex-Gov. Francis, president of the exposition, and that Mr. Francis was induced to recommend Mr. Williams through Williams' promise to assist Francis in the furtherance of his presidental boom.

This was too much. Secretary Hitchcock could stand for ordinary political kicks, but when it came to aiding the presidential aspirations of his old time foe, ex-Gov. Francis, he indignantly refused and held up Williams' nomination.

DAVIS' BODY FOUND

Was One of Park Rapids' Prominent Men.

Park Rapids, Minn., Aug. 29.—The body of Banker R. E. Davis, who was drowned in Fishhook lake was found yesterday and prepared for burial.

Mr. Davis was one of the most prominent and public spirited men in the community. He was president of the board of trade and fair association, and a member of the board of education and library board. He leaves a wife and two children.

The whole region is plunged in grief. Mr. Davis came here ten years ago and with William Tabor established a banking business which a few years ago became a national bank. He was formerly county attorney of Todd county. He had been a Mason for many years.

SECULAR SHOTS AT PULPIT.

Minneapolis Times: When Geronimo and a dozen of his Apache warriors joined the Methodist church a short time ago a good deal of surprise was expressed, for old Geronimo was one of the fiercest of the fierce in his fighting days. It may be said in his behalf, however, that he quit dancing a good many years ago.

Boston Transcript: Doubtless the pope's gift of $20,000 to the poor of Rome was not coupled with any conditions that other people raise a similar amount or that the money should be so invested in lodging house or lunch room as to raise 2⅞ per cent. Modern charity, conducted on business principles, is all right; but so, once in a while, is the old-fashioned kind.

Springfield Republican: The story that the Austrian government interposed its veto against the election of Cardinal Rampolla as pope is now confirmed in an authoritative way at Vienna. Nothing more is needed to show how very superior was the reporting of the recent conclave. It was often said before the death of Leo XIII that the right of veto, held by Spain, France and Austria would never again be exercised, although it was conceded that Austria was more likely to interfere than either of the other powers. The reason for Austria's action is not obscure, since it was directed against Rampolla. That cardinal, who came very near being pope, was deemed by European statesmen more likely than any other member of the sacred college to be a "political pontiff," and the powers want no such spiritual sovereign on the throne of St. Peter. It will be observed that the semi-official statement in Vienna repudiates the insinuation that Emperor Francis Joseph acted as the spokesman of Europe. Yet it is, on the contrary, quite likely that he knew well the sentiment of Paris, Berlin, Rome and St. Petersburg when he vetoed Cardinal Rampolla.

Business University Happenings.

Five applications were received at the college office on Thursday and Friday of this week for competent lady stenographers, for which no experienced graduates were in evidence. There never was a time during the twelve years of the school's existence that the demand for its graduates so far exceeded its supply as at the present time.

The following young people left the college during the past week to accept the following positions:

Essie McKay, bookkeeper for the New Duluth Box factory.

Peter Gunderson, assistant bookkeeper for the Standard Salt and Cement company.

Gisken Hoff, stenographer for the Gately Supply company.

Crawford Dennis, stenographer and assistant bookkeeper for A. Fitger & Co.

Lenora Bidwell, stenographer for J. H. Whitely, attorney.

Anna McCoubrey, stenographer for the First National bank, Cloquet, Minn.

The fall opening of the school will occur on Monday, Sept. 7. The college rooms and office will be open from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. during all of next week. Those intending to enroll at the opening are requested to call and make final arrangements.

ZWEIFEL GETS PRIZE.

Wins Silver Pitcher For Best Display of Pictures.

Minneapolis, Aug. 29.—J. R. Zweifel, of Duluth, the treasurer of the Northwestern Photographers' association, captured the Schaffer trophy, a silver pitcher, for the best display of pictures printed on American platino paper. There were five displays entered for the trophy, which is highly prized by photographers, and the decision was necessarily a close one. The last session of the convention of the association was held yesterday morning.

A resolution was passed declaring it the sense of the convention that conventions be held bienially in case the national convention also adopts the plan of holding biennial conventions. There is a movement in the national body to hold its session every other year, allowing the state and district associations to hold their meetings on the alternate years.

In every city there is one paper favored by local advertisers. In Duluth it is The Herald.

BIG INDIAN FIGHT

Between Sioux and Pawnee Forces Described By a Witness.

Herd of Buffalo Was Used By Sioux as Decoys.

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 29.—One of the most interesting characters of Nebraska history is John W. Williamson of Genoa whose memory of events, as told to E. E. Blackman, has made possible this account of one of the great Indian tragedies of the western plains.

Mr. Williamson came to Nebraska from Wisconsin and became assistant farmer for the Pawnees at Genoa in 1872. This was two years before the removal of the Pawnees to their new reservation in Oklahoma.

In the summer of 1873 the Indians in the reservation at Genoa, asked permission to take an old-time buffalo hunt. They had given up their right to all the vast buffalo plains of Kansas and Nebraska, and this territory was rapidly filling with settlers.

The old-time spirit of savagery always seemed to return to the Indians during the exciting adventures of the chase and the settlers were never safe from depredations during such a hunt Accordingly, in granting permission, to the Indians to go on the hunt, the government agent, William Burgess, commissioned Mr. Williamson to accompany them in the capacity of trail agent.

The trail agent was expected to restrain the Indians from any lawlessness but his authority was only advisory, so the various chiefs who accompanied the expedition selected one of the company as supreme commander from time to time. The authority of this chief became absolute during the time for which he was chosen, and every movement was directed by him.

The start was made from the reservation on July 2, 1873, Mr. Williamson was the only white man in the expedition save one, a Mr. Lester Platte, nephew of Mrs. Alvira G. Platte, who lived among the Pawnees, for many years as a missionary. Mr. Platte had just arrived from the East, and wishing to see some real western life, asked permission to accompany the expedition.

There were six hundred Pawnees in the expedition, including squaws and papooses. Of these, 200 were warriors.

The first buffalo seen on this hunt was a lone bull north of Arapahoe, on a small stream called Spring creek. He was killed and then there was a great feast.

The first surround was made eight or ten miles south of Arapahoe, and they succeeded in killing all of the herd to the number of one hundred and fifty or so. Some white men were stalking this herd from the south, but on seeing the Indians they took to their horses and fled, doubtless thinking that the Indians were hostile.

Several times in the course of the journey while hunters had come in to the Indian camp with some story calculated to turn the Indians back, told doubtless for the purpose of saving the game for the whites.

On the evening of August 3, some white men came into the camp and told Mr. Williamson that Sioux Indians had been watching the Pawnee band for several days, and had run their buffalo herd into the region as a decoy.

In the midst of the attack on the buffalo the Sioux intended to attack the Pawnees. After so many attempts to deceive them the Indians were not willing to believe the story, and determined to make the surround of the buffaloes early in the next morning as planned.

Mr. Williamson, however, concluded from the manner of the hunters that they were telling the truth, and tried by every means in his power to have the ndians abandon the chase. They already had all the game and pelts they could carry home, and there was no good reason for slaughtering another herd, but the Indians could not resist the pleasure of another chase.

Sky Chief was the leader in supreme command in this chase. He insisted that the white men were lying, and when advised by Mr. Williamson to abandon the chase grew angry and said:

"Buck Skin, you are afraid. Many Sioux have I killed, and many more will bite the dust if I meet them. No we will make the chase. You shall stay with the women if the Sioux come."

All arguments having proved unavailing Mr. Williamson started with the the hunters. They located the herd about six miles west of where Culbertson now stands, and almost half way between the Republican and Frenchman forks. Three or four miles from camp stray bufalo were seen coming southeast, as if they were being chased, but no sign of Sioux were seen.

The struggling buffalo were cut out and a few killed. Sky Chief and another Indian took after a bunch which went east, while the rest of the band, keeping an easy pace until more buffalo should be sighted, were strung out over more than half a mile. As the straggling buffalo were chased into the rolling country, the Pawnee forces became badly scattered.

"Presently," says Mr. Williamson, in relating the story "I saw the signs of excitement among the Pawnees on in front, and a young buck came riding toward me. When he came up to where I was he cried out that the Sioux were coming. I rode forward and soon saw a band of Sioux on a rise of ground about a mile and a half northwest of us, holding a council and making the war signs to the Pawnees.

"Terre-e-cocks, a Skeedee chief, was near me and I asked him what we had better do. 'What do you say?' he asked. I suggested that we fall back into a clump of cottonwoods about two miles down the canyon. The Skeedee chief agreed to this, but the Kit-ke-Hawki-i chiefs wanted to fight, and Sky Chief was a Kit-ke-Hawki-i.

"In his absence the chiefs of his band tried to assume authority and things were thrown into confusion. A Kit-ke-Hawki-i chief said there was only a small band and that he could whip them if they came. When we got on higher ground, however, we saw that the hills were fairly black with Sioux, of whom there were probably a thousand. Things looked discouraging.

"They were not prepared to meet such a formidable foe, and some began to weaken. At this point Sun Chief who was head of the whole band of Pawnees, took command, and the discord which had existed was overcome.

"The Sioux were moving rapidly toward our line when Sun Chief asked me to ride out toward them with a white flag, in hopes that the Sioux had a trail agent with them and that he would hold them back when he saw a white man with the Pawnees.

"It was a pretty hard thing for one man to ride out and face a band of one thousand Sioux ready for battle, and I did not like to do it. However, I told the interpreter, who was in citizens' clothes, that if he would go with me we would go to meet the advancing Sioux. We rode to within eighty rods of them and I waved a white handkerchief as a signal to the trail agent, if there should happen to be one, but no attention was paid.

"Now the enemy ceased riding in circles, and lying flat on their ponies, made a dash. We wheeled and raced for our lives to the Pawnee position. This opened the battle. The Pawnee braves had gathered on the hills at the brow of the canyon, while the squaws and pack horses were in the canyon below.

TELLS A STRANGE STORY

St. Paul, Aug. 29.—An envelope said to contain government bonds and copper mining stock valued at $1,500,000, which Joseph Picard, of 190 Thomas street, says he placed in a vault at the state capitol sixteen years ago for safe keeping, cannot be found.

Picard's father, Joseph Picard, a wealthy Frenchman, died in Canada sixteen years ago, and, according to the story related by the son, placed in his hands just before his death an envelope which he was instructed not to open until he was 21 years of age. He was then 14, and admits that he disobeyed his dying father's injunction and opened the envelope, which he found to contain government bonds valued at $1,000,000 and copper mining stock worth half as much.

This envelope, Picard says, he resealed and took to the capitol, where he asked the officials to place it in a vault for him for safe keeping. He says his true name, Alphonse Detro, was written on the envelope, and that he was told that it would be safe there as long as he cared to leave it in the state's care.

The officials were inclined to discredit the weird story related by Picard, although search was made of some of the vaults in the building for the missing papers.

BACKACHE AND DIZZINESS

Pe-ru-na is a Tonic for the Weakness and Debility Incident to Hot Weather.

Two Beautiful Women Cured by Pe-ru-na.

MISS CAMILLE CHARTIER, 5 Lexington Street, Baltimore, Md., writes:

"Late suppers gradually affected my digestion, and made me a miserable dyspeptic, suffering intensely at times. I took several kinds of medicine, which were prescribed by different physicians, but still continued to suffer. But the trial of one bottle of Peruna convinced me that it would rid me of this trouble, so I continued taking it for several weeks, when I was in excellent health, having gained ten pounds."—Camile Chartier.

Miss Mayme Kearns, 1005 Dean St., Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:

"Peruna means health, and health means happiness. To me Peruna means both. Last summer I felt unusually prostrated from the heat. My appetite and sleep failed me, and my strength seemed to ooze out with the perspiration, and I had a weak, gone feeling.

"Three bottles of Peruna changed all this. I recuperated quickly and blessed sleep and rest came to me. Peruna is better than a seaside trip, better than a vacation; in fact, better than anything I know to build up the system."—Miss Mayme Kearns.

Peruna is just as sure to bring an appetite as the sun is to bring the day. A good healthy appetite and good digestion of food generally correct a host of ailments. Loss of strength and loss of sleep depends in a majority of cases upon a loss of nutrition. If the appetite fails, sufficient food will not be taken. If sufficient food is not taken, the system suffers from starvation. This will surely lead to a host of ailments in time. Peruna, by restoring the appetite, cures the whole matter. By freeing the mucous membranes and stomach, as well as the digestive organs from every trace of catarrhal congestion, Peruna corrects the whole trouble.

Mrs. M. Brickner., 39 11th St., Milwaukee, Wis., write:

"I have strong faith in the efficacy of Peruna to cure the ills peculiar to the sex.

"A short time ago I found my condition very serious. I had headaches, pains in the back and frequent dizzy spells, which grew worse every month; I tried two remedies before Peruna, and was pretty discouraged when I took the first dose, but my courage soon returned, as I could see that I was benefited, and in less than two months my health was restored."—Mrs. M. Brickner.

Catarrh of the Pelvic Organs is a Very Common Disease Among Women Nowadays.

This Affection is Generally Called Female Weakness, Female Disease, and Many Other Similar Names.

Most of the women afflicted with pelvic diseases have no idea that their trouble is due to catarrh. The majority of the people think that catarrh is a disease confined to the head alone.

This is not true. Catarrh is liable to attack any organ of the body—throat, bronchial tubes, lungs, stomach, kidneys, and especially the pelvic organs.

Many a woman has made this discovery after a long siege of useless treatment. She has made the discovery that her disease is catarrh, and that Peruna can be relied upon to cure catarrh wherever located.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

AIRSHIP BOAT BREAKS AWAY

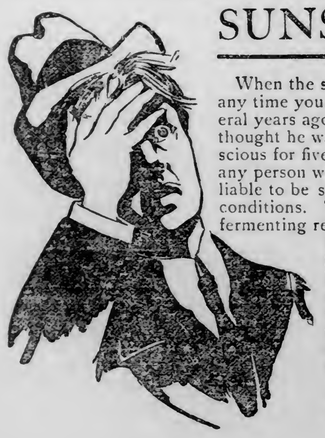

Severe Storm Interferes With Experiments of Prof. Langley.

Widewater, Va., Aug. 29.—Prof. Langley's airship house boat had another dangerous experience in a Potomac gale last eventing. Soon after the expert gave up hopes of launching the aerodrome yesterday and returned to Clifton Beach, a storm broke furiously. The houseboat slipped her moorings and traveled rapidly down stream for two miles, where her anchors caught in the mud bottom. A few men were aboard, but they were powerless and the storm was too severe for any assistance to be afforded by the tugs. The small steam launch tender, the Float and three rowboats were lost. They were sought by the tugs unsuccessfully and the search will be resumed on Saturday. The houseboat is now nearer the Virginia shore where she will remain until after an experiment. Before the storm Prof. Langley said a test would be made Saturday if the weather permitted. The flying machine was so shaken up that the launching may be postponed for repairs. The machine was already to fly yesterday afternoon when the breeze stiffened to ten miles an hour and the experiment was abandoned.

SUNSTROKE INSURANCE

When the summer's heat gets about 90 degrees, you are liable to be sunstruck any time you are out in the sun, unless you take the proper precautions. Several years ago, the writer of this, who has spent much of his life in the tropics, thought he was safe from sunstroke. One day he collapsed, remained unconscious for five hours, and at times his life was dispaired of. As a matter of fact, any person whose stomach and bowels are in bad shape in the summer time, is liable to be sunstruck in temperature that would be harmless under normal conditions. That's all there is to it. Stomach and bowels full of festering, fermenting refuse that forms acids and gases, raise the heat of the body and blood many degrees. Scientists have found that natives of the South Sea Islands, living on laxative fruit, bananas, cocoanuts, bread-fruit, have a temperature 20 degrees lower than that of white men who are careless about their food or their bowels. It has been found in years of experience, that a CASCARET Candy Cathartic taken at bed-time every night will keep the body clean and cool inside all day, and forms a safe and thoroughly reliable form of sunstroke insurance.

Cured
To Stay
Cured

The longest established, most successful and reliable specialist in diseases of men as medical diplomas, licenses and newspaper records will show.

What the afflicted man wants is not a temporary relief, but a permanent cure.

The beneficial effects of my treatment are as lasting as life—I cure to stay cured.

When once a patient is rescued by me from the ravages of disease or weakness peculiar to his sex, he is never again bothered with his former trouble.

I do not treat all diseases, but I treat men —MEN ONLY— and cure them to stay cured.

Varicocele.

Under my treatment, which includes no cutting or pain, this insidious disease rapidly disappears.

Pain disappears almost instantly. The pools of stagnant blood are driven from the dilated veins and all soreness and swelling quickly subside. Every indication of Varicocele soon vanishes and in its stead come the pride, the power and the pleasure of perfect health and restored manhood.

Stricture.

My cure for Stricture is safe, painless and bloodless, and, therefore, free from surgery in any form.

It is the only cure that should ever be used, and the only one recommended by the legions of men who have been restored by it.

It dissolves the Stricture completely and removes every obstruction from the urinary passage, allays all inflammation, stops every discharge, reduces the prostate gland when enlarged, cleanses and heals the bladder and kidneys when irritated or congested, invigorates the organs and restores health and soundness to every part of the body affected by the disease.

Contagious Blood Poison.

My special form of treatment for specific or contagious blood poison is practically the result of my life work, and is endorsed by the best physicians of this and foreign countries.

It contains no dangerous drugs or injurious medicine of any kind.

It goes to the very bottom of the disease and forces out every particle of impurity.

Soon every sign and symptom disappear completely and forever.

The blood, the tissue, the flesh, the bones and the whole system are cleansed, purified and restored to perfect health and the patient prepared anew for the duties and pleasures of life.

Nervo-Sexual Debility.

My cure for weak men does not stimulate temporarily, but restores permanently.

It soon drives away all those distressing symptoms which so constantly remind one of his former folly.

It stops every drain of vigor and builds up the muscular and nervous system, purifies and enriches the blood, cleanses and heals the bladder and kidneys and invigorates the liver, revives the spirits, brightens the intellect, and, above and beyond all, restores the wasted power of manhood.

Reflex Diseases.

Many ailments are reflex, originating from other diseases.

For instance, manly weakness sometimes comes from Varicocele or Stricture. Innumerable blood and bone diseases often result from blood poison taint in the system or physical or mental decline frequently follow loss of manhood.

In treating diseases of any kind I always cure the effect as well as the cause.

We charge nothing for private counsel, and give to each patient a LEGAL CONTRACT to hold for our promises. Is it not worth your while to investigate a cure that has made life anew to multitudes of men?

If you cannot call at our offices, write your symptoms fully. Our home treatment by correspondence is always successful.

MANUAL IS ISSUED

Copies of Legislative Blue Book of 1903 Are Received.

Interesting Facts as to Occupations of Members of Two Houses.

The legislative manuel, or blue book, a little delayed, is being distributed over the state, and the local senators and representatives have all received their allotments.

The book contains the usual biographical sketches, statistics, election returns, sketches of the various states institutions, and besides it has pictures of all the officers and members and most of the employes of the legislature.

The biographical sketches furnish some interesting comparisons as to the make-up of the two houses. The senate is commonly looked upon as a more blue-stockinged lot than the house, and the statistics compiled from the biographies bears out this theory.

Lawyers lead in the senate and farmers in the house, and that is to be expected. In the senate the lawyers come first, bankers next, merchants third and the farmers are fourth.

In the house it is different. The farmers lead by a comfortable majority, lawyers fall into second place, merchants are third, real estate and insurance men are fourth, and physicians are fifth.

In the two houses combined, the lawyers forge to first place, the farmers are second, merchants third, real estate and insurance men are fourth, bankers are fifth and physicians are sixth.

There are sixty-three members of the senate and one hundred and nineteen of the house. In the following tables it will be found that the number exceeds the actual membership. This is due to several combinations, such as banker-lawyer, merchant-farmer, banker-merchant, lawyer-farmer, miller-farmer, etc., in which one man gives out two occupations. In several of the biographical sketches the subject gave out no particular occupation, contenting themselves with enumerating the public offices they have held. It seemed fair to set these gentlemen down as politicians, though it may be doing them an injustice. The figures by occupation follow:

Senate—Lawyers, 22; bankers, 10; merchants, 7; farmers, 6; real estate and insurance, 6; physicians, 3; newspaper men and printers, lumbermen, manufacturers, contractors, 2; broker, politician, miller, 1.

House—Farmers 36; lawyers, 24; merchants, 19; real estate and insurance, 10; physicians, 7; newspaper men and printers, 5; politicians, bankers, contractors, live stock dealers, manufacturers, 3; millers, 2; civil engineer, blacksmith, manager telephone company, traveling man, lumberman, painter, barber, humoristic lecturer, 1.

In the entire legislature the principal occupations are in the following order: Lawyers, 46; farmers, 42; merchants, 26; real estate and insurance, 16; bankers, 13; physicians, 10; newspaper men and printers, 7; manufacturers and contractors, 5 each.

It may be wondered by some who are familiar with what a stir the farmer makes in the Minnesota legislature why he can do it when there are but 36 of him in the house and 6 in the senate, a very small minority.

One thing is that in all propositions wherein the city interests are against those of the country he is united. Another is that many of the lawyers, merchants, bankers, etc., live in farming communities and depend largely upon farmer votes for their election, and as their interests are that way for voting purposes, they can be classed with the farmers. So, taking it all in all, on a proposition that lines them up in a mass, they are a stone wall in the house that it is impossible to surmount or break down. In the senate it is different, but the consent of both bodies is needed for the passage of legislation, so the farmer holds the joker all the time in the legislative game.

Bankers' association was organized with the following officers, who are to serve until the end of the banking year on Aug. 31: President, F. W. Cathro, Bottineau; vice-president, S. S. Lyons, Fargo; secretary-treasurer, M. C. MacFadden, Fargo. The constitution and bylaws were adopted, and last evening the visitors were taken about the city for a drive. A banquet was served at which 225 guests were present. Many addresses were made.

Forman—An interesting land deal has just been closed by which George Marty of Lemont, Ohio, becomes the owner of 800 acres of Sargeant county soil. Mr. Marty is a practical farmer, and is worth about $50,000.

He will remove to Sargeant county and will break up the land this fall and sow it to flax in the spring. He will also put up several substantial buildings, including a fine residence The agent's commission in the deal was $2400, or $3 an acre.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Aberdeen—It has developed that the guns, revolvers, razors, knives and watches found hidden under a grain stack near Aberdeen were stolen from the hardware store of F. M. Franta of Lidgerwood, on Aug. 17. When Mr. Franta who came here to look over the property confronted John Kelly, who was arrested as he was uncovering the "plant." Kelly wilted and acknowledged he perpetrated the burglary and consented to go back to North Dakota without requisition.

Salem—Mr. Prossy, near Turley, Turner county, has a quarter section in fruit, and reports that he will pick not less than 7000 bushels of apples this fall. He expects that his crop will yield nearer 10,000 bushels. He gets $1 a bushel. F. T. Jackson, in Northeast McCook county, reports a fine crop of apples, as do the Hilmans in Miner county. All over the state come reports of splendid crops of apples this year, showing that South Dakota can produce fruits as well as other states. A farmer at Yankton has seventy-five trees, from which he expects to pick an average of twenty bushels to the tree. Plums and crab apples are making a good crop.

John Hofert was cut in the hand in a saloon brawl by a stranger, whom he was following and abusing. After knocking the stranger down Hofert continued to abuse him, when the latter drew a pocket knife.

Pierre—Most of the examiners selected by State Superintendent Nash to mark the papers of teachers, under the new law, which required all markings to be done in the office of the state superintendent, have begun their duties. Those present are Mrs. Eva Lange, Miss Ida Hatch, Mrs. Maude Carter, Pierre; Miss Lulu Schellenger, Selby; S. C. Hartranft, Aberdeen; G. A. Clark, Yankton; Miss Margaret Duthie, Miller; M. M. Ramer, Milbank; G. A. Fry, Mitchell; B. M. Hagenbrook, Marion Junction; M. Guhin, Eureka; E. L. Bleiderstadt, Madison; O. E. Browne, Mount Vernon. Two branches are assigned to each of the examiners, no examiner being allowed to pass upon the papers from his own county. The work is being rushed as rapidly as possible with this class of business, and Superintendent Nash expects to get the papers out in ten days.

The figures of the state assessment as left by the state board of review show a total valuation of $211,035,192, an increase of $23,503,811 over that of last year. Of this the corporation property is assessed at $14,061,349; telegraphs are assessed at $202,500, an increase of $12,-725; telephones, 337,345, increase of $92,-515; express companies, $118,700, increase of $12,200; sleeping cars, $20,000, increase $5000; railroads, $14,961,980, increase $1,-225,366. Personal property is $47,026,256, increase $4,823,196; town lots, $22,994,092, increase $3,779,654; real estate, $126,052,-834, increase $13,755,155.

THE PICTURE IN THE LOCKET

By William Walter Hines.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Obviously, the man was dying.

I needed the word of no doctor to assure me of this, for I have seen men die before, and when I saw his fingers picking at the coverlid I knew it was presageful of the end which could not be far off.

All night we watched by his bedside, the doctor, the nurse and myself, and as day began to dawn we gave up the last hope. The doctor nodded to the nurse a mute permission to open wide the windows and let in the flood of fresh air for which the sick man had begged so piteously through the night. We could do him no harm now, and it seemed only decent that we should try and let him enjoy what comfort he could before he took his last look at the room and at us.

The draught from the open window swept in on us with a sort of chill which was refreshing, and the dying man drew the air into his lungs in deep, hard-fought-for breaths. Through the shadow we could see the first faint streaks of dawn painting the sky and the heavy mists rolling up from the river which lay just below the house. No one spoke, but the nurse was kneeling near the foot of the bed, and her lips were moving as though in prayer. I thinks she had grown somewhat fond of her patient, and, devout Catholic that she was, she hoped that this prayer of hers might have a happier passage to his soul.

For a time the man whose death we were watching was delirious. His eyes were wide open, but had the wild look which fever gives. He talked in disjointed phrases, and seemed, as far as we could tell, to be living over some scene or scenes of other days. He spoke of a woman, but we could not catch her name, and I think he must have spoken of her by some pet name. Taking her by surprise, his eyes suddenly took on a perfectly rational look, and we could see that he recognized us and his condition. He smiled as he saw the anxious look on our faces, and said:

"So I am going to die after all? Well, no matter. I have come to look on life merely as a necessary evil, anyhow, and I think I have the best of the bargain."

Then he turned his face towards the window, where he could see the brightening eastern sky. He looked at this for some moments, and his face grew more serious, but in his eyes was a look of intense happiness, as of one who has sought peace for a long time and is at last in the way of finding it.

"In another hour," he said, "I will be in a land where we will understand all the mysteries of sunrises and sunsets."

Turning to me, he said: "I have something to say to you. Let the doctor and the nurse go and get a little rest. They must need it badly, and I want to tell you a story and ask of you a favor."

The doctor heard him and shook his head. The end was too near for a doctor to desert his patient. Nevertheless, I succeeded in persuading both him and the nurse to go into the next room and wait until I should call them. When they had gone, the sick man bade me bring him a locket which we had taken from his neck while he was unconscious. This I gave him and he pressed it to his lips.

"This locket," he said, "is to me what a crucifix is to that devout little nurse. It is something which would have helped me in my prayers if I had ever learned to pray, and it contains that which has made me wish for a life beyond the grave.

"Inside this locket is a miniature and a lock of hair belonging to the only woman I ever loved. She sent them to me just before she died, with the message that she would wait for me on the edge of heaven until I came. I loved her more than I can tell you, and, although she was the wife of another man, our love was as pure as that of the saints."

As he spoke there was a wonderful soft light in his eyes, and my own filled with tears, for it was but a year since my wife died—the woman whom I loved so dearly that it was the only hope of rejoining her in another world that prevented going insane long ago.

"You have been very kind to me," went on the dying man. "Our acquaintance has only been a chance one, and you do not even know my name, or I yours."

This was true. I had never seen the man before he fell on the street just as he was passing me. Something in his face had attracted me, and I had taken him home with me in a cab instead of letting him be taken to the hospital. The doctor had told me from the first that there was no hope for him, but he had been in my house but a few days. While I thought of these things, he continued: "But those things matter little when one is in the presence of death. I thank you for the kindness you have shown me, and want to make one more request of you. I want you to see that this locket is buried with me." I nodded assent, and then he began the story.

"The woman whose picture is in this locket is my cousin. We were raised together in the South, and I think I loved her all my life. I never amounted to much, for I had inherited an appetite for liquor, which had been the curse of our family for generations. I did make efforts to do something, for her sake. But it was no use. Time after time I made the struggle against the appetite, and failed. Finally, while I was on a long voyage, she married. When I heard the news I went almost insane, and the letter which she sent me, in which she told me that she had married the man she did because of her father's wish and that she loved me still, only added to my grief.

"I went from bad to worse, but she still kept track of me through our relatives. A year ago she died, and while she was on her death bed she sent me this locket by one of her old servants. With the locket was a letter which said that she knew she was dying, and she wanted first to tell me that she had always loved me and would wait for me. She had always been true to her husband, who loved her very dearly, but her love was mine, and in the next world she would belong to me.

"There was a sort of exultation to me in the thought that she was dead and out of the reach of the man whom she had married. I felt that in the spirit she was mine, not his, and I no longer felt the rankings of the jealousy which had made me hate her husband, whom I had never seen.

"I am going to see her in a few minutes. My faith in this is firm. I shall die before daybreak, and I believe that she will come for me. I—"

At my call the doctor and the nurse came hastily into the room. The locket had fallen to the floor and was lying open. The dying man lay with arms outstretched towards the window. In his eyes was a look which may have been that of madness, but to me it seemed the light of a great and deep joy. The wind from off the river had strengthened and blown the mist up towards the house in great wreaths. One of these wreaths seemed to come in through the window, and in my excited fancy I gave it a woman's form. And the form was that of—

My glance fell on the face of the picture in the locket, and I, too, threw my arms wide open to embrace the wreath of mist from the river. But it had vanished. On the face of the other man was a look of supreme happiness, and I cursed him, though he was dead.

Although they kept me in the strongest cell of the madhouse, they have not taken the locket from me. I look at it all day long breathe prayers to it, and then heap curses on the head of the dead man.

The hair within the locket is soft as floss and black as night.

The picture within the locket is that of my dead wife—lost to me forever.

LONG CAREER OF MISDEEDS

James R. Campbell, Arrested Here, Known to Other Police.

James R. Campbell, alias James Strong, alias James Henderson, who was arrested here some weeks ago and held to the grand jury on the charge of attempting to defraud with a bogus warehouse receipt, is well known in police circles in other cities.

Chief Troyer has received a letter from W. G. Watts, chief inspector of the Boston police department in which it is stated that Campbell was arrested there twenty years ago on the charge of attempting to defraud a clerk in a restaurant, that he was given time to leave the city; that he was arrested in St. Paul in 1897 under the name of James Strong and was given a workhouse sentence.

In Cleveland Campbell served a 20-day sentence and paid a $50 fine for larceny.

As previously stated by The Herald, Campbell showed up at the mardi gras festivities at New Orleans, but left the city at the request of the authorities.

So far as his record is known Campbell kept clear of trouble for two years until he was arrested in Duluth. He is regarded as a dangerous man to be at large for the reason that he has been clever at avoiding punishment.

NEW YORK DEMOCRACY

Returns Not to Support of Tammany Hall.

New York, Aug. 29.—At a meeting of the Greater New York Democracy executive committee resolutions have been adopted binding the organization to abide by the decision of the fusion conference committee in the matter of a candidate for the coming mayoralty campaign. This places the organization practically in the same position which it occupied during the campaign which resulted in the election of Mayor Seth Low and disposes of the recent rumor that the organization would again return to the support of Tammany hall. The resolutions urge, however, that an independent Democrat shall be placed at the head of the city ticket.

COLLECTION OF FOSSILS.

New York, Aug. 29.—Dr. William J. Holland, director of the Carnegie museum of Pittsburg, Pa., and confidential adviser to Andrew Carnegie in things scientific, has passed through this city with what is believed to be the greatest collection of fossils, in point of species in the world today. The collection was purchased from the Baron De Boyet of Brussels, Belgium, for the Carnegie museum at a price to exceed $250,000.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Jamestown Man Bound Over on Two Serious Charges.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Jamestown—J. B. Rice, who ran amuck in Kensal about two weeks ago and threatened to kill citizens was bound over to the district court at a preliminary hearing held in Jamestown.

Two charges are preferred against him, one for threatening to kill H. A. Stinson and the other for assaulting Louis Kaelin with a dangerous weapon. Two large revolvers were captured with Rice. One of the witnesses testified that Rice sold beer illegally in Kansal, and he is likely to have a trial on that charge, also.

Rains the past week have prevented threshing and farmers who had hired crews to begin the work, have been under heavy expense. Very little wheat had been threshed in the James river valley. It is feared the grade will be affected.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Houghton People Divided on Proposed Expenditure of $100,000.

Houghton—Whether to vote to bond the village of Houghton for $100,000 for an improved waterworks system is the absorbing topic. The special election to be held Aug. 31 has brought the question to a focus, but Houghtonites seem divided. Should the money be voted the bonded indebtedness of Houghton will be more than $125,000, which some business men argue is too heavy a load for so small a town. The improvements will give Houghton a supply of pure spring water and adequate fire protection, without which the people will have to struggle along under heavy insurance rates.

Escanaba—Russel Willie and Mat Meyer, liverymen at Escanaba, who were arrested by several of the draymen of the city for having done draying work for the Potter & Rice Carnival company without a license, were found "not guilty" by the jury. It was claimed by the defense that as the carnival people were in very much of a hurry to get their goods transported and were unable to get enough draymen for the purpose in the city the defendants were justified in doing their work. This plea found favor with the jury and acquittal was the result.

Many people saw a drunken white man get well trounced by a colored woman on Ludington street, at Escanaba, the other afternoon. The man was carrying a watermelon, and as the woman passed he addressed her in an insulting manner and offered her the melon. She turned about and dealt him a number of vigorous blows over the head with an umbrella. He in turn threw the melon at her, but it missed the woman and was smashed on the sidewalk.

Menominee—Charles Young, a well-known Menominee lumber inspector, was attacked by a fierce dog in the vicinity of the woodenware factory at Escanaba the other afternoon, and only his agility saved him from being bitten by the animal. He was measuring lumber and was on his way to work when the beast attacked him, and though he escaped without a wound his clothes were badly torn by the dog's teeth and a new suit of clothes was badly tattered.

A traveling man who declined to give his name had a very disagreeable experience at Menominee this week. He arrived on the Goodrich steamer Chicago, from Escanaba, and while the boat was in port went up town. He was late in getting back to the steamer and just as he reached the dock, the boat was several feet from shore. He had a bundle in his hand which he threw on board to one of the sailors, and attempted to follow, but did not jump far enough, and fell into the river. The boat is a sidewheeler, and the revolving wheel made a swift current, carrying the man out toward the middle of the river and up stream. He knew how to swim and soon reached the dock where he was helped out of the water by one of the sailors on the schooner "Three Sisters." The traveling man had no change of clothing with him as all of his baggage was on the boat. He took a train in an endeavor to make connections with the boat at her next stopping place.

Metropolitan Junction—Lying on his bedroom floor in the home of the section foreman at Metropolitan Junction, with a smoking shotgun beside him and the top of his head blown clear off, was found the body of John Hoks, a section man, early Wednesday morning. Hoks had been working on the section for the Northwestern throughout the summer. He had been called to get ready for work, and a few minutes afterwards a loud report was heard from his room. The other men rushed in and a terrible sight met their eyes. Hoks had dressed himself in his working clothes, then loaded his shotgun with a shell containing one great wad of lead. He tied a string to the trigger of the gun and ran the string around the back guard, so that pulling the string near the muzzle of the gun would fire it. He had apparently seated himself in a chair, placed the butt of the gun on the floor between his feet, but the muzzle near his forehead, and pulled the string, taking the upper half of his head completely off. Temporary insanity is suspected.

SON OF A LORD

Son of Famous Lord Brassey Pays Visit to Duluth.

Has Been Looking Over Michigan Iron Land Interests.

T. A. Brassey, of Battle, Eng., son of Lord Brassey, the eminent builder, explorer, author and yachtsman, also of Battle, arrived this morning from the East and with Lady Brassey is at the Spalding hotel.

Lord Brassey, as the younger man now is, has been over in the northern peninsula of Michigan looking over some lands that belong to his family, his father having been largely interested in the Michigan Land and Iron company.

This company owns thousands of aacres of land in Michigan, and some valuable iron properties, as well as iron lands in Canada near the Soo. Lord Brassey has been over in Michigan several times, but this is his first visit to Duluth. He arrived over the South Shore road this morning and will leave over the Great Northern for Winnipeg and the coast this evening.

The eminent Englishman, who is president of the London—or as more properly spoken, Lunnonengland chamber of commerce—expressed a desire to get up on the ranges today to see the famous mines and iron country of Minnesota, but his time was so short that he decided not to try to make it.

Lord Brassey is interested in some English railroads, and it is said may be going to Winnipeg and the Pacific coast to look over the field for a new Pacific coast road, which has been talked on, and plans for the starting of which are now in the Canadian parliament. He is not making the visit with any publicity, and is not making public his views. He and Lady Brassey spent most of the day in their room at the hotel, though looking over Duluth somewhat. Lady Brassey, who was attired in the most pronounced tourists' walking gown of English pattern, attracted a good deal of attention when the pair came into the lobby this morning.

The name of Brassey is a revered and prominent one in England, where this Lord Brassey's father built many great government and private works. He was a contractor, and undertook some of the most gigantic construction contracts in all England, among them some pieces of railroad work which demanded great ingenuity and engineering skill. For his accomplishments, which were many, he was made Sir Thomas Brassey, and was afterwards made a peer of England. He built himself a most beautiful place at Battle, and for many years indulged in yachting. He built many yachts and Lady Brassey was also a great yachtswoman, having written some works on the subject.

Lord Brassey subjequently traveled in various portions of the world, exploring and visiting new territory and wrote a great deal upon his observations.

He was a deep scholar and learned in the arts and sciences, and his talents were not wasted, for he amassed an immense fortune in his day.

FOUNDED A TOWN

Mayor Hugo Pays Tribute to Frank Hibbing's Memory.

Is Pleased With Village's Reception to Duluth Visitors.

Mayor Hugo is feeling well pleased over the reception given the people of Duluth at Hibbing yesterday and believes that the Commercial club excursion to that place in celebration of the tenth anniversary of the village will be productive of even a better feeling than exists between the two places at the present time.

Speaking of Hibbing and its progress during the past ten years, Mayor Hugo said this morning:

"The people of Hibbing should honor the memory of Frank Hibbing, who was the first person to bring about the establishment of the village and who during his lifetime was ready at all times to work for it, and who did back the enterprise with his whole fortune. Mr. Hibbing believed firmly in the future prosperity of the village that took his name and when the people there were down-hearted he came to the front and built the Hibbing hotel, a hostery that at the time was far in advance of the needs of the place and an enterprise that his friends attempted to dissuade him from.

"He said, however, that he had confidence in the village and intended to help it out in every way possible. I believe that the building of his hotel was largely responsible for the substantial growth of the village that immediately followed its erection. People of the better class and traveling men went to Hibbing thereafter because they knew they could get good accommodations and these helped to bring business to the place.

"Frank Hibbing was a large whole souled man, a typical specimen of the men who ventured their all to make the Northwest what it is today and I believe that every citizen of the village and even all other patriotic citizens of this Northwest country will do well to drop a sympathetic tear in his memory."

DENIES HIS GUILT.

M. F. Bates Answers Government Trespass Charge.

An answer was filed yesterday afternoon in the United States district court by M. F. Bates, who is charged with cutting and removing timber from government lands in Cook county.

The defendant, together with John W. McKinley, a cruiser in the employ of the firm of Bates & McDonald, is charged with removing timber to the value of about $3000 from the lands of the government.

Both of the defendants have been released on bonds of $4000.

In the answer filed yesterday the defendant denies every allegation made in the bill of complaint, and the merits of the case will be determined by the federal grand jury, which will meet in October.

At the preliminary hearing they were bound over to the grand jury by United States Commissioner Pressnell.

BALL PLAYERS IN ACCIDENT

Peru, Ind., Aug. 29.—A Wabash train carrying the St. Louis and Cleveland American league baseball teams was wrecked early this morning at Napoleon, Ohio. Several of the players were hurt. William Sudhoff, pitcher for the St. Louis team, hand cut and wrist sprained; Sydney Mercer, secretary of the St. Louis team, rib fractured; Emma Heidrick, center fielder, right leg and face badly cut; Napoleon La Joie, Cleveland, knee sprained. Several others were bruised. Another train was made up at Peru and it is thought the team will arrive at St. Louis for the game this afternoon. The wreck was caused by the misreading of a signal.

TROOPS WERE AMBUSHED

Turkish Forces Almost Annihilated By the Insurgents.

Paris, Aug. 29.—A dispatch received by the foreign office from Morocco says that a large imperial force which was going to the relief of the troops commanded by the sultan, has been surprised and almost annihilated by insurgents. The Temps publishes details of the engagement in Morocco, showing that the imperial troops numbered 3000 men. They were ambushed with the result that over 1000 of them, including seven native governors, were killed or wounded.

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

St. Louis, Aug. 29.—Rev. Dr. Robert C. Faris, aged 77 years, former pastor of the North Presbyterian church, is dead. For many years he was editor of the St. Louis Presbyterian.

Bloomington, Ill., Aug. 29.—Francis Anthony, the oldest man in Illinois, died this morning of heart failure after a two weeks' illness. He was born in May, 1800 in Ireland. He emigrated to Canada in 1820, and was captain in the Canadian army during the French rebellion of 1837. For thirty years he has been a resident of Bloomington township.

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 29.—Joseph Haworth, actor, died suddenly in a hotel at Willoughby, Ohio, last night, of heart disease.

TOUCHED THE TILL.

Burglars Rob a Bowery Saloon's Cash Drawer.

Johnson & Johnson's saloon at 517 West Superior street, was broken open at a late hour last evening and the till touched for $23. Entrance to the place was gained through the rear of the building. A man by the name of Miller, who has been working about the bowery saloons for some time past, was arrested in Superior this morning under suspicion of being connected with the robbery and will be brought back to Duluth to face the charge.

CASHIER PARDONED.

Salvorson Would Soon Have Died In Prison.

St. Paul, Aug. 29.—The state pardon board, at a special session held this noon, granted an absolute pardon to R. K. Salvorsen, the Appleton bank cashier, who was sent to Stillwater on the reformatory plan, November 14, 1902 charged with grand larceny.

The pardon was issued on the grounds that the prisoner's health is in such a state that to keep him longer in prison would mean his death in the near future.

PRAYER OF THANKSGIVING

Offered By the Relatives of Consul Magelssen.

La Crosse, Aug. 29.—From a house bowed down with grief, the bulletin of the Associated Press of last evening, telling of Vice Consul Magelssen's escape from death, brought great rejoicing to his aged parents and brothers and sisters at their home in Highland Prairie, Minn., and upon receipt of the news the entire family knelt in a service of thanksgiving conducted by Rev. Magelssen, his brother, who resides in this city.

WILL SOON FALL

Kansas and Missouri Have Nearly Reached the Limit.

Kansas City, Aug. 29.—The local weather bureau today predicted that the Kansas river at this point would reach its greatest height this evening, when it would begin to fall slowly and that the Missouri, after rising about another foot within the next twenty-four hours, would be at a standstill. Kansas streams west of here continue to fall fast and all danger of a rise that would wreck Kansas City's brigdes seems to have passed. Men were put to work today on the James street bridge, a portion of which was washed out yesterday for the second time. The Kansas river here has gone up an additional two feet and a half since yesterday, while the Missouri has risen two feet.

HEAVY SEA ON ONTARIO.

Buffalo, Aug. 29.—A special from Niagara Falls says: A tremendous sea is running on Lake Ontario and navigation is tied up. The boats of the Niagara river line cannot make their trips between Toronto and Lewiston. The storm is the worst that has occurred on the lake in eighteen years.

HAMBURG BELLE WON FUTURITY

Race Was Run With Track Deep With Mud.

New York, Aug. 29.—Hamburg Belle won the futurity at Sheepshead bay today, Leonidas second, the Minute Man third. Time, 1:13.

New York, Aug. 29.—The steady rain makes the sixteenth Futurity today a race for 2-year-olds strong in heavy going.

This classic race will be run at Sheepshead Bay over a track so deep in mud that it will take a skilled eye to distinguish the soil-spattered silks of the winner of the six-furlong dash which will claim the attention of the world about 4 o'clock this afternoon.

At that hour the bugle will call to the post nineteen 2-year-olds, the best that America can put forth, trained to the minute for the great event. Several of the nineteen will undoubtedly not answer the call, their owners seeing slight hope of the $50,000 prize.

The stake, it is estimated, will be worth about $60,000, of which nearly $50,000 will go to the winner, the rest being distributed between the second and third horses.

The condition of the track made the odds very uncertain. Hamburg Belle, the favorite, had been considered a doubtful starter, but her trainer declared today that she would positively not be scratched. Her price will probably be 3 to 1.

The Brown entries, Broomstick and Audience, coupled in the betting, will probably be held at 5 to 1, Jockey Odom being expected to bring out Broomstick well toward the front. Deldi, belonging to J. R. Keene, is also strongly played. John E. Madden's trio, Abdel, Gettysburg and The Minute Man, carried the hopes and wagers of many.

Rain fell steadily during the afternoon and the track was soft and sticky, though not in such bad condition as forty-eight hours of storm would promise. Dove Cot was announced scratched but an added entry, Rain or Shine, again brought the field up to 19.

The weather had no apparent effect on attendance, 15,000 to 20,000 persons having arrived at 2:30 p. m., with crowds stadily passing through the gates at that hour.

HANNA REMAINS IN BED.

Cleveland, Aug. 29.—Senator Hanna, upon the advice of his physician, did not leave his bed today. While the senator has no fever, he continues somewhat weak.

NEXT RACE MONDAY.

New York, Aug. 29.—The committee of the New York Yacht club named Monday as the day for the next race. It was also decided to hold the races every day thereafter until the international contest is decided.

WHY THEY FAILED.

Of sixty-seven young men and women who took the recent state and county examinations for teachers' certificates, held in Duluth, only twenty-one, or less than 30 per cent, reached the required percentages. Practically all that applied for second-class certificates failed to pass the examination. Reports from other counties state that the percentage of those who failed in the examination was exceptionally high. As far as St. Louis county is concerned, it is the worst showing made at any examination ever held here.

What is the reason for this regrettable state of things? Some claim that the examinations were unusually trying, while others say that there were no summer schools for teachers held where they could brush up their knowledge. There is a little foundation for both excuses, but they do not answer the question. They fail to furnish the true reason—which is that they did not receive a sound education in the public schools to qualify them for the examinations. Many of those who failed to pass were high school graduates. It will doubtless be found, on an inspection of the examination papers, that many of the unsuccessful candidates were weak in the elementary branches. They were probably deficient in arithmetic, grammar, spelling and gography. They had paid but little attention to the elementary studies from the time they entered the high schools, and then they were of an age when they did not fully understand them. In the high schools the elementary studies were given scant consideration, and the result was that when they graduated they were deficient in that respect. The foundation of their education was weak, and, their knowledge of the elementary branches being poor, they were also lame in the higher studies. The result of this examination furnishes additional proof that the courses of study in the high schools need revision, so that those who graduate therefrom may go forth with greater proficiency in the fundamental studies as well as in the higher branches. Most of those who failed in the state examinations may be set down as the unfortunate victims of an educational system that is weak in important points and should and must undergo a radical revision and strengthening if the best results are to be attained.

THE STRIPED SUIT.

Great advancement has been made in recent years in the study of criminology, especially in the treatment of prisoners at the various institutions of incarceration. In the work directed to the reformation of the convict there has been wonderful improvement. No longer is he considered as a degraded outcast for whom no punishment could be too severe, but rather as an erring one, whose manhood should be awakened and a good character once more established. With all these improvements there is one relic of degradation which still exists in many institutions, and that is the striped suit. It is gratifying to learn, however, that a movement to do away with this awful humiliation is well under way, the last convert to the plan being the state prison of New Jersey, where the striped clothing for the prisoners has recently been abolished. In giving his reasons for this change the warden said:

"I have never believed that you made a man any better by degrading him. The stripes did degrade. They broke their spirits down for good and all, sent them out into the world when their punishment was over either hardened criminals who would sin again from choice, or weaklings who would not have the strength to withstand temptation. I asked the board to abolish the stripes, and they have gone. Before deciding on the new uniform I wrote to most of the prisons in the country and received samples of the material they were using. I was surprised to find that so many prisons had abolished marked clothing. None of the wardens seemed to find serious objections to the new unstriped order of things. Several of them advanced other argument in its favor. For instance, it gives us a new and powerful form of punishment. If a prisoner does not behave we can put him into stripes, which lowers and degrades him in the eyes of the other prisoners."

This reform should speedily be adopted at all penal institutions. The striped suit is an antiquated custom and has long outlived its usefulness.

The general manager of one of the land companies attacked by the agent of the Indian Rights association in his recent report of alleged frauds, says his company intends to sue the association for libel. A suit of that character would bring out a good deal of interesting information regarding the exact status of that company at least.

The Buffalo Express suggests that perhaps when Grover Cleveland commended Joseph Pulitzer's school of journalism as an institution calculated to teach newspaper men to be more considerate of public men, he was thinking of the time when a World reporter asked his opinion of Charles A. Dana—and printed it.

A Chicago physician declares that love is a disease. A Chicago man should be good authority on the subject.

WORRIED LEADERS.

That many of the Republican leaders see danger in a prolonged session of congress is manifest in their opposition to any extra session this fall. They are trying to influence the president to do away with the extraordinary session and they desire the Fifty-eighth congress to adjourn as early as possible. The existing scandals in the great departments of the government will furnish abundant material for the Democratic campaign and the leaders do not want the party in control placed on the defensive any longer than possible. They do not care particularly what legislation may really be needed. As a matter of fact they will not allow any radical measures to be passed on the eve of a presidential election. The old political fighters want to see congress over as soon as possible, and with the least possible business done.

On the other hand, there are prominent Republican senators like Aldrich of Rhode Island, who are in close touch with the business interests of the East, who would like to at least do something in the way of financial legislation, although they are fully aware that nothing like extensive tariff reform is possible. The president knows what the country needs and he earnestly desires to play fair with the voters, although this policy may afford to the opposition party in congress the opportunity to make capital. But he is embarrassed by the situation that confronts him. The fact of the matter is there is so much personal jealousy and bad feeling among some of the Republican senators and between the senate finance committee and the house ways and means committee that it will require all of Roosevelt's tact and ability to get through even the limited special legislation that he desires.

The outside public does not really appreciate the bitter feeling that some of these Republican senators have toward each other. To those who watched the statehood fight last year it was a patent fact. It is safe to say that anything that Senator Aldrich wants Senator Quay will oppose. He has had it in for Aldrich ever since the latter voted against his admission to the senate, and Quay is a man who neither forgives nor forgets. Quay's friends tell the president that Aldrich is not his friend, and that he is entirely too close to certain big Wall street interests to be in a position to suggest legislation that will help the party in the country.

As a matter of fact the Republican leaders are worried. They realize that Senator Gorman, who will lead the minority in the next congress, is a most able organizer and fighter and they are a little shaky as to results.

THE VENEZUELAN CLAIMS.

The seven commissions which are now engaged in adjusting the claims of various countries against Venezuela, are making satisfactory progress with their work. Each commission consists of a representative of Venezuela, one of the claimant country and a third who acts as umpire. The commission for the United States has forty-six claims before it, involving about $3,000,000, or about one-eighth of the total involved in the claims of all nations. Conservative judges now estimate that the valid claims will amount o about $9,000,000, of which the United States will have a larger share than her percentage of the approximate claims. In numbers of cases the Italians lead, having submitted over 200 claims. This grows out of the colonies of Italian subjects living at various points throughout Venezuela, most of whom are peddlers and small farmers; their claims are usually for horses, cattle, or chickens which have been carried off during the frequent revolutions. In much the same way the Spanish claims may be described. Germany's interest arises chiefly out of the failure of the Venezuelans to pay the debt on the Valencia railroad line, on which there was a German investment of $10,000,000 and a present claim of about one-fifth as much. The French claims have generally grown out of interference with the properties of French subjects, largely Corsicans who have settled in Venezuela. The Dutch claims have grown out of their ownership of the large waterworks supplying the city of Caracas, with which there has been interference of one sort or another. The chief British claim is based on Venezuelan interference with the rather celebrated railroad which connects the seaport Laguira with Caracas, a distance of six miles, but having so much perpendicular elevation in it as to require the railroad to traverse twenty-six miles in making the journey.

The Venezuelans have ample resources to pay all the claims the commissions will award. The income of the republic from all sources is but little less than $10,000,000 per annum, a sum which it is surmised could be considerably increased by honest administration. Her annual budget is about $7,000,000, leaving a handsome margin with which to pay foreign debts or provide for emergencies. The Venezuelans are an ungrateful lot and seldom pay a debt until forced to do so. The United States, and representatives of our government, have on many occasions done them substantial service, notably when the Cleveland administration took a vigorous stand to make sure that no territory along the border line between Venezuela and Guiana fell under the rule of Great Britain. And yet the Venezuelans of the politician class are supremely suspicious of the United States. However, the better classes realize that they must treat the Americans well in the present settlement, and thus far there has been no cause for complaint.

The supreme court of South Carolina has awarded damages to a man who was put off a railroad train for refusing to pay the extra fare demanded as a penalty for not buying a ticket before he got on the train. As the extra fare may usually be recovered at any ticket office, it would seem that, whatever the law, the case was not worth contesting.

That there are 15,600 flour mills in the country; some grind out 200 barrels of flour a day, others 8000 barrels a day. That the wheat supply of the world is not always up to the consumption; we have to draw upon our reserve wheat, for there are 540,000,000 bread-eaters in the world today, requiring 2,310,000,000 bushels of wheat to supply their needs. Two years ago there were not 2,000,000,000 bushels harvested; this year, if all goes well, there will be 2,540,000,000 bushels. Our own crop will be, we hope, about 640,000,000 bushels, raised from 40,000,000 acres. The mills of the world grind about 360,000,000 barrels of flour a year.

That the Red River valley spring wheat makes the best flour in the world. Four and a half bushels of wheat make a barrel of flour, and a barrel of flour makes 325 pounds of bread—the finest on earth.

That upon that building, in the quarries where the granite was cut for its exterior, and in the mills and shops where the steel and other work is being gotten ready for it, there are, all told, some 430 men daily engaged in pushing it towards completion.

HOTEL GOSSIP

"It was too bad that Sir Thomas couldn't get even a showing—"

"Who could blame him for deciding to cease the strife for the cup—"

"Yes, he's right. If he followed that bent long cuough, he would end broke—"

"I would rather be broke, maybe, than return to Ireland a bachelor—"

"He didn't say that he wouldn't wed if he lost; just that he would if he won—"

By that time the clerk had his bill made out, and the guest maintained a silence for a few moments, looking at the bill and then at the clerk back of the grating.

"What is this?"

"This is $137.32," said the clerk.

"Cash or time?"

"Time—about five minutes or we lock up your baggage."

"Yes," sighed the Old Sport, as he sank down in one of the leather-seated armchairs at the St. Louis and pulled at his old dudeen. "I owe the state of South Dakota in the neighborhood of $42,000 in money, though they have never put in a claim for it, or suggested in other than an informal way that I pay any part.

"Over in that state there is a $10 penalty attached to the shipping of the prairie chickens out of the state, in numbers more than a certain prescribed amount.

"Well, when we were over there, shooting, we were shipping into Winona for storage there till the switch could be made. Our birds came in small consignments, billed through to Brooking, just inside the state line, and our deal with the expressman was to send them through to Winona, after tearing the tags off, if they got by Brooking without being pawed over by a game warden.

"The game warden seemed to be watching for it, and as soon as the Dakota city was passed, he simply walked up into the baggage car and pulled the tags off the boxes and kicked them out of the doors, without looking at the address at all. So when the matter came up for hearing in the morning, he was found to be in the wrong, though he maintained that someone had changed the tags during the night.

"Well, the occasion made him doubly suspicious. The next consignment was a big one to go down. We packed up several boxes with mud, and had several hundred chickens in sacks. We put them on a water tank, along the track, and when the engine stopped for water, we piled them on the tender of the engine, and slipped the engineer and fireman a few and something for their trouble, and got through fine.

"The game warden waited till the train was past Brooking, when he took up his position in the baggage car and confiscated the boxes, which he took off the train at the next station.

"Later, I suppose, he discovered what was in the boxes.

"Before the close of the season we had sent 4200 birds to Winona, and figuring them at $10 apiece, I presume I owe the state of South Dakota $42,000.

"However, the state needn't worry over it."

"H. W. Sack and party of eight boys," registered at the Hotel McKay last evening, and stayed from supper time till the 11:15 train for the Twin Cities, where the boys reside, nearly all in well known family residences.

"They have been to Lake Pokegama for the last two months, having established a camp by the same name as the lake, and they have been under the discipline of Mr. Stack, who is the principal of the Rice school, St. Paul. The members of the party, of the junior division, were Ira Baer, Ray Broughton, Robert Foulke, Walter Goodrich, Albert Johnson, Edward Small and Jack Sneve of St. Paul; Asa Marshall of Minneapolis and Donald Paddock of Milwaukee. The eldest was 15 years old.

"The lads are brown and healthy looking, and they all carried their packs on their backs when they started for the train last night. If they hadn't been able to get a sleeper, they would have planted in the aisles. They all carried bundles of arrows they got from the Indians, and there are several fine marksmen among them now. The boys and their teacher took several jaunts from camp, and traveled around through the adjoining country, making Pokegama their headquarters.

All the boys are sons of well known parents of the Twin Cities and Malwaukee.

"I see that Duluth and the ranges will have a woman engineer," said a mining man at the Spalding this morning.

"A young woman by the name of Miss Lota Foss will be graduated from the university department of engineering this coming year, and her inclinations are toward the mining work.

"I have understood that she intends coming up to the iron country to apply her knowledge to the iron mining industry, and will be the pioneer in this work for the Minnesota ranges, though I believe there have been women mining engineers in some of the Northwestern mining communities, and they have generally been quite successful."

She Was Looking Too.

One of the Missouri exchanges tells this story: "A man living near Marceline came over and reported to Superintendent W. A. Patrick of the Macon asylum that his wife had run away, and as she was not in the best of intellectual health he suspected she might have been apprehended by the asylum people. Mr. Patrick gave him permission to examine his patients. There was a large, fleshy woman who wore curls. She was known as the old maid of the institution, and was proud of the distinction. The Marceline man looked at her searchingly, as if he were undecided as to whether she was the missing woman or not. The maiden with curls returned his stare and asked bluntly:

"'Now, what do you want, I'd like to know.'

"'I—I lost my—my wife and was looking—'

"'Glory! So'm I,' shouted the suspect. 'Been looking for a man night on forty years,' and she started toward him, with the light of a long deferred hope in her eyes. He backed off and got out of danger."

Where Are the Injunctions?

Springfield Republican: Federal injunctions are still outstanding against the so-called meat trust; but if there has been any material reduction in prices from the advance of two years ago which stirred up a furious agitation against the trust, consumers in this part of the country do not know much about it. Now the packers are reported to have determined upon another advance. Therefore let a few more injunctions issue.

THE WEATHER.

DOMESTIC PLEASANTRIES.

Chicago Tribune: "Were you out driving yesterday?"

"Yes; out $6 for the rig. The girl told me she was engaged to another fellow."

New York Sun: Newlywed—Do you think you can help me to economize?

Mrs. Newlywed—Oh, John, I never told you before. I can do my own manicuring.

Detroit Free Press: "What is the best powder for babies?" asked the woman.

"Gunpowder," absently replied the druggist, who had been up all night with his own.

Philadelphia Press: "Now, that we are married, dear," said the bridegroom, "you have a serious task before you."

"Why, George, what is it?"

"You must prove to my three sisters that you are worthy of me."

Somerville Journal: Nell—So she's engaged at last. She seems likely to beat us all in the matrimonial race.

Belle—Yes. At any rate, she told me she was on her last lap this time.

Kansas City Journal: "Grace is greatly worried. She can't decide where to go on her bridal tour."

"When is she to be married?"

"The date hasn't been fixed yet."

"Whom is she going to wed?"

"That's another detail that is yet to be arranged. But she has her trousseau all planned."

There was a young woman of Sault
Who longed for a lover to wault;
She got one, but he,
Alas! was "N. G."
Which made her feel awfully blault.

WHAT WE ALL THINK.

That age was older once than now,
In spite of locks untimely shed,
Or silvered on the youthful brow;
That babes make love and children wed.

That sunshine had a heavenly glow,
Which faded with those "good old days"
When winters came with deeper snow,
And autumns with as ofter haze.

That mother, sister, wife or child—
The "best of women" each has known.
Were school boys ever half so wild?
How young the grandpapas have grown.

That but for this our souls were free,
And but for that our lives were blest;
That in some season yet to be
Our cares will leave us time to rest.

Whene'er we groan with ache or pain—
Some common ailment of the race—
Though doctors think the matter plain—
That ours is a "peculiar case."

That when like babes with fingers burned
We count one bitter maxim more,
Our lesson all the world has learned,
And men are wiser than before.

That when we sob o'er fancied woes,
The angels hovering overhead
Count every pitying drop that flows,
And love us for the tears we shed.

That when we stand with tearless eye
And turn the beggar from our door
They still approve us when we sigh,
"Ah had I but one thousand more."

Though temples crowd the crumbled brink
O'er hanging truth's eternal flow,
Their tablets bold with what we think,
Their echoes dumb to what we know.

That one unquestioned text we read,
All doubt beyond, all fear above,
Nor crackling pile nor cursing creed,
Can burn or blot it; God is love.
—OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES.

Painful Uncertainty in the 400.

New York Letter: Though everyone knew that the invitations sent out by Mrs. Astor for her cotillion on Monday night were comparatively general, much surprise seems to have been exhibited when it was realized that two or three persons in particular had been invited to her Newport home, who, speaking frankly, could not be considered more than within the pale of society. Had this occurred at any of the other fashionable functions it would have attracted little comment, but when Mrs. Astor, the recognized leader of society, fails to draw a line there appears a possibility that that line, which formerly excluded the so-called "impossible," may become obliterated, leaving society in a quandary as to whom to invite to the larger entertainments.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Save your pennies and the stock market will take care of your pounds.

A man never gets too old to thrill at the memory of some one certain garter.

There is more pride in having the other fellow wrong than in being right yourself.

When a woman looks well in mourning for her husband it is a sign she is likely to get another man.

Not to Be Sneezed At.

Cincinnati Commercial Tribune: The czar of all the Russias sneezed thrice. It was a good, resounding sneeze, and it echoed through the quiet palace for several moments. "Aeschzikistlvitch—ohiutchskiodinski!" Ere the last echo had died seventeen palace officials were lined up before him. "Did you call me, your majesty?" they asked in a chorus. It is a wise Russian who takes no chances when his name is mentioned.

A Shrewd Client.

Glasgow Times: Lawyer—I must know the whole truth before I can successfully defend you. Have you told me everything?

Prisoner—Yes, everything, 'cept where I hid the money, and I want that for myself!

GEN. HUMIDITY.

annBOGSx huubu g-bu:f'—
And you for breath are panting;
When you are sluggish and morose,
A smile to no one granting;
When you complain
With grief and pain
Of most intense torridity,
You know then who
Is after you—
'Tis Gen. Humidity.

He is a most cardonic cuss,
Who often tries to roll us,
And sometimes, even, to slaughter us
By trying to parboil us.
The air he fills

Mankind with great rapidity.
On earth, in air,
He's everywhere—
Old Gen. Humidity.

We do not mind the glowing sun,
That tries to broil and bake us;
As long as days are cooked well done
Sweet hope will not forsake us;
But when they're stewed,
And life's imbued
With stupidest stupidity,
We curse the day
That brings this way

American Notions in Cuba.

Philadelphia Record: The Cuban land owners who have raised the price of their acres lying in the zones to be leased to the United States for the establisament of naval stations cannot be accused of hostility to this country. The greed of money manifests itself right here at home when a site is desired for any federal, state or local institution. By the argument applied to the Cubans, the American owners of land wanted for public purposes would be enemies of the union or their city or state.

Their Return.

Brooklyn Eagle: "Now, Jennie," quoth Mrs. Poore, as she descended to breakfast, "have you thoroughly mastered that story about the Italian marquis falling in love with you at Narragansett pier this summer?"

"And, Mary," to her second daughter, "you haven't forgotten all the details of the flirtation with the New York millionaire that I took so much pains to coach you up in? Remember, it happened while we were at Saratoga."

"I'll not forget, mamma."

"Of course, John, you'll bear in mind that you became engaged to a California heiress at Newport?"

"Trust in me, mother."

"Well, if you all know your parts," and Mrs. Poore breathed a sigh of relief, "I suppose we may as well get home today. The Upppertens next door arrived yesterday. After dinner, John, you get those empty trunks out of the barn and have them brought around to the front door by an express wagon. Then we'll open the shutters and get a breath of fresh air. It's been insufferably close in here all summer and we'll all be glad to get outdoors again. Be sure and gush a great deal, girls, about the charming time we've had at the seashore."

Real Leadership.

Washington Star: "Did you say that I had dropped out of public life?" asked the man who had met with political defeat.

"I believe that form of expression was used," replied the interviewer.

"Young man, you have made a mistake. I have not dropped. I have ascended to a high plane of economic thought which the plodding masses have not reached. But the separation is only temporary. All I need to do is to sit here and fish a while and let the public catch up to me."

No Place For Cheap Charity.

Philadelphia Press: "Sir," began the beggar, approaching a promenader on Bongton square, "I am in distress—"

"Here's a nickel for you," said the promenader, proffering the coin.

"Pardon me," replied the beggar scornfully, "but I cannot accept anything less than a dime on a fashionable street like this."

Royalty Outclassed.

Chicago Chronicle: Leopold of Belgium has been visiting Paris again, but since American steel trust magnates have begun patronizing the French capital his majesty's arrival arouses relatively small interest among the champagne merchants and members of the chorus.

HAVE FINE TIME

Duluth Excursionists Get Royal Welcome From Hibbing People.

Participate In the Festivities and View Great Mines.

The three days' carnival in celebration of Hibbing's tenth anniversary was brought to a successful close in that village last evening.

Yesterday was Duluth day and the festivities were participated in by 200 Commercial club excursionists from this city who reached Hibbing on a special train about 11 o'clock in the morning. The very disagreeable weather here yesterday was responsible for changing the plans of at least a hundred other people who would have gone had it been more pleasant, but the people of Hibbing were delighted to welcome the crowd that did go and expressions of their appreciation were made by many of the representative business men of the hustling range village.

The Duluth contingent, headed by the Third regiment band, was met at the depot in Hibbing by a large crowd and the Ely and Hibbing bands. The visitors were taken in charge by the reception committee, comprised of Fred Twitchell, R. F. Berdie, J. B. Connors, J. A. Redfern, John Cox, Thomas Godfrey and Patrick Ryan and escorted to the new Power's Opera house, where from the balcony, the key of the village, a large gilded and beribboned wooden key, was formally presented by Mayor Frank Dear, to Mayor Hugo, of Duluth.

Martin Hughes, a prominent attorney of Hibbing made the welcoming speech in a very graceful manner, expressing the pleasure of his fellow citizens in the honor of having the first excursion ever sent out from Duluth to a range town celebration, and emphasizing the good feeling that exists between the village of Hibbing and the city of Duluth.

Mayor Hugo responded for the city of Duluth with one of his happy speeches in which he congratulated the village on its fine growth in the past ten years and the prospects for its continued prosperity. He also commented on the friendly spirit that the people of Duluth feel not only toward Hibbing, but all of the range towns, and assured the Hibbingites that the Duluth contingent participating in the celebration would make themselves completely at home.

E. L. Millar, vice president of the Commercial club, responded to the welcome in behalf of that organization, with an appropriate speech touching upon the mutual business and commercial relations in the future. He said that Hibbing must of a necessity continue to prosper, and that her prosperity would in a certain measure contribute prosperity to the city of Duluth.

After the speeches the crowd scattered to various points of interest, every courtesy being accorded the Duluth visitors.

In the early afternoon there was a regular pilgrimage out to the mines surrounding Hibbing, most of the visitors going out to the famous Mahoning mine. Mayor Hugo, City Clerk Cheadle and E. L. Millar were the guests of Mayor Dear for a drive out to the big open mine.

In the late afternoon there were horse races and various other forms of sport and the Third regiment band gave an open air concert from the balcony of the new opera house, that was greatly appreciated.

The Two Harbors ball team won out from the Hibbing Eagles by a close score of 7 to 4, a large and enthusiastic crowd witnessing the game.

The festivities closed in the evening with a grand masque ball at the new opera house, where the queen of the carnival, Miss Jessie Grant, a young lady residing at Chisholm, winning that honor in the voting contest from three popular young women in Hibbing, was crowned. The total vote cast was 10,-998 and Miss Grant turned in 4897 of these.

Her ability as a vote getter was demonstrated when she boarded the excursion train at Iron Junction with her mother yesterday morning. It was a shrewd move that the Hibbing delegates had not suspected and Miss Grant, piloted through the train by Tilton Lewis, of the St. Louis hotel, secured practically the solid vote of the Duluth crowd.

The carnival queen was crowned by Mayor Dear and presented with a valuable diamond ring.

The street decorations were remarkably good, a triumphal arch bearing the welcome sign being placed across the street near the depot. Several of the principal business corners had large arches for illuminations and the electrical display at night was a beautiful one, the entire business part of the city being in a blaze of light. Long strings of incandescent lights hung from the top of the flag pole on the fire house tower almost to the second floor the effect being visible many miles from Hibbing.

Duluth city and St. Louis county officers were pretty well represented, Mayor Hugo and City Clerk Cheadle representing the city government and Auditor Hulden, Treasurer Whipple, Judge of Probate Middlecoff, Register of Deeds Palmer, Clerk of Court Johnson and Sheriff Butchart representing the county. Vice President Millar and Secretary Eva represented the Commercial club.

All the way up to Hibbing the weather indications were not the best, but while it was raining in Duluth yesterday it did not rain in Hibbing, though the day was rather cold and dark.

The Commercial club officials handled the excursion with every degree of comfort possible for the participants. Although the train did not reach Duluth on the return trip until nearly 2 o'clock this morning, arrangements had been made for street cars to carry those who lived in the East End and Lakeside out to their homes.

Hibbing is ten years old. It was incorporated as a village in the fall of 1893, but was not organized until the following spring. Although there are noticeable evidences of crudeness that must of necessity mark every new community, Hibbing has within a few years assumed some metropolitan airs. The village has its full quota of churches, banks, business establishments, etc., and is still growing. It is claimed that at least eighty-five new buildings have gone up within the last year in the southern addition to Hibbing, and new homes dot other parts of the village almost as thickly. The village owns its own water and light plant and has a sewerage system extending pretty well over the residence portion of the place. New sidewalks are being built in every direction.

Hibbing, like the other range towns, owes its existence to the discovery of iron ore, followed by explorations and operations on a large scale. Drills have gone into mother earth in every direction out of Hibbing and ore has been discovered under nearly every drill. It is claimed that the village itself is located on top of an iron ore bed over 200 feet deep, the city water coming at a depth below the ore.

When Hibbing was platted a continuous forest fire reached over Northern Minnesota. The work of clearing began in June, 1893, everything being used coming in there by wagon. In 1894 the march of civilization brought the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road to the village and made possible railway facilities and better communication with the outside world. The Great Northern road reached Hibbing in 1895, being known at that time as the Wright & Davis road, or the Swan River Logging road.

From the date of the advent of the railroads, Hibbing flourished. At the first village election held in the spring of 1894, F. J. Twitchell was elected president, Mayor Dear, the present incumbent is the twelfth executive officer the village has had in ten years.

Mining is the chief industry of Hibbing, though her lumber trade is a factor. There are in the immediate vicinity of Hibbing about thirty mines, and others are to be opened soon. The mines surrounding Hibbing are for the most part underground, although a few are shovel properties. The Mahoning mine is still the largest open proposition there, in fact in the world, but it is predicted that the Albany mine will be still larger.

Five mines on the Mesaba range, last year, shipped over a million tons of ore each. This year one more will enter the same class and it is estimated that the total ore production for 1903 will be 7,-250,000 tons. The six large mines mentioned are the Mahoning, Stevenson, Adams, Mountain Iron, Fayal and Biwabik. The Burt mine at Hibbing is just about ready to enter the class of million ton shippers.

"QUALITY"

This is our Motto. Thorough Practical Business Training, Fitting the Student for First-class Bank or Office Service

OUR DECLARATION OF EDUCATIONAL PRINCIPLES.

WE cheerfully subscribe to the following declaration of principles for the education of the young of today, namely:

FIRST—The mastering of a few branches is far better than the smattering of many.

SECOND—A full course in our school is worth a great deal more to the young man or young woman in after life than a partial course in a High School, Academy, College or University.

THIRD—In this commercial age, a business education is the most important and practical of all knowledge.

There is ready and easy money in a practical business education — the competent and reliable means of a comfortable and respectable sustenance —the success of our graduates as bookkeepers and stenographers proves it every day. There is a constant and ever growing demand for trained young men and women in the business world. Good paying positions are always open — the demands for trained business help is ever in excess of the supply. The applicant's salary is regulated by what he or she knows. Knowledge today is power, more so than it has ever been at any period of the world's history. The young man or young woman who lacks practical training in this day and age must know that there is no place for him or her in the business world—every door is shut, and they are forced to take a place in the ranks of manual labor, which is little short of "white slavery," whose jostling lines are now over-crowded because of the teeming thousands that are unfitted to do anything else. The ways and means for living in free America is becoming more and more a serious question. It is not so much how you make a living, as, how are your sons and daughters to make a living for themselves and their children? By that time you may have passed from the scene of action. There is no assured competency in "left money," bequeathed lands, stocks and bonds. With one fell swoop these are oftimes swept away—and the idol of a once comfortable home left penniless upon a cold and uncharitable world. Then the greatest legacy that a father or mother can leave to their child is a practical business education that will fit them for first class service in the business world.

In the consideration of schools, we court investigation and invite critical examination into the merits of our school and shall be pleased to refer you to graduates who are now holding good paying positions, and prove to you that the demand for our finished students is greater than we can supply; in addition to this we will cheerfully refer you to the leading banks, business houses and professional men in the Northwest as to the quality of our work and thoroughness in the preparation of our students and their acceptable competency when finished.

THE QUEEREST HOTEL.

What is probably the queerest of hotels has been discovered by a Minnesota man while traveling in Iowa, says the New York Times. The rooms, instead of being numbered are named after the states, and the landlord assigns his guests to them according to their characteristic. The Minnesotan relates his experience thus:

"I was assigned a room called Delaware. It was correctly named, too, for it was one of the smallest rooms in the house. A man who was occupying New Hampshire made complaint to the landlord that the man in Maine was drunk and boisterous and was thus keeping him awake. This seems strange when we recall that Maine is a prohibition state. Two men in Montana were keeping up the reputation of the wild West by indulging in a noisy poker game. A big capitalist had New York, which was the best room in the house. The Alabama was too ordinary for anything, and a farmer was occupying it the night I was there.

"It was funny to stand in the office and hear the bellboy tell the clerk that towels were wanted in Iowa and soap in Minnesota, and that the man in North Dakota was kicking like a steer because he had no fire. 'Send two Manhattan cocktails up to Mississippi,' was one of the orders that the clerk gave. 'Be sure to call the man in Florida at 5 o'clock in the morning,' said one of the employes. And thus it went.

"The man who slept in Texas complained of scorpions and hairy spiders and the man occupying Nebraska suffered from drought nearly all night."

SNAKE BITE CURED.

In 1882 a discovery of quartz in Southern California started the Calico district with a boom, says the New York Sun. The name was taken from the color of the rock of the country. The newspaper of the town of Calico was the Calico Print. It was in the country of rattlesnakes, cactus and horned toads. These rattlesnakes were of the kind known as "sidewinders," owing to their method of locomotion.

John Daggett was candidate then for Lieutenant governor of California, with General Stoneman for governor. Daggett had a large outfit, and in charge was a most veracious man, who tells this story about "sidewinders." It was summer time, few cabins and houses had been built, most of the men sleeping in brush tents put up in the beds of dry arroyos.

A mile or more from Daggett's camp was a saloon, and to this one evening went Jim Hard and George Peard, two of the miners, to load up. They returned late at night, George very full and Jim comfortably loaded. George fell into his bunk in their brush tent, but immediately jumped up, calling out that he had been bitten by a rattlesnake. Jim in his drunken wisdom, knew what to do. He took Peard over to a nearby woodpile, and there, with a hatchet, chopped off the index finger of his left hand where Peard claimed the rattler had struck him.

Up at the mine office was stopping that night a doctor, who was soon called. Upon examination of the detached finger he declared that it had not been bitten by a rattlesnake. Further investigation showed that Peard, in falling into his bunk, had made the leaves rattle and struck his finger against a sharp point.

It is on record in Calico that Peard did not get drunk again for a month.

Rain at All Northern League Points Prevents Contests.

Burns of Crookston Swats Umpire McLaughlin In a Row.

Not a game was played in the Northern league yesterday, rain interfering at all points.

This afternoon the Superior and Duluth teams are playing on the Duluth side of the bay. Tomorrow afternoon the teams will play at Superior.

Fargo is playing at Crookston today and Winnipeg at Grand Forks.

Umpire McLaughlin has now fallen out with the Crookston team, and can hardly have a friend left in the Northern league. Burns, of the Crookston team, got into an argument with him, from which McLaughlin emerged with a black eye and a thirst for revenge. It was somewhat assuaged by Manager Lycan, who assessed all the players concerned in the affair $25 each, and Burns an additional $25 for the privilege of swatting the umpire. It is said that McLaughlin may have Burns brought into court also.

NEARING CLOSE

Amateur Baseball Season Is Rapidly Nearing the End.

Has Been Unusually Active—Freimuths' Claim the Championship.

The amateur baseball season in Duluth is rapidly drawing to a close, and but a very few games remain to be played.

A handsome pennant has been ordered by the management of the wholesalers' league, and it will be presented to the Kelley-How-Thomson team when completed. This team will be entitled to hold the pennant for one year, and it will again be contested for next season.

No amateur games will be played today in the city on account of wet grounds. One or two of the teams have games scheduled for next Saturday and Sunday, and these will probably be the last seen in Duluth this year.

Never before has amateur baseball taken such a hold on local athletes as during the past year, and never has the number of teams been as large.

The Freimuth team lays claim to the amateur championship of the city, and while this claim has not been entirely established, it is probably as firmly based as that of any of the other nines. The team has had a very successful season, defeating the majority of its city opponents, and its greatest rival, the Big Duluth nine.

The Big Duluth team has also won the majority of its games this season, and the members have been playing fast ball throughout he year. The games with the Freimuth team were the principal events of the year, and they were closely contested.

The independent Marshall-Wells team, which was a separate organization from the one playing in the wholesale league, had a late start, but was very successful, winning all of the games it has played, and defeating the crack Two Harbors nine.

The West Duluth team was very successful during the early part of the season, but fell down on the last few games played, owing to the absence of several of their men.

The Eagles, Millers, Duluth Heights and Lakeside teams have played fewer games than the other city teams, but have had a successful year. The Millers made a strong showing during the early part of the season and have won the majority of their games, although they have not played many during the past month.

The employes of the Steel corporation also turned out four fast nines, but as they played no games with outside teams their strength could not be judged.

Of the outside teams, Cloquet and Two Harbors are easily the pick, and the former has proved a Waterloo for more than one aspiring local aggregation. The Two Harbors nine, however, sprung a surprise on the Cloquet men and trimmed them in a fast game by the score of 8 to 5.

Lake Nebagamon, Heyward, Kenosha, Calumet, Hibbing and Houghton teams have also been met by local nines with more or less success.

Sailing Races to Finally Determine Winners In Classes.

Lake Cruise Will Be the Next Feature of the Yacht Club.

The final heat in the series of races for the championships in the various classes of boats of the Duluth Yacht club, is being held this afternoon in the harbor.

The heat last Saturday was to have been the final, but the light wind prevented the boats from finishing inside the scheduled time, and another heat was rendered necessary.

In class A, Siren has won first place, but second place is still undecided. Mildred J., Arenetta and Water Lily are contesting this afternoon for that position.

In class C, Fritz has been the only boat entered in all of the races, and she wins the first position.

The class D event is still undecided, and the only two boats in this class are sailing again this afternoon. Sweetheart and Stroller are the two boats entered, and each has won a heat.

The heat today will bring the racing season of the club to a close, and it is the intention of the members to take at least one lake cruise before the season ends. The fleet will go down the lake to Two Harbors or some other port, and the members of the club will take two or three days' for the outing if necessary.

The season of the club has been a very successful one, and more interest has been taken in the races than during any previous year.

Next season there will be a number of additional boats in the field. Several have already been ordered, which will be built by the club and sold to the members at cost. The majority of the new boats are to be built on the general lines of the kip Jack, which promises to become a popular type among the members. The boats of this class are inexpensive, easily handled, and fast.

IS TAKING WELL

Plan For All Graduate Football Team Finds Much Favor.

Team Would Play But Two or Three Games During Year.

Arrangements are progressing steadily for the formation of Duluth's all-star and all-graduate football team, and chances for the appearance of such a team in the field during the coming season appear to be bright.

The promoters of the idea have been quietly talking it up for the past two weeks, and several old-time players have signified their willingness to appear on the gridiron once more. Several others are considering the matter, and the personnel of the team will probably be known within the course of two or three weeks.

As soon as the high school players get together, a practice game will be arranged for, and then an attempt will be made by the management to make dates with one or two outside teams.

It is the intention to play but two or three games during the season, aside from practice games, as the majority of the men are employed in the offices and wholesale houses of the city, and would be unable to leave their work oftener than two or three times during the football season.

University men in the city who have been heard to express an opinion in the matter are all in favor of the project, and the team will meet with a hearty reception from Duluth people. Hitherto Duluth has been represented by but one team, that of the school, and games between rival city teams have been lacking.

The project of the formation of a general athletic club, of which the football team was intended to be a nucleus, has also many supporters, and if the football team proves to be a success, there is little doubt but that Duluth will have a central athletic organization during the coming winter, which will take up all the sports neglected by other organizations, such as lacrosse, hockey, football and baseball.

An effort is being made to secure Dr. Park to coach the football team this fall, but he has not yet decided whether to accede to the request or not.

New York, Aug. 29.—A report received here today says the British ship Charles R. Whitney from Rouen for New York is ashore near Execution rocks in Long Island sound, opposite New Rochelle.

CONDENSED MILK TRUST.

New York, Aug. 29.—It is believed that the culmination of the long projected combination of condensed milk producers will be reached through the incorporation of a new company, articles for which have just been filed at Trenton, N. J., by a New York law firm. The capital is placed at $1,500,000. The concern will be known as the Union Condensed Milk company.

O'DEA HAS LEFT

Leaves For Madison to Begin Training of University Men.

Leaves Some Finely Developed Material In Duluth Boat Club.

Coach O'Dea of the Duluth Boat club left Thursday for Madison, where he will have charge of the Wisconsin university crew during the coming season.

During the six weeks that he has been in charge of the local crew he has accomplished wonders. He found a number of old-time stars and a wealth of good material, but no semblance of a crew. He left the boat club with at least two good fours and a number of doubles, which promise to give a good account of themselves next year in any regattas they may enter.

Several good single shell men have also been developed and the members of the club have taken a keen interest in the sport.

There will be but "little doing" in rowing during the remainder of the season and the men will go out of training. They will continue to practice along the lines that O'Dea has laid down, but no more races will be held.

Next year the men hope to enter crews in several regattas in neighboring cities, and possibly hold a regatta in Duluth, to which crews from the vicinity will be invited.

This year the finances of the club were depleted by the erection of the new club house, and did not allow of any further outlay for sending the crews away. Neither were the crews in a condition to successfully compete with crews from the Twin Cities, or Chicago, and it was thought best to abandon all plans for racing during the present season.

A competent coach will be engaged next year, however, and with the thorough training the men have received from O'Dea, they will doubtless be heard from on Lake Minnetonka, or in any regattas they may enter.

THE LABOR WORLD

Report of Labor Day Committee Presented to Assembly.

Henry Perault Will Be the Marshal of the Day.

At last night's meeting of the trades' assembly little was done except to hear the report of the Labor day committee, which was to the effect that preparations are well-nigh complete, and that there will be nothing lacking in the details when the day dawns.

The committee reported that the division marshals will be H. Dworschak of the Typographical union; Timothy Timlin of the Tinners' union; and Fred McKelvey of the cooks' and waiters' union. Henry Perault, president of the trades' assembly, will be marshal of the day.

Reports from the subordinate organizations were to the effect that the parade would probably be the most elaborate in the history of the observation of the day in Duluth. The parade will form on First street at Fifth avenue West, in front of the Federal building. The line of march will be about thirty blocks, running east on First street to Seventh avenue east, thence on Superior street to Eighth avenue east and then back to Fifth avenue, where the parade will disband.

President M. E. Neary of the Minnesota Federation of Labor, was in the city early in the week, spending a day here to discuss with the secretary-treasurer of the organization a plan for promoting the work of organization in the vicinity of Duluth. It was agreed that it was important to take immediate steps to organize the iron ranges, and it was decided to take such action. No attempt will be made at present to organize the miners. This is because there are not at hand the proper kind of organizers to mix with the miner, and because there is no national organization strong enough to protect the miners after they are organized. Other branches of labor on the ranges will soon be organized, however. Calls for organizers have come from several of the range cities and villages.

While here President Neary said that it would be the policy of the state federation to send organizers to every portion of the state where they are needed, and that the entire resources of the federation would be called out to make the state's organization complete.

LABOR NOTES.

The Holyoke papermakers lost their strike.

There are 128 cigar factories in the Cuban capital.

The price of labor in Alaska is $4.50 to $6.50 a day, with board.

Carpenters at Hoquiam, Wash., have demanded an 8-hour day.

Cab drivers in Paris, France, threaten to strike for increased pay.

French-Canadian carpenters at Providence, R. I., have formed a union.

In Saxony, Germany, there is an industrial school for every 14,641 inhabitants.

Union barbers at San Francisco have received a reduction of one hour a day.

Kansas and Missouri coal miners have presented a new wage scale, to go into effect Sept. 1.

In honor of Peter Henlein, the inventor of the watch, a monument is to be erected at Nuremberg.

On Sept. 7, at St. Louis, Mo., the International Brotherhood of Blacksmiths will meet in convention.

In the Austrian textile industry the working hours are 10 to 11 a day. Men's weekly wages average $3.50, women's $1.50.

The strike of building laborers at Minneapolis, Minn., is causing a departure of many bricklayers to other fields.

A legal bureau has been established by the Chicago Federation of Labor to fight injunction and other court proceedings.

Tailors and cutters at Indianapolis, Ind., will demand a uniform system of work, a minimum wage scale and uniform hours.

The Retail Clerks' International union now numbers 60,000, and has recently been increasing at the rate of 4000 a month.

Silver workers at Toronto, Can., are out to form a union of their calling. They have in the past affiliated with the brass workers.

The General Feredation of Trade Unions of Great Britain suggests the formation of a national conciliation board to adjust labor disputes.

Toledo, Ohio, will probably be chosen as the national headquarters of the Flint Glass Workers, one of the strongest unions financially in the country.

Archbishop Ireland has consented to deliver the address at the St. Paul Labor day celebration, to be held on Harriet Island Sept. 7. He has not announced his subject.

The ordinary man's wages in factories in Germany are from 10 to 12½ cents an hour, or from $1 to $1.25 for ten hours' work. Women get 5 cents an hour, or about 50 cents a day.

The Brewery Workers' association has a membership of 33,000 members. St. Louis has the largest number, and New York and Milwaukee are about equal as claimants for second place.

Announcement has been made by the National Civic Federation that both Mr. Cleveland and Senator Hanna will discuss the labor problem from the same platform early in October.

San Francisco, (Cal.) Street Car Men's Union has determined to take care of its own sick and injured members. A fund has been established and $1200 per month will be added through a fifty-cent monthly assessment.

Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, has accepted an invitation to address the laboring men at Indianapolis on Labor day, and he was also asked to give a reply to D. M. Parry's letter at that time.

In February, 1887, the state of Oregon passed a law legalizing Labor day, making it the first state in the Union to legalize the first Monday in September as a holiday. In every state except seven Labor day is a holiday.

The American Window Glass company has announced that the wage scale for the coming year in all of its pot plants has been signed. The new scale is an advance of ten per cent above last year, and is the highest ever paid in the glass trade.

Ohio labor leaders and other persons working for the welfare of children in that state are preparing amendments to be offered at the coming session of the general assembly, which will increase safeguards for the youth of the state.

A movement inaugurated in London, England, toward starting clubs for working girls has spread to all parts of the kingdom. Clubs have been started in many parts of the country, and they have proved a great success The most popular feature of these organizations is the savings department.

The Western Federation of Miners has issued an appeal to unions throughout the country to "contribute to an "eight-hour fund" and let the battle-ground be in the Western country. The Western miners have already started the fund. The circular is signed by W. D. Haywood of Denver, secretary of the federation.

A fight to a finish is on between the National Association of Steam and Hot Water Fitters and Helpers of America and the United Association of Plumbers. The trouble originated at the New Orleans convention of the American Federation of Labor, when representatives of the Plumbers' Union secured the passage of a resolution compelling the steam fitters to consolidate with the plumbers' organization. This means that the steam fitters must surrender all jurisdiction to the plumbers' association. This the fitters have flatly refused, stating that as their work is a distinctly different branch in the building trade from that of the plumbers, they should be permitted to remain independent.

Conservatism, it is said, is to be the keynote of "Unionism in America," the book on which President John Mitchell of the United Mine Workers has been engaged for several months, and which will be given to the printer some time in September. Strikes will be opposed except as a last resort, and the sympathetic strike will receive no sanction at all. While it is a history of unionism, from its first inception in the United States to the present time, and necessarily a defense of trades' unions, it is said to be without bias, and those who are looking for a tirade against capital and anything of a radical nature will be disappointed, for the tone is conservative throughout and the book as a whole is said to give the impression that it has been written by a man w ho is himself unidentified either personally or in interest with the cause which he treats. It is said to have been Mitchell's purpose to produce the work as a monument to himself, and that he felt confident that, if it were written in the proper spirit, it would appeal to the thoughtful and in the end accomplish much in the direction of breaking down existing prejudice against organized labor.

Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, gives some interesting figures on the growth of the organization during the years he has been in office. The increase in membership is given as follows:

1897	265,600
1898	279,000
1899	350,400
1900	550,300
1901	789,500
1902	1,025,500
1903	1,457,593

The number of unions affiliated, as compared with the number in 1897, is:

	1897.	1903.
International unions	55	110
Central bodies	51	573
State branches	10	28
Local trade and federal unions	444	2214
Totals	560	2925

The income in 1897 was $18,600, while during the nine months preceding July 1, 1903, the income was $173,700. The number of union men in the country not affiliated with the federation is estimated at $337,000. The figures given by Secretary Morrison are based on the amount of per capita tax paid, and as few of the international unions pay on their full membership, the number of unionists in the country is much larger than shown.

Among the important developments of the past week in the labor world the decision of Judge Rogers of the United States supreme court, at St. Louis, is worthy of consideration. The effect of court decisions are usually little felt outside of the immediate locality in which they are so often at variance with each other when dealing with labor questions, but the decision of Judge Rogers will probably establish a precedent of great importance to labor unions. The decision was given on a petition of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America to restrain the Western Union Telegraph company from discharging men because they became members of a union, and also from maintaining a blacklist which prevented the men from securing employment with other concerns. As was outlined in this column some time ago the petition of the men set forth that it required years to learn the business of telegraphy, and that once a person had learned it he found it hard to adapt himself to another vocation, consequently if he was blacklisted it practically deprived him of the means of earning a livelihood. The learned judge decided that an employer had the right to discharge an employe for joining a union or for any other cause, or for no cause at all. He also decided that the employer had a legal right to keep a blacklist and show it to other employers, so long as it was truthful. Some labor leaders are inclined to believe that the decision is a hard blow to the cause of organized labor. As a matter of fact, it is nothing of the kind. Taken at the present time, when the American Anti-Boycott association is making preparations to revolutionize the industrial relations between employers and employes, it is doubtful if it cannot be construed as a decided victory for organized labor.

THE REPORT OF KILLING OF CONSUL MAGELSSEN AN ERROR.

to him that some of the foreign consuls located at Beirut had reported to their governments that the siuation at that place had become exceedingly unsafe; that this condition of affairs had existed for some time, and that something ought to be done to relieve the tension.

The opinion was expressed that the attempted assassination of Magelssen probably would bring affairs to a focus, the attention of the Turkish government being drawn to the matter in this forcible way and some effort thus made to avoid further trouble.

The latest development in the Turkish situation was discussed in official circles where the view is had that the denial of the report of the killing of Mr. Magelssen relieves the situation of its immediate awkward and embarrassing feature, but will not prevent our naval vessels continuing to the east.

Minister Leischman in one of his despatches to the department, suggested that conditions were such that it might be well to have some American naval demonstration in those waters. Reports also have come to the government from the missionary interests of threatened destruction of their property at Harpoot, and because of this Admiral Cotton, it is expected, will be allowed to proceed with one or more of his vessels to Beirut.

Acting Secretary Darling tonight received a cablegram from the admiral, dated Villefranche, saying that he had left that place with the cruisers Brooklyn and San Francisco for Genoa on the way to Beirut.

Oyster Bay, August 29.—President Roosevelt was informed last night by a representative of the Associated Press of the incorrectness of the report that Vice-Consul William C. Magelssen at Beirut, Syria, had been assassinated.

The president expressed gratification that Consul Magelssen had escaped without injury from the assault of the would-be murderer. He announced, however, that no change at present would be made in the plans of this government and that the European squadron, which he last night ordered to proceed immediately to Beirut would continue to its ordered destination.

It can be said that the president and Secretary of State Hay both regard it as advisable, in view of the present state of unrest in Turkey, to have American war vessels in Turkish waters.

For several hours yesterday President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hay were in conference at Sagamore Hill. They discussed the situation in Turkey. At the conclusion of the conference, Secretary Hay announced his intentions of returning immediately to Washington.

The fact that Secretary Hay thinks his presence in Washington to be necessary at this time indicates the serious view he takes of the Turkish situation. He had not intended to return to Washington for several weeks, but developments in the Ottoman empire during the past few days induced him to come to Oyster Bay for a conference with the president, after which it was deemed desirable by both that he should return to Washington at least for a couple of weeks.

The secretary arrived here from his summer home in New Hampshire in a driving rain storm. He was conveyed to the president's home in time for luncheon. During the greater part of the afternoon he was in conference with the president. He left Sagamore Hill for Washington last night.

At 11 o'clock last night a telegram was received by Secretary Loeb from Acting Secretary of State Loomis at Washington, communicating the text of a cablegram from Minister Leishman at Constantinople, confirming the Associated Press report of the inaccuracy of the report of Consul Magelssen's assassination. As soon as the message from the department was deciphered, Secretary Loeb communicated its contents to the president by telephone.

The text of Minister Leishman's cablegram is not made public here.

It can be said to be the purpose of President Roosevelt to afford American citizens in the disturbed provinces of Turkey all the protection possible. For that reason and for others which may develop in a short time, the decision is reached that no change will be made at this time in the orders to the European squadron. Admiral Cotton will proceed with his vessels to Turkish waters with the idea of safeguarding fully Americans and American interests.

BRYAN WAS FRANK

In Saying Both He and Cleveland Are Out of Race.

Declared He Had Been Misquoted as to Ex-President.

Waterloo, Iowa, Aug. 29.—While waiting between trains in order to fill a lecture engagement, William Jennings Bryan talked freely on the coming presidential campaign and the probabilities of Democratic success.

Mr. Bryan acknowledged frankly that the issues of 1896 and of 1900 are dead, but intimated his belief that they would again come to life. He declared that the papers had misquoted him in his alleged strictures on Grover Cleveland. While he was firmly of the opinion that a mistake would be made in naming Mr. Cleveland for president by the party next year, he believed that the Cleveland wing of the party could be brought into harmony with the regular organization. Mr. Bryan said:

"The papers have made me say things in regard to Mr. Cleveland which I never gave utterance to. I do not feel as antagonistic to the former president as some of the papers have endeavored to make me appear, and many of the statements attributed to me in regard to him have been absolutely false.

"I do not think Grover Cleveland a suitable candidate for the presidency on the Democratic ticket, and do not think the national convention will make the mistake of placing him at the head of the ticket. Grover Cleveland would be no stronger as a candidate for the office than myself, and I now consider that I am badly out of the race for the time, at least.

"I would not make an acceptable candidate next year and would not ask the party to make the sacrifice of nominating me. What we need is a man who has supported the Democratic party through thick and thin, who is above the suspicion which has surrounded Cleveland, and who is not backed by the moneyed powers.

"My issues are dead, at the present time, but they will come to life again. The trusts and the tariff are the main questions to make the fight on next year.

CULLOM'S SIZE-UP.

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 29.—When in Omaha yesterday, Senator Cullom of Illinois, speaking of possible Democratic presidential candidates, said:

"If Johnson wins in Ohio, it may cause a political revolution; but I don't think he will win. As for Towne, he is not available, since he has gone in for speculation and such. But the Democrats of the East are talking Cleveland at a great rate. If they find there is any hope of electing a Democrat, they will unite on some strong man, not necessarily Cleveland. If they see there is no hope, they won't care who is nominated.

"There will undoubtedly be an extra session of congress, since the Cuban reciprocity treaty cannot take effect until ratified by that body. I believe the president could make an effective treaty without the approval of congress, but many of my friends thought otherwise, and provisions were introduced into the treaty making it ineffective until congress approves it.

"Yes, we will have the Panama canal; congress will, I believe, ratify the treaty in some way. I think the matter will be amicably arranged and we will control the strip, too. There will be some financial legislation at the extra session, but it will not be the Aldrich or Fowler bills. The senate sub-committee will probably report some bill of its own which may embody features of both the Aldrich and Fowler bills.

"Roosevelt's running mate will undoubtedly be a Western man."

THE MINING CONGRESS

Visitors to Be Taken Into the Homestake Mine.

Deadwood, S. D., Aug. 29.—One of the big features of the Mining congress will be a trip for the delegates and their friends through the underground workings of the Homestake mine, the largest gold producer in the world. It has been a number of years since the public was admitted to this mammoth mine that honeycombs the foundation of the entire city of Lead. A faint conception of the extent of this mine may be gained by the knowledge that if all the work done by the company had been spent in driving a tunnel 5 by 7 feet, it would now have attained the grand total of 1826 miles in length.

The fight for the session of the congress next year is waxing stronger. St. Louis is, of course, after it because of the World's fair, but unless she develops more strength than she has shown so far it will not go there. The strongest contestant from present indications is Minneapolis. Not only will that city send a large delegation here to work for the meeting, but Governor Van Sant of the state of Minnesota will head a large and strong delegation coming here for that express purpose. This movement has many friends here, and Omaha, Kansas City, Pittsburg and New Mexico and Arizona, all of which are seeking the honor, will have to work hard to keep it away from Minneapolis.

"The Mining Industry and Its Relation to American Finances"—The Hon. Leslie M. Shaw, secretary of the treasury.

"The Production of Gold and Its Relation to the Finances of the Country"—The Hon. George E. Roberts, director of the mint.

"Pyritic Smelting"—Franklin H. Carpenter, Denver, Colo.

"The Geology of South Dakota"—Dr. J. N. Todd, state geologist, Vermillion, S. D.

"The Cyanide Process As Used In the Homestake Mine"—Charles W. Merrill, Lead, S. D.

"Geology and Mineralogy of the Black Hills"—Dr. C. C. O'Hara, Rapid City, S. D.

"The St. Louis Exposition"—Professor J. A. Holmes, chief department of mines and metallurgy, St. Louis, Mo.

"Mining Industry In Nevada"—Hon. C. E. Van Dusen, M. C., Nevada.

"The Money Metals and Their Influence Upon Civilization"—The Hon. J. L. Webster, Omaha, Neb.

"The Geology of the Black Hills"—Nelson H. Darton, geological survey, Washington, D. C.

"The Potsdam or Flat Formation of the Bald Mountain District"—John Blathford, Terry, S. D.

"Coal"—E. W. Parker, Washington, D. C.

"The Revelation In Gold Mining and the Economic Treatment of Low Grade Ores for North Carolina"—C. L. Dignowity, Boulder, Colo.

"The Drying of Minerals"—C. O. Bartlett, Cleveland, Ohio.

"The Gold Ores of San Juan Country"—Dr. A. H. Elftman, Silverton, Colo.

In addition to these Dr. J. D. Irving, of the Smithsonian institute at Washington, is down for a paper, but he has not yet announced his subject.

AT WEST DULUTH

The action of J. J. McGuire and William Barnes of Lake Crystal, Minn., in endeavoring to establish a state bank in West Duluth, was warmly endorsed last evening by the West Duluth Commercial club at its regular meeting.

The motion passed by the members of the club, read as follows: "It is hereby resolved that the West Duluth Commercial club endorses the action of Messrs. McGuire and Barnes in endeavoring to establish a state bank here, and trusts that the citizens will support them in their endeavors."

Mr. Barnes and Mr. McGuire were both present at the meeting and they addressed the members of the club, telling of their plans and the nature of the new bank. They expressed their wish to gain an expression of opinion from the business men as to what they required, and as to what assistance might be expected from them.

It is the intention to establish a state bank with a capital of $25,000. Of the seven directors required by the state law, five shall be West Duluth citizens, including the president and vice-president.

Several of the business men have pledged themselves to support the new institution, and there seems to be little doubt but that the bank will be established in the near future.

The location has not yet been definitely decided upon. An offer has been made for the building occupied by the Merchants' bank, but it has not yet been accepted.

BASEBALL TOMORROW.

The West Duluth baseball team will meet the Freimuth's nine tomorrow afternoon on the grounds at Athletic park.

This game has been scheduled once before, but it was postponed on account of wet grounds.

Larson will be in the box for the West Duluth team, and the remainder of the line-up will be about the same as in former games.

This will probably be the last game played this season by the West Duluth team. No other games are scheduled ahead, and it is not likely that any further games will be arranged for.

A large crowd of rooters is expected to turn out from West Duluth, as the Freimuth team is one of the strongest amateur aggregations in the city, and the game promises to be a closely contested one.

CHURCH SERVICES.

Tomorrow morning, at 10:30 o'clock, Rev. Njea will occupy the pulpit at the Norwegian Lutheran church, Fifty-seventh avenue west and Wadena street. Rev. O. M. Savig will conduct services in the evening, at 7:45 o'clock. Sunday school will meet at 9 m.

At the Norwegian Synod church, corner of Fifty-seventh avenue west and Gosnold street, there will be services tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock, conducted by the pastor, Rev. Adolph Salverson.

The services tomorrow in the Oneota M. E. church will be conducted by the pastor, Rev. E. K. Copper, at 11 a. m. and at 7:45 p. m. The morning theme will be "A Reasonable Religion," and the evening subject, "The Beauty and Glory of Helpfulness." There will be special music at both services. Sunday school will meet at 10 a. m.

"The Church and the World" will be the subject of the morning sermon by Rev. Arthur J. Hong at the West Duluth Baptist church tomorrow evening, at 8 o'clock. Sunday school will meet at noon, and B. Y. P. U. at 7 p. m.

Mrs. Robert Forbes and son, Saben, have returned from a trip to Philadelphia, Boston and other Eastern points.

The wedding of Miss Belle Lopknow and Alexander Keloac, of West Duluth, occurred last evening at the residence of Father Feehely, who performed the ceremony.

Several of the West Duluth mills closed down yesterday on account of the weather. They reopened this morning.

Miss Jule Martin is visiting her mother in Brainerd.

Dr. I. T. Burnside and family have returned from an Isle Royale trip lasting two weeks.

TEMPERANCE MEETING

Rev. C. H. Casperson To Address Scandinavian Union.

The monthly meeting arranged by the Duluth Scandinavian Christian Union Temperance committee will be held tomorrow at 3 p. m. in Victor hall, Grand and Fifty-sixth avenue west. Rev. C. H. Casperson, of Hancock, Mich., will be the speaker. Mr. Casperson is past grand secretary of the Templars of Temperance, being a national organization. He is visiting friends in Duluth this week and will be a guest of honor at a banquet this evening at Victor hall given by the local Temple Vaarlerud, Templars of Temperance. The program for tomorrow afternoon is as follows:

Mrs. Melvine Hayden and Master Harry Hayden, who left this week for Boston, New York and other points for an extended absence. Mrs. Hayden will pursue studies in art. Master Hayden is the young lad who recently appeared in the production of "The Charity Ball" by local talent, and played the part of the little waif. He gives evidence of the possession of fine dramatic talent, and will study elocution in the Eastern cities.

CASES ARE CONTINUED

Hearings In Commercial Bank Matter Adjourned to September 21.

The case of H. H. Phelps, L. N. Case against Charles F. Leland was called this morning in the United States district court before Judge Morris.

The court decided to continue the case until Sept. 21, as the parties in the suit were not prepared to have the hearing today.

The suit is to recover a certificate of deposit on the American Exchange bank for $860, which was deposited in the Commercial bank on the day previous to the closing.

The petition of F. A. Sills to recover a warrant on the state treasurer for $78.50, which he claims to have deposited in the bank shortly before the closing, was also heard and continued until Sept. 21.

The court also issued an order restraining Deputy State Marshal Stephen J. Picha, who is in possession of the affairs of the bank, from disposing of either of the papers in question until the court shall have passed judgment in the matter.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPE

American Tourist Saved By a Snow Bank.

St. Moritz, Aug. 29.—Herbert K. Mainzer, an American, left with a guide Thursday morning to ascend the Morteratsch mountain. Both were dashed to the bottom of a crevice 150 feet below, but they were rescued by another party. They lost consciousness.

By sheer good luck the two men had been preceded fifteen minutes earlier by another party with two guides. This group heard the ominous crackling behind them and turned and missed the two men. They expected to find Mainzer and the guide dead at the bottom of the huge cavern, but on lowering themselves by ropes they found Mainzer practically unharmed on the snow. The guide, who was caught by the huge ice blocks and pinned in up to his neck, was hacked out after an hour's hard work.

It is feared Schlegel, the guide, who rescued Mainzer's guide, is injured internally, as one of the ice blocks smashed in his ribs. Mr. Mainzer is hardly the worse for his remarkable adventure.

ATTENTION! CREDITORS OF MERCHANTS' BANK.

Any persons who know themselves to be creditors of the Merchants' Bank, who have not signed the agreement for H. H. Phelps to handle the assets for the benefit of the creditors, are requested to present themselves at the office of Judge Stone, at West Duluth, Saturday, Aug. 29, between 3 p. m. and 9 p. m.

Any creditor who has not had the agreement presented to him for signature is requested to send his present address to Hansen Smith, 223 Manhattan building, Duluth, Minn., at once, as some persons whose names appear on the books of the banks as creditors, have not yet been located.

Announcement.

To our many customers, who are waiting for their NEW FALL AND WINTER SUITS AND HATS, we have to announce that we will be prepared in a few days to show our extensive stock, purchased for the fall trade.

Our store has been in the hands of the carpenters and workmen during the past month in connection with the instalation of our new elevator and the alterations necessary for the occupation of our entire building. This will give us much additional space, and, although our customers have been much inconvenienced during this time, we feel sure they will appreciate the change. In a few days more we shall be prepared to open to the public and place on sale our extensive lines of FALL AND WINTER CLOTHING FOR MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN.

THE SHIP TRUST

To Revive Movement For a Subsidy Law.

Washington, Aug. 29.—There are indications that the ship trust, which is so badly threatened by financial breakers now, will seek a lifeline by attempting to revive and push the defunct ship subsidy bill through congress at the next session.

Senator Frye, of Maine, and Senator Hanna, who, in the past, were the chief sponsors of the bill, have, it is understood, been appealed to by certain of those interested in the United States Ship building company to see what can be done toward reviving the subsidy movement.

Letters which come to the navy department from those companiesthat are behind in work on naval vessels and threatened with cancellation of contracts show the financial distress from which they suffering. Some of the descriptions of their difficulties are pitiable. Officials of the navy department are inclined to think that the movement to revive the ship subsidy scheeme will be presented to the president before he returns to Washington, and that his support will beasked for a subsidy bill incorporating some new ideas, but without the features which were found objectionable enough to cause its defeat when last acted upon by congress.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.—

Whereas, default has been made in the conditions of that certain mortgage made by Zenith Elevator Company, mortgagor, unto Robert A. Casson, mortgagee, dated January 2, 1899, and recorded in the office of the register of deeds of Saint Louis County, Minnesota, on January 18, 1899, in Book 106 of mortgages, on page 269, which said mortgage was assigned by the said Robert A. Casson, mortgagee, to George C. Bagley, on May 12, 1903, by deed of assignment, which was duly recorded on July 18, 1903, in the office of said register of deeds, in Book 147 of mortgages, on page 361 thereof, mortgaging and conveying unto said mortgagee, his heirs and assigns, the land and premises hereinafter described to secure payment of the sum of $1500, with interest as therein provided,

And whereas, the said mortgagee has paid taxes on said premises amounting to $265.91,

And whereas, there is claimed to be due and is due on said mortgage and mortgage debt at the date of this notice, for principal and interest, taxes paid, and $75 attorney's fees incurred for foreclosing thereof, the sum of $1936.78, and no action or proceeding at law or in equity has been had or instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof;

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that, by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and therewith recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed and the mortgaged premises therein described, to-wit: The following described tracts or parcels of land, situate, lying and being in Saint Louis County, Minnesota, and described as follows, viz:

Lots number ninety-seven (97), and ninety-nine (99), in block number twenty-seven (27), Rice's Point, according to the recorded plat thereof, on file in the office of the register of deeds in and for said county of Saint Louis, subject to the right of way of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company over and upon the strip of land twenty feet in width over said lots given and granted to said railroad company by deed recorded in said register's office, in Book sixty-six (66) of deeds on page four hundred and sixteen (416), together with all the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging or in any wise appertaining, (or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy said mortgage debt.)

Will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder, for cash, by the sheriff of said Saint Louis County, at his main office, in the county court house, in the city of Duluth, on Monday, the thirty-first day of August, 1903, at ten o'clock a. m., to pay the amount which will then be due on said mortgage and mortgage debt for principal and interest, taxes paid attorney's fee of $75.00, as stipulated in said mortgage, and the costs and disbursements of said foreclosure and sale.

DECLINE IN WHEAT

Wheat Started Out Slightly Higher But Had a Slump.

Flax Was Higher Early But Sold Off Later.

Duluth Board of Trade, Aug. 29.—The wheat market started out steady this morning and advanced on reports of clear, cool and calm weather in the Northwest, which had a bullish influence, but later in the morning it turned weak and declined. Nine loads of wheat were worked for export.

The Duluth market closed ⅜c lower on both September and December, Minneapolis ⅛c lower on September and ¼-⅜c on December, Chicago a shade lower on September and ⅛-¼c lower on December, St. Louis ⅛-¼c lower on September and a shade lower on December, and Kansas City ¼c up on September and ⅛-¼c lower on December.

The Liverpool market closed ½d higher, Paris ¼c to 2¼c lower and Berlin ⅞c lower.

Primary receipts of wheat were 692,000 bus, last year, 361,000 bus. Shipments, 197,000 bus, last year, 797,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 553,000 bus.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 379 cars, and at Chicago 190, a total of 569 cars, against 314 last week and 5.. last year.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed ¼d lower. September corn in the Chicago market closed a shade higher and September oats unchanged. Primary receipts of corn were 480,000 bus, last year, 167,000 bus. Shipments, 506,000 bus, last year, 130,000 bus. Clearances were 400 bus.

Trading in wheat on the Duluth board was active. September opened ¼c up at 83c, sold at 83½c at 9:41, fell to 82⅜c at 10:25, rallied to 82⅝c at 11:15 and fell off again closing ⅜c lower at 82¾c. December opened ⅛c up at 80½c, sold at 80¾c and fell to 80c, closing at that price, a loss of ⅜c.

Cash offerings were heavier, aggregating 100,000 bushels or more. Prices coming at 3c over September for old No. 1 northern, 2c over for new on track and September price for new to arrive.

Flax repeated its daily story, up early and off later. The early advance was ½c and the close unchanged for October and ½c lower for September and November.

Rye advanced ¼c.

Following were the closing prices on the Duluth board.

Wheat: Old No. 1 hard in store, 87¾c. No. 1 northern 87¾c; new to arrive No. 1 hard 83⅜c; No. 1 northern 82⅜c; No. 2 northern 80¾c; New on track—No. 1 nothern, 84¾; No. 2 northern 82⅜c; 1 northern to arrive Sept. 10, 82⅜c; Macaroni No. 1, 60c; No. 2, 55c; September, 82⅜c; December, 80c; May, 83c. THE CHICAGO MARKET

Clear Cool Weather Gives Wheat Steady Opening.

Chicago, Aug. 29.—With reports of clear cool weather in the Northwest, wheat opened about steady, prices varying little from yesterday's close, September starting at 81c to 81⅛c and December at 82c to ⅛c. Low temperatures proved to have a bullish influence, advancing prices ½@⅞c during the opening hour. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 379 cars which, with local receipts of 130 cars—15 contract—made the total receipts for the three points of 509 cars against 314 last week and 594 a year ago. Trade was moderate.

Later, however, offerings became rather free and September declined to 80⅞c, with December down to 81⅝@⅞c. Toward the end of the session moderate covering created a better feeling and prices steadied to 81c for September, a loss of ⅛c. December closed 1⅛@1⅜c lower at 81⅝@⅞.

Corn opened firm at about yesterday's close with September at 50⅞c to 51c and December at 50¾@⅞c. There was not much corn on the market and demand was fair and scattered. There was strength on the cash situation and both options advanced to 51c. Receipts, 311 cars—14 contract grade.

The market held steady within a small range, September touching 51⅛c and closing a shade above the bottom at yesterday's final figures, 50¾@⅞c. December was a shade higher after ranging between 51⅛@¼c and 50¾c, closing at 50⅞c.

Oats opened unchanged with September at 35c and December at 36¼c to 36¼c. There was a fair demand from commission houses which helped prices ⅛@¼c over opening. Receipts, 194 cars.

There was good buying of September lard at the opening which helped the price on that option 7½c over yesterday's close at $8.40. Other provisions were firm with September pork at $12.50 and ribs at $7.57½.

Close: Wheat— September 81c; old 81c; December, 81⅞@82c; old 82c; May 85⅞c. Corn—August, 50¾c; September, 50¾@⅞c; December 50⅝c; May, 51c. Oats—August 34½c; September 34½c; December 30½@¾c; May, 38c. Pork—September, $12.50; October, $12.50; January, $12.95; May, $13.05. Lard—September, $8.50; October, $8.00; January, $7.92½. Ribs—September $7.60; October, $7.72½; January, $6.62½. Oats—2, 32½@33c; 3, 32½c.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

W. H. Laidley & Co.: Wheat—There was a sharp rally in wheat due to the tremendous rains in the West, general rains in the Northwest and in Germany, France and England, where harvest is in progress. The advance which amounts to 2c per bus for the week, would probably have been much greater, but that heavy holders sold on the bulge to the extent of probably 10,000,000 bus, which overweighed the market and caused the loss of a considerable part of the advance. It must be borne in mind that people who sold this wheat are all bulls and undoubtedly waiting for a weak spot to replace their lines. To the observer of actual world's supplies and requirements, it seems to be inevitable that wheat must sell higher, but to buy recklessly on bulges and become discouraged on setbacks is not profitable. We want our friends to pursue opposite tactics.

Corn showed great stubbornness. It has had to contend with several important bear influences. First, the great improvement in the weather; next learn the estimate of a full 2,000,000,000 bus crop by the Cincinnati Price Current and then the record-breaking shipment of 4,000,000 bus by Argentine for the current week, as well as rather more liberal offerings from country. Of course, the question now hinges on the outlook for the new crop. The trade seems to be adjusting itself to better prospects by selling, but there are several very heavy lines held by large operators and in event of change for the worst, they can be relied upon to make it interesting for shorts.

Oats—There has been but moderate change in prices, but there was considerable shifting of ownership, Mr. Howe, the largest holder, having let go his line of several million bushels, as he admits frankly being afraid of a decline in corn, which might be expected to break oats. Outside of this one possibility, the condition of the market is one of great strength, the crop being generally short and cash oats at a premium over both September and December. Under these conditions we believe purchases should be made on breaks irrespective of action of corn.

Bradstreet reports: Wheat and flour exports for the week, 3,245,000 bus; corn, 885,000; last year, wheat and flour, 5,437,000 bus; corn, 115,000.

Logan & Bryan: Wheat—The market ruled slightly higher in the early dealing, but the advance was lost and the market closed slightly under last night's figure. The volume of business not large at any time. Still feel that wheat picked up on the weak spots will not do any harm.

Corn—The market has been without feature and speculative operations on a very small scale. Cooler weather west and reports of damage in Nebraska as the result of heavy rains ignored by the local crowd. We do not think purchases of May corn around 50c will do any harm.

Oats—The market exceedingly inactive, fluctuating within very narrow limits. The market was in the hands of local traders, and influenced almost wholly by the movement in wheat and corn.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston W. H. Laidley & Co.: Very little information given out by Copper Range circular. No one 100,000 of Copper Range will buy 100,000 Tri-mountain. However stocks are well held and we expect higher prices if New York market permits and something further in announcement. Would buy Centennial Range Osceola on decline.

TRADING IN STOCKS

Was Sluggish and Dealings of Very Limited Amount.

Closing Was Lifeless But Firm at About Best Figures.

New York, Aug. 29.—Prices moved in a sluggish and irregular manner on small opening dealings. Advances of ¾ in Tennessee Coal and Republic Steel preferred were the largest changes.

The demand for stocks was too scant to support prices and there was a slight easing off all around. Union Pacific, Atchison and Amalgamated absorbed the most of the limited dealings and also showed the widest price movement.

There was light professional selling on an early impression that the bank statement would not be as good as foretold and a slight hardening when this impression was confirmed by the small cash increase and the considerable loan increase shown by the statement. Prices rose fractionally over last night in some cases. Tennessee Coal gained a point. The whole movement was insignificant. Among the specialties, Atchison, pfd., Duluth South Shore & Atlantic pfd. Wheeling & Lake Erie and Colorado Fuel rose a point or more. U. S. Rubber pfd 2 and Illinois Central and Northwestern declined 1. The closing was lifless but firm.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market has a hardening tendency. It was easier early on selling by room traders and rallied later when they attempted to cover. There was nothing in the way of news to affect values. Wall street although heavy borrower of time money still exxpress surprise that the loan increase in the bank statement showed a small increase. While we do not look for anything like a sharp upturn, we are inclined to the opinion that good railroad properties, which are now selling on a very attractive basis, will slowly but surely seek a higher level. Railroad earnings are unprecedented and we think present holders of stock will not part with them at anything like prevailing prices.

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: Weakness Friday morning followed by strength in the afternoon of the very best indications of a bull market starting. I would not be surprised if prices creep up for several days. I trust you are already carrying a fairly good line bought on recent weakness. If not buy on fractional recessions. We want our friends to pursue opposite tactics. We do not think the movement should be seen about next Thursday but some reaction is probable if prices rally sharply Monday. Per se what I can learn the Erles are pretty good to tie up to although the report is rather too general. Our Colorado Fuel is up 7 points this week and will go much higher sooner or later. St. Paul and copper are probably as good as anything though the whole list looks good. A wordd of caution, however, do not carry too much stock.

Waldorf to Coe Commission Co.: Speculative sentiment is much discouraged by the action of the market past two days. Stocks have been in scant supply and offerings on reactions have been light. Prices rallied easily on very moderate purchases and evidence of accumulation by powerful interests including the Standard Oil party have not been wanting. Lower rates for time money are largely responsible for these favorable features. From six per cent money on industrial loans for three months for within a few days dropped to 5. Four months' money is to be had at 5½ per cent. This relation may be temporary but by good judges of the financial situation it is regarded as insignificant. The better feeling on the monetary question and improvement in crop prospects have increased bullish sentiment on nearly all the active stocks especially among commission houses whose representatives tonight contine to advise the purchase of St. Paul, New York Central, Missouri Pacific, Atchison, Baltimore & Ohio. The theory that earnings will lead to a marked advance finds many believers. It is argued that low prices has invited an absorption of securities in the past six months on a larger scale than for two years. Corroborative of this is the testimony of the head of the largest houses on the stock exchange who informs the writer that his purchases of "odd lots" in one day this month broke the record for the house footing up over 15,000 shares. Other concerns making a specialty of dealing of odd lots smaller than 100 shares tell the same story and it is evident that that with this buying and the heavy purchases by investors and important interests a great load of stocks has been removed from the market.

W. H. Laidley & Co., Chicago: Extreme dullness characterized the stock market today but prices remained steady and firm and the list closed tonight at about the top prices and at a fair advance over yesterday. Buying in Amalgamated conyesterday. Buying in Amalgamated continued good and we believe as we have stated before that somewhat higher prices are going to be seen for it. Buying in Atchison and St. Paul, Union Pacific, also good and as there is a big short interest in these stocks we think a good advance may be expected. The bank statement was not so good as was anticipated but still favorable. We continue to believe that the trend will be upward.

Walker to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market today was dull and the trading very light. The bank statement had little or no effect but before the close there was some bidding up and prices closed at about the best. We do not look for any great activity in the market for the present or for any sustaining upward movement, but prices will remain steady and the market will be in the hands of the traders. The bear movement seems to have stopped for the present.

Bar silver, 56¾c. Mexican dollars, 44½c. Government bonds, steady; railroad bonds, irregular.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, Aug. 29.—The cotton market opened firm at an advance 1⅛ points and during the early session ruled very firm and fairly active with prices soon reaching a level net 8 to 13 points upon the active months under aggressive bull support and covering encouraged by the higher Liverpool cable and the slow movement. The weather map was generally favorable again, and private crop accounts aside from further reports of damage as a result of boll weevil and other insects, were of a satisfactory average and this phase of the situation encouraged some realizing on the advance. Still the market yielded only slightly, remaining steady to firm around the higher level. Cotton futures closed firm, August, 12.29; September, 11.47; October, 10.38; November, 10.30; December, 10.32; February, 10.28; January, 10.30; March, 10.25. The New Steamer Sharpless to Make Her Maiden Trip.

Is the Eighth of Ten New Wolvin Quebec Steamers.

The new steamer Sharpless, of the Great Lakes & St. Lawrence Transportation company, which was recently launched from the Superior shipyards, will leave the yards today, to load for her maiden trip down the lakes.

She will go first to the coal dock to fill her bunkers, and then load grain for Quebec.

The Sharpless is one of the ten new vessels that are being put in commission by Great Lakes & St. Lawrence company this year, and she is the eighth on the list. The other two are building and will probably go into commission before the close of the season.

All of the vessels are of the Welland canal size, 241 feet in length, 41 feet in beam, and 18 feet in depth.

They run from Duluth and Chicago to Quebec. A. B. Wolvin is the managing owner.

Cleveland, Aug. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Shippers of coal could find only a fair amount of tonnage to take cargoes to Lake Michigan ports, owing to the scarcity of return loads, but offerings to the head of the lakes are liberal.

EASY TO GET CARGOES.

Chicago, Aug. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Grain freights were so far improved that it was easy today to get cargoes at 1 cent on corn, shippers fought shy of any advance and none will be paid, but with a fair demand Monday vesselmen may succeed in getting 1½ cents.

THE JOHN DUNCAN BEACHED.

Harrisville, Mich., Aug. 29.—The steamer John Duncan, with a cargo of iron ore and a crew of nineteen persons, began to leak off this port at midnight on Thursday and so rapidly did the water gain on the pumps that all hope of saving the vessel was abandoned. The Sturgeon Point life saving crew came to the reseue of the imperiled sailors about noon yesterday and the boat was headed for shore, where it was beached in twenty feet of water. THE WEEK IN THE REALTY MARKET

Activity Not Marked But Business Fairly Satisfactory—Desire to Own Homes and Stop Rent Paying Becoming More Noticeable—Permits and Transfers.

While the week has not been particularly active in local realty circles it has been fairly satisfactory and the dealers generally are quite busy. Not so many sales have been closed as in the previous week but inquiry has been good and there is much negotiating being done looking forward to prospective trades. The preponderance of opinion among the real estate men is that the market outlook is a shade better than the normal at this time of the year and they feel encouraged to look forward to a fine business this fall.

Observing realty men say that the aggregate building movement in Duluth this summer has been larger than most people are aware of, or than they will appreciate unless they take a trip over all the many residence localities of the Zenith City. It is being predicted that the building operations are of a magnitude to have some effect on the house and flat shortage question, but few will be found who have the tenacity to suggest that there will be more places for rent this fall and winter than there are tenants. There has not yet been enough building to change this phase of the house proposition and rentals when the usual fall house hunting movement begins are quite apt to hold firm.

The old query "why don't people build rather than pay high rents?" is as pertinent as ever, more so some claim since the price of building material has declined. One instance was cited this week of a Duluthian who has recently completed a new store and flat building and is getting a rental for his flat that pays good interest on the money invested, the taxes and insurance and still leaves the store for his occupancy without the monthly hustling to pay rent. Real estate brokers note a tendency among salaried men to buy their homes on the installment plan rather than tackle the rent proposition. Numerous instances, it is said, might be quoted of men on salary who have entered into contract within the past few months with a view of owning their own home. The story is related on good authority of a certain young man connected with one of the local enterprises on a fair salary, and who has recently taken steps to own a home, who has been influenced largely by the stock situation. For some years past he has been putting his savings in various stocks with the view of getting a good stake ahead to build a home. He ran close in the matter of personal expenses and his wife scrimped wherever possible and wore her old hats and dresses. When one stock speculation after another panned out a failure the wife protested and declared that she was averse to saving but at the rate their capital was decreasing she was discouraged and disgusted with scrimping any longer; that unless the husband would promise to put his savings into a home she intended to have a good time with his money rather than let other people enjoy it at her expense. The argument was most convincing and the couple now have their own home.

It is said to be a somewhat unusual situation when the lack of municipal enterprise in any city holds up its improvement. There are property owners on Fourth street who claim such is the case in Duluth, that the mere fact that the city has neglected to establish a permanent curb on that street is now holding up thousands of dollars of prospective improvement. One project alone is known where building operations that would aggregate about $75,000 are in abeyance because a permanent curb line has not been established. The property owners, under the charter, are prohibited from employing private surveyors to establish the required line. The only way the matter can be adjusted is for the city council to direct the city engineer to make the survey and establish the curb line.

Several large dealers in realty have expressed themselves this week as decidedly in favor of having the city establish permanent curb lines on every street and avenue in the city where it has not already been done, that such step would be an important one and great benefit to intending builders. At the present time some of the prospective builders do not care to take the chance of going by a curb line that is likely to be changed within a few months.

One of the features of the real estate movement in the county the past week has been the lively condition of the range town markets. Prices are picking up in realty values in nearly all the range towns, and the amount of property being purchased for improvement is a long way from being small.

Several large timber sales have been recorded during the past ten days, indicating a good demand and ready supply. Dealers report an excellent demand for stumpage.

Farm lands are attracting and holding the attention of outside investors and intending settlers at the present time, and numerous sales have been consummated of late. The Boston and Duluth Farm Land company has closed the sale of some 3000 acres of Carlton county land. The company has entertained this week a party of men from Iowa and Illinois, who are interested in lands in 52-17 and 53-17, some of whom are practical mill men, and will erect a sawmill to cut their timber for market.

Hill & Bray, the architects, are getting out the plans for a handsome frame residence for Dr. N. B. McNulty, on East Second street, between Twenty-first and Twenty-second avenues east. It will be another important addition to the Highland Park group of new homes. In style the house will resemble that of the suburban homes so much in vogue in the Eastern cities. It will have hardwood finish throughout, with all the modern conveniences.

The same firm reports the contract for the double brick house for George H. Cole, on Third street, between Fifth and Sixth avenues east, let to John Grandy, of this city. The building will cost about $12,000, and is to be completed by fall. Each house has eleven rooms, with hardwood finish and all modern conveniences. The exterior will be highly ornamental and artistic, the front and sides being of hydraulic pressed brick. It will have hot water heat.

Mr. Volk, of A. C. Volk & Co., reports a good inquiry his firm is working very satisfactorily along the line of its up-river proposition, as well as selling some more centrally located properties.

* * *

Mr. Stryker, of Stryker, Manley & Buck, says the conditions have been very satisfactory this past week, and the firm has transacted business the details of which are not ready for publication. Mr. Stryker notes an even better inquiry this week than last.

* * *

Mr. Richardson, of Richardson & Day, reports a fairly active movement in properties in which his firm is interested. Among the sales was that of a house and lot on East Sixth street and three lots on the hillside for improvement.

J. E. Lawrence has completed his store and flat building at Fourth avenue east and Fourth street and is moving into the same. The structure is of brick and cost in the neighborhood of $4000.

Pulford & How report an excellent loan business at the present, with a good inquiry in realty. The firm has sold some lots for improvement on the boulevard, near A. P. Cook's new residence.

George Crosby & Co. report a number of small sales for the week, with a continued good inquiry. The firm has several large acreage deals under negotiation.

C. H. Graves & Co. report a good week in realty, with a splendid inquiry looking toward better business the coming week. The firm has a number of good deals near consummation. F. De Courcy Niles, formerly with the Duluth Telephone company, has taken an interest in the realty firm's business and joined the office forces.

Following are the building permits issued for the week:

Susan McKenzie, frame house, north side Third street between Eleventh and Twelfth avenues east, $2000.

Josef Sobczyk, frame addition to dwelling, south side Sixth street between Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth avenues west, $500.

MRS. GRUNDY BUSY AGAIN

Has Sir Thomas Lipton Engaged to Miss Alice Revell.

New York, Aug. 29.—Mrs. Grundy has revived the rumor that Sir Thomas Lipton is engaged to Miss Alice Revell, of Chicago. At the yacht race and later, in the Fifth Avenue restaurant, the tidings traveled like wild fire, but Sir Thomas and his guests were on the Erin, far from the bay, and there was no one to tell whether the engagement was a fact.

Miss Revell is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander H. Revell. All three are the guests of the Irish baronet on the Erin, as they were two years ago. The Revells are great friends of Lipton, and after the races are ended Sir Thomas will visit the Chicago mansion of the Revells and will be the star attraction of a series of engagements.

Sir Thomas is said to be a confirmed bachelor. However, society liked to talk about the reported engagement and the rumor found many credulous ears. From Chicago John T. Revell, the uncle of Miss Alice, said he had not been informed of any such engagement.

MRS. LEEDS TO WED AGAIN

Former Wife of Millionaire to Marry Second Time.

New York, Aug. 29.—Friends of Mrs. W. B. Leeds, in this city, have received word that the former wife of the millionaire tin plate manufacturer, to whom was paid $1,000,000 by Leeds on condition that she obtain a divorce, is to marry again. Mrs. Leeds No. 1 lives in Richmond, Ind. She was a Miss Gaar, and was a wealthy woman in her own right when the president of the Rock Island road led her to the altar eighteen years ago.

Mr. Leeds was not then as wealthy as he is today. A beautiful woman, Mrs. Leeds was a social leader in the West. While she liked society, she cared more for the little boy who was born a year after their marriage, and was one of the most devoted of mothers.

For years the family lived in Richmond, and there was to all appearances, no more devoted couple than Mr. and Mrs. Leeds. In a community where millionaires are not as common as they are on Fifth avenue or in Wall street, they were much in the public eye in a social way. Three years ago there was a shock to the people of Indiana and to friends of Mr. and Mrs. Leeds, due to the application for a divorce by Mrs. Leeds. She alleged desertion, which in the Hoosier state is ground for a decree.

When the state was called, it was all over in thirty minutes. It was proved to the satisfaction of the court that Mr. Leeds had taken himself away and had not been home for a long time.

WIRELESS TELEGRAM

Sent to Chicago From Steamer In Lake.

Chicago, Aug. 29.—The first wireless telegram ever sent to Chicago from Lake Michigan has been delivered to President James H. Graham of the Graham & Morton line. Dispatched from the steamer City of Milwaukee, twenty-five miles from shore, the message was received at the station in the tower of the Montgomery Ward building, two hours before the City of Milwaukee steamed into port.

When the City of Chicago, bound for St. Joseph, Mich., met the City of Milwaukee, they conversed freely at a distance of five miles, and it was agreed that the Milwaukee should try to get communication with the Chicago station.

New York & Return, $25.

THE DULUTH NORMAL SCHOOL WILL REOPEN NEXT WEEK

Prepared to Do Better Work Than Was Possible Last Year.

Faculty Enlarged and All Departments In Good Hands.

Domestic Science and Manual Training Departments Added.

The normal school will open Tuesday for entrance examinations. Wednesday will come the enrollment and classification of pupils, and Thursday work will begin.

The school is prepared this year to do better work than was possible last year, by reason of its thoroughly equipped laboratories and library. The library, with some hundreds of volumes, has been catalogued the past few weeks by Miss Farr, of the Mankato normal school, and 1500 or 2000 more volumes will be added during the year. The laboratory furniture has been installed and the apparatus and supplies are on the way. The walls of a number of the rooms have been changed by frescoing from the harsh plaster to a soft tint, and the electric light fixtures, which were so sadly lacking last year, have been placed in the building.

The domestic science and manual training departments have been added and the rooms have been thoroughly equipped. The normal is indebted to the club women of the city for the equipment of the domestic science department, which is very complete. Domestic science study will be an elective study, but manual training will be in the regular course.

The faculty has been enlarged this year and most of the teachers of last year have been retained. The departments are all in good hands.

President E. W. Bohannon will remain at the head of the school, as he was last year. Mr. Bohannon is a graduate of the University of Indiana, where he took the master's degree. He was at the Clarke university at Worcester, Mass., and superintendent of schools at Rensslaer, Ind. For three years he was on the faculty of the state normal school at Mankato, and last year assumed management of the state normal school here.

Dr. L. W. Kline, who was a member of the faculty last year, will remain this year. He is a graduate of Harvard, with B.H.D., and will have charge of the psychological and educational departments.

Miss Sophie M. Prendergast was also a member of the faculty last year. Miss Prendergast is a graduate of the State university, and has taught at Mankato and the State Agricultural school at Minneapolis. She has charge of the English department at the school.

J. W. Hubbard is a graduate of the University of Indiana and has the master's degree. He was a member of the faculty last year and will this year have charge of physical sciences.

H. C. Strong is a Harvard graduate and will teach history, civics and social science. Last year his course of lectures before the Outlook club, on English history, were considered very fine.

Miss Nellie W. Farnsworth will have charge of the music again this year.

Herbert Blair is a graduate of the Northwestern university, and taught in the Oak Park high school before coming here. He will have charge of the biological sciences.

Miss Cora Strong is a graduate of Cornell university, where she received special recognition in both mathematics and English, which branches she will teach at the normal.

Max Weber is a graduate of Pratt institute, and for the past two years has had charge of manual training and drawing at the school at Lynchburg, Va., and during the summer has had charge of the same work at the summer schol of the Virginia university. He will take charge of manual training and drawing here.

Miss Dora Eaton is a graduate of the Lewis institute of Chicago, and has been doing special work this summer at the Chicago university. She will have charge of domestic science.

Miss Alice Paull Ray will again have charge of the grammar grades in the training department.

Miss Olive B. Horne, who comes this year will take charge of the intermediate grades in the training department.

Miss Nellie Spring is a graduate of the normal of De Kalb, Ill., and has been assistant there to Mrs. McMurray.

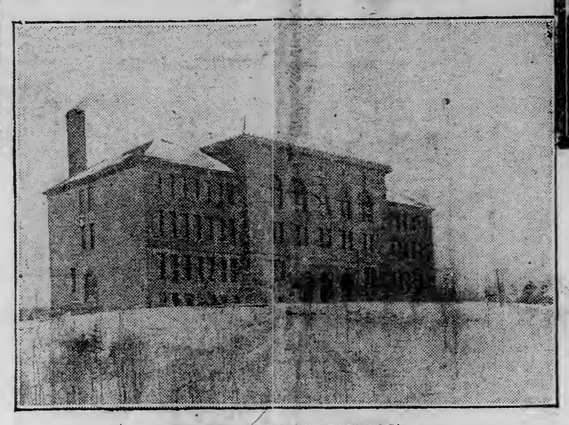

Miss Mary A. Dacey will again have charge of the kindergarten. Miss Dacey is a graduate of Wheelock's school at Boston.

Miss Bertha Paine, who is a graduate of the Mankato normal school, taught in the Duluth schools one year before taking up the work at the Duluth normal. She is also purchasing agent for the schools.

Alice Paull Ray. Nellie Spring. Max Weber. Olive Browne Horne. Dora Eaton.

THE WORK OF THE LIFE-SAVERS

LIFE SAVING STATION.

"This season has been the busiest we have ever experienced since the opening of the Duluth life-saving station," said Capt. M. A. McLennan in speaking of the work of the life-savers during the past year.

"We have actually saved more people from drowning than during any other season in our history.

"The majority of the rescues have been from boats which have capsized in the bay, sailboats, rowboats and other small craft."

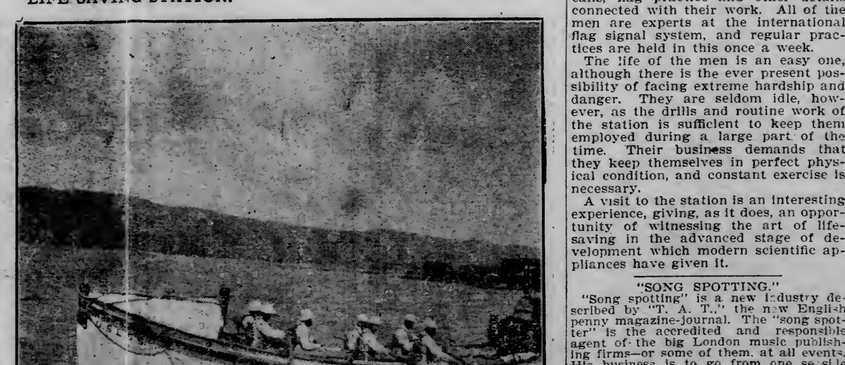

The Duluth life-saving station was established in 1895, opening on June 1 of that year. The main building is situated on Park Point, a short distance below the canal. The main boathouse is on the bay front, and here the lifeboat and the majority of the other smaller boats are kept. The members of the crew also have quarters over this building, the captain having his residence in the main building.

In the boat house on the lake one surf boat is kept for emergency calls.

The nature of the rescue work on the lake is different from that on the bay. On the former there are very few "hurry-up" calls. When a boat runs on the beach or is in distress, the members of the crew generally have some warning of the event, and there is sufficient time for the lifeboat to go around by the canal.

When a "hurry-up" call is given from the lake, as in the case of the Wilson-Hadley disaster last year, the surf boat can be launched in an incredibly short space of time.

On the bay front is where the rapid work of the crew is shown to its best advantge. Here the work of the men consists largely in answering emergency calls from overturned skiffs and similar accidents, where minutes mean lives.

VIEW OF LIFE SAVING BOA ND CREW.

A small dingey is kept constantly in the water, with oars ready. Two men can man it, and it can be on its way to the scene of the disaster within 20 or 30 seconds of the time the warning is given. The men have their quarters right in the building, and some of the answers to calls have amazed onlookers, to whom it seemed that the dingey was launched almost before the unfortunate inmates of the overturned skiff had been precipitated into the water.

The crew consists of eight members, exclusive of the captain. Their names are as follows: John Creighton, William McKay, Charles I. Foss, John MacLeod, George Emerson, John G. Lester, Norman A. Matheson, John D. Millen.

The crew is constantly on duty during the summer months, ready to answer any calls by night or day. They have a day off every nine days, however, never more than one man being off at a time. When Capt. McLennan is off duty, his place is taken by John Creighton, who acts as assistant.

The men hold regular drills four times a week. The drills consist in answering calls, flag practice and other details connected with their work. All of the men are experts at the international flag signal system, and regular practices are held in this once a week.

The life of the men is an easy one, although there is the ever present possibility of facing extreme hardship and danger. They are seldom idle, however, as the drills and routine work of the station is sufficient to keep them employed during a large part of the time. Their business demands that they keep themselves in perfect physical condition, and constant exercise is necessary.

A visit to the station is an interesting experience, giving, as it does, an opportunity of witnessing the art of life-saving in the advanced stage of development which modern scientific appliances have given it.

MURDER OF ROSTKOVSKY

Details of the Assassination Given In a Letter.

Boston, Aug. 29.—Mail advices received here yesterday concerning the murder of the Russian consul, Rostkovsky, at Monastir, Macedonia, say that the Russian consul was driving into the city from the Bukevo monastery, in company with a Bulgarian teacher, named Misirkaff. Outside of the city, on the way to the railroad station, is a Turkish guard house. On passing this house the Russian consul observed that the policeman on duty failed to give him the ordinary salute. He stopped his carriage, walked back to the policeman and asked the latter why he had failed to show him the courtesy.

The policeman answered the consul that he did not know him. Mr. Rostkovsky then asked the policeman for his name, and for answer received a bullet in his side and another through his head, causing instant death. The teacher, who had also alighted, either from extreme fright or presence of mind, fell prone in the roadside ditch and remained as if dead until the Turkish officials and others appeared and he could escape without fear of death. On the forenoon of the same day some women observed five armed Turks in the quarters at the guard-house, and when the shooting occurred, one Turk asked another: "What is the matter?"

One of the five armed men replied: "A dog was killed," after which the five men went away.

The vali received the remains, evidently much disturbed, and remarked that the consul was to blame for not using his revolver on the policeman. When the body of the consul was brought to his home, it was found that he not only had been shot, but that his head had been crushed in by a blow from the butt end of the policeman's rifle.

On the following Monday Hilim Pasha sought an interview with Madame Rostkovsky. At first the bereaved woman refused to see the pasha, but on it being made known that he came as a representative of the sultan, she met him in the presence of two Russian noblemen.

The pasha expressed regret at the "unfortunate" affair. "Unfortunate, infamous affair," exclaimed Madame Rostkovsky. After some further remarks, the pasha, with considerable embarrassment, produced a check for 200,000 francs ($40,000), and explained with much stammering that the sultan had ordered him to give it to the unfortunate widow for herself and children.

Madame Rostkovsky, who is a princess by birth, asked if she rightly understood that the sultan was offering "baksheesh."

"The blood of my husband cannot be paid for by Turkish money," she said. "Give the check back to your master, and if he does not know what to do with it, tell him to give it to his soldiers, who have received no pay for so many months. Here are the decorations which the sultan bestowed upon my husband and myself. I return them through you. Tomorrow I will advise the sultan by telegraph that I have given them back."

This ended the interview.

On Saturday, Aug. 8, five towns in the district of Mogilan were burned by the revolutionists, who took the wheat of the Turkish proprietors and gave it to the Bulgarian villagers.

TO CLEAN SHETLAND SHAWL.

The Shetland floss shawl or scarf in which the summer girl delights is practically spoiled if laundered according to the usual method, so some special way must be devised for restoring their freshness when they become soiled, says the Brooklyn Eagle. Dry cleaning with starch, meal, flour or the like is highly recommended, but a Brooklyn young woman has discovered one way to launder a white shawl satisfactorily. She made a suds with warm water and white soap, adding a little ammonia, and sopped the shawl gently around in this, squeezing, but never lifting the mass of wool. A large pan was utilized for the washing process, and when the suds was poured off, fresh rinsing water was added twice. After the second rinsing every possible drop of moisture was squeezed out of the shawl and the pan set over the warming oven of the range. The shawl was turned over and over until perfectly dry, when it looked as good as new.

KINDERGARTEN IN GEORGIA

Where Children of Working People Receive Industrial Training.

Columbus, Ga., Aug. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Capital and organized labor joining hands; the leaders of the unions voluntarily proposing to cooperate with the president of a street railway company in establishing a kindergarten for the children of working people; perfervid declarations by the president of a central federation of labor that it is an important mission of the up-to-date trades union, not merely to procure increased wages or reduction of the hours of work, but to educate the workers—is not that a proposition to startle the average American? But that is just the state of aqairs today in Columbus, where the first kindergarten in the world run by a labor union is about to be started.

It certainly surprises the Northern visitor accustomed to the strained relations that exist in almost every manufacturing center above Mason and Dixon's line to find that in this Southern city the unions are not regarded by employers as mere mischief making organizations, and that the whole class of capitalists is not believed by laboring men to be inevitably hostile to their rights. Of course Columbus is not paradise, but it does interest the Northerner as a hustling manufacturing town of rising 35,000 inhabitants, in which there appears to be a very cordial understanding between employers and employed. And incidentally it may be observed that this fortunate condition is by no means peculiar to Columbus. In fact, the freedom of the whole South from labor troubles, which is undoubtedly having considerable effect in inducing manufacturers—particularly textile manufacturers—to build plants in this section, is generally noted by Northerners when they come for the first time to study Southern conditions, so that perhaps this single instance of the interest taken by the laborers of Columbus in the welfare of their city is not so remarkable after all.

Still the project is in itself unique, for it is a fact that the Central Federation of Labor, composed of the representatives of all the labor unions of Columbus and of the Alabama suburbs of Phoenix and Girard, is planning, with the aid of George J. Baldwin, a prominent Savannah capitalist, who has extensive interests in Columbus, to start a kindergarten for the children of the working population; and this, so far as is known, is the first attempt made anywhere by trades unions to promote an educational idea. But in Columbus, as in many another city of the new South, there is a remarkable solidarity, such that the community does not divide itself sharply into cliques and classes, so it is not strange after all that the industrial kindergarten should first come into oeing here.

As the breadth of view shown by the union leaders in advocating and explaining this educational scheme is, of course, its most remarkable feature, a few expressions of individual opinion, as made by prominent Columbus men, will perhaps bear quoting. The man who originated the plan, W. H. Barclay, a member of the Central Federation of Labor, when asked how he happened to think of it, wrote out the following statement:

"As you perhaps know, the Central Federation in our city is composed of representatives from all the labor unions. These unions were organized for the protection of their members and for their moral and material advancement and, in my opinion, the best way to accomplish these results is through education. Noticing the wonderful work that is done in this direction by the kindergarten schools of this and other cities, I conceived the idea of having the federation take the subject under advisement and, if possible, establish a kindergarten and industrial school combined, where the children of working people could receive such training as would better fit them for the battle of life."

Similar expressions of opinion have been made by O. E. Barlow, president of the Central Federation of Labor, who declares that the labor union, being an educational institution of itself, and also an ardent advocate of the education of the masses, carries out one of its highest ideals in promoting a free kindergarten; by W. H. Winn, chairman of the committee for the federation appointed to consider ways and means for establishing such a kindergarten, who believes that "the procurement of increased wages, or a reduction of the hours of labor, while a most important feature of the modern trades union, is not by any means the Alpha and Omega of the movement;" by C. B. Gibson, superintendent of the city's schools, who approves of the new kindergarten as a feeder to the primary industrial school—which is in itself a unique educational undertaking in Columbus, being a special school for the education of the children of the cotton mill operatives.

The whole local attitude may perhaps be summed up in what the mayor of Columbus, Hon. L. H. Chapell, says:

"It seems to me that the Central Federation of Labor would be conferring a splendid benefit upon this community by organizing for the work in a manner that will warrant Mr. Baldwin in placing in Columbus a portion of the endowment fund which, it seems, he controls, and giving the movement the benefit of his splendid personal force and judgment. This would give Columbus two distinct free kindergarten associations, which would work in harmony for a common purpose until a consolidation under one organization would seem to be advisable.

"As the organization of kindergarten work becomes a more conspicuous feature, it will attract more attention from our citizens and from the city; and it is safe to assume that the voluntary subscriptions to the fund for maintenance will easily keep pace with the growth of the work. Indeed it is perhaps not taking too sanguine a view of the future to look forward to the time, not very far distant, when the present very modest structures used in kindergarten work would give place to model buildings of special design, which would be ornaments to our city and monuments to the progressive spirit which prompts the development of this branch of educational work."

"The school will, it is expected, be opened in the coming month."

MISS BERTHA S. PAINE.

"SONG SPOTTING."

"Song spotting" is a new industry described by "T. A. T.," the new English penny magazine-journal. The "song spotter" is the accredited and responsible agent of the big London music publishing firms—or some of them, at all events. His business is to go from one seaside resort to another all the summer round, spending a week or so at each, and "spotting" which ditties "go" and which do not. He knows that some among the songs whose choruses are hummed upon the sands this summer will be the favorites during the dark winter evenings. So he reports each evening to his principals in London. These latter have, of course, other "song spotters" working on similar lines in other districts, and should the reports coincide regarding any particular ballad negotiations are at once opened with the composer for the acquisition of the copyright.

PRETTY GOWNS FOR CHOCOLATE PARTY

They Are a Great Deal Like Luncheon Dresses, But a Little Less Formal—Linen To Be Utilized For Winter House Dresses.

New York, Aug. 29.—The president's wife gave a chocolate party at Oyster Bay the other day. The guests were invited for 2 o'clock and chocolate was poured in the pretty dining room while the windows leading out upon the veranda stood open and the cool waters from the bay sent up a breeze for the guests to enjoy.

All came attired in pretty midday costumes, consisting of gowns that were alike in waist and skirt, shirt-waist dresses you might call them, though several were in the two-piece suit of skirt and jacket.

Mrs. Roosevelt wore a white dress embroidered in white, a very simple mull it was, but very becoming. One of the guests wore a dress in gray linen trimmed with appliques of Irish lace; and another wore a gown of foulard with shirred skirt trimmed with lace and a rather elaborate waist shirred and lace trimmed.

The prevailing and predominating color was blue, not turquoise, but blue of a medium shade, and there were several dresses that showed touches of red in with the navy blue trimmings, the military combination.

Gray is also a great deal worn these gray green days, when the foliage has lost some of its brightness and is getting down to its full tints. Gray gowns in summer silk, in china silk, in figured foulard and in linen are very popular and there is something about them which makes them dressy in spite of the fact that they are not among the elegant materials.

And it is the same way with linen. You can do so much with linen. You can wear it on the golf links in white, in bright red and in blue. You can take a finer linen and make it up with Russian lace and wear it for shopping or for calling. While, if you want to be very elegant, you can select a very fine white linen, trim it elaborately with lace and be the possessor of one of the handsomest as well as the most expensive gowns in the world. Linen, you know, runs all the gamut of price and you can get anything you want, from a coarse cheap variety, through which you could sift peas, to a lovely, fine grade, which can be pulled through a lady's ring. The Lady Curzon linen, this fine linen is called.

There is a curious fad for bright red, and one of Mrs. Roosevelt's Oyster Bay guests wore it the other day in red canvas over a red lining. The gown was all in the most brilliant hue, the color of a ripe tomato, and its trimmings were few and consisted of only a few medallions of white lace.

At Newport, the other day at a luncheon party—a chocolate party it was called—for the chocolate party fad began in the city by the sea—one of the guests wore a dress of coral-colored linen made up with coral colored lace. She wore strings of corals and her hat was coral red, relieved with one long floating, black ostrich feather.

The all-red dress is inspiring in a company of women, for it gives the dash of color that is so often needed in a roomful of blue and white and gray dresses, and red worn by a blond is immensely becoming. But there are few brunettes who can brave it, for it makes the skin so very much darker.

The chocolate party gown should be prepared by every woman who wants to entertain, for it will be needed this fall. Mrs. Chauncey M. Depew recently bought one in Paris and Mrs. Anthony Hope has a very pretty one in her wardrobe. Miss Ethel Barrymore wears a white chocolate party gown and at a luncheon given by Mrs. Hope before her marriage, she wore a dress of gray cashmere trimmed with white lace insertion.

The chocolate party gown is a great deal like a luncheon dress, but a little less formal. Yet it is not a peignoir. It is one of those lovely house conceptions which every woman boasts and without which she would not feel that her wardrobe was complete.

Over in Paris the other day Miss Gladys Deacon, the great American beauty, wore a handsome dress at a midday luncheon in the American colony. It was the dress of a hostess, for Miss Deacon entertained a few of her friends, chaperoned by the duchess of Marlborough.

The gown was built of piece lace of the net variety, over a slip of pink lawn. It was made in the form of one-piece gown, something like an empire dress. It was attached to a very short waist. The short waist was covered with lace, or was made of lace, you would say, and was finished by a narrow ribbon which was tied upon the bust under a great bunch of ribbons of all colors. It was a very youthful gown and Miss Deacon looked charming in it.

There is one comfort to be found in the luncheon gown, that is, you can make it out of odds and ends, for it does not require nor receive the close inspection of a dinner dress. The French women, who revel in these dresses, make them of odds and ends and bits and pieces of little lengths of cloth and silk, putting all together until a perfect little luncheon gown is formed.

A luncheon hostess wore, not long ago, a little gown which was delightfully pretty. The skirt, which was gathered to the band, was made of light green cashmere. Around the foot there was a pale gray flounce of taffeta. The flounce was joined to the skirt by a band of ecru-colored torchon. The waist combined the green cloth and torchon lace, while the girdle consisted of a folded band of white taffeta. It made a lovely dress and no one except the hostess knew that it was made of the odds and ends of three or four cast-off day and evening dresses.

There is every indication that the linen dresses of summer will become the house dresses of winter. And not only will linen be utilized in this manner, but cheviot, canvas, madras and challie and all the summer stuffs will be used in the same way.

The shops are full of these materials including the summer silks and the foulards, and gowns are sold ready-made, and by the piece, to be put together as house and luncheon dresses. At the close of the season the summer skirt-waist suit is soiled. It is faded and the newness is thoroughly departed from it, while the skirt is frayed and there are rents in the waist caused by the ironing.

The thrifty matrons who wants a pretty luncheon gown will take her old shirt waists and give it a few touches approved by Dame Fashion. If she is careful and observes the newest fashions, the dress will come out a luncheon robe as good as new.

And these are the things she must do: She must add a flounce, for flounces on house dresses are again seen. Falling the material for a flounce, she must bind the bottom with taffeta, letting the binding show very deeply on the front in the shape of silk scallops.

She must embroider scallops on the skirt with her needle, and, if she is clever enough, she must add a scalloped ruffle, four inches deep, or two ruffles, with the edges all prettily scalloped in white or red or some pretty color.

For a belt she must make a girdle, all laid in silk folds, and at the back she must place a wide ornament, through which the belt is run. At the front she must place a small oval buckle to match the ornament in the back.

Of course she will want some lace trimmings, for where is there a gown that is complete without lace; and the prettiest way of doing this is the new way adopted by Lady Herbert, the Countess Cassini, Mrs. Secretary Hay and others of the Washington set.

The lace, which is all points, is laid around the neck so that the points fall downward. There must be three points in the front, two points at each shoulder. The lace points are attached to a standing stock of lace.

The way of trimming the skirt, to be very up to date, shows lace treated with stuffed flowers. These at first look like flowers very heavily embroidered, but really they are stuffed to make them set out well.

Women who were clever embroiderers years ago will tell you how and by what knack and by what means the flowers are made to stand out in this way; and they will also show you how such work can be done upon lace. It is immensely effective, and well repays one for the time, trouble and the study that is necessary.

Mrs. Secretary Hay has one of the finest examples of this lace flounce work to be seen in Washington, though the Countess Cassini has some excellent Russian and Italian specimens of very heavy lace. Mrs. Hay's flounce, all a dead white, is embroidered in raised flowers, and is made so that it can be transferred from one gown to another.

The vogue for fur trimmings will be on the increase this winter, for every indication points to the fact that it will be a furry season. Furs will be much worn in the house, and their pretty softness will lend enchantment to many a gown.

To make your fur trimmings it is only necessary to secure some very narrow bands of fur, the narrower the better; and some of them are so very slender that you wonder how they hold together. But, no matter how narrow, they are beautiful when used upon house dresses; and they appear to be very good advantage on the lace gown as well as upon the gown of cloth.

The expression lace dress does not mean as much now as it did when all laces were expensive. They come now in such reasonable varieties, at such reasonable prices and in so many and such pretty varieties and in so many colors that one can boast a lace gown without having spent much for it.

The luncheon gowns are remarkable in many ways, not the least of which is in the sleeve, which is quite new. The sleeve seen upon a luncheon gown of recent make showed a very tight upper part terminating in a bell at the elbow. This bell, which was wide, was slit at the back, and the whole was edged with a ruffle of chiffon. Below this fell another bell, coming almost to the wrist; and this, too, was edged with a ruffle of chiffon. It made a very pretty arrangement of sleeve, and one that was most becoming to the hand and arm.

Another new sleeve is worthy of note. It is the shirred sleeve, shirred above the elbow and below it, with a big puff above and below the elbow. This sleeve requires a great deal of material and is a rather warm sleeve unless made in the lawn stuffs.

Really nothing can be prettier for luncheon wear than a sprigged lawn in pink sprigs upon a cream ground. This is rather pastoral and youthful, but the new patterns are so lovely that one can be pardoned for selecting them over and over again. They come not only in the lawns, but in the silks as well, and they are lovely, no matter in what material.

A gown of this variety can have the shirred sleeve with the shirring coming in a very deep band below the shoulder. Then comes a big puff, into which a band of insertion is introduced. Then comes a band of shirring, then another puff showing a band of lace, then more shirring, which finishes the cuff. This makes a delightfully becoming sleeve.

Some of the sleeves are lovely because of their flowing tendencies. Beginning at the elbow, they fall away from the arm in wide, pretty shapes, bell and oblong and melon shapes. Of course the bell is lace trimmed and there are all sorts of pretty falling trimmings, such as plaited chiffon, shirred lace, tucked silk, fringe and the like. Really you cannot be too fancy in these matters.

One must make note of the newest ribbon choux, for there is always something new in this line and the luncheon gown would not be complete without its ribbon bow.

One of the newest is called the sunset chou. It is as large around as the sun and is made of all the colors of the sunset. This chou, which is, perhaps, the size of a saucer, is composed of loops of black velvet, into which there are set loops of blue, red, green, yellow and pink. A great deal of taste is necessary in making such a chou to make the colors harmonize, but a certain modiste who makes many of these for her patrons declares that the whole secret lies in having plenty of black in the chou.

There is another new chou, and this is such a pretty one. It is made out of a band of silk about six inches wide and twelve inches long. The ribbon is passed through two small silver buckles. The whole is now fastened upon the front of the waist across the bust. This makes a very pretty little finish for the yoke.

One of the loveliest of choux consists of ribbon flowers connected by a ribbon band. There is a large flower and there are several small ones, all caught together by a narrow ribbon and strung along the waist. One is fastened high on the bust, another at the belt with smaller flowers in between, all of which are appliqued to the gown with many small, fancy pins.

The chou that consist of a bunch of ribbons with small knots upon the ends of the ribbons is a pretty thing and one that does not lose its vogue. To make such a chou a quantity of baby ribbon is necessary. There should be a small foundation of crinoline and the loops of ribbon are sewed to it. For every loop there is an end, the end is tied in a tiny bow knot of its own. This is not a new chou, but it is a very becoming one worn upon any gown, of high or low estate. It is a chou that is also used for lingerie.

A feature of the luncheon gown is the small pin which is to be worn so profusely upon all dresses. This pin is shaped in odd ways and the gown is scarcely complete without it. Waist sets consisting of half a dozen pins of various sizes can be purchased and in the more expensive pins one can get little animals, small flowers, vegetables and fruit.

The use of the small waist pin are varied. Breast pins are worn with lace collars and little pins are used to secure lace bands, to fasten lace points, to adorn lace cuffs and to anchor the choux to the gown. There is a great fad for these small pins and it is fortunate that they come in cheap, pretty mock gems, as well as in the richer ones.

A new trimming is the front panel trimming. This is, as its name implies, simply a panel. It is laid on flat at the chin and is carried down to the belt and so on down the front to the hem of the gown. It can be any width, from 6 to 12 inches, and of any material with a preference, of course, for the lace panel. Embroidery of a brilliant kind is used upon it and the luncheon gown is made beautiful in this way.

A panel of lace, with the center of the lace picked out in stuffed silk roses, and with the borders of the lace embroidered in colored beads and Russian silk designs, made as very handsome front panel for a luncheon gown which was worn at one of the prettiest of the midsummer affairs.

The trains of the gowns continue long, and when it comes to morning dresses, they are so extreme in their length that they sweep far behind. The longer the train the more graceful, and the short hostess can take great pleasure in wearing a skirt which makes her appear twice her height.

It is impossible in limited space to tell half the prettiest of the season, for new things are constantly being brought out, and the woman of autumn need not fear that she will be neglected in matters of small personal adornment for a great plenty will be provided.

NEW FALL COSTUME.

This elegant calling costume is of light baize ladies' cloth, trimmed with rows of silk braid in several shades, all darker than the material. The cape, collar, stoles and cuffs of the long coat are embroidered in the same shadings on applied silk lace, but with fine wool over the motifs. The skirt is a long double skirt, the skirt of the coat deeply plaited. The sleeve is cut in four pieces.

THE NEW HEAD SCARF.

These new "fascinators" are really fascinating. they make a becoming frame for the face, answering for both head shoulder wrap on the piazza or for a cool evening stroll. This one is of Roman silk with many-colored stripes and a fringe of looped chenille. They come in great variety.

BLACK LACE SCARF.

This fascinator is really a three-cornered shawl of black lace, edged with white and black lace. It is gathered in plaits under a large white rose, and pinned becomingly around the face, the point falling to the right of the face, the two long ends tucked away in the corsage.

THE NEW PLUSH EFFECTS.

This handsome large turban is covered plainly with lavender felt, and bound and draped with purple plush. The front trimming is of flowers made of gauze plush, with leaves of velvet. Plushes, both of long and short pile, are the principal material for the coming season, combined with chenille and velvet.

THE PINKHAM CURES

ATTRACTING GREAT ATTENTION AMONG THINKING WOMEN.

Mrs. Frances Stafford, of 243 E. 114th St., N.Y. City, adds her testimony to the hundreds of thousands on Mrs. Pinkham's files.

When Lydia E. Pinkham's Remedies were first introduced skeptics all over the country frowned upon their curative claims, but as year after year has rolled by and the little group of women who had been cured by the new discovery has since grown into a vast army of hundreds of thousands, doubts and skepticisms have been swept away as by a mighty flood, until to-day the great good that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and her other medicines are doing among the women of America is attracting the attention of many of our leading scientists, physicians and thinking people.

Merit alone could win such fame; wise, therefore, is the woman who for a cure relies upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

BUYING A WIFE

On the Installment Plan Is Pedro's Method.

Parkersburg, W. Va., Aug. 29.—Buying a wife on the installment plan is the Americanized method adopted by Pedro Alessandro.

Pedro has been here several years, and by the sale of bananas has accumulated some money. Recently a dark-eyed maid from sunny Italy was added to the Italian colony here, and Pedro fell in love with her. Negotiations were opened with her father, and he agreed, after the Italian fashion, to let his daughter become Pedro's bride for a certain sum of money. Pedro had not enough money, so he proposed the installment plan. It was accepted, and for several months he has been paying to the father of his bride-to-be $1.50 a week.

His time has almost expired, and he will soon claim the hand of the pretty black-eyed girl from Italy and marry her.

For Only $85.

The Northern Pacific will sell a special ticket for a tour of the Yellowstone Park, including railway and Pullman fares and meals in dining car, St. Paul to Gardiner and return, stage coach transportation through the park, and board and lodging at the park hotels for the regular tour of five and a half days. Tickets sold so that passengers can leave St. Paul or Minneapolis on park train of Sept. 3 only.

If necessary, a special train of Pullman, dining and observation cars will be run. Apply to any Northern Pacific railroad agent for information and reservations, or write to Charles S. Fee, general passenger agent, St. Paul, Minn.

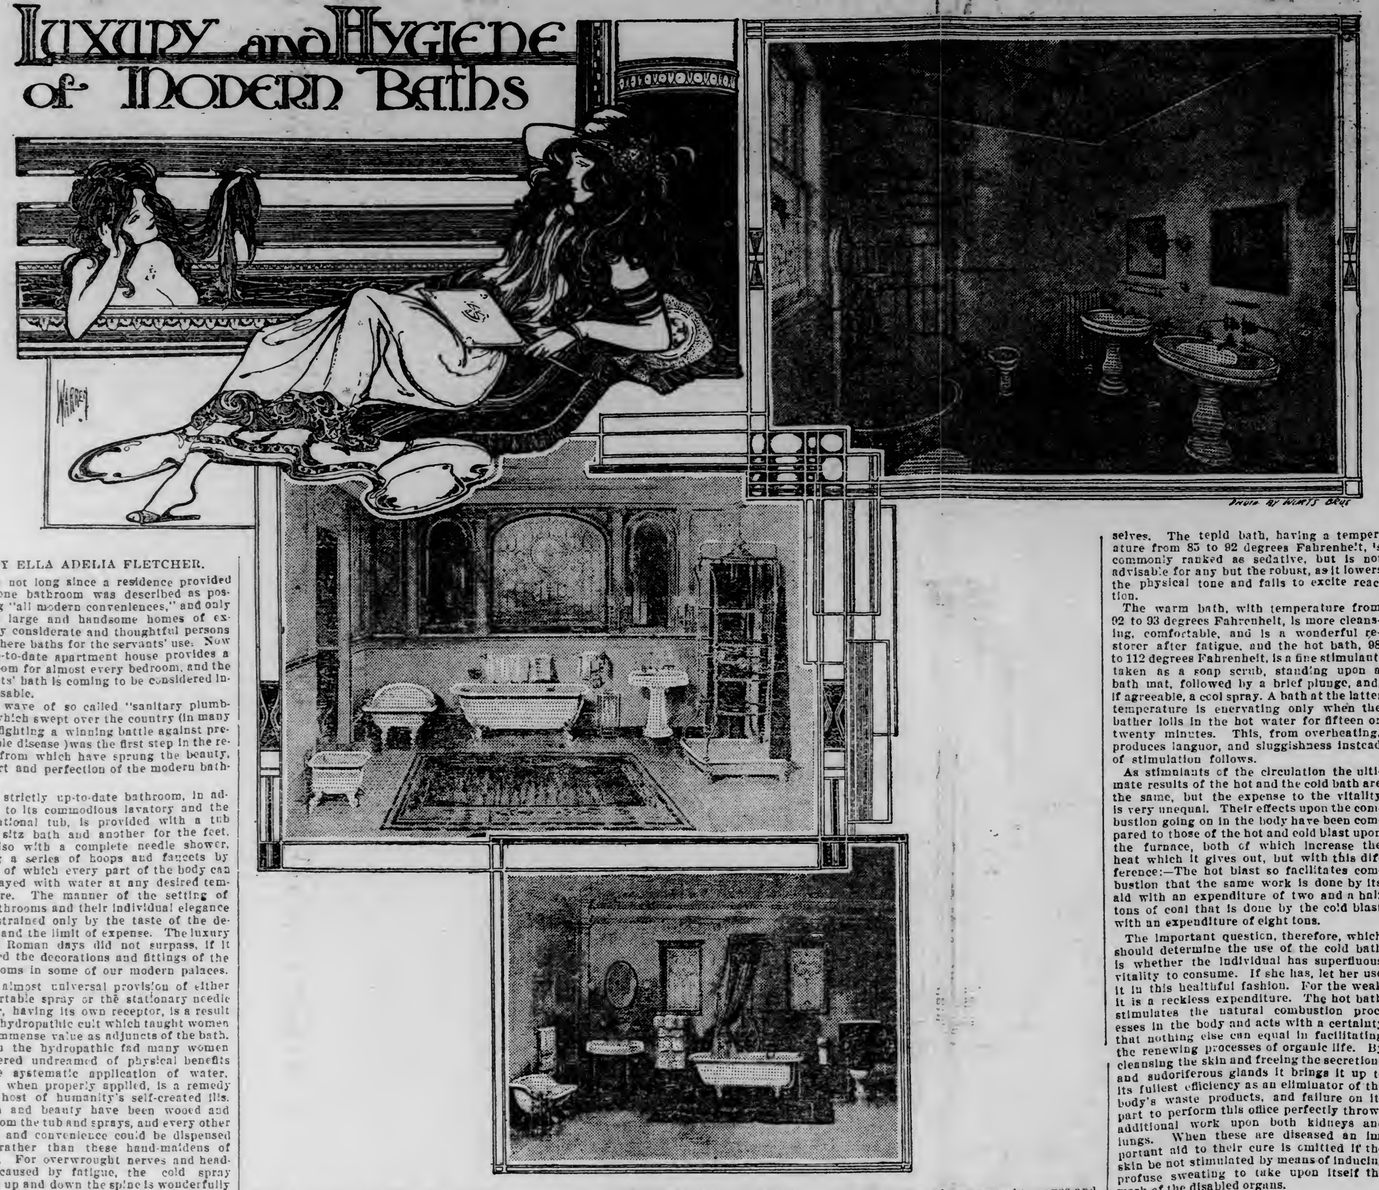

BABY'S VOICE

Is the joy of the household, for without it no happiness can be complete. How sweet the picture of mother and babe, angels smile at and commend the thoughts and aspirations of the mother bending over the cradle. The ordeal through which the expectant mother must pass, however, is so full of danger and suffering that she looks forward to the hour when she shall feel the exquisite thrill of motherhood with indescribable dread and fear. Every woman should know that the danger, pain and horror of child-birth can be entirely avoided by the use of Mother's Friend, a scientific liniment for external use only, which toughens and renders pliable all the parts, and assists nature in its sublime work. By its aid thousands of women have passed this great crisis in perfect safety and without pain. Sold at $1.00 per bottle by druggists. Our book of priceless value to all women sent free. Address

Luxury and Hygiene of Modern Baths

BY ELLA ADELIA FLETCHER.

It is not long since a residence provided with one bathroom was described as possessing "all modern conveniences," and only in the large and handsome homes of extremely considerate and thoughtful persons were there baths for the servants' use. Now the up-to-date apartment house provides a bathroom for almost every bedroom, and the servants' bath is coming to be considered indispensable.

The wave of so called "sanitary plumbing" which swept over the country (in many cases fighting a winning battle against preventable disease) was the first step in the reform from which have sprung the beauty, comfort and perfection of the modern bathroom.

The strictly up-to-date bathroom, in addition to its commodious lavatory and the conventional tub, is provided with a tub for a sitz bath and another for the feet, and also with a complete needle shower, having a series of hoops and faucets by means of which every part of the body can be sprayed with water at any desired temperature. The manner of the setting of the bathrooms and their individual elegance are restrained only by the taste of the designer and the limit of expense. The luxury of old Roman days did not surpass, if it equalled the decorations and fittings of the bathrooms in some of our modern palaces.

The almost universal provision of either the portable spray or the stationary needle shower, having its own receptor, is a result of the hydropathic cult which taught women their immense value as adjuncts of the bath.

From the hydropathic fad many women discovered undreamed of physical benefits in the systematic application of water, which, when properly applied, is a remedy for a host of humanity's self-created ills. Health and beauty have been wooed and won from the tub and sprays, and every other luxury and convenience could be dispensed with rather than these hand-maidens of health. For overwrought nerves and headache, caused by fatigue, the cold spray played up and down the spine is wonderfully calming and restorative.

In all this cult of baths and bathing the beneficent offices of hot water have come in for a fair share of recognition, and the cold water faddist no longer browbeats his fellows into believing in the superior virtues of his hardihood or that his is the only way. The office of the cold bath is mainly that of stimulating and hardening the nerves—of wonting them to shocks of temperature changes. As a cleansing agent its value is almost nil. Cold water has no affinity for the oily, saline and acid matter exuded upon the skin and freely mingled with atmospheric soil, and its first effect is to contract the pores of the skin, so they will yield none of their impurities.

There is no aid to physical well being more effective than to keep the skin in a state of absolute cleanliness and purity, and only the daily bath can secure this. The mischievous advice freely and dictatorially given on the subject of baths would fill volumes and has cost a great amount of suffering; but most harmful have been the warnings against frequent bathing as enervating (which it is only when people stay in the bath too long) and the indiscriminate advocacy of cold baths. The pale, anaemic women, bundles of overwrought nerves and excitable energy, who periodically are on the verge of nervous prostration are often victims of the latter regime.

Though the matter of the bath's temperature can never be arbitrarily settled, but must ever remain an open question and be adjusted to individual idiosyncrasies, some facts not generally known will aid many in choosing that most healthful for themselves. The tepid bath, having a temperature from 85 to 92 degrees Fahrenheit, is commonly ranked as sedative, but is not advisable for any but the robust, as it lowers the physical tone and fails to excite reaction.

The warm bath, with temperature from 92 to 93 degrees Fahrenheit, is more cleansing, comfortable, and is a wonderful restorer after fatigue, and the hot bath, 98 to 112 degrees Fahrenheit, is a fine stimulant, taken as a soap scrub, standing upon a bath mat, followed by a brief plunge, and, if agreeable, a cool spray. A bath at the latter temperature is enervating only when the bather lolls in the hot water for fifteen or twenty minutes. This, from overheating, produces languor, and sluggishness instead of stimulation follows.

As stimulants of the circulation the ultimate results of the hot and the cold bath are the same, but the expense to the vitality is very unequal. Their effects upon the combustion going on in the body have been compared to those of the hot and cold blast upon the furnace, both of which increase the heat which it gives out, but with this difference:—The hot blast so facilitates combustion that the same work is done by its aid with an expenditure of two and a half tons of coal that is done by the cold blast with an expenditure of eight tons.

The important question, therefore, which should determine the use of the cold bath is whether the individual has superfluous vitality to consume. If she has, let her use it in this healthful fashion. For the weak it is a reckless expenditure. The hot bath stimulates the natural combustion processes in the body and acts with a certainty that nothing else can equal in facilitating the renewing processes of organic life. By cleansing the skin and freeing the secretions and sudoriferous glands it brings it up to its fullest efficiency as an eliminator of the body's waste products, and failure on its part to perform this office perfectly throws additional work upon both kidneys and lungs.

When these are diseased an important aid to their cure is omitted if the skin be not stimulated by means of inducing profuse sweating to take upon itself the work of the disabled organs.

With the bath cult we are reviving much of the old time luxury of perfumed, mineral and milk baths. Queen Wilhelmina's daily bath is perfumed with a pint of her favorite Cologne water, and French women practise many dainty devices for imparting to their baths a subtle, lingering fragrance. One of these, reputed to be delightful, and moreover, calming to the nerves in the using, is to toss three handfuls of wild cowslips into the warm bath. Emollient baths, recommended especially for anaemic women, which render the skin supple and white, are prepared by adding to the bath water from two to six pounds of bran, or two pounds of cornstarch or oatmeal, or half as much gelatine or linseed meal.

Although only fortune-pampered women can indulge in using a pint of choice perfume for a single bath and other expensive conceits of the day, there are many methods for enhancing the luxury of the bath which are to be had for a little painstaking, and which are so beneficial in results as to be well worth while. A good substitute for the celebrated beauty baths of milk is the following mixture, which can be put in the ordinary bath; the ingredients should be thoroughly mingled and put in cheesecloth bags of convenient size:

MILK BATH.

Marshmallow flowers	½ pound
Hyssop herb	¼ pound
Bran flour	4 pounds

An aromatic bath which is refreshing after extreme fatigue, a stimulant to the nerves and also a disinfectant (therefore to be recommended after the uncertain exposures attendant upon mingling in great city crowds) is made by macerating in warm water for two hours eight ounces each of lavender, thyme and rosemary, and a half ounce each of ground cloves, cinnamon and peppermint. Strain and add to the bath water.

It is soothing, when summer heat has developed a rash or hives, to take a vichy bath, which is accomplished by dissolving 500 grammes of bicarbonate of soda in the bath water. A sea-water bath can be enjoyed in the mountains by the use either of sea salt or of this compound:

SEA WATER BATH.

Muriate of soda	2 pounds
Sulphate of soda	1 pound
Chloride of lime	½ pound
Chloride of magnesia	½ pound

Dissolve the substance in two gallons of warm water. It is sufficient for a thirty-gallon bath. The best effects are gained by taking it hot, for then the free absorption of salts stimulates the entire body. A temperature of 98 degrees Fahrenheit induces perspiration, which in some cases is extremely beneficial. The tonic and soothing effects are gained in fifteen minutes; a longer stay may be enervating. It is better for the skin to sponge the body with fresh water after the sea bath, and sometimes a cold spray is enjoyable.

Lacking a spray, good results have been obtained by splashing cold water from a pitcher down the length of the spine, but the services of an attendant are required for this.

Among the famous Father Kneipp's baths a favorite one which is strengthening and stimulates the function of the skin is made by boiling for a half hour a pound of fresh, resinous pine needles and pine cones broken into bits. Strain the infusion and add it to a hot bath.

An agreeable substitute for the lingering fragrance of the perfumed and aromatic herb bath is obtained by spraying the body after the hot bath with a fragrant toilet water or invigorating aromatic vinegar.

Higher Criticism.

Once upon a time an ambitious theatrical manager paid a large price for a play, and at a great expense prepared it for production on the stage.

On the opening night he was very anxious indeed, and with palpitating heart watched for the first evidence of its effect on the audience.

There was quite a suspense, and then the anxious manager saw that the play did not meet with the approval of the gallery gods. He tried to win their favorable criticism, but could not, and, the rest of the house taking its cue from the gallery, the play was an absolute failure and had to be withdrawn at a great loss.

Moral:—The most potent criticism comes from the higher circles.

Tea Gown, Matinée & Negligées

In these days when each and every gown in a woman's outfit may truthfully be called a work of art, it is rather difficult to say which one is the more attractive or costly, the two terms, however, not being synonymous.

The tea gown is a most important addition to the modern outfit; in fact, is not an addition, but one of the most important first principles of the well-dressed woman. She who makes a study of clothes spends a lot of time, thought and money on her tea gowns and has them of various materials and in thick and thin fabrics and of different colors.

An elaborate tea gown can be fashioned to do duty for an informal at home dinner, and were it not for the loose flowing draperies which must always be part of the gown, whether made of the material itself or the trimmings, it would be hard, indeed, to distinguish which it was intended for—a dinner or tea gown. By rights there should always be a princess effect in the latter at all events. The back should be cut in princess shape, but then many dinner gowns are made on the same lines. The dinner gown is, however, always cut much lower in the neck, for, although the fashion is now popular for the low neck in a tea gown, the cut is much higher than for a dinner waist, and there are folds of lace or chiffon over the shoulders, and always sleeves, generally the long, floating ones of lace, chiffon or net.

Lace tea gowns of applique or the fine French laces are remarkably attractive this season, and while there must be always a fitted silk lining, the underskirt of fine lawn or batiste, trimmed profusely with lace, gives a much lighter effect than if the gown itself came directly against the lining. Chiffon is also used in the inner lining, but should not be made too full; if accordion plaited, then the plaiting should be sewed to the belt in such fashion that it will not look as though gathered. One model that is thought especially smart has the chiffon falling loose from the shoulders, as does the lace of which the gown is made, but in front the fulness is held in place by a girdle.

An inexpensive and always effective style of tea gown is the one made of flowered silk, and at this time of year there are a great many different patterns to choose from, as well as many different colorings. The lighter quality of silk is better to use for a tea gown intended for summer wear, but, of course, the heavier qualities and the brocaded ones are the handsomest. White with colored flowers always makes up well, but there is a curious old-fashioned design with a blue ground and pink flowers, almost a pompadour in coloring and effect, that is very charming and by no means expensive. The style of these gowns is much the same—a princess back and straight fronts, with an inner front of lace or chiffon. The gown can be cut round or square at the neck in front, and then a straight stole of lace, headed with a square yoke of lace, and the ends hanging down to the hem of the skirt makes it remarkably effective and always becoming. The net laces, with the applique of heavier lace, can be used for this style when it is not desirable to go to the expense of the real lace of heavy quality. As a rule, however, people apparently prefer the heavier and more expensive real laces for this purpose. It is not necessary, in order to carry out the lines of the fashionable tea gown, to have any trimmings of lace on the skirt. Either the front of lace all straight or flounces of lace are all sufficient, especially if the material of the gown is heavy, but it must have always the long front, with the sleeves very long and slashed, to show unlined undersleeves of net or lace.

Tea gowns made of nun's veiling—a very sheer, thin quality—are fashionable and extremely attractive. In the pale yellow or cream colored are some of the smartest, trimmed with bands of Persian or pompadour embroidery on white satin. The lining of the gown fits close to the figure, but the material itself hangs straight from the shoulders down, in this way giving the long line and at the same time defining the figure in a more becoming fashion. Sleeves loose from the shoulders, put on in plaits or gathered and falling back from the armholes, are most effective, and are finished with a band of the embroidery and a ruffle of the lace. The yoke is cut square and low with a band of the embroidery, and there is sometimes a long jacket in bolero or pointed front effect, given by bands of lace entre-deux, while down the front are ruffles of lace which reach to the very hem of the skirt and then meet other ruffles, not over a finger in width, that go entirely around the whole gown.

Batiste tea gowns are delightfully cool and dainty, and are made in colors as well as in white, but white is more fashionable. All these are made on the fitted silk princess linings, but the material is left loose from the shoulders so that the long, transparent effect so fashionable now can be best obtained. Accordion plaited batiste tea gowns are very smart and are a mass of lace in entre-deux and in ruffles.

All are cut low in the neck in front, either round or square, but have long sleeves that are slashed to the elbow, so that the arm is shown. Embroidered lace is also used for trimming these tea gowns, but it is really too heavy for the batiste and is better on the thin India silk or material of that sort. The most useful style among the ready made tea gowns is the one made entirely of entre-deux of lace and of gathered ribbon of the same width, the ribbon either white, blue or yellow, as preferred; the lace always white. This gown is tight in the back, in princess effect, but the fronts are loose and yet are supposed to be held in place by a jewelled girdle pulled well down in front to give a long line and to prevent the figure from looking too large. The linings are of the thinnest kind of India silk, only heavy enough to hold the bones and to allow of being taken in at the seams to fit. The moment a heavy lining is put in the gown becomes too warm for summer wear, and the idea is that not only shall this look cool but be cool enough to wear on the hottest evenings. It would almost seem that the height of the dressmaker's art had been reached in this style of garment, and that, while apparently loose and without reference to the figure, it in reality fits well, and is most carefully fashioned for either stout or slender figures.

How Women Make Money at Newport.

Novel Methods Adopted by Those Whoe Serve the "Four Hundred."

Newport, the summer Mecca of the very wealthy, naturally becomes the resort of hundreds of men and women desirous of securing employment. There is a sharp contest for favor, as the "regulars"—butlers, coachmen, maids, housekeepers, &c.—manage very successfully to cover the field of service, and the outsiders must offer novelty to secure even a hearing, to say nothing of making a living. Every season women have come to the fore with ingenious devices that have netted them tidy sums besides giving them a very delightful summer in America's most beautiful seashore resort. One practical little body distributed samples of a delicious confection of home-made manufacture at the servants' portals, the main entrances of the show places on the cliff walk and Bellevue avenue being barred to any one resembling a trade solicitor. By tact and a very taking manner she won over those in a position to get her sweetles to madame's notice, and it was not long before she received orders sufficient to pay her well for her trouble.

She took this method of disposing of her wares, as she thus saved the percentage charged when the transaction was carried on through the medium of an exchange. At many a swell luncheon these homemade bonbons were received with great favor by th guests present, who were tired of the sameness of French confections.

Another young woman wrote a letter to one of the prominent leaders of society just before a much heralded dinner dance given at her magnificent mansion on the cliffs, and frankly stated her case, saying that she wanted to get the list for the newspapers and that her descriptions of toilets would be correct and the identification of gown and wearer absolute. The leader engaged her as a private scribe to furnish a complete and comprehensive account of the affair for publication. Many of the important functions after this were reported in this fashion, the young woman being paid by both the papers and the hostesses.

The arrangement of wild flowers as decorations for luncheon and tea tables was made a feature by another enterprising girl. In this, as in the newspaper writing, everything was clear profit, for a short excursion beachward provided her with a wealth of lovely blossoms which her own exquisite taste formed into unique and artistic decorations. After ornate displays of American Beauties, orchids and other high priced flowers, these simple wild flowers were both restful and delightful to the eye.

In a place where pleasure is the watchword the creator of any unique form of amusement is hailed as a savior from ennui, that enemy of the very rich. For the success of the superb Colonial ball given by Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish at the Crossways a modest and retiring young woman was largely responsible. The minuet, with its stately, graceful figures, was arranged by her, and some of the most original and appropriate cotillion favors were made from her designs.

The visiting maid, while not a new idea, met with favor in Newport among that class of young women who are stronger on ancestry than pocket money. These do not dwell in any of the show houses, but enjoy their summers in lovely, unpretentious homes in Kay, Catherine, Francis and other streets of similar aristocratic solidity.

Of course, these girls are invited everywhere. Such good old names as theirs look well in the printed lists of social functions. Therefore many a stitch that they have no time to give is needed to keep the out-of-date wardrobe up to par. Here is where the visiting maid was hailed with delight. Girls who paid out only $1 a week for their share in this useful person could look as well-groomed as the very rich maiden who monopolized the services of a maid entirely. Hairdressing was included in the maid's accomplishments, and though she was kept on the trot from morning until night and had to keep a careful record of her engagements so that she never created disappointments or clashes, she left Newport with enough to live comfortably in New York all winter. Her early mornings and her evenings were her own, so that, besides turning a pretty penny, she managed to have as well a very good time in this lovely seashore resort.

CONDENSED NOVEL.

BY EDWIN J. WEBSTER.

My publishers have been urging me to condense my stories; not to go so much into details, simply to suggest things and leave the rest to the reader," said the struggling young author. "'And now," he added, in tones of placid triumph—"now I have written something which I know will appeal to them. It is in three chapters.

CHAPTER I.

"Ha!" exclaimed the villain, in tones of exultant villainy.

CHAPTER II.

"Ho!" thundered the hero, in tones of heroic bravery.

CHAPTER III.

"Hee, hee!" thrilled the lonely heroine, in dulcet tones, in which were combined admiration for the brave hero and horror of the villain and his villainy.

"In these few words," continued the struggling young author, exultantly, "are condensed crime, virtue and love; the intermingled pathos and tragedy of three lives. There is no burden of detail nor lack of suggestiveness. I don't see how my great work can fail to lead the six best selling books of the year."

DEFECTIVE PAGE

One of the most beautiful affairs of the week was the reception Wednesday afternoon at which Mrs. A. M. Miller and Mrs. F. J. Fellows of New York were hostesses. It was held at the Miller home on West Second street and the rooms were charmingly decorated. The porch and hall were aglow of yellow, the bright golden glow and ox-eyed daisies being used. In the reception room pink asters were used and the dining room and library were bright with crimson sweet peas. Receiving with Mrs. Miller and Mrs. Fellows were Mrs. George Spencer and Miss Helen Spencer. During the receiving hours, from four to six, Flaaten's orchestra played softly and Signor Valenza gave a number of harp solos. The music added to the beauty of the afternoon. A large number called during the afternoon.

"Miss Jessie Pattinson, one of the popular young women in the art circles of Duluth, is spending a week in the Twin Cities visiting her many friends.

"Miss Pattinson has made an enviable reputation for herself in her home town and has carried off several prizes at art exhibits.

"Her instruction has been of a private nature, she having studied with some of the best teachers in the Zenith City as well as in Chicago. During the last few years she has been art instructor in the upper grades in the public schools in Calumet, Mich., a position that she retains during the coming year.

"In addition to her work in school she has several private pupils, and until the present summer she has always taught in Duluth during her vacations.

"She has made her greatest success in scenery, water colors and flowers. At one time she expected to continue her studies in Europe, but through sickness she was unable to go when the time came. She hopes, however, to be able to gratify her ambition at a later date.

"Miss Pattinson has a pleasing personality and a vivaciousness that is often absent in artists."

DISGRACEFUL VANDALISM

Expensive Telephone Cable Is Ruined By Wanton Act.

Vandals as yet unknown, have destroyed new cable belonging to the Duluth Telephone company to the value of $500. The cable is wound in several rolls and was stored in First alley preparatory to being laid in the conduits as required by the ordinances. No special watch was kept over it as the rolls were too heavy to be removed easily. The cable was ruined by means of some sharp instrument that was used to bore holes through the leaden coils and disturb the wires inside. Investigation has shown that the holes are no larger than the size of a lead pencil, but they are sufficient to ruin the cable and necessitate its being sent back to the factory.

The telephone company has offered a reward of $200 for information that will lead to the arrest and conviction of the party or parties doing the job, or a liberal reward for any information regarding the affair.

It is believed that a steel bit, such as is used by plumbers and gas fitters was used, and that no other instrument would have penetrated to the center of the drum.

WOMEN ARE ARRESTED.

Ten Apprehended On Range For Illegal Liquor Selling.

Ten women were arrested on the range charged with being blind piggers. Their hearing was conducted in County Attorney McClintock appearing R. Wood, of the village, prosecuted the for the state. Some of the women had babies in arms and others were young and attractive. Their sex is all that saved them from being bound over to the grand jury. As it was they were let off with a fine and a reprimand, all promising to do better in the future.

The women were either Austrians or Italians and wives of boarding house-keepers on the range. Their fines were set at $65 each, and four of the women immediately paid up and were discharged.

The range deputies have been working aggressively for two weeks collecting evidence against blind piggers. They secured evidence by watching the kegs of beer delivered at the boarding houses and by purchasing drinks at the suspected places.

Half of the cases were prosecuted at the expense of the village of Chisholm, which gathered the evidence at its own expense and instigation. Attorney C. R. Wood, of the village, prisecuted the cases under the village ordinances.

A LOGGER KILLED.

Accident Thursday at Powers & Simpson's Camp.

Fred Pfluger, a woodsman, about 27 years old, was accidentally killed Thursday afternoon at the Powers & Simpson logging camp on Crooked lake, about twenty miles from Hibbing. Pfluger was employed on the trestle work at the lake, loading logs from the water to the cars. While lifting on a log his peavy handle is said to have broken and he lost his balance, falling and was recovered by means of grap-

His skull was fractured and his chest was crushed, death probably being instantaneous. The body, after striking the logs, slid off into the water Justice Hayes' court at Chisholm, piling hooks. It was taken to Hibbing and prepared for shipment East, where the decedent's relatives reside.

HIS BIT OF BRAVERY

By Richard H. Post.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Redmond sat with his feet balanced against a chair, his eyes traveling over the brilliantly illuminated city spread out before him. Yet from the tense, drawn expression on his face Hartley knew he was unconscious of their presence. "Nelson wasn't exactly the star of his class, was he? I remember it was about as hard for him to pull through examination as it would have been to keep quiet at a football game, though I don't believe he ever tried the latter. Pretty much of a crank on the subject. Do you know why he didn't make quarter on the eleven?" he added suddenly.

The question surprised the other man very much. "Why, I thought you knew," he answered. "They say he wasn't game enough; that he flunked out when it came to hard knocks."

"It's a lie," said Redmond excitedly, "a d——d lie. I know it is. He had half risen from his chair, but he threw himself back and pulled hard at his cigar in an attempt to calm himself. "Here's the truth about Nelson. It's mighty short and mighty unpleasant, but it's the truth: You know he graduated in '95 and went to the coast in the hope of finding an opening. I came after him next year and we kind of kept in touch with each other because we both knew Edith Stockwell and that was a bond of attraction. Somehow his practice didn't prosper. Powell was as good a physician as there was in Washington, but he didn't seem to have the ability to convince people of the fact. When the war came along in '98 we both enlisted in volunteer regiments as surgeons. I, because I saw a chance for a name in it, and he—well at the time I didn't know why he went, though I made a fair guess at it afterwards.

"One day on shipboard he called me apart and asked to talk to me. I came over and sat down by him near the railing, but it was a long time before he began. 'I feel,' he said, 'as if I was going to make a great failure, and when you hear about it I don't know why I came unless it was desperation, but I've got to stick at it now and I'm afraid I won't stick, Redmond,' and he turned his face from me to the blue of the water, 'Redmond, I'm a coward, a d——d coward, and it's better you know and understand before we get where they'll expect other things from me. Maybe you will sympathize and pity instead of blaming so much then. There's only two or three that know about it—Larson, Elmund and Hartley.' Then he mentioned Edith, said she knew, told me about a day when she was in a carriage behind a runaway horse, while he on the sidewalk crowded against a wall in terror and let a street urchin catch the animal. 'I wanted to save her,' he said, 'but I just couldn't bring myself to do it, the horse seemed so fierce and large and awful that I didn't dare.' I don't remember how I answered him. I tried to make it as pleasant as possible, but it disgusted me a good deal to hear a man talk like that, and I'm afraid I didn't sympathize very much.

"We drifted apart when we got to the Philippines and I did not see Nelson during the winter's campaign. In the late spring I was sent up to the northern part of the island of Taguegaras, about as dirty, crowded and unchristian a place as a native city can be. It was swarming full of natives at the time, trading or worshipping, I don't know which. There I ran across Powell one day on the street, and I tell you I was glad to meet a man from the old college up there in that God-forsaken corner of the world.

"'Where's your regiment?' I asked.

"'Haven't any now,' he said with that queer smile of his, and in spite of myself I dropped his hand quickly.

"'What are you doing in this hole?' I questioned rather sharply.

"'Oh, it isn't so bad,' he said, 'there's quite a number of Americans and no doctors. The natives find we come in pretty handy.'

"'Strange, isn't it how God seems to even up a man, always giving him a chance if he is only there. About the middle of July the Asiatic plague came to Taguegaras. By the first of August there were a thousand cases and half as many deaths. Men would drop over in the street. You couldn't tell where it was going to strike next. The natives died like rats in their little foul, ill-smelling houses. The second week two Americans succumbed and several more were attacked. I tell you that made us pile out. The company did not wait for orders, but moved in a hurry. With them went the traders and all the foreigners that could possibly escape. I hesitated about going, but—I tell you there's nothing that frightens a man like a fever that strikes him unawares and sets the mark of death upon him to let him die in awful agony a few days later. It isn't like you could fight it or resist it.

"One evening after sundown, when the air had become cooled, so that a few people were stirring in the streets, Powell walked into my room. I had not seen him for a long time and had almost forgotten his presence. I suppose he had gone with the others. He was unusually cheerful and pleasant. I can see him now as he stood there, twisting his small hat and puffing at a cigar.

"'Thought you'd gone long ago,' I growled, and turned to the packing of a trunk.

"'Oh, I am not going,' he said quietly.

"I jumped up in surprise. 'Not going,' I said, 'you not going?'

"He was still twisting his hat with the same quiet smile on his face. 'No, I'm not going,' he repeated, 'and that's what I came over to see you for, because I think you ought to go. I think there's someone in the states for whom you ought to go.' He looked at me very ccolly, he seemed somehow another man, some strange character that had appeared in his form.

"'And you will?'—I asked.

"'I will take care of the patients here,' he said. 'I guess I can attend to them all right. Clavering will pull through, though I'm afraid of Eustace and Williams.'

"'It doesn't seem quite fair,' I said in the deprecating way in which a man speaks when he makes a show of reluctantly accepting a favor he would not refuse for anything.

His hat suddenly dropped from his fingers. 'Yes, Redmond,' he said slowly, but with a ring of earnestness in his voice, 'it's fair. You've had many chances and I've only one, this one. I'm not afraid.' The sincerity steadied his voice and made it strong. "I'm not afraid. It isn't like the others, you know. It isn't one that gets on your nerves and jangles them all up and makes them stop working when you want to go right along. Now I'm not afraid of this fever and I'd better stay—it's the one thing I can do, the one bit of bravery. And if I don't do it right and drop out in the shuffle, why it won't be much of a loss.'

He stopped suddenly, and picking up his hat, began spinning it slowly again. The seriousness faded from his face and the old smile returned.

"'It's too bad for you that our fellows are laid out,' I said, 'that any one has to stay.'

"'It's hard on them, rather so,' Powell said pleasantly, "but I guess I'd stay anyway. The natives need me worse than Clavering and the others. I suppose I'll save some lives,' he said rather wistfully, 'and perhaps that will make up for some other things I've done. You remember that football game when I wouldn't go in and we lost.' The last I remember of that fever-stricken hole of a city is the picture of Nelson standing in my doorway, swinging his hat and puffing at a cigar."

Redmond ended suddenly. The confused lights of the city twinkled fast before their eyes.

"Well, what of him," Hartley asked.

"The fever got him at the end, just before the cold weather." The man hesitated.

"But about Edith," Hartley asked. "She ought to know. Who is Edith?"

"I must tell Edith," he said. "She is my wife." He bowed his head.

LIVE WISELY, LIVE LONG.

Frail in body and a semi-invalid all his life, Pope Leo XIII, supported the heavy labors and anxieties of the Vatican for twenty-five years and lived to be more than 93 years of age, says the New York World. What is the explanation of this paradox of strength in weakness? A writer in the Scotsman says it is contained in two words—regularity, diet.

Six year ago, in a Latin poem, the pope gave his own formula for longvity. The substance of it was regular and abstemious living. He recommended the sparing use of meat, and a reliance mainly upon a moderate allowance of eggs, milk, honey, fresh vegetables and ripe fruits. For a beverage he commended pure, light wine, much diluted with water, and a little coffee. His precept is better understood by reference to his practice. He ate so little that the average man would call it fasting. His rule was to eat only what he needed, not what he desired. He ruled his appetite and overruled his palate.

Many instances of delicate men who have lived long by similar abstemiousness in eating and drinking are familiar history. Cornaro, broken in health in dissipation at 40, observed a rigid regimen thereafter, eating little meat and lightly of all food, and lived to the age of 191. Isaac Pitman, the inventor of shorthand, was another man who never was robust. He ate no meat, drank no fermented liquors and lived to be considerably over 90. Cardinal Newman, who also achieved nonagenarian honors, was not a strict vegetarian, but his dietary rules closely paralleled those of Pope Leo, to whom he had also a strong resemblance in physique.

The strength of will which enables a man to sternly overrule his own appetite fully accounts for his ability to face death with resolution and to almost seem, as in the pope's case, to defy its summons.

The famous Governor Bradbury, of Maine, who lived to be nearly 100, was asked how long life was best sought, and replied: "Get an incurable ailment in your youth and nurse it till you die." He had left college as a young man with a malady pronounced incurable. An old English proverb applied to always ailing but never dying persons says: "The creaking farm gate never falls." The reason is that the farmer's strong gate is opened and shut carelessly, while the creaking one is always handled gently. Nevertheless, more robust and less careful people may learn wisdom from the many half-invalids who, by eating and drinking little and wisely, live to great ages. "Most men dig their graves with their teeth," says the octogenarian, Dr. D. K. Pearsons, of Chicago, who opines that centenarians would be plentiful if men consumed "less gross food and more fresh air."

LIGHTBODY'S NEWS.

Saturday, August 29, 1903.

$2000 worth of small furs go on sale Monday morning, August 31st, at 8:30 a. m. Manufacturer's samples bought by us at a great reduction. All latest styles and no two pieces exactly alike.

Everything desirable in small furs. Round furs; flat boas; flat collars with tabs. Boas and collars short; boas and collars long; all the lengths between. Round muffs and flat muffs. Children's sets. Misses' sets.

All the stylish furs are used: sable fox, Isabella fox, Russian fox, blue wolf, sable wolf, gray squirrel, stone marten, black marten, sable opossum, mink, beaver, bear, chinchilla, astrachan, krimmer, monkey, ermine, electric seal, nutria and Angora.

The price will be from one quarter to one third less than stock prices. So many pieces, we can't list them here. Boas and collars are $1 to $45. Muffs, 75 cents to $20. Children's sets, $1 to $10. Misses' sets, $2 to $12.

You're perfectly safe in buying samples of fur, for stock furs are often not as good as the samples shown. That's one of the troubles of the fur business.

The styles of the new coat and suits will make a fur collar or boa nearly indispensable this fall. Storm and high collars are no longer stylish. Furs are to take their place. This is your opportunity to select a fur from as complete an assortment as you can find, at price as low as you'd expect to get after February 1st.

Mountain Climbing in New York's Back Yard

Nearby Opportunities for Geologizing, Botanizing & Strenuous Exercising

IT IS WELL IF YOU HAVE A CHUM TO HELP YOU

AN EXERCISE BETTER THAN ANY IN A GYMNASIUM

A RARE FLOWER IS HIDDEN IN A REMOTE CRANNY

SPREADING OUT THE SPECIMENS FOR EXAMINATION

THE DESCENT IS MORE DIFFICULT THAN GETTING UP.

Tied to the town by circumstance, many girls who have athletic instincts and longings have discovered that besides all its other attractions and compensations New York city has a back yard into which one may run on a short half holiday and do some pretty vigorous stunts that are usually considered to be reserved for the remote and difficult regions which only money and leisure make possible.

New York's nice, roomy back yard is full of rocks and trees and precipitous bluffs, with wild flowers and ferns, just as if it were a hundred miles away. It is just over the Hudson River, where the Palisades are sufficiently indefinite and wooded to be inviting rather than awesome. In a very few minutes one may be transported from the walled-in streets of the mild city to a shaded spot on the rugged river bank.

In the back yard short dresses, bare heads, stout staves and shirt waists reign. The lunch basket is conspicuously in evidence, for one gets very hungry with the activities of this broad playground. The botanist will have her microscope, her knife and perhaps her trowel. The geological enthusiast goes armed with a handy hammer and a naturalist with a liklug for winged things has a net.

Many varieties of wild flowers flourish on the Palisades. Not a season but brings forth its own particular flowers, its grasses and little wild fruits. In the shady places among the grass there are anemones of different varieties, the snowy white anemone, the pink and the golden hine, with its soft and velvety petals, and if a New York girl wishes to send a souvenir to some friends at a distance, showing them what is contained in her flower garden, the anemones make most beautiful pressed and pasted flowers and are eminently suited for such purposes.

There are other tiny pink and blue flowers that look as though they had been dropped from the sky to live among the grasses. These delicate plants are so small and apparently belong to so many flower families that it takes careful examination to decide just where they should be placed.

Under the ledges of the rocks in the shady nooks and corners there are ferns, maidenhair, coffee ferns, ferns with the fronds resembling the fan shaped sections of an elk's antlers. Some of the fine and feathery ferns would make a most beautiful cover to any "back yard book."

Not only can one find a great variety of flowers and green things to study, but there are fungus growths that, ugly as they are, make exceedingly interesting studies.

Italians journey to the back yard to gather these growths, and if you are fortunate enough to find one in a conversational mood, he will tell you that every growth of the mushroom character is good to eat if the skin peels off in little sections, but that the skin peeling in long strips covers a poisonous pithy substance. However, until this good "Italiano" indicates to you which of the growths are best to eat it would be advisable not to take them from the back yard with other than a scholarly purpose in view. It is always best to leave the selection of fungi for culinary purposes to the man who knows.

Various kinds of growth of this sort would fill a good-sized market basket. They range in character from the powdery ball, that springs from the damp ground in the night, and the delicately pink growth with the tender segments that form the accordion fluted under side, to the growth that comes from the trees in the decayed and dark elbows and ellngs to the gnarled wood when life has left it.

Opportunities for study of a more rugged kind are afforded by the rocks—sand-stone, quartz, fossiliferous and mineral of various sorts. The girl with a turn of mind for that sort of thing will find darkness coming down before she knows it, lured on by the geological possibilities of the Palisades.

But best of all its opportunities is that for exercise of a genuine and vigorous sort which the back yard offers to the city pent mallen. Climbing, running, scrambling over rocks and up hills make a woman graceful, strong, supple. It is incomparable for strengthening her muscles and putting her in trim. It does her as much good as a trip to the Adirondacks would, and, in addition, if she chooses, she may enjoy the pleasures of Gotham at night. Nothing can shore up health in its weak spots as will this out of door climbing.

If the New York girl wants her hair to be soft and glossy she will go into the back yard. She won't wear a hat, this not because of a fad, but because it is sensible and comfortable. The outdoor air and the occasional sunlight will impart that glossy, sunny sheen to her hair that is often seen in the braid of country girls, and during the winter the cold will not crack the hair so readily.

As the fad for brown arms and discolored face is no longer thought highly of, and the novelty of turning young and comely girls into savages has passed, the girls who go out to climb do not roll their sleeves up. They may if they are in the shade, but in the sun they are sensible enough to wear their cuffs buttoned.

In the midst of the back yard there are many fresh water springs. Here luncheon may be eaten, and there may be seen many a modern Psyche drinking from the little brooks, her chin touching the water, the tip of her nose just immersed, and her hands on the bank to keep her from tumbling in.

Elegant Economies.

Ever since the day that Eve awoke to the realization that overindulgence in fruit was costly and that henceforth she would have to join Adam in hustling for what they got, frugality has been counted one of the crowning virtues of womankind. Small mention of man is ever made in this regard. He is ever posed as a Sisyphus, laboriously lugging in with his shovel, while the "weaker vessel" tosses his contribution out of the window with her active teaspoon.

At a recent symposium of housekeepers each one made confession of her own special devices for swelling the "mickles" that in time made the "muckles." "I can't bear to see the least scrap of anything that is good for fuel wasted," said the tall woman. "Every emptied spool or splinter of berry or grape baskets, nutshells, pastboard boxes, newspapers, broken clothespins, pine cones—all go into my little kindling box, and are often quite enough to boil the tea kettle in summer without using any purchased material. I save all orange, lemon and grape fruit skins and dry them out in the ash pan or under the hearth when I have fire. Plum, cherry and peach pits make a splendid blaze when they are dry, while corn cobs dried and sprinkled with a little kerosene start a fire like magic, no matter which way the wind blows. Newspapers twisted up in a long tight roll are as good as a stick of wood for the fire place. I have all our ashes sprinkled and sifted, so that I often have enough cinders to keep up a fire all the afternoon without using fresh coal. Sometimes, I am afraid, I carry my vigilance in hunting firewood too far, for actually I have a distinct pang every time I am out driving and have to pass by a nice piece of kindling or block of wood lying in the road.

"Another friend, who has been visiting up in St. Lawrence county, told me of this wrinkle that she learned there. Where she visited the hostess saved the oil from the top of canned salmon and used it in dressing lettuce. It's fine for any one who likes a little fishy flavor. Another woman who has a cottage at Thousand Island Park has this scheme, which I have tried lately with great success. They had dinners at noon, and two or three times a week ice cream or water ice for dessert. After the contents of the freezer were taken out there was nearly always enough ice and salt left over to freeze a frappe or mousse for supper. She got so she made all sorts of combinations; almost anything that was left over from dinner—apple sauce, stewed apricots, prunes, coffee, tea, custard, rice pudding—then tucked it in the freezer and left it to freeze or chill itself, and it was always good, too."

"Do you know what you can do with a canteloupe so insipid you can't eat it the usual way?" interrupted a slender, girlish woman in blue. "I found that out last year. Just put it on ice and serve it at luncheon or dinner with a French dressing made of lemon juice instead of vinegar. Take out the ripest part of the melon, cut it in inch cubes, pour the dressing over and serve it on a bed of cress or lettuce."

"Of course, you all know about fixing watermelon rinds so that they are just as nice as citron for cake," put in another speaker, warming up to her subject and sitting very erect on the front edge of her chair. "My family are very fond of them made in a preserve of sweet pickle, so I always save the nice rinds and put them up in that way. Then when I get ready in the fall to make mincemeat or fruit cake I take some of my preserved rind and dry it out slowly in the oven, and it is just as delicate and nice as anything you can buy."

"Well, I can tell you something else," hurriedly interposed a chubby little woman. "Turnip tops! I always hated to throw away so much green—and now I find they make a fine vegetable puree. I boil them with a bone if I happen to have one, if not, by themselves; rub them through a sieve and add them to a cream sauce. I serve the puree with croutons, which I make from leftover scraps of bread, cut into little cubes and browned in the oven; and there is my soup course for dinner, made entirely out of what some people throw away, excepting the tablespoonful each of flour and butter and the two cups of milk which I use for the cream sauce."

From Recent Novels.

"She turned up her nose at what he said." But she soon turned it down again, because every time she sneezed it put her hair out of curl.

"He laughed to split his sides." We believe they could have been split more quickly and more effectively with an axe.

"He stared into space." But he stopped staring when the advertising man told him the space would cost him $50 per agate line.

"Oh, my child!" The amount she owed her child, however, is not stated.

"He tore up the street like a madman." To lay a few sewer pipes, perhaps.

"I will stick through thick and thin." We note in the opening chapter that the hero is a pretty "sharp" fellow.

"Ask father!" Do not think for one minute that this is a love affair. The above words were directed to the French dressmaker who had called to collect a bill.

"She lifted her eyes to his." This did not require much strength, as she had light eyes.

"I have become intoxicated with love for you," he said. Rather a cheap jag.

"Angrily he brought down his foot." We presume this incident took place in a medical college, and that the speaker was one of the professors bringing down the foot to explain its bones to the students. The rest of the body, no doubt, was left up stairs in the feebox.

The Weekly Gazette.

How we love the little paper, e'er so modest and so meet.
As it comes its lengthy journey from the country every week;
From the good old town behind us that we left so long ago,
When the city fever becked us with its artificial glow.
Oh, the news is never startling, and the pictures are but few,
And it's crowded with stock matter, and the type is never new;
But it brings an old-time feeling as we turn its pages o'er,
Reading here and there of neighbors, as we've often read before:—

"John Smith has gone to Meadowbrook
To see his brother Bill."
"Ike Marvin's hired the Peckham place
On top of Miller's hill."
"Sam Barton's fixed his cider press."
"Ben Holmes has bought a cow."
"Hamp Culver's going to paint his barn."
"It's time to hay it now."
"Doc. Sanders' boy has cut his foot."
"The wells are getting dry."
"The price of eggs has dropped a cent,
But butter still is high."
"A drummer came to town today."
"Bill Brown has sold his mare."
"Ice cream at Baker's corner store,
It's cooling to be there."

Yes, we love the little paper, it's so brimming full of news,
And we tear the pasted wrapper we're so eager to peruse;
And we settle by the fireside while the world goes rushing on,
And devote an hour to reading, which is all too quickly gone.
And we look across the distance from the city to the town,
And we sigh and brush a tear drop as we lay the paper down;
For we're carried back to school days, and to good old days of yore,
When we read these simple items, as we've often read before:—

"The band will meet on Friday night."
"Dick Wade is out again."
"Lem Wallace's sold his sorrel horse
And team to Enoch Lane."
"Will Miner's passing round cigars—
A bouncing boy, they say."
"Dot Clarke has got the chicken pox."
"The schools all close today."
"Sim Haines is going to build an ell."
"Church festival tonight."
"The summer boarders have arrived,
The town is lively quite."
"A parcel lost on Miller's hill, Finder please leave it here."

The Belle of the Bad Lands.

BY WILLIAM J. LAMPTON.

Angliena Stout was the Belle of the Bad Lands and she loved Cecil Courtney Murgatroyd with a powerful and passionate emotion that she could not have acquired in a thousand years had not her father removed from Boston to the untamed and flocculent West at a period in her childhood ere yet the intense intellectuality of that center and circumference of mentality had touched her budding affections with its killing frosts. Her father, whose ancestors had come over in the Buckwheatflour, having lost his estates in the codfish business, and finding Boston quite impossible in any other, sought the wilder West, and settled finally in that section known as the Bad Lands. Here he taught school, as every Bostonian can do when put to it, and in the course of twenty-odd years he had accumulated four dollars and a half, with which he purchased a thousand acres of broad, far-stretching plain. Everybody who knew anything about real estate in that section, and most of them did to their sorrow, hastened to tell him he was a plumb idiot for wasting his money like that, but he insisted upon having the land to leave to his daughter when he should have crossed the dark river, and he would not listen to reason.

"The savings of many years of arduous pedagogic labor," he said, in his not yet forgotten Bostonese, "shall be invested for her, and she shall be known as the Belle of the Bad Lands."

Her title cost but $4.50, which is cheaper than American fathers can buy for their daughters nowadays, and the old man died happy. He well knew that wherever his future home might be, it would be an improvement on Badlandsville.

At the time of this chronicle Angliena Stout was old enough to be earning her own living, and she was doing it at $3 per week and found as the head waitress of the Rancho House, the Waldorf-Astoria of Badlandsville, and Cecil Courtney Murgatroyd was the star boarder. He was a handsome man of the world, cold, calculating and smooth to silk slickness.

He could not win a woman's heart as easily as he could win at poker—playing the game as he played it, that is, without those conscientious scruples the absence of which makes poker playing profitable. Mr. Murgatroyd did not work; there were others to work; he played; and the more the others worked the more he played; that was why Mr. M. was not compelled to work. They say that all play and no work makes Jack a dull boy, but Cecil Murgatroyd's name wasn't Jack. Neither was it Dennis, when he shuffled the cards.

It was in the pursuit of her humble duties as serving maid that Angliena, the Belle of the Bad Lands, as she was always called, for she was far more beautiful and bellish than if she had not got out of Boston when she did, first met Cecil Murgatroyd. Her pretty face and graceful figure caught the roving fancy of the star boarder and he exerted all his arts to please her. There were many times when the coffee wasn't fit to wash the dishes in, and the steak was tougher than a Philadelphia politician's conscience, but he restrained his outraged feelings and would not speak disrespectfully of the table in the presence of Angliena. It was enough, he was wont to say to her, that her fair hands served him, for such service made ambrosia of hash and changed blue milk into nectar. She would blush at this and look away, and was it any wonder that this orphan girl, alone in the world, should learn to love the man whose speech fell upon her as honeyed drops upon the open flower?

It was not, and ere she was aware the ever watchful Cupid had shot an arrow through her tender heart. She would put flowers at Murgatroyd's plate; she would break his eggs for him—when it was safe to serve them boiled; she sneaked the landlady's private cream for his coffee; she gave him a clean napkin every day, while the other boarders were in luck if they got one every other Wednesday; she waited on him, while others waited on her till they got hot in the collar, and in a hundred and seventy-five ways that only women have who love she administered to his gastronomic comfort.

And his response to all her devotion was but specious flattery. He never even so much as took her to church Sunday night. He knew women so well that he felt assured it was not necessary for him to do a thing but accept her adoration and keep up the flattery supply.

But it is a long worm that has no turning.

One day a petroleum puncher from Pennsylvania, while prospecting around the territory contiguous to Badlandsville, struck something that he was looking for, and at once hied himself to consult with Mr. Murgatroyd, who had money. What they talked about in detail is of no consequence, but that night they left town in a two-horse wagon, with two sons of toil and a lot of appropriate tools selected by the puncher, making no mention of their departure to any person. Arriving betimes on the spot discovered by the petroleum puncher they drove a well into the earth and opened a vein of oil that sent a three-inch stream clean over the derrick.

With no other thought than that the well was on government land hitherto supposed to be utterly worthless, they plugged up the hole and hastened away to pre-empt everything in the county that was not nailed down. They found thousands of acres on the records that nobody would have, but lo! when they came to that which their hearts were set upon, behold, it was the property of Angliena Stout, and their well was as nearly in the center of it as could have been hit without the aid of a mathematical calculation.

The petroleum puncher almost fell in a fit, so bitterly did he feel the disappointment of this discovery, but Cecil Murgatroyd laughed.

"It's a lead pipe cinch," he said to his accomplice in crime, and we'll save registration fees and other expenses. I'll marry the girl. She thinks I am the best thing that ever happened, and I'll marry her this very evening."

"Are you sure you can get her?" asked the petroleum puncher, nervously anxious.

"Am I sure?" retorted Murgatroyd. "Why, man, I have to take a dog along to drive her away. You read the society column of the paper tomorrow."

Laughing in the greatest glee, and with as much confidence in his success as if he held a royal flush, Cecil Murgatroyd attired himself in his pink tea clothes and went at once to have it out with Angliena and corral his Christmas gift.

"Angelina," he said, after a hasty preliminary greeting, "I have long known your feelings for me, but I have concealed mine from you because there were conditions which made it best for me to remain silent. Now circumstances have changed, and I come to lay my heart and my hand at your feet and ask you to be my wife—my own little wifey, Angie," and he held out his arms to her pleadingly. "What have you to say to me, darling?"

To his utter dismay and discomfiture, she did not take a running jump and light on his coat collar. On the contrary.

"Mr. Murgatroyd," she said, with bitter, biting, caustic, acrid, trenchant, sarcastic, contumelius scorn, "you are quite right; circumstances have changed, and I am onto you." She smiled roguishly and added: "Oil is over between us, Cecie, and what I have to say to you is, 'Good-by and git!'"

The Belle of the Bad Lands had learned of his discovery, his duplicity and his desperate designs, and Cecil Courtney Murgatroyd went out of her presence without a single drop of grease to lubricate his pathway through life.

As for Angliena, she had money to burn, or oil, which was practically the same thing, and when, later, she married the petroleum puncher from Pennsylvania, who was an honest man, notwithstanding his politics, she invited Cecil Murgatroyd to the wedding. There was nothing mean about Angliena Stout, the belle of the Bad Lands.

Who Was to Blame?

It was just one week before Jack Cartington's wedding day, and an important question was on his mind as he came in and put his arm lovingly around his bride to be.

Jack was nothing if not businesslike and methodical, and he determined that nothing should be left undone to mar their happiness.

"Darling," he said seriously, "this is the last night we can be together before our wedding and I want to discuss our trip with you. Now, I have been thinking it over, and I'm going to offer you your choice of two trips. You can go to California or Europe. What do you say?"

For some time Mabel Merlin did not speak. Finally she started up apologetically.

"Forgive me, dearest," she said. "When you spoke I was trying to think just what I would have on my wedding gown. These details don't interest you, of course, but they are important to me. What did you say?"

"I said, dear," said Jack, "that you could go to either California or Europe for your wedding trip. I will give you your choice. Personally, I think I should prefer California. I have never seen it, and I think one ought to see one's own country first; but don't let this influence you."

Mabel looked absently out of the window. "Mother has some old point that would be fine," she said, "but we are all afraid it isn't long enough. In that case I shall have to use Valenciennes. After all, it might be better."

"Yes, I think so, too," replied Jack, with considerable tact, "but, as I was saying"——

His fiancee smiled up at him sweetly.

"Of course," she said. "You were talking about the trip. Now, dear, do as you please about it. You know best, of course. I had my heart set on that old point, but still"——

The next day Jack made arrangements for their California trip. He collected time tables from all quarters. He interviewed passenger agents and information men galore, and finally, true to his methodical mind, had his six weeks' route mapped out in perfect detail. And then, after making a large hole in his bank account for railway tickets, he tied the whole mass up in a neat bundle and put it in the safe, all ready for the trip to begin.

What he did or how he lived up to the ceremony he did not afterward know. It was enough that the time finally passed, like a strange dream.

At last they sat in the carriage on their way to the station from the church.

"Darling," Jack murmured, "can you realize that it is all over and that we are at last on our way to California?"

His bride gave a startled cry. "California!" she almost screamed. "We are not going to California, are we?"

"Certainly," said her husband. "Didn't I give you your choice, and didn't you"——

His better half of thirty minutes burst into tears.

"California!" she muttered. "Why, I hate California! I thought, of course, you must know I wanted to go to Europe."

Squaring the Circle.

Once upon a time a man entered the circle of practical politics, with the firm determination to be a reformer and be perfectly square in all that he did, and began looking for a lucrative office.

He soon found that to accomplish his purpose he had to make promises that he knew he could never fulfil, and had to give his aid to questionable proceedings in order to obtain requisite influence.

Moral:—You can not square the political circle.

Nemesis.

"It's strange about Hymes. He married to get away from a boarding-house."

"And what of that?"

"Well, now his wife has to run one in order to keep the family."

THE COMING WEEK AT THE THEATERS

"When Johnny Comes Marching Home" and "Hunting for Hawkins" At the Lyceum—"Trilby" and "The Mysterious Mr. Jones" At the Metropolitan.

As Alan Dale said in the New York American the day after "When Johnny Comes Marching Home" was first produced at the New York theater, where it ran all last year to crowded houses, "the sucess of the comic opera was not a matter of opinion. It was a most emphatic fact." He said further:

"It is a comic opera with a strong, well-defined military theme, running through both the book and the music, and of the period of a generation ago, when the one distinctive form of feminine fashion was the enormous crinoline hoop skirt. At frequent intervals through the entire opera these hoop skirts are in evidence, and the girls who wear them are pretty. The exhilarating novelty of seeing a comic opera with pretty girls who do not wear tights seems to have been most welcome. Never again should the dainty girl be subjected to the crude and ugly barbarity of tights, now that it has been proved beyond the preadventure of a doubt that legs do not count. The chorus maiden has taken on a new significance, a new charm. She dresses the stage. She is of importance and in "When Johnny Comes Marching Home" she is entrancingly picturesque. There is a waltz in the first act, when the stage is filled with the whirling skirts of these pretty maidens (and they would have been pretty even in tights) that seemed to delight the audience and aroused tremendous enthusiasm for a novelty that is cleanly and free from the vulgarity of the average musical show."

Stanislaus Stange wrote the book and Julian Edwards the music. They are the authors of that other enormously sucessful Whitney comic opera, "Dolly Varden." The music is of the early Sullivan character, jingly, jovial and full of cute phrases. It catches the ear and tingles there. Manager F. C. Whitney has selected a very large and unusually evenly balanced company. The Whitney Opera company will be seen at the Lyceum Friday and Saturday nights and Saturday matinee next week.

"HUNTING FOR HAWKINS."

Stephen Fitzpatrick at Lyceum In Droll Play.

"Hunting for Hawkins," a laughable farce, by Guy F. Steely, will be presented at the Lyceum theater Thursday evening by Stephen Fitzpatrick and company of players.

The entertainment is of the farce order, sporting a character of some strength, who is the cause of the merriment and who complicates the situation till it is all mixed up and the players in a hopeless tangle, till at the close everything is straightened out and ends happily.

The role in which Mr. Fitzpatrick is starring is a character rather in the shape of a novelty to the stage. It is as Owen Touchem that he appears throughout the piece. He is a "professional relative," a sort of shabby-genteel individual, who gets a living by meeting people of more or less prominence, but certain financial standing in the social world, and who boast of their highly respectable families.

In a very smooth, oily manner, he convinces them he is a relative, and they immediately become panic-stricken, which causes them to submit to a "touch" which he makes, taking the money in exchange for a tacit promise of silence, and they disgorge their wealth in the hope that he won't make public his relationship, or get out and disgrace them by doing menial work, etc.

In this character he manages to make a borrow, large or small, from every character in the play, and is finally found out to be an imposter, when the people get to comparing notes, and all find they have been duped.

He is finally proven to be a fraud, and a policeman is set upon his track. He takes the officer aside, and with a yarn the wily fellow convinces the officer that he is his long-lost brother, for whom the policeman has been hunting since his childhood. Of course, he lets Touchem go, and he does not suffer consequences.

Mr. Fitzpatrick's droll impersonation of this character is unique and described as irresistibly funny. The company itself is large and capable, and the humor is in every line of it. The production is an elaborate one, and Mr. Fitzpatrick is said by critics to have scored the success of his career.

The company plays for one night only, Sept. 3.

"TRILBY" NEXT WEEK.

Famous Du Maurier Play at the Metropolitan.

The Duluth theater-going public will be pleased to learn that during the first part of the coming week at the Metropolitan that famous play, "Trilby," will be put on. It will be followed for the latter half of the week by "The Mysterious Mr. Jones," a comedy of the farcical order.

"Trilby" is being put on by request made by a large number of the patrons of the theater ever since the season opened, and next week two "request" plays will be put on, "Faust" and "Sapho."

The scenic artist, Mr. McFarland, is preparing special scenery for the three large productions mentioned, and has about finished the scenery for "Trilby." In the way of scenery, electrical effects, etc., the play will be a duplication of the original production which electrified the country only a few years ago. The play was seen here once and proved to be one of the most popular ever produced in a Duluth theater. It has a strange and wierd fascination for everybody. The villainy of Svengall, the sweetness of Trilby and the loyalty of Little Billie, the laird, and Taffy, attracts in both the book and the play.

The scene of the play is laid in the famous Latin quarter of Paris, where art students from all over the face of the globe congregate to study and, too often, to dissipate. Svengali gets Trilby under a hypnotic spell and holds her thus until his tragic end. While he has her under his power he develops in her a vocal power that she otherwise does not possess. But his influence is more for evil than for good, and her friends try to take her from under the spell. In this they are unsuccessful until Svengali dies, shortly after that Trilby's unhappy life is ended also. The story is a sad but fascinating one.

The stock company is well fitted for the play. Mr. Forbes as Svengali will have an opportunity to again show his versatility. Miss Marshall will make an excellent Trilby; and the parts of Little Billie, the Laird, and Taffy will be played respectively by Mr. Holer, Mr. Reynolds and Mr. Willis. A noted local singer will sing the famous song, "Ben Bolt," at each performance. This old and honored song has delighted the people of two eras.

The latter half of the week will be devoted to a farce comedy, "The Mysterious Mr. Jones." Mr. Jones in farce comedy is often mysterious and is very popular in this line. This time he is more mysterious than ever, and by getting himself and others into the most ludicrous complications imaginable, is side-splitting.

'KATIE, MY SOUTHERN ROSE," FROM "WHEN JOHNNY COMES MARCHING HOME,"

MUSICAL COMEDY.

Its Origin Discussed By Frank J. Wilstach.

Musical comedy, like the Immortal Topsy, just "growed." It was not invented like a bicycle or a thrashing machine, but is a sort of musical frog, having grown out of something else.

It is commonly stated that Gay's "Beggar's Opera," of which it is said that it "made Rich, the manager gay, and Gay, the poet, rich," was the first musical comedy, opera comique, opera bouffe, or ballad farce, or whatever name you may choose to designate a comedy studded with lyrics, with musical accompaniment. Yet all the ingredients which are found in "The Beggar's Opera" and its successors are discoverable in earlier works. John Gay, with fine cunning, simply adapted an old idea which was employed by the Greeks and Romans.

In the ancient tragedy the actor was accompanied by certain musical instruments which regulated the tones of his voice, and the stage was occupied by a chorus. There were comic songs, as in all of Shakespeare's comedies and tragedies save one. Hence it will be seen that the Italian and modern opera sprang from the ancient tragedy and comedy, in which the same scheme of action, minus the scenery, was employed. Songs, choruses and dances were introduced into these rude exhibitions. The union of dialogue and action with music, dancing and pageantry produced that species of entertainment known by the name of masque which enjoyed great favor in the sixteenth century. Then followed the mystery, the oratorio, grand and comic opera, and then musical comedy.

It is a singular fact that the very first private musical entertainment known to musical history employed a comedian in the singing of comic ballads. This entertainment was given in 1480 by Bergontic Boota, a nobleman of Lombardy, when he was visited by the Duke of Milan and his newly married spouse, Isabelle of Aragon, granddaughter of Ferdinand, King of Naples.

In this singular performance all the rudiments of the modern opera may be plainly discerned, as, for example, Silenus, the comedy character, enters half drunk and riding on an ass and sings humorous verses. Here we have the elephant of "Wang," and the camel of "The Little Corporal." J. Cheever Goodwin and Harry B. Smith are here revealed as bold plagiarists! In comic opera or anything else under the sun there is nothing new.

In public entertainments the first use of the comedian and comic songs was made between the acts of tragedies. As an old writer said: "They may be used at pleasure in interludes between the acts to afford some relief to the mind fatigued by the attention bestowed upon the fable." At last these intermezzi, which were entirely independent of the pieces to which they were orginally joined, were performed by themselves and received the name of opera; though operas of a light and comic character continued long afterward to go by the name of intermezzi.

As to productions we hear a good deal of the splendid spectacular presentations of musical comedy. Yet, when we come to look into the matter, we find that the ancients surpassed us. At Padua, in 1609, Freschi's opera, "Berenice," was produced, unexampled in style of splendor, which reduces to insignificance the utmost achievements of scenic display, even in the present age of spectacle. In this opera there were choruses of a hundred virgins and a hundred soldiers, a hundred horsemen in steel armor, one hundred performers on trumpets, cornets, sackbuts, drums, flutes and other instruments, all on horseback and on foot; two lions led on two Turks, and two elephants by two others; Berenice's trimuphal car, drawn by four horses, and six other cars with spoils and prisoners, drawn by twelve horses.

Among the scenes in the first act was a vast plain with two triumphal arches; another with pavilion and tents; a square prepared for the entrance of the triumphal procession and a forest for the chase. In the second act there were the royal apartments of Berenice's temple of vengeance; a spacious court, with a view of the prison, and a covered way, along which passed a train of carriages. In the third act there were the royal dressing rooms, magnificently furnished; stables containing a hundred horses, portico adorned with tapestry, and a superb palace scene in perspective. In the chorus of the piece there were representations of hunting the boar, the stag and the bear. Even the Barnum circus, not to mention musical comedies and comic operas of modern times, is here eclipsed and thrown into the shade.

The first English operas presented in England were introduced by Sir William Davenant in 1656. In these entertainments there was not a great deal that was comic and still less which foreshadowed musical comedy of today. It was in these pieces that female performers first appeared on the stage and scenery was first introduced. The innovation proved immensely successful. The public grew so fond of this species of entertainment that the tragic actor was for a time driven out of employment. Indeed, the frivolities of light opera and musical comedy from that day to this have been considered by the legitimate actor as the real cause of all his ills.

Albeit, with this auspicious commencement, it would be natural to expect that English opera would take the place of the Italian article. But the contrary was proved to be the outcome of Davenport's effort. The "Beggar's Opera" ran an extraordinary success and succeeded for a time in driving out Italian opera, which had heretofore carried all before it. It was acted in London for "sixty-three days without intermission"—an extraordinary run at that time. It was renewed year after year, even into the present century. The music of this celebrated piece consists of ballad airs to which Gay and his friends, Lord Chesterfield, Dean Swift and others, adapted the words.

It will be seen, then, that the George Edwardes' Gaiety theater idea of musical comedy construction is nothing new; that the plan was followed in the mixing of the first real musical play. Yet, while Gay was the first to introduce a complete musical score, we have seen that the comic song was not unknown to the early comedies. During the time of Elizabeth hardly a comedy was written which did not contain one or more comic songs. "Twelfth Night," one of Shakespeare's most delightful comedies and the one Viola Allen is to do next season, cannot be considered as being a musical comedy by any stretch of the imagination, yet "Twelfth Night" contains several songs which are a very important feature of every production of the play. The comedy even ends with a song by the clown, and a very good song it is, too, when well sung. "Twelfth Night" also offers another proof of the oldness of things, since one or more of the songs in the play were not by Shakespeare, but were "interpolations," after the modern fashion, by the bard from other and slow times, and it is not often that we moderners hit upon anything really and truly new.

America is swiftly overtaking England in the construction of musical comedy. To be sure, most of our musical comedies of recent years have been of English origin; yet we are advancing, having such excellent pieces as "Miss Bob White," "The Sultan of Sulu," "The Prince of Pilsen," "Peggy From Paris" and "King Dodo" to our credit.

The charm of music, which can ever "soothe the savage breast," is something that does not come and go like the seasons or the mumps and the measles. It is a charm that abides always, like a freckled face. And what is true of music applies with like force to the lively, jocose or comic lyric, to a comic story, to pretty faces, graceful dancing, eye-pleasing scenes and costumes. All these musical comedy has; all these it is likely to have in even greater abundance in the future.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO.

Ditrichstein's New Farce Is a Sizzling Affair.

New York, Aug. 29.—The season has opened with a vengeance. If ever Broadway got a joke it was on the night of the first production of "Vivian's Papa." Nobody pas prepared for a dish of salaciousness served up by Leo Ditrichstein, but the house has been crowded to the doors ever since. People used to think that "The Girl From Maxim's" was the limit, but alongside of this new play it is in the same class as "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

There promises to be a keen rivalry between Kyrle Bellew and Vesta Tilley in the matter of dress suits. Bellew recently wrote that the new one he has ordered for "Raffles" is the very finest piece of tailor's art that he has ever possessed. It seems he must have bragged about it to Miss Tilley, for she at once cabled to Liebler & Co. here to order for her the finest suit that an American tailor can turn out, but in any case it must be better than Bellew's.

The following tender little paragraph was sent out to the newspapers by the gentleman who has in charge the publicity department at Manhattan Beach, and it is well calculated to please every class of reader: "Pauline Hall and her little daughter visited Pain's fireworks at Manhattan Beach last evening. They were to have been there the night of the big storm, but could not leave their Yonkers home. When asked why she did not brave the elements and come to the beach the little one replied: 'God's fireworks were busy and we could not get out.'"

Considerable speculation is being indulged in over the mystery surrounding Miss Nance O'Neil. For a couple of months large placards have announced that she will open the Herald Square theater early next month. In a night these were covered by John Drew posters, which set forth the fact that because the Empire theater will not be ready to receive him, he will present his new play at the Herald Square. McKee Rankin, who has charge of Miss O'Neill's fortunes, is as prominent as ever on the Rialto, but he declines to give any explanation. The general understanding is that when the time came to post the requisite guarantee with Mr. Frohman for some reason it was not forthcoming, and the deal was declared off. Neither is any explanation given as to where and when Miss O'Neill will be seen on Broadway.

So E. H. Sothern is to make his debut as a serious dramatist after all. Before beginning her regular season in "Iris" Miss Harned on Sept. 21 will appear for a week in Washington in "The Light That Lies in Women's Eyes," a play which Mr. Sothern wrote for his wife two years ago, and which was to have had a trial performance in Philadelphia last spring. If the play should prove successful, Miss Harned will add it to her repertoire and will produce it in New York after she has concluded her Western tour in "Iris." Mr. Sothern will superintend the production himself. The play is in four acts and calls for a cast of twenty-two persons.

A new star will take to the road this season will be Miss Rebecca Warren, who for six years played principal parts in the support of E. H. Sothern. Miss Warren' tour will be under the direction of Frank Burt, who is the owner of two theaters in Toledo, Ohio. Arrangements have been made with Harrison Gray Fiske whereby "Tess of the D'Urbervilles" has been secured for Miss Warren's use, which includes all the original costumes, scenery, etc. Among those who will be seen in the cast are Harold Hartsell, John B. Walker, Lillian Page and Myra Brooks. Rehearsals are now in progress under the stage direction of Will J. Dean. The season has been booked over the Stair and Havlin circuit, and will commence on Aug. 31 at Toledo, O.

Isabelle Evesson, who is to star next season in the drama "In the Palace of the King," has learned that the fond remembrance of friends is sometimes embarrassing. Miss Evesson, it will be recalled, created the role of Mrs. Errot, mother of Little Lord Fauntleroy, in the play of that name, and as her stage son allways called her "Dearest," many of her friends have since that time addressed her thus. Recently Miss Evesson was dining in a restaurant, when she was greated by a well-known actor, who, with great pride, introduced her to his bride and asked permission to join Miss Evesson at table. The conversation was animated, and every once in a while the actor, who had known Miss Evesson for several years, and whom she counted as one of her best and most valued friends, would address her as "Dearest." Neither Miss Evesson nor the happy husband appeared to notice that the bride was growing more and more roseate about her pretty cheeks, but they were made aware of her anger when suddenly she arose from the table, and, stamping her foot, cried in a choked voice: "I can stand a good deal, Harry, but I think you might show me more consideration than to keep calling Miss Evesson (with a look of superb contempt at the unhappy actress) by such affectionate names." And with this she left the restaurant before she could be detained. Subsequent explanations smoothed matters over, but Miss Evesson has requested her friends to drop the "Dearest" business hereafter.

Isabel Irving has purchased a beautiful building site in Sisconset on the island of Nantucket, where she has been all summer supervising the erection of a bungalow. The plans of the structure she drew herself, copying the leading featres of the bungalow built by Rudyard Kipling in the suburbs of Calcutta.

Nelson W. Page, who wrote the music for the Chinese play, "The Cat and the Cherub," and Mrs. Pat Campbell's Japanese play, "Mme. Chrysanthemum," presented in London, has been engaged by Klaw and Erlanger to compose the music for their coming production of "A Japanese Nightingale," to be staged at Daly's theater next December.

"The Girl From Dixie," Harry B. Smith's latest musical comedy, in which Irene Bentley is to venture forth as a star, is now in rehearsal at Terrace Garden, under the direction of Max Freeman. The company includes Arnold Daly, Ferdinand Gottschalk, George Schiller, Al Hart and Lou Middleton.

For several weeks an expert in furniture of the colonial period has been traveling through towns and villages about the Hudson river picking up articles of furniture and tapestry for use in "Captain Barrington," a new play by Victor Mapes, in which Charles Richman is to be starred next season. He reports great success.

Lillian Collins, a young and pretty member of the chorus of The Rogers Brothers in London cimpany, has fallen heir to $18,000 worth of spending money by the death of her aunt, Mrs. R. E. Brassell, of Richmond, Staten Island. Miss Collins proposes to keep her cash dry and intact as provision against possible rainy days.

No fewer than five Lady Macbeths threaten to walk in their sleep this season. Mrs. Leslie Carter is already at work on her production of Shakespeare's tragedy. Mrs. Fiske is seriously considering one. Mary Shaw is awaiting an opportunity. Nance O'Neill has hers already rehearsed, and Mrs. Patrick Campbell announced it some time ago.

Louis F. Gottschalk, who composed some of the "catchiest" melodies for "Liberty Belles," and who has been engaged as the musical director of "The Red Feather," which opens the Lyric theater on Nov. 9, is writing the music for the new Boston cadet show by R. A. Barnet. The DeKoven-Klein production will have an orchestra of forty pieces, and 110 persons will take part on the stage.

FOOTLIGHT FLASHES.

Liebler & Co. will have twelve attractions on the road this year.

Pat Rooney and Emma Francis will play and dance next season in vaudeville.

Sardou is writing an opera libretto from "Theodora." The msic is by Xavier Leroux.

Hall Caine has been paid $300,000 in royalties by Liebler & Co., for "The Christian."

Paderewski is writing a new opera, the libretto of which has been provided by Catulle Mendes.

Edward Morgan has played the role of John Storm in "The Christian" for nearly 1000 performances.

Leavitt James, son of Louis James, and brother of the petite Mille, will enter musical comedy this season.

Williams and Walker are scoring an enormous hit in England with their musical comedy, "In Dahomey."

Clay Clement and his wife, Kara Kenyon, have forsaken the stage to return to private life on their Texas ranch.

According to reports, Mascagni is composing four operas. "Maria Antinette," "Frou Frou," "Vestilla" and "Stella."

Sadie Martinot will not appear in the dramatization of "Anna Karenina," made by A. E. Lancaster from Count Leo Tolstoy's novel.

Charles B. Dillingham has accepted an unnamed comedy by W. W. Jacobs, the well-known writer of seafaring tales. The piece is Mr. Jacobs' first effort for the stage.

Jessie Busley is to be seen this season in a new play by Clyde Fitch, entitled "Glad of It." It will have a score of speaking parts and, as a distinct novelty, a full chorus.

Mildred Kearney, daughter of Denis Kearney, the once-famous San Francisco "sand lots orator," has gone upon the stage. She will play a prominent role in "Winsome Winnie."

Owen Hall, author of "The Geisha" and other successful musical comedies, is to write a new piece for Charles Frohman and George Edwards, founded on the famous French comedy, "Bouffe."

Hattie Williams, who is now playing the role of the chorus girl in "Vivian's Papas," will be featured in Charles Frohman's production of the English musical comedy, "The Girl from Kay's."

"The Candy Man" is the title of a new musical comedy which David Belasco is said to have under consideration. The book is by Randolph Hartley and the music by Arthur Nevin, brother of the late Ethelbert Nevin.

M. Galihard, head of the Paris grand opera, says that he is going to the United States to hear "Parsifal," and that its production in our country will then give him the privilege, through precedence, to produce "Parsifal" in Paris.

Mme. Sarah Bernhardt opens her Paris theater early in September with "La Legande du Coeur" by Jean Alcard. The divine Sarah herself makes her entree later in "Plus que Reine," and she will afterward produce "Iris" and Sardou's "Sorciere."

The Bostonians will shortly celebrate their silver jubilee. Barnabee, MacDonald and Frothingham are three of the principals who were in the original company. The leading sopranos this year will be Agnes Cain Brown and Gertrude Zimmer; Kate Condon will sing the principal contralto roles.

Miss Crystal Herne, daughter of the late James A. Herne, has been selected as leading woman for Arthur Byron in "Major Andre." Miss Herne appeared with her father in "Sag Harbor," and after his death she had the leading emotional part in it. Later on she had a part in "Shore Acres." For some time she played the part of Huguette in "If I Were King."

No fewer than five Lady Macbeths threaten to walk in their sleep this season. Mrs. Leslie Carter is already at work on her production of Shakespeare's tragedy. Mrs. Fiske is seriously considering one. Mary Shaw is awaiting an opportunity. Nance O'Neill has hers already rehearsed, and Mrs. Patrick Campbell announced it some time ago. We believe that Margaret Anglin is ambitious too, in this same direction.

In New York Charles Frohman will open two of his remodeled theaters with the same star and the same play. The Empire will not be ready until October, and he will celebrate the beginning of his management of the Herald Square theater by having John Drew appear there in its opening. Mr. Drew will appear in the new play, "Captain Dieppe," Sept. 15. After four weeks there the production will be transferred to the Empire.

While it has been officially announced that W. H. Crane will open his season in a dramatization of Leon Wilson's novel, "The Spenders," it is said the comedian will be seen later in an American adaptation of Octave Mirbeau's play, "Les Affaires sont les Affaries," ("Business is Business,") which has had sensational success at the theater Francais, Paris. Mr. Crane will play the role of Isadore Uechat, the grasping money magnate.

AS A VAGRANT.

Son of Wealthy Citizen Is Arrested.

Augusta, Ga., Aug. 29.—Under the drastic provisions of the new vagrancy law which has just gone into effect throughout the state, M. F. Vaughn, son of a wealthy citizen of this place, was arrested here and held for trial.

The young man's father was quickly at the barracks and declared that his son was no vagrant, and that as long as he desired he had a home and something to eat at home. The police department demanded bond for his appearance at the next term of the city court, and it was given.

The friends of the young man declare that it is spite work on the part of the police because young Vaughn has been sowing wild oats and giving the police trouble. Chief Norris declared that, as he understands the law, Vaughn is amenable to it, and that the case will be pushed.

The chief declares that, even though the young man has a home with his father, he is of age, able-bodied and has a way of living that is harmful and unlawful. Vaughn's father is worth over $100,000.

Milwaukee and Return $11.30.

Cadet Stories—How The Game Was Won.

BY WILLIAM WALLACE WHITELOCK.

Author of "When the Heart Is Young."

The football game stood 5 to 0 in favor of the Anderson High School and the first half was over. Moreover, Ten Eyck, the cadets' crack halfback, had been hurt five minutes after the start of the game and was forced to retire in favor of a substitute. The Academy's prospects began to look black. And this was the star game of the year, on the winning of which the corps' heart was set. The High School and the Academy were old rivals, between whom fortune had divided her favors pretty equally. In consequence each institution had made strenuous efforts to bring its team to the highest point of efficiency possible. So confident were the Anderson boys of victory that their captain had openly boasted that he would "wipe up the earth" with the cadets. And in a sense he was making good his threat, for was it not practically the same to be beaten 5 to 0 as 50 to 0? Certainly the bitterness of defeat could not be added to.

This was true in regard to the feelings of Henry Haswell, at least, as he trudged monotonously up and down beneath the trees in dress suit and with musket over his shoulder. For the first time Henry was on the fourth delinquency, and he was, therefore, forced to walk guard during the four hours of Saturday afternoon. And for the first time he was to have played halfback in the game that afternoon. It seemed almost beyond the limit of self-control not to throw down his musket and rush into the struggle which was taking place under his eyes.

"Step up there more lively, Mr. Haswell!" came the strident voice of "Slouchy" George Morely, the instructor in chemistry and the man responsible for Henry's present predicament. Some member of the third class had left the water running in the chemical laboratory, to the consequent damage of the room, and as Henry had been the last in the place he was held responsible. Wherefore he was now parading up and down on his endless course, instead of helping to stem the tide of defeat.

"Confound Haswell!" growled Garibaldi, the Irish captain of the team, whose real name was Murphy. "Why couldn't he wait till we didn't need him to get into trouble?"

At that moment sounded the referee's whistle for the renewal of the game, and shedding sweaters and military cloaks, the two teams trotted out on to the field. The halves were of only 30 minutes duration, so that but little time remained for the cadets to overcome their opponents' lead.

"Follow her up now lively, boys!" cried "Garibaldi," and taking two or three steps forward, he sent the ball spinning over the heads of the opposing team to their 25-yard line. A cheer went up from the breathlessly watching corps, but before it had ceased to echo the Anderson fullback had caught the ball and was speeding back toward the center of the field. Nor was he downed until he had carried it nearly to the point from which "Garry's" toe had raised it. Then began a stubborn fight for its possession. By dint of herculean efforts the High School boys managed to gain the five yards necessary before their third down, only, however, to lose the ball on a fumble on the next scrimmage. "Garry" then attempted to run around the left end, but was downed in his tracks so hard by the opposing captain that for several minutes he saw nothing but stars. And then ensued one of the most inexplicable "slumps" in the cadets' playing, to which even the most perfectly trained teams are liable. The Anderson boys fairly rushed the ball down the field.

"Oh my! Oh my!" sighed Henry, unconsciously stopping to watch the struggle. "What a lot of duffers!"

"Come, move along there, Mr. Haswell!" and with a groan Henry took up the weary march.

"Fifteen minutes still to play!" announced the umpire. And the ball was on the cadets' 20-yard line.

"Come, brace up, boys, brace up!" cried "Garry," in the hope of stiffening the resistance, and the High School attempt to break the line was a failure.

"Once more and we've got 'em!"

Nevertheless the enemy succeeded in gaining the coveted yards. Thirteen minutes to play, and the ball on the cadets' fifteen-yard line.

"Move on, Mr. Haswell!"

At that moment the two teams clashed in a furious struggle, and when at last they separated one of the cadets was seen lying on the ground.

"Time!" cried the umpire, and "Garry" picked up the wounded soldier in his brawny arms and carried him off the field.

"Garry! Garry!" said a timid voice at his elbow, and a hand plucked his sleeve as he arose from depositing the injured player on an outspread coat.

"Well, what is it?" impatiently inquired the Irishman as he turned to face McChesney, the boy whom Shorty Carson and his friends had taught a much needed lesson in values.

With difficulty McChesney stammered a scarcely audible sentence into "Garry's" ear.

"What's that?" cried the astounded individual. "You come over to 'Slouchy' George with me this instant!" and grabbing the frightened boy by the collar he hustled him across the field on a dead run to where the delinquents were marching up and down.

"Professor," he panted, when they stood before the chemistry instructor, "this man says Haswell didn't leave the water turned on; he was the one."

"Is that so, McChesney?" asked the teacher, sharply.

"Yes, sir," replied McChesney. "I did it, but I couldn't bear to see the game lost, so I owned up to it."

"You are excused, Mr. Haswell. Report to your room under arrest, McChesney."

"Quick, hustle into your football clothes!" cried "Garry," giving Henry an unnecessary shove toward quarters. "I'll hold the game till you get back if I have to catch the mumps to do it."

Five minutes later Henry trotted out onto the field in place of the injured player, and the battle was on again.

"Hoo-ray! Hoo-ray! L. C. M. A.! Haswell!" shouted the corps as the ball was snapped back and tossed into the eager hands of the new halfback.

Forward he shot as though projected out of a catapult, but like a pack of hounds the opposing team was upon him, and he was downed with a gain of only one yard. Another trial, and two more yards were secured.

"Ten minutes still to play!" announced the umpire. And the ball was still in the cadets' territory.

"Five, six, nine, three!" cried the quarterback, and the next moment the ball was tossed to "Garry" for a kick. But one of the enemy broke through and he was downed before he could raise his foot. Eight yards had been lost.

The corps yelled encouragingly, but everyone felt that the game had been lost.

"We've done you this time, Lansing!" cried the opposing captain in premature exultation.

"Seven, eight, five, two!" cried the quarterback before the astonished visitors, who had already relaxed their efforts, realized that the scrimmage had been formed, and a moment later Henry held the ball safely tucked away under his left arm.

"Five minutes to play!"

"There he goes! Knock him over, Haswell! Good boy! Great!" shrieked the onlookers in an ecstasy of excitement as Henry went speeding down the field, dashing aside greedy hands that sought to pull him down. He had now reached the enemy's twenty-five yard line, and but one man remained to pass. But from behind came the sound as of a galloping horse, and he nervously glanced over his shoulder. Not a yard behind him came a pursuing figure—the redoubtable Simmons, the fastest man on the other team. Could he outrun him for the short distance still remaining? But there was another danger to be met—the figure crouching for him ten feet in front of the goal posts, ready to pull him to earth. Gritting his teeth and assuming a cannibalistic expression of countenance, Henry dashed straight at the waiting tackle as though intending to rush directly into his arms. But suddenly, just as the collision seemed inevitable, he swerved sharply to the right and the hand that sought to stay his progress went harmlessly scratching and clawing down his canvas sleeve. A second later Henry was brought to earth with a thud beneath the weight of the pursuing Simmons; but too late—the goal line had been crossed and the touchdown secured!

"One minute more to play!"

"Time!" cried the referee.

The next moment pandemonium broke loose. The game had been won by a single point!

"Quick to your places!" cried the lad, who rushed back to the field with the ball and threw himself on the ground to hold it for a kick.

"A little more to the left—that's it!" said Henry, and the ball sprang from his toe and came sailing through the air.

"Oh!" went up in chorus from a hundred excited breasts.

Circulation.

Benham—The doctor charged me $5 for telling me about my circulation.

Mrs. Benham—I call that blood money.

The answer to this riddle is something you all like to eat. You will find it hidden in several placesin the picture.

WHEN CACKLE SAVED THE BARN.

"Cackle must have stolen her nest again," said Mrs. Borden. "I see her go into the barn every day, and yet you say that you cannot find any of her eggs. Suppose you go now and take another look, children; it's pretty late in the season and too warm for her to begin to set at this time of the year."

"I don't see how mother expects us to find Cackle's nest when it's not light enough to see anything, and she never will let us bring a lantern up here," grumbled Rob. "I'll tell you what I'll do, Janey; I've got some matches in my pocket and I'll light them and find the eggs, and then we won't have to stop our play every afternoon to come up here and look for old Cackle and her nest."

So he produced the few matches for which he had that noon traded several cookies at the village school, and boldly lighted one. The first revealed nothing except the mounds of hay, nor was the second more successful, but by the light of the third they saw Cackle's red comb and bright eyes on a beam far above them.

"There she is!" cried Rob, overjoyed at the success of his expedient. "Now we can tell mother where the nest is, and father or one of the men can go up after it. Hark!" as a peculiar whistle sounded from below, "there's Charley Brown. We're going down to the brook this afternoon; do you want to come?"

Of course, Janey wanted to go to the brook, so Rob extinguished (or thought he did) the match which he held, tossed it carelessly on the floor, and, followed closely by his sister, hastened to join his friend.

After the children's hasty exit the attention of the old gray hen was attracted by a sputtering, crackling noise, and, peering from her lofty perch, she saw tiny, yellow flames fast spreading in all directions from the spot where Rob had dropped his last match. At first she merely watched it curiously, but when some smoke suddenly rolled toward her she all at once realized that danger was threatening her and her precious eggs.

As soon as she came to this conclusion the old gray hen flew through the fast mounting volume of smoke and down the ladder to the ground, after which she ran like a mad thing, cackling at the top of her voice (any one who had heard her would have acknowledged that she had been well named), straight in at the kitchen door.

Mrs. Borden was deep in a batch of bread, but she at once realized that something was wrong and stepped to the door, from which, to her horror, she saw smoke curling upward from the roof of the barn in more than one place. But this unexpected sight did not cause her to lose her presence of mind. She caught the dinner horn from its nail beside the door and blew several vigorous blasts.

A bucket brigade was at once organized, and some of the neighbors lending their help, the fire was soon subdued and the barn saved, though the hay in the loft was ruined.

Then the Good Spirit, knowing this must be the work of the bad man or evil spirit, told the beast that he was going to change him. At this it started to run away, but the Good Spirit caught him by the tail, and, wrapping it around his finger in a curl, pulled him back. Then he struck him on the snout, and, bending his head to the ground, said: "Henceforth man shall eat you and not you man. You must dig in the earth with your nose for your living." This is the reason that the pig's nose inclines to the ground and his tail is curly.

The Fish That Knocked On The Window.

BY FRANK B. MOORE.

Teency Pearl was the daughter of a fisherman. Her father lived in a boat house on the shores of the great Missouri River, where it flowed swiftly by the earth-walled foundations of a populous Western town.

Behind Teency's small frame house rose the high clay banks, with only here and there a sloping path rising to the top. To the front, and facing the great level plains which stretched away into the West, rolled the river. Piles held the boat house several feet in the air above the level of the waters.

Teency's little playground beneath the boat, and in its shadow on the bench during the afternoon when the sun had melted the snow and warmed the earth, was stocked with the simple treasures that the moving tide had cast upon the shore.

Teency's father was industrious. Every night he rowed far out into the river and cast his weighted lines into the water. Early in the morning Teency stood on the bank and watched him draw them in and remove the cruel hooks from the fishes before they were taken to the market in the city. Idling along the shores and standing by the side of the deep places the little girl gradually came to know the playground of the finny creatures that had their home in the waters.

Around a little bend not far from her boathouse home Teency one day discovered a great catfish in the bottom of a deep pool. It was a cool, shady spot and the big fish lay on the bottom when the day was hot, and Teency could see it move its fins and roll its long tail about.

At first she was greatly pleased at her discovery. She thought she would run and tell her father about the fish. It was much bigger and longer than any she had ever seen him draw from the river. But the big fish looked so peaceful and innocent that she resolved to let it alone. This determination became fixed when one day she saw several little fish swim and circle around the big fish.

Teency concluded that they were its children and that the pool was their home. She said to herself:

"I will let the poor fishes live in their home down deep in the water."

Every day she carried bread to the pool and dropped it into the water, and she laughed with glee as she watched the big fish bite it and all the little ones swim around after the crumbs. By and by the big fish began to watch for the little girl, and it would rise to the surface to take its dinner of bread from her hand. Many hours were spent by lonely Teency with her strange companion of the deep.

One morning Teency's father said he would take his lines and fish in the pools along the shore. Her heart filled with dread for the fate of her friend. While her father was preparing for his excursion she ran to the pool and hurled stones into it. The big fish rose to the surface and looked at the little girl. Its eyes seemed to wear an expression of grief. Teency shouted:

"Go away from here, you big fish! My father is coming to catch you on his hook."

The fish sank from sight and Teency went back to her home and watched in trembling while her father cast the alluring bait into the water. After a time the fisherman gave up and went on to another pool, saying as he went that he did not believe there were any fish in that part of the river.

After that followed many rainy days when Teency could hardly stir from her little home. The water rose to an alarming height and the fisherman's family was in danger of being washed away. The boat was old and leaky from standing in the warm sunshine. They felt that they would have to move if the river rose much higher, for the water was creeping up towards the bottom of the boat and the piles were covered many inches from their foundations.

When Teency crawled into her little bed one night and looked out over the waste of waters she thought of her friend, the big fish, and she peered into the depths of the river and wondered if he would be safe with all the water washing and washing down toward the sea that she had heard so much about and which was somewhere a long, long way off toward the south.

She was awakened from a sound sleep by hearing a thump, thump on her window, which overlooked the river. She was frightened and began to cry. She looked out and saw a great fish leaping into the air from the surface of the flood and striking the window with its tail. She screamed louder in alarm, and woke her parents. They ran to her and her father cried out as he looked from the window:—

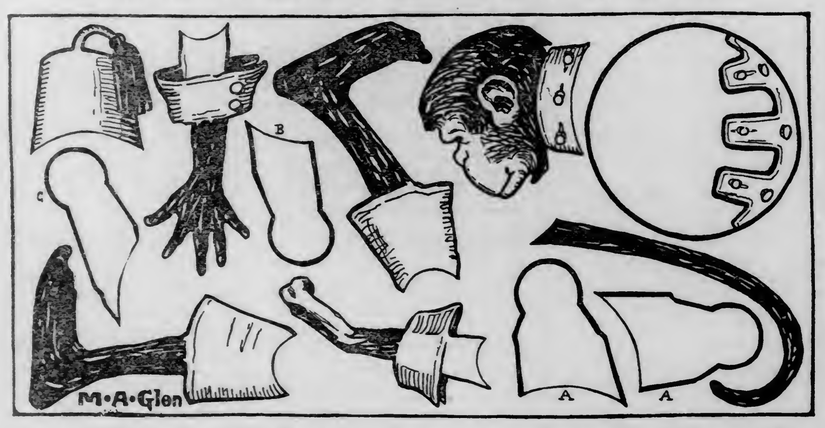

"The flood! The flood is upon us!"

He took his little girl to his breast, and, followed by his wife, leaped from the boat into the water and waded ashore. As they climbed the bank there was a crash, and the bonthouse rolled off its moorings and floated away on the flood.

As Teency clung to her father's neck, looking out into the dreadful, angry water, she saw a big fish leaping and sporting on the foamy crest of the current.

Then she told her father the story of the fish and its quiet home in the pool.

HOW TO MAKE A PERFORMING MONKEY.

Cut out the pieces and put together so as to make a trick monkey, which can be changed into a great many positions, the parts still fitting perfectly. The pieces marked A are the upper joints of the legs, that marked B the upper joint of the right arm, that marked C the upper joint of the left arm. Paste the monkey on a cardboard background in the position you think funniest and paint attractively.

Three big dolls and three little girls you see. Which are alive and which only make believe to be.

WHY THE PIG'S TAIL IS CURLY.

Many years ago, when the world on which we live was first made, and only a few people lived here, the Good Spirit was out one day walking up and down the earth. By and by he met a very ferocious beast, and, stopping, said, "Who made you?" "My maker is the all powerful," answered the beast.

"What were you created for?"

"To eat man and his children," was the

UNCONSCIOUS MOVEMENTS

Slit a match at the end which has no phosphorus on it and cut another one on the slant. Place one within the other so as to form an acute angle, and bend them both slightly. Put the joined matches astride the blade of a knife held in your hand, leaning your hand heavily upon the table. Be careful to allow the phosphorus ends only lightly to touch the table, but on no account move them away from the surface. To your astonishment the matches will begin to march along the blade. This is due to the unconscious movements of your hand, movements invisible both to yourself and to spectators. Make the experiment more attractive by painting a piece of paper to represent a man and attaching it to the matches.

CHIMMIE FADDEN STORIES BY EDWARD W. TOWNSEND

Chimmie Fadden Discusses In His Unique Style the Diplamacy of Women.

(Copyright, 1903, by R. H. Russell.)

I'm a Frinchman by marriage, as Duchess says, but dere's one ting I'll never cop right, and dat's French cooking and eating. All dat religion, politics, Wall street and sporting news is to Americans, eating is to de French.

"Dat's de trouble wit your dinky nation," I says to Duchess. "If dey goes to war dey gets licked; if dey digs a sub-way, it's a grave; if dey breeds racers, dey is skates; if dey plays polo dey only cuts up de turf; if dey fights duals dey only makes faces, all because dey is never tinking about de ting dey is making a bluff at, but is tinking about how deir grub is to be sauced."

Mostly I can get a fall out of Duchess by pulling a hammer on de French, but dis time she only gives me de baby stare, and says, "Cheems," she says, "Cheems, you have only of de ignorance of what you speak. Besides dat dey is de greatest people on eart, de French is de most brave, de most noble, and de only ones dat knows how to dress. Dey did everything before anybody else done it. Did we not go to see M'sieu Suddern in de American play of 'Hamlet' last year, and did we not see de same play by Madame Bernhardt—"L'Aiglong"—de year before? Dey French is always ahead."

"On your way, woman!" I says. "Hamlet was wrote for Eddie Suddern by an Englishman, not by Clyte Fitch.'

"De more shame to de Englishman, who stole it from M'sieu Rostand," Duchess says; "De English never knowed how to fight until Napoleon teached 'em; dey will never know how to paint or sculptor, no matter who tries to learn em. It is only de tings dat France has forgot, dat any odder country does well."

"Dey had a good brand of hot air on tap, anyway," I says. "But tell me, why does dey put garlic in a leg of mutton?"

"Because de sheep hasn't de sense to put de garlic in his own leg," she says. "But you has de bad temper this morning, Cheems. Come wit me to de city and we will dine at de restaurant of de husband of my fren, Julie. It will be my treat, for Julie is de dame du comptoir, and she charges me notting for dinner, so delleleux it is for her to have de langewudge spoke to her polite.'

And dat's no dream, neider; Julie used to be a lady's maid, and she's so tickled to have Duchess come to de restaurant, and give her de news of so swell set, dat dey never asks us for de price—and dat's why de dinner at Julie's is Duchess' most favorite treat.

We eats at Jacques—dat's Julie's hubby—between meal times, so dat dey can eat wit us; and de waiters dines wit us too. It's den dat Duchess tells Julie de talk of de swift set, dat we hears at our place; and de tings she tells must be warm propositions, for Julie 'Mon Dieus;' and humps her eyebrows like she was only two jumps ahead of a fit. De waiters don't understand, for dey comes from a Frinch a Hoboken of France, where some sort of French yiddish is spoke, and can't cop de real Paris article dat Duchess spouts. Dat's a good ting, too; for when Duchess gets passing out de latest extrays about de little lad in de brass band set dat carries a wrist bag, and wears a rose in his thatch at night, it wouldn't do does backwoods Frenchies no good to hear de whole story.

Jacques gives each of de waiters a bot of claret for dinner; but dat day one of em was docked his red wine and made to drink tea, because he'd broke so many dishes; and de poor chap cried so much over his hard luck dat he made de tea salty. Den he said it wasn't so bad.

But dat wasn't what I was going to tell you; only sometimes I get wondering so hard why all folks isn't like Americans dat I has to sing a song about it—or have a fit. I was saying dat to Mr. Paul de odder day, when we was trying to see would his sloop sail as well on her rail as her keel. "Yes, Chames," he saps, "de American people couldn't do a wrong act if de tried. Dey is a generous, just, patriotic, and grateful people, and dey will not be represented in high office by a man who forgets to show generosity and gratitude and justice, instead of meanness, ingratitude and unfairness in all his acts. At de club de odder day I was talking dis over wit Gen. Miles, and he says—"

Just then a squall hits us, and me and Mr. Paul has to swim aashore, so I never heard what de General said. It don't cut no ice anyway, for Mr. Paul, when he starts out with a lot of dude langwuage like does woids, is mostly training for a match with Whiskers.

As I was saying, dat wasn't what I was going to tell you about. Remember de job dat Duchess puts up to makeWhiskers get togedder with Wiley Widdy? Well, when Whiskers seen dat dere was no more trespassing on de grass he got foul of his shy streak again, and him and widdy was so far apart dat he couldn't see her. Dat makes Duchess so mad, so dat Miss Fannie can be made to take trips to Paris and odder necks of woods where Duchess wants to go, and where Miss Fannie won't go so long as her pa has no time of his own.

I don't make it my business to fuss wit tings like dose, for I'm satisfied wit me job as it lays; all de same I wouldn't give odds dat Miss Fannie would put up a yell if Whiskers had a shack to run all by himself, and din't have so much time to run hers. Mr. Paul doesn't say notting. He's a wise guy, Mr. Paul is, and so long as Whiskers stands half de price of running our places, dat leaves Mr. Paul more of his own long green to turn away on yachts and tings dat boins money like a tree-eall fire alarm. But just de same, if Whiskers has a latch key on a different block from us I can't see Mr. Paul putting his leg out of joint kicking about it. But it ain't a man-servant's graft to fuss wit dat part of de game; it's different with women-soivants. If Duchess didn't have a hand in running tings I tink she'd give up woik, and about de boodle she has banked. "What's de use of money, exceept to spend it?" I says to her.

"De woist use you can put money to is to spend it, mon ami, if you spend it you is no better off dan dose foolish poissons dat don't save it. Money is no good if you don't have it, is it? If it is only good to spend, why take all de trouble to get it? No, master Cheems, if you have money you have self-respect—de only ting dat you can buy wit money, and at de same time not spend de money. Dere should be a law dat man should make all de money he can—and give it all to his wife. Dat's de only way he can buy happiness.'

I was a foolish fellow to come to a clinch with Duchess on dat proposition; for no matter how good a argument I put up, Duchess gets de decision, and de poisse; she being referee and stake holder, bote.

But I was going to tell you about Willy Widdy. She's got de kind of a player dat sits on de club house verandy waiting for a easy mark to go around de links wit her. If de one she wants won't play, she'll be in a game if its only a lonesome—dough foursomes come her way swifter dan any odder. So when Whiskers go shy, Widdy was as gallygally as any goil in de county. Duchess tried her best to get Miss Farrie to drag Whiskers over to Widdy's cottage, so dat he could see what push was dere it Widdy's lunches and teas, and dat she wasn't sentenced to be a widdy a day longer dan she wanted to be. But Whiskers ducked.

"It is of de aggravate!" says Duchess. "It is dat if Whiskers see Madam Harding in company with anodder, den he is of de sentiment urgent. But if he will no go where he see dat many men admire her, what can one?"

"One can guess again," I says. "Let your betters alone, and fix it with Housekeeper to leave Maggie have dis evening off, for me fren de barkeep is coming down dis evening, and we'll take a stroll up de pike wit him and Maggie."

Duchess never said a woid in answer to dat, and I had a right to be leary; for when a woman won't talk, even if she has a cue, it's time for a man to get his guard up, and limber his legs for a quick side-step. Me fren comes down by de early evening train, and coachy lends me de station wagon to fetch him; de folks being at dinner and not seeing me make de sneak with de wagon. When we was in de housekeeper's room, having a bite, and a mug of de butler's ale to wash de cinders out of me fren's troat, Duchess chases me off, and den it was she puts up der job. Widdy had been giving Duchess a lot of dads, and p'shee! If she didn't rig Maggie up in em till she was a dead ringer for Widdy—only dat Maggie, in one of dose new straight-up-and-down corsets was asking wouldn't she break like a lamp chimney if she sat down! Me fren was looking like ready money, too; for his lid and blanket would pass him at a hundred yards for a broker on de right side of de market.

"Take me out of dis corset, Duchess dear," Maggie was saying. "For de love of heaven! take me out before I die. I feel like I was boxed up—like I was boxed for de expressman to take away."

"Vous etes tres charmante!" says Duchess, putting on de poor goil a wan Widdy used to wear. "Don't hold your skirt like a mouse was chasing you. Look, hold it like dis," and she shows Maggie how to hold her skirt like she was going to wrap herself up in it if dere was enough of it.

"What's doing?" I says, when I sees dese tings.

"It is a play," says Duchess.

"Who's to be played?"

"Come wit me, and say notting." Duchess says, and de four of us chases out to de road by de lane. Den Duchess and me goes over to de odder side of de road, and me fren and Maggie, waltzes along by deirselves, and say, dey was so like Widdy and some swell Johnnie, dat

SPLIT THE FIVER.

I'd a yelled only Duchess pinched me.

It was near dark when Whiskers comes out from dinner, and starts off for a stroll to de yacht club house to trash out de cup races once more. As soon as he cops Maggie and me fren, he starts like he was going to cross the road but den he seems to tink dat wouldn't do, and he keeps on; and when he passes e:n he hists his lid; me fren hists his, and dat sassy Bowery goil, Maggie, sways a bow dat made her look more like de Widdy dan de close cid. Whiskers went on his way, and de couple makes a hurry sneak wit us back to do house, where Maggie gets out of her swell rags, and into her own close; and den de four of us starts off up de pike. Pretty soon butler runs us down, and asks me didn't I know dat I was due at de house, for dere was to be bridge, and me being second man, it was up to me to be on call if Mr. Paul would want a small bottle.

Say, before I gets a ring to go to de room where de folks was, Miss Fannie sends for me, on de quiet, and she says, "Chames, where is Hortense?"

"Walking up de road wit butler, Maggie and a fren of mine," I says. "Shall I chase after her, Miss Fannie?"

Miss Fannie taut a while, and den she says, "How is Hortense dressed?"

"Just as she was when she dressed you for dinner."

"And Maggie?"

"Same as in de house, only wit her cap off," I says.

But I never could fool Miss Fannie. She smiles a little, and den she says, "Chames, what mischief has Hortense been up to? Mrs. Harding is here, and when papa came back from de club he spoke of having seen Mrs. Harding. I know dat he did not, but Mrs. Harding did not say he did not. I see by your face, Chames, dat you know of some mischief dat will explain, and you must tell—I'll not be cross wit Hortense."

I never could con Miss Fannie if I tried, so I gives her de game dat was played, and she didn't put up no holler, at dat. I was wondering what was doing wit de folks in de library, so when I was belled for, to fetch de proof for Mr. Paul dat de cellar wasn't run dry, I rubbers de layout. Whiskers was playing up to Widdy like she was a six per cent stock selling below par, and he was afraid dat if he didn't bid quick dere would be none of it left in de market. Widdy's cart was dere, and, when I called it for her, I waltzes down to de gate, and as she drives trough she stops and says, "Miss Fannie was telling me dat your wife can dress Maggie to look like odder folks."

'Duchess is no farmer, ma'am," I says. "She is a very bold maid," says Widdy, "but I tink she deserves dis, what I just wins at bridge," and she passes me out a long green, and p'shee! it was a fiver."

Well, I goes to de station wit me fren de barkeep, and I splits dat fiver at de little drum near de station, and we says, "Here's to you!" more dan once.

When I meets up wit Duchess, she says, "Cheems, you has been drinking. Where did you get de price?"

"It didn't need no price," I says. "It was a tin roof."

"A tin roof? What kind of a dirnk is a tin roof?"

"It's on de house," says I, and Duchess is wondering yet.

Dat's de foist time in me life dat I ever sunk a tip on Duchess, and de best ting about it is dat it was her graft, at dat. If she ever finds out dat Widdy passed dat green to me, to pass along to her—to de Nort Pole for me!

And Duchess earned de stake, too; for, from de looks of tings down our way, Whiskers will soon tell me to pack his trunk for a wedding joiney; and when de parson has willed half of Whiskers' income to Widdy, de credit of de job will belong as much to Duchess, as to Widdy's eyes.

NEW WAY TO TREAT HAY FEVER.

No Stomach Dosing — Just Breathe Hyomei — Stops Sneezing and Smarting.

S. F. Boyce is recommending to his customers, as a cure for hay fever, Hyomei.

It is claimed for this remedy that it stops the spasmodic paroxysms of sneezing, the smarting and running of the eyes and nose, and other acute symptoms of this disease.

Many persons have been cured of hay fever by Hyomei, and its inventors profess to be able to prevent both the occurrence of the annual attacks and to arrest the progress of the disease when in the most chronic form.

Among those who have been cured by Hyomei are J. F. Forbes, chief dispatcher B. & M. railroad, McCook, Neb., who writes: "I have never had relief from any remedy for hay fever even temporarily until I used Hyomei. I will always recommend it whenever occasion offers."

A. Hamlin, Westford, Mass., writes: "Hyomei cured me of hay fever in one week's time. I consider it a duty to tell others who suffer from this disease."

These endorsements are samples of hundreds that have been received by the manufacturers of Hyomei, but S. F. Boyce's offer to refund the money if Hyomei does not do all that is claimed for it is the strongest proof that can be offered as to the reliance they place upon Hyomei to cure hay fever.

ONCE A GAY BUTTERFLY

The Notable Career of the New Premier of Spain.

Madrid, Aug. 29.—Don Raimundo Villaverde, Spain's new premier, was the son of modest, well-to-do country folk, and there was no reason to suppose that their boy was going to climb straight up to the highest post within the gift of the Spanish people. He started out as a lawyer, endowed with good brains and an eloquent tongue perseverance and lots of ambition. Thereafter the steps to fame were interestingly marked.

First—Crowds of clients.

Second—Elected to parliament.

Third—Attracted attention by hard work, participation in every possible debate, mastering all sorts of dry subjects; too busy to concern himself with the brilliant aristocracy of Madrid, which had shown some inclination to take to its bosom such a good looking and promising young man.

Fourth—A sudden dash into society under the wing of the Duchess de Denia, at whose palace one could meet everybody—the greatest politicians, artists and men of science to be found in Madrid. The smart young member from Galicia soon made himself highly popular in this set, and for the first time seems to have been deflected from his path to glory. So many Spanish beauties of high degree lavished their affections on him that he became gay indeed for a while—a veritable butterfly of fashion.

Fifth—A rich and attractive gentlewoman, the Marchioness of Pozo Rubio offered to marry the handsome young gallant and was forthwith accepted. Senor Villaverde now put a definite stop to all frivolity and devoted himself to fruitful labor for the welfare of his country. He studied assiduously social and economical sciences, for which he had always felt a predilection, and through his great intelligence soon rose to pre-eminence. He was successively named minister of justice and of finance to the general satisfaction.

In 1889, after the disastrous war with the United States, when a new cabinet presided over by the leader of the conservative party, Senor Silvela, was formed, political men as well as the majority of the people recognized the urgent necessity of introducing ample and radical reforms into all branches of public administration, and adopting a sound and liberal policy apt to raise the credit of the land. Senor Villaverde, who occupied in Silvela's cabinet the post of minister of finance, brought a bill of taxation before parliament with which he intended to increase the income of the treasury from 850 to 1000 million pesetas, and with his peculiar energy and firmness he succeeded in having this project approved of.

This heavy taxation raised such a storm of protests throughout the whole of Spain, and so numerous and bloody were the riots which it caused in various provinces of the kingdom, that Senor Villaverde was obliged to send in his resignation, and two or three months afterward the whole cabinet was also forced to resign. The queen then decided to trust Villaverde with the formation of a new ministry; but, in consequence of the unpopularity of his taxes, he found nobody disposed to second him in the work, and therefore had to renounce the charge.

When Senor Silvela was once more called to govern the country at the end of 1902, he hastened to offer the portfolio of finances to his intimate friend Senor Villaverde, but the latter being aware that Senor Silvela, with his well know nweakness of character, had allowed himself to be induced to give the post of minister for the naval department to Senor Sanchez Toca, who believed in the urgent necessity of the reconstruction of the fleet, finally refused to accept the offer and won back the golden opinion of the public by urging that the true basis of regeneration consisted in the reorganization of national property. With great difficulty, Silvela persuaded Villaverde to accept the office of president of the chamber of deputies.

Time very soon proved that Senor Villaverde was not mistaken. The mere announcement that the government, through Senor Sanchez, intended to bring a bill into parliament for the reconstruction of the fleet, was sufficient to call forth demonstrations of hostility in the chamber of deputies as well as all over Spain, so that Senor Silvela and his companions had to resign. Then King Alphonso, interpreting the desires of the country, called upon Senor Villaverde to form a new cabinet. The elevation of this distinguished statesman to the highest office signifies the triumph of a firm and saving financial policy of which Spain has so much need in her present painful and critical situation.

JAILER MUST CROSS OCEAN

To Identify Lynchehaum If He Returns to Ireland.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 29.—James Lynchehaun, alias Thomas Walsh, who was caught here after a chase half way around the globe, still declares that he is not the man wanted, and in order to take him back the jailer at the Marlboro jail, whence he is said to have escaped, must cross the sea to identify him. So alarmed are the agents of England about the safety of their prisoner that Sergt. Young, of the Royal Irish constabulary, who made the arrest, made a request to keep the prisoner in his own personal custody. The United States authorities were rather surprised by the English sleuth's suggestion, and informed him that Lynchehaun was not yet a prisoner of John Bull.

Local Irishmen and Sons of Erin all over the country are deeply interested in Lynchehaun's case. "If he really is Lynchehaun," they say, "he has already served eight years for the assault he committed on Miss Agnes McDonald, who was the landowner of the farm from which she tried to evict him. For that offense he would not have got more than eight months in the United States. In Ireland he got a life sentence, being convicted by a 'packed' jury."

Counsel has been retained by New York Irishmen, and his extradition will be bitterly fought.

Mrs. Walsh, or Mrs. Lynchehaun, as the sleuths call her, is most devoted to her husband. She wept bitterly at the jail when she went there to see him. The woman and her children came from Ireland last spring, and were followed from Cork by Sergt. Young to Cleveland and thence to Chicago, where he took the Pinkertons into the case. Young knew that Mrs. Lynchehaun was of a religious turn of mind, and when he came here a few days ago started in the shadow of the churches. He saw the woman come out of St. John's church and followed her to her home, where he arrested Lynchehaun.

CLAIMED BY POOR NIECE

In Nebraska Is Request of Half a Million Dollars.

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 29.—The niece to whom old Thomas Neumann, of Wheeling, W. Va., left a fortune of $500,000, is evidently Mrs. Henry Klassen, the wife of a poor, hard-working farmer, living near Calhoun, Neb., twenty-five miles north of Omaha. Before her marriage Mrs. Klassen's name was Elizabeth Neumann, and she lived in this city. The home of the heiress is a little tumble-down, upainted frame cottage, tucked between a flower garden and thirty acres of tall corn.

When a reporter called there and inquired for the niece of Thomas Neumann, a rudy faced, good-looking young woman, wearing a calico dress, with sleeves rolled to the elbow and wearing neither shoes nor stockings, appeared in the doorway. She had already read in the newspapers of the $500,000 left to Elizabeth Neumann, and appeared considerably flustrated.

"Yes, we have been talking it over, my husband and I," said Mrs. Klassen. "I think there's no doubt in the world that I am the niece of Thomas Neumann, and shall inherit the fortune. I am sure, at any rate, that I am the only Eliazbeth Neumann living in or near Omaha. My mother remembers distinctly that my father's father had a brother Thomas, who came to America when my father did, and located in Pennsylvania, and we are quite sure he had a son Thomas, and that he is the man who left me the fortune. While my father used to live here he wrote often to his relatives in the East, but we have lost track of them since he went away."

Mrs. Klassen has engaged an Omaha attorney to look after her uncle's estate. "When I get the money," she said, "we will pay off what we owe on the farm here and then give something to our relatives and go somewhere else to live."

SELECTING RESERVE

Eugene S. Bruce's Address to the American Forestry Convention.

What Has Been Done to Create a Forest Reserve.

One of the most interesting papers read at the recent convention of the American Forestry association at Minneapolis was that by Eugene S. Bruce, official lumberman of the bureau of forestry. The paper read by Mr. Bruce was on the subject, "The Minnesota National Forest Reserve," and was as follows:

It is not necessary at this time for me to go into a detailed statement of the agitation by the friends of forestry and of the opposition by its opponents that finally culminated in the passage of what is generally known as the "Morris Bill," making possible the Minnesota National Forest Reserve. I have been requested to outline to you here today what has been done thus far in carrying out the provisions of that act.

Immediately after the passage of the Morris bill, work was commenced by the bureau of forestry in the general land and the Indian offices at Washington, D. C., by the collection of data necessary for the preparation of suitable maps to show the location of the Indian allotments already made and the classification of the lands by the corps of examiners which had worked on this reservation previous to the passage of this bill. This work was prosecuted through the month of July, and about the first of August we had produced all the data available at that time.

Field work was commenced early in August by the examination of the reservation with a small party under my supervision. It was not deemed advisable to use a large party on this work, for the reason that in order to make a wise choice of the territory it was necessary to give it a personal examination, and for the further reason that at that time we had not received any official classification lists for our guidance.

In making the preliminary examination, practically the whole of the reservation was examined, but most attention was paid to those portions for which classifications had been approved by the interior department and from which the first selection was to be made. In the course of this preliminary examination we found that the old surveys were very faulty, that many of the township, range and sections corners were entirely obliterated, and that the old classifications in many instances were inaccurate and did not correctly represent the territory.

It was also discovered that the war department had, prior to the passage of the act creating the Minnesota national forest reserve, purchased from the Indians the right to flow certain portions of the reservation from which the selection for the national forest reserve was to be made; that the delineation of the territory which they had the right to flow had not yet been completed, and until that was done there was no possible way of determining just what they would flow, or where their rights began or ended; also that there were many Indians yet to be allotted; and that the exact location where these allotments would be made could not at this time be foretold.

Early in November a letter was sent to the interior department, explaining fully all these conditions existing on the ground, and asking whether it was possible for a resurvey to be made prior to a first selection, and whether the bureau would be allowed to include in its first selection lands which were found to be faultily classified as "agricultural," for the purpose of consolidating the area desired to be included, thereby making it possible to patrol and protect, and successfully administer the reserve when completed. A map showing the boundaries and classifications of the proposed first selection, and photographs showing some of the incorrectly classified agricultural territory, were submitted with the letter. This letter received an answer Feb. 16, and the answer when received was unfavorable.

In the proposed first selection were included 23,705 acres classed as agricultural land. Of this amount more than one-half consisted of low, wet swamps and bowlder areas which were not true agricultural lands. But inasmuch as the bill provided that the forester should select not exceeding 15,000 acres of land classified as agricultural land in the first selection, and not exceeding 10,000 acres of the territory yet to be examined at that time for the second selection, it was decided by the department of the interior that we could not include more than 15,000 acres in our first selection regardless of faulty classification.

In a communication of March 21, 1903, the following proposition was made to the department of the interior by the bureau of forestry for the purpose of expediting and facilitating the opening of the Reservation, viz:

That the lands outside of a certain heavy black line drawn upon the reservation map, within which the bureau of forestry proposed to confine its selection, should be opened without further delay to the sale of timber and to homestead entry under the provisions of the Morris bill; provided, however, that the area inside the black line should be opened neither to lumbering nor settlement until the bureau had made its final selection therein. The bureau also signified its willingness to make a first selection of approximately 100,000 acres within the black line upon the following two conditions:

1. That for all lands included in the first selection which should thereafter be found to lie within the flowage line being delineated by the war department at that time, an equal area should be allowed to the reserve in further selections.

2. That for all lands within the first selection then in process of allotment, or which should thereafter be alloted to the Indians (and which were included in the approved lists already received by the bureau of forestry from the secretary of the interior) an equal area should be allowed to the reserve in further selections.

This proposition was made by the bureau March 31, 1903, and was accepted by the secretary of the interior April 23, 1903.

A first selection was therefore made embracing 104,459.25 acres, of which 88,707.03 acres were classed as pine lands, and 14,752.22 acres were classed as agricultural, this constituting the first selection of the 225,000 acres of land to be selected by the forester under the terms of the Morris bill, and was as large an area as could well be included and keep the selected territory in a compact body, with the exception of the Indian allotments. There were also 6,399.83 acres to be included in the ten sections reserved from sale or settlement. A map showing the location of these selections was transmitted to the department of the interior June 30, 1903, for the approval of the secretary. This first selection, and also the lands selected to constitute the ten sections, received his approval June 20, 1903.

The work of making the first selection has been pushed ahead as rapidly as possible, and although it may seem that the progress has been slow, there have been many complicated and vexatious points which had to be settled before any selection could be made.

In December, of 1902, the bureau commenced a study for the purpose of determining the best methods for reserving the 5 per cent of merchantable timber allowed by the act for insuring reproduction. Many sample acres were measured out in different parts of the reservation within which it was at that time practically decided to locate the reserve, and all trees standing thereon were calipered, including both mature specimens and the younger growth. During the past winter stem analyses were made, and volume tables were prepared for the purpose of determining the actual merchantable contents of the pine trees of certain diameters which were being cut on the territory where lumbering was being carried on nearest the reservation, and on which this timber conformed the most closely to the timber which was to be cut on the reservation. The merchantable diameter limit of timber trees was placed at ten inches on the stump, three feet from the ground, but inasmuch as there are many localities where there are no small trees to furnish the 5 per cent, it has been decided to use the diameter limit as a basis of calculation, and to give and take on different sections, taking timber above the established diameter limit where necessary in order to leave sufficient seed trees to insure reproduction, and reducing to the minimum diameter limit of ten inches where it is found that sufficient young growth trees will be left to guarantee reforestration. All trees to be reserved of the diameter of ten inches and above are to be stamped with the letters "U. S." near the roots, and where necessary again three feet from the ground. The work of marking the timber has been in progress since May 10, 1903, and is still in progress with a small crew of experienced men in township 144, range 20, west of the Fifth principal meridian. A record showing the species reserved, their diameter, and their location by township, range and section, is being kept of all trees marked of above the prescribed limit. The boundary lines of the ten sections reserved from sale and settlement are at present being surveyed and notices posted every five chains.

Regarding the location of the selection, there are many reasons why that portion of the Chippewa Indian reservation situated in the northerly and westerly part, which includes within its boundaries some of the principal lakes and a long stretch of the Mississippi river, is most desirable to include the national forest reserve. This fact necessarily had a strong bearing on the selection, since one of the provisions of the bill is that the selection shall be made from lands classified as pine lands.

It was undoubtedly intended by the framers of the Morris bill that the national reserve, when located, should consist of one solid compact body of land, with the exception of the Indian allotments. The act authorizing the establishment of this reserve made it imperative that the selections should be made from the classified pine lands, excepting 25,000 acres of land classed as agricultural, which were allowed to be included for the purpose of consolidating, or rounding out, the territory, so as to have the reserve in one solid area, with the exception of the Indian allotments before mentioned. Unfortunately, the restriction making 25,000 acres the maximum amount of agricultural land which could be included for solidifying the reserve, made it practically impossible to conform to the very apparent desires of the framers of the legislation which made possible the establishment of the reserve, since the ratio of lands classed as agricultural as compared with the compact pine lands was much greater than had been anticipated.

There is less true agricultural land in the territory selected than in any other area of equal size which could have been selected. A large portion of the lands classified as agricultural in the territory within which it is proposed to locate the reserve are really low, wet swamps or marshes, much of which will be overflowed by the government reservoirs. The greater part of this so-called agricultural land will be included within the flowage line when the delineation of the contour of land which will be overflowed by the government reservoirs located on the Mississippi river and its tributaries is completed.

It is not possible under the terms of the bill to make such a selection that the national forest reserve will be a solid compact body, on account of the large amount of faultily classified agricultural land, which exceeds by many thousand acres the amount allowed by the bill to be included for the purpose of consolidating the reserve; and also on account of the many thousands of acres of Indian allotments scattered throughout the reservation, which must of necessity be included within the boundaries of any selection made.

It it were possible at this time to include the swamp lands classified as agricultural, which are really a component part of the forest, and to hold the reserve in its inception in a compact body, with the exception of the Indian allotments, it might be possible in the future to bring about the enactment of laws which should provide that whenever any Indian allotments located within the limits of the reserve were offered for sale, the United States government should have the prior right to purchase them at their actual value, and in this way eventually consolidate the reserve.

Under the present law it is not possible for any Indian allotment to be sold in a less time than twenty-five years from the date of the allottee's receiving his patent, except with the consent of the secretary of the interior. Twenty-five years, however, soon rolls around, and the location and selection of territory to constitute a national forest reserve, exclusive of any timber that may be within, should only be undertaken with a definite understanding that a national forest reserve is not established for the present time only, but is to be a permanent institution; that the location, and all details connected therewith, should be carefully considered, not only in their present aspects, but also looking forward to what the status of the reserve will probably be fifty or one hundred years hence.

The westerly and northerly boundaries of the territory which has been selected are the outside boundaries of the Indian reservation, and they establish clearly defined boundaries for the national reserve on these two lines. This territory includes within its area some of the finest lake and river scenery in the Indian reservation, and, indeed, some of the finest in the Northwest. It is very accessible. From various points which can be reached by railroads, steamboats and launches can be run through the various lakes and rivers in several different directions to the outside boundaries of the reserve, touching them at different points.

The westerly boundary can be reached by steamboats running via the connecting headwaters of the Mississippi river through Cass Lake, Andrusia and Big Wolf lakes, or from Leech Lake via steamboat river and lake.

The northern boundary can be reached by steamboat via Turtle river through Kitmi and Rice lakes. It is also possible to make the run by steamboat from Cass lake down the Mississippi river into Winnibigoshish lake, thence via Third river up to the boundary of the reservation.

The location has within its area the largest number of small lakes, streams and rivers, having their outlet into the Mississippi river or its tributaries, possible to include in an equal area in any portion of the Indian reservation, and there are a great many interesting and beautiful trips that can be made with steam launches or canoes by tourists and pleasure seekers in this location, which will be wholly inside the limits of the national forest reserve.

Two railroads, coming through the reserve from different directions, have their junction at Cass Lake village, located on the south and west shores of Cass lake. These afford a quick and easy method of reaching this beautiful little village, the only one at present of any size or importance in the reservation. Cass Lake is undoubtedly destined to become one of the most popular summer resorts in the Northwest.

The unusually favorable facilities for rapid travel by steamboat and railroad and the consequent possibility of great assistance in patrolling and protecting it from violation of the laws or rules prescribed for its management, and while there will always be the danger of forest fires being started from passing trains, still there must also be taken into consideration the advantages to be derived from quick mail and train service. There is no rose without its thorns.

All the islands in Cass and Leech lakes were, by the terms of the Morris bill, reserved from sale or settlement. It is said that it was the beauty of one of the islands in Cass lake which first aroused the feeling that this beautiful territory should be preserved from sharing a fate similar to that of many other of nature's beautiful specimens of wild and virgin forest scenery. Believing that the spirit of the bill and the best interests of the people would be best served by protecting the shores of this beautiful lake from being utterly destroyed, from a scenic point of view, it was considered advisable to locate the ten sections reserved from sale or settlement by the terms of the Morris bill, in such a manner that they would preserve the timbered shore lines of Cass lake in their native state, with the exception of those portions which had previously been allotted to the Indians.

Should the officials in charge of the Indians' interests take the position that the timber now standing on the Indian allotments on the shores of the different lakes, should, if sold, be removed only under wise restrictions, and allow no timber to be cut below a reasonable limit, it would be possible, in many cases, to reserve a sufficient number of Pine trees tround thes hores of the different lakes to maintain their present appearance of a virgin forest, and protect tourists and summer visitors from being made unpleasantly aware of the fact that 5 per cent of the merchantable timber (the amount allowed in the act) is entirely too small an allowance in this pine country to leave the territory from which the timber is being removed in a desirable condition for a prospective forest reserve.

Another strong reason why this location was considered preferable to others was that the present reproduction of young pine in the locality selected is, without doubt, greater in proportion than in many other suitable locality which could have been chosen. Reproduction was a very necessary point to be taken into consideration in making this selection, since there was only 5 per cent of the merchantable timber allowed to be reserved for purposes of reforestration. Had the amount allowed been 25 per cent, it would have been nearer the proper amount necessary to secure satisfactory results.

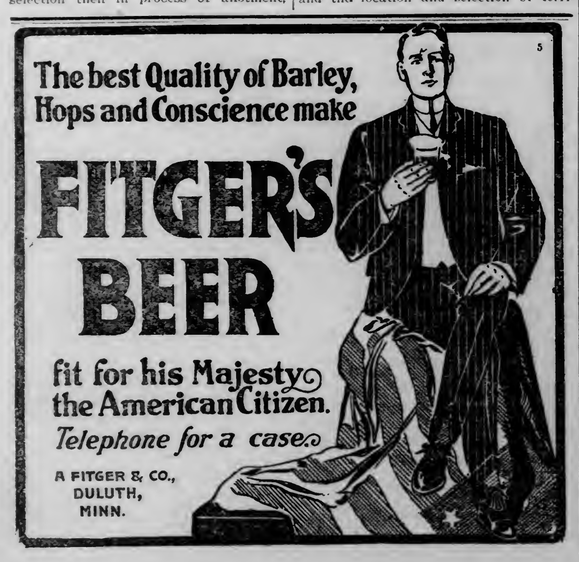

In comparing this location of the reserve with others which might have been made, it should be noted that by including territory only a little farther north and east a selection would necessarily have taken in some of the headwaters of the Rainy river, which flows north into Hudson bay. It will be plainly seen that it is more desirable to so locate the national reserve that it will protect as much as possible the headwaters of the Mississippi river rather than the headwaters of the stream which flows into a foreign country.

When all the different advantages of this location have been fairly and impartially considered by those who have at heart the interests of the national government, of the people of the state of Minnesota, and of forestry, they will, I believe, be satisfied with the reserve as located. It is not to be expected that this location will satisfy all. No reserve was ever located that did satisfy everyone. The selection of this particular territory has only been made after a careful consideration of all the territory available under the provisions of the act creating this reserve, and with no desire to serve any other purpose than to so locate the reserve that even if some of the people who are personally interested in its location should be dissatisfied at the present time, some time in the future the wisdom of the selection may be realized and acknowledged by those who have a keen regard for the public welfare.

There has been considerable speculation as to what the attitude of the forestry officials charged with carrying out the provisions of the act would be towards the lumbering interests. On this point I wish to say that the attitude of the bureau of forestry towards the lumbermen will be in this instance, as in all others, that of the utmost friendliness, with a desire to co-operate in the removal of the timber in such a manner as will be for the best interests of all concerned. A strict observance of the forestry rules we must insist upon, but we do not expect the impossible, and the men who will be in charge of the forestry work will be practical men with experience in lumbering, who will be perfectly competent to determine whether or not the purchasers of the timber are trying their best to perform their work in accordance with the rules and regulations.

Much has been said and written about the damage caused throughout the country by the ravages of the lumberman, but it is not so much the work of the lumberman as the destructive forest fires that usually follow lumbering operations, which have so devastated some portions of the beautiful state of Minnesota, as well as many other commonwealths throughout the United States. And while on this subject, I wish to say that although the percentage of merchantable timber which was allowed by the act to be reserved for the reforestration of the Minnesota national forest reserve is small, still there is no question but that it will bring about the desired result in time if the forest fires can only be kept out. The forest fires are the dangerous factors to be reckoned with in this as in all other private or national reserves, and I consider it the duty of every friend of forestry or lover of the forests to call the especial attention of the legislators of their respective states to that danger, and have proper laws enacted and regulations provided, and to have sufficient number of forest patrols appointed to enforce the observance of such laws and regulations, for the purpose of preventing the starting of forest fires, which is the only sure way of fighting them.

An interesting discussion began immediately following the paper read by Mr. Bruce, and was the only part the ladies took in the public meeting. Mrs. Bramhall, of St. Paul; Professor Maria Sanford, of the university, and others spoke eulogistically of the reserve, and of the part women played in its being secured. T. B. Walker, of Minneapolis; Gen. C. C. Andrews, of St. Paul, and Rev. J. T. Brabner Smith took part in the discussion, the latter asking the ladies if they would make plain the relative advantages to the business men of Cass Lake of the land being set aside as a forest reserve, or for agriculture. Rev. Smith said that most of the business men entered Cass Lake with the hope of the land being settled upon for agricultural purposes, and were somewhat disappointed to find that so much as 225,000 acres or more was to be reserved for beauty and reforestration. The ladies and Gen. Andrews replied that they had asked for that portion of land to be set aside for forestry or park purposes before the business men had entered the town, and that the forest reserve would be of more permanent value to Cass Lake than that of agriculture.

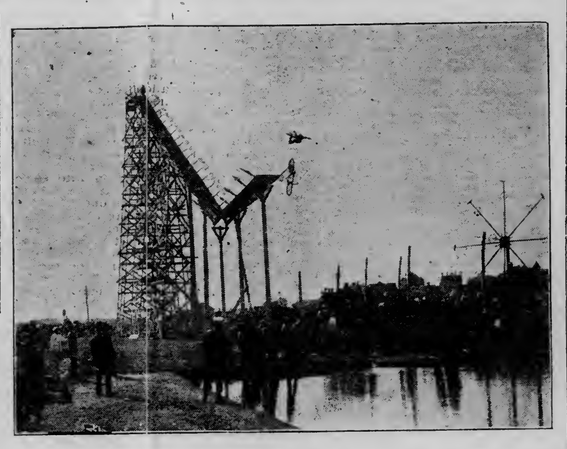

REASONS FOR VISITING THE MINNESOTA STATE FAIR

SCENE FROM "THE BURNING OF ROME"—AT THE MINNESOTA STATE FAIR.

A firm believer in the Minnesota state fair answers the question, "Why should the fair be visited?" in the following happy strain:

The reasons why it should be are too numerous to be named, but a few may be considered with profit. First, a brief holiday season has been earned by father, mother and children too, and to enjoy it is a break in the monotony of general farm life that will be amazingly helpful for many days, even months, thereafter. It is an opportunity to meet people, to see things—animate and inanimate—that sweeten life and broaden the view of it; the world will seem the larger for it, and the state, its people, and even the home farm will possess a significance to many both new and pleasing. Second, two or three days on the fair ground, enjoying its abundant opportunities for study and recreation, will be found an educational institution and house of entertainment of marvelous potency as a strengthener of mind and body. Hard work it may be to see and do so much; but it is different from the accustomed work, and so it will prove restful ultimately. If one has attended the fair once, the second visit wil be the more beneficial for it; and so each succeeding visit will be found more fruitful of good than the last. Third, it is by far the easiest and cheapest way to get acquainted with the state, its productions, natural resources, chief cities and its people. One will know more about and can talk more intelligently of the state after a careful study of its great annual exposition of what it possesses and is doing. Fourth, state pride should be a powerful incentive to an annual pilgrimage to its fair, that it may be kept at the head of the procession where it now proudly marches. Fifth, the money that comes into the state fair treasury, in excess of premiums paid and other legitimate expenses, is devoted to making the grounds more attractive to visitors, better dapted to the purposes to which they are devoted, provided with better buildings, and in every way making them an object to which all citizens can refer with commendation and pride. Other reasons might be named, but these ought to be sufficient to fill the grounds during the next fair as they never were filled before.

DARE-DEVIL SCHREYER.
In His Flying Dive Act at Minnesota State Fair Grounds.

The fair opens on Monday, Aug. 31, with an address by United States Senator Fairbanks of Indiana. Half-fare rates have been made on all railroads.

The world-famous pacing horse, Dan Patch, will attempt to lower his record of 1:59 1-5 on Monday, Aug. 31, the opening day.

A Monster Locomotive.

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad has placed an order with the American Locomotive company for a tandem compound locomotive that will be, when completed, the heaviest ever built in this country. It is known as the Mallet Articulated type, and modified examples are being used abroad to some extent, none, however, being of the tremendous size of the B. & O. engine.

There is a peculiar arrangement of the drivers and cylinders. The forward cylinder is the high pressure, while the rear one is the low pressure, and the great power of the engine is apparent when it is noticed that the entire weight of the locomotive, 285,000 pounds, is on the drivers.

This locomotive is being built as an experiment, and will be used as a helping engine on some one of the heavy mountain grades to demonstrate its usefulness in this class of service. It is hoped that it will be completed in time to give it a thorough road test before sending it to the St. Louis World's Fair.

IN COPPER DISTRICT

Work on New Smelter at West Houghton Has Begun.

Larger Furnaces Are to Be Erected at Dollar Bay.

Houghton, Mich., Aug. 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Work on the site of the new smelter for the copper range and Stanton properties, at the mouth of Cole's Creek, West Houghton, is progressing satisfactorily, and actual construction will soon begin. The smelter is to be large and modern in every respect, and will handle a large tonnage from the start. It is rumored that an electrolytic plant is to be added, but this alleged fact lacks verification. By electrolytic refining the copper from the South Range mines would be freed from arsenic in any but minute quantities, and there would also be some saving in silver, but the product would sell, as electrolytic, and not as lake copper. The difference between these brands is growing less, and for many purposes electrolytic is superior, as it usually possesses higher conductivity, though not quite so tough. For cartridge cases, metal buttons and similar uses, the best brands of lake copper remain unapproachable.

The matter of arsenic in the copper of the South Range mines has received more or less attention in the press. As a matter of fact there are at least traces of arsenic in practically all refined copper. In the case of the Baltic, Trimountain and Champion mines the amount of arsenic contained in the refined product is larger than is usually the case in this district, but not sufficiently large to seriously affect the value of the metal. Under 1 per cent, arsenic in refined copper does not seem to affect ductility, but does slightly diminish electrical conductivity. For many uses the presence of less than 1 per cent arsenic has no deliterious effect whatever. It seems to be a fact that as the lake mines grow deeper the copper is not quite so pure as nearer surface, but the percentage of impurities turned out in the refined copper is so small a fraction of 1 per cent, in most cases, that for all commercial uses the metal may be considered as practically pure. The Baltic mineral also contains more sulphur than is common with lake mines, but this is pretty thoroughly eliminated during the process of smelting.

Superintendent Case of the Dollar Bay and Hancock smelters will build still larger furnaces at the first-named plant. The use of mechanical appliances as an aid in the laborious processes of dipping and casting is now general in the smelters of the district, and in addition to materially reducing labor costs, has also made the work much easier for the men employed.

The surplus of labor that was threatened in the copper district a few months ago is no longer a factor in the local situation, and ablebodied miners, mechanics or day laborers have no trouble in getting jobs.

The statement is frequently seen in print that the Tamarack Junior mine, of the Osceola Consolidated, would be highly valuable to the Calumet and Hecla in developing a strip of land between the Tamarack and Tamarack Junior properties that is owned by the Calumet and Hecla. Such was the case a year ago, but is no longer so, as the Calumet and Hecla people are developing the tract in question by a blind shaft, consequently would have no uses for the shafts of the Tamarack Junior. Operations at the last-named property are confined to the sinking of a winze from the twelfth level, which will soon reach the boundary line at a depth of between 400 and 500 feet below the twelfth level, which is 3360 feet below surface.

The rebuilding of the stamp mills of the Calumet and Hecla will require three or four years, as there are two old mills, with twenty-two stamps each, and these are being rebuilt in sections. Steel is replacing wood, and modern machinery will be installed throughout.

There have been rumors current every two or three months for the past three years that the Centennial was about to start production. The Centennial owns one of the best unimproved millsites in the lake district, opposite the mills of the Calumet and Hecla, on Torch lake. It should be an easy matter, however, to secure the use of the Arcadian mill, which is now idle, and operations could be conducted economically at that point. The mill is now idle, the last stamp, formerly in use by the Trimountain, having been stopped two weeks ago, when the fourth head went into commission in the new Trimountain mill at Beacon Hill, on Lake Superior. No mining is being done at the Arcadian, but diamond drilling is still in progress. The Arcadian had a floating debt of about $900,000 two years ago, but this must have been materially reduced by the sale of shaft houses and machinery to the Trimountain. The Arcadian will long remain one of the principal monuments of misguided judgment in the lake district. There is no question that the promoters of the property were sincere in their belief in the value of the mine, but they were unwise in expending millions on surface improvements before they had demonstrated whether or not there was a mine underground.

The Victoria will have about 5000 horse power from its falls, which are now harnessed. This will leave a considerable surplus for sale, and it would be a comparatively simple matter to bring power here from the Ontonagon river, as the distance is a scant fifty miles. Frequently it is expected that the Victoria mine and mill will require all of the power generated by Glenn Falls.

The time of starting the Phoenix mill has not been set, but the single stamp will begin dropping within one to three weeks. The stock-piles of rock accumulated for the mills are undeniably rich, and it is hoped that the result will be as pleasing as the appearance of the stamp-rock indicates.

No 3 shaft of the Wiona is making satisfactory progress since the ledge was reached after penetrating sixty feet of treacherous sand overburden. Appearances at the Winona remain satisfactorily and if the new openings cotinue up to the average of those now worked, the Winona will make a mine.

The policy of retrenchment and economy recently instituted at the Adventure should enable that property to show a better balance sheet at the end of the year than has yet been secured.

The burning of "A" shafthouse of the Atlantic is an awkward thing for the mine, as it will necessitate long trams until the shafthouse is rebuilt, but the fire will not cause such a reduction in output as has been inferred in the East. It merely means a great deal of inconvenience and a small financial loss until the shafthouse is replaced. Work on section 16 has been stopped by the Atlantic, after nearly six years efforts to find the northern continuation of the Baltic lode. Eventually the progress on the north drifts from No. 5 shaft of the Baltic should solve this long-standing mystery of what becomes of the northern extension of the Baltic amygdaloid.

Rock productions and mineral output of the Osceola are steady advancing from month to month. It does not seem, however, that the percentage of refined copper secured is quite as large as had been expected. The Wolverine still remains the bright star among all the mines that are operating upon the Kearsage amygdaloid.

Latest reports from Bisbee, Arizona, where lake investors have some millions of money tied up in sundry mines and prospects, are of quite an encouraging nature. The Calumet & Pittsburg unquestionably has a mine, and it is probable that the present development company will be turned into a full-fledged mining company before the close of the year. The Higgins shaft is now more than two hundred feet deep, and at the depth of three hundred it is probable that crosscuts will be sent into the hill, with a view to locating some of the big ore bodies found on the Copper Queen property near the boundary line. The other lake Superior-Arizona development companies are pegging away industriously, gaining depth with every day, and nearing their fate, whether that be good or bad.

Mrs. J. B. Wilm, wife of our own John, who formerly lived in Cass Lake, came over from her home at Bemidji the first of the week to visit for a few days with relatives.

L. McKechnie, A. T. Ludblad and E. P. Kelley, prominent business men from Cottonwood, this state, visited in Cass Lake over Sunday and carefully looked over the ground with the view of investing in property here and engaging in business. They were very favorably impressed and will probably return in the not distant future. They left for home on Tuesday morning.

Archdeacon Appleby, of Duluth, spent Tuesday night in the village, a guest at the Endlon hotel. The archdeacon had just arrived that evening after the trust from the south, which terminated a trip to Cass Lake from the White Earth Indian agency. Mr. Appleby held services at the agency Sunday and drove across the country to Park Rapids Monday, in all the severe rain storm which prevailed all day. He did not enjoy the experience to any appreciable degree, but withstood the disagreeableness of the situation with his usual fortitude.

Miss Helen Thompson will leave on Monday next for a trip to Chicago. She will go to Duluth from Cass Lake, and from the Zenith City she will make the remainder of the trip to the "Windy City" by boat.

Mrs. Tharaldson, of Crookston, sister-in-law of Misses Helen and Nora Thompson, arrived in town on Monday, accompanied by her little daughter, and will visit here for a week or ten days.

A. A. Harper has purchased the building located in the rear of the Scanlon-Gipson boarding house and used by the company for a store house, and has moved the same onto his property for use as a barn.

F. P. Leisen is having a second cottage built on the lots in the rear of his house which is now being finished. The new residence will be 20x26, and will be rented to some party yet to be decided upon. Al. Nelson will have charge of the work.

Marshik & Kirchhof are building an addition in the rear of the McKeown & Co. block, which they recently purchased, the dimensions of which will be 22x40.

The entertainment given at the M. E. church last Saturday evening, for the benefit of the Sunday school, attracted one of the largest crowds that has ever assembled at a public gathering in this town. While the program was a long one, it differed very materially from the usual run of such entertainments, in that every number was well rendered, and the entire affair was devoid of monotony. Mrs. Nina Chapman, a friend of Mrs. Smith, who was visiting here, kindly presided, and she filled the position very acceptably. As the various songs, recitations, etc., were rendered, they were loudly applauded, and justly so, as the children had been thoroughly drilled, and they acquitted themselves in a masterly manner. The uniform success of the affair, both from an artistic and from a financial standpoint, is a matter of satisfaction to Mrs. Brabner Smith, who, ably assisted by Mrs. Sarff and Mrs. Broeker, coached the children, and also to Misses Ella Johnson and Mabel Hart, who performed the arduous task of accompanists. The proceeds derived from the entertainment were devoted to the benefit of the M. E. Sabbath school, and will clear that organization from debt, which will be good news for the friends of the school.

Superintendent Jenks, of the northern division of the Great Northern, accompanied by Carl Gowran and wife, of Grand Forks, and two nieces of Mr. Jenks, arrived in Cass Lake Tuesday, in Mr. Jenks' private car, A-10, for a two days' fishing trip. They visited many of the interesting points in and about Cass Lake, and caught a goodly number of fish.

Joe Newman, section foreman on the Eastern Minnesota east from Cass Lake, left on Tuesday to take charge of a construction crew that is working on the laying of a double track from Floodwood to Cloquet.

John McMullen, father of Mrs. George Stein, arrived on Saturday evening from his home at Shakopee, and will visit in Cass Lake for a fortnight. Mr. McMullen had been here on several former occasions and likes this place very well.

Nat Campbell, the popular ex-mayor of the city of Crookston, and one of the greatest rustlers in northern Minnesota, arrived in Cass Lake on Tuesday, accompanied by his brother-in-law, A. Lane, of Paola, Kans.

RELIEF AT HAND.

Hundreds of Duluth people are finding relief—
Relief for bad backs—
For Rheumatic aches and pains—for Urinary troubles—for Diabetes—
For every form of Kidney disorder down to the advanced stages of Bright's disease—

Doan's Kidney Pills

relieve and cure—
Duluth people say so—your own friends and neighbors—Doan's Kidney Pills have cured them—Will cure you—Read this testimony:

Mr. Henry G. Le Sage, of 731 Second street west, with offices in 401 Palladio building, says: "As a result of a cold settling in my kidneys, I suffered for a long time with heavy, dull aching pains across the small of my back. Plasters and other remedies seemed to relieve me temporarily, but did not remove the trouble. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I determined to try them, and procuring a box at W. A. Abbett's drug store, I used them. A few days sufficed to entirely remove the trouble and since that time I have had no bother at all. I now rest well at night and rise in the morning feeling refreshed."

Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale at all Drug Stores, 50c a box, Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

DUN'S WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

No Indication of Predicted Depression In Trade.

New York, Aug. 29.—R. G. Dun & Co's Weekly Review of Trade says: There is still no indication of the repression in trade and industry that pessimists predicted would follow the decline in securities.

Conservatism was developed by the uncertainty regarding the effect upon financial conditions, but legitimate business is liable to receive funds as they are required and the progress of building gives promise of great permanent gains. Weak spots have been disclosed and the technical position strengthened, just as occurred in the stock market. Readjustment after a period of inflation must necessarily bring some losses, yet the outlook is brightened by the scattering of industrial clouds.

Dispatches from all sections testify as to the liberal distribution of merchandise and the disposition to prepare for greater consumption of all the necessaries of life, while the crops are making good progress aside from some of the cotton district in Texas.

The number of buyers in New York is increasing and a heavy fall trade is anticipated. It is gratifying to find that consumers of pig iron have at last decided to place contracts without waiting for further concessions. The decline has now reached its limit judging from the larger number of contracts and this is the most important indication of a more prosperous condition in the steel industry. It is reported that a larger amount than ever of steel rails will be ordered for delivery in 1904, but this is in a measure dependent upon labor controversies. Railways are liberal purchasers of steel especially of rails.

There is a fair business in plates, sheets and bars, but an effort to sell an oversupply of billets as produced temporary weakness in that division.

There is sufficient business on the books of the New England shoe manufacturers to assure full operation of machinery for several months. While large sale of upper leather is reported there is little demand for sole. Domestic hides again average slightly lower, but small offerings maintain imported hides. Thus far the liberal jobbing trade in dry goods has not affected the situation at the cotton mills, where the percentage of idle machinery has increased. Woolens are quiet and the only event of importance in silks was special sale at low prices.

Failures this week number 176 in the United States, against 173 last year and 33 in Canada, compared with 14 a year ago.

CRIPPLE CREEK DISTRICT.

Producing Area of Camp Being Gradually Extended.

Colorado Springs, Aug. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Outside properties in the Cripple Creek district are still claiming the attention of mining men, and the boundaries of the producing area of the camp are being gradually extended. Some New York capitalists are driving a tunnel from the east side of Trachyte mountain, which is some five miles northeast of the Cripple Creek district proper. The bore has already been extended a distance of 3,300 feet. It is the belief of the men interested that they will come into some good ore when they get under the summit of the mountain. A fine outcrop appears at the crest of the mountain, and the tunnel is being driven to get the vein at depth. A lessee on the Cayuga claim, also on Trachyte mountain, has driven a tunnel in 50 feet, and has already cut two good veins. Assays give returns of from $4 to $8 per ton, which will pay well if the ore is treated by the cyanide process.

The Ingham cyanide mill has found it necessary to increase the capacity of the plant. Larger elevators and additional machinery are being installed. Although the plant has been running but two weeks, it has turned out one large gold brick. The Globe cyanide mill is also treating a good daily tonnage of ore.

The Old Gold property on Beacon hill is making an enviable record, and bids fair to soon equal the record of the C. K. & N., in the same locality. Sample tests have just been made from the core of the large vein disclosed in the property, and the rock gave returns of from $728 to $1740 per ton in gold.

The lessees on a portion of the Doctor-Jack Pot property on Haven hill last week marketed a car of ore which returned them $2300. Sixteen sets of lessees are at work on the Doctor property, and the majority of them are making considerable money. The indications are that the cyanide mill of the Sioux Falls & Cripple Creek company on Copper mountain will be placed in commission the first part of September. A large amount of ore has been blocked out, the treatment of which will be commenced immediately after the mill is completed.

Mrs. William Voss and son, Edwin, left Monday evening for a week

New Things Strange and Curious

FLASHLIGHT OF NIGHT BLOOMING CEREUS.

This is a fine photograph of a night-blooming cereus, which blossoms at rare intervals, and, as its name implies, only after sundown. The specimen here shown was unusually fine, standing nearly nine feet and having a spread of six. The photograph, of course, was taken by flashlight. The blossoms are creamy white, with a yellow centre, somewhat resembling a pond lily, but much larger. They did not open until ten o'clock, and by next morning were withered out of all semblance to their nocturnal glory.

A rifle bullet is traveling at its greatest speed not as it leaves the muzzle, but at about ten feet in front of the muzzle.

MULES AS TROLLEY PASSENGERS.

The extension of trolley lines to many of the towns in the orange growing districts of Southern California, and the absorption of the Ontario and San Antonio Heights Railroad Company by the Huntington interests rob the colony of Ontario of one of its chief distinctions. It is still unique, however, in being the only one of these towns to own and operate its own electric plant, furnishing light and power not only to its own colony, but to Los Angeles.

Until two years ago the cars were drawn up the six mile incline of Euclid avenue, bordered with orange and lemon groves, by slow and patient mules, taking an hour and a half for the trip. On the return they ran down by gravity in half an hour, the mules mounted on a rear platform, taking their ease, and evidently enjoying their ride or the scenery.

THE TINIEST OF DOGS.

Deputy Sheriff Hamilton Raynor, of El Paso, Tex., is the possessor of what he claims is the smallest full grown dog in the United States. It weighs only 23 ounces, and easily stands with all four feet in the palm of its owner's hand.

The midget is of pure Chihuahua breed, and answers to the name of Chiquito, which means small. It is 16 months old, and was imported from Mexico when a pup.

Chihuahua dogs, so highly esteemed as pets, are becoming exceedingly rare. The fancy prices offered for them by Eastern tourists who visit Texas and Mexico have had the effect of greatly diminishing a famous breed once numerous. Peons sell these dogs when puppies for $10 each, but it not infrequently happens that as time wears on the pup grows until it is as large as a terrier, and the owner realizes that he has been swindled. A genuine Chihuahua dog seldom weighs when fully grown more than three pounds. The dog owned by Mr. Raynor eats nothing but oatmeal and milk.

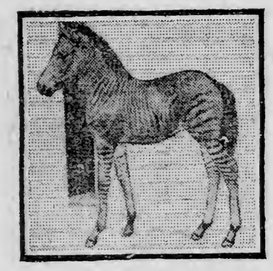

BEAUTIFUL SEA ANEMONES SET WITH "PEARLS"

"Full many a flower is born to blush unseen." The poet who wrote this also had the bottom of the sea in mind when he wrote the famous quotation, for he speaks of "gems of purest ray serene." The sea anemones are in many ways the most beautiful flowers in the world. They are extremely delicate in form and design, and in many cases their coloring surpasses in delicacy and variety the most elaborate products of the hothouses. The sea slub, as it is called, which is a member of the same general family, recently has been transplanted to the Botanical Gardens of London, and resembles a beautiful bit of jewelry, with the design worked out as regularly as though made by hand. The main part of the flower has the appearance of perfect ivory, while a series of opalescent beads arranged regularly along its sides give it the appearance of being studded with pearls.

THE ZEBRULE.

Here is a brand new animal—the zebrule, so called. It is a combination of Burchell zebra and Shetland pony, and the breeders are expecting all manner of wonderful things of it, particularly in the line of mountain battery work for the British Army in Northern India. It moves more like a zebra than a horse, and possesses the best qualities of both, although the stubbornness of the zebra at times is said to dominate.

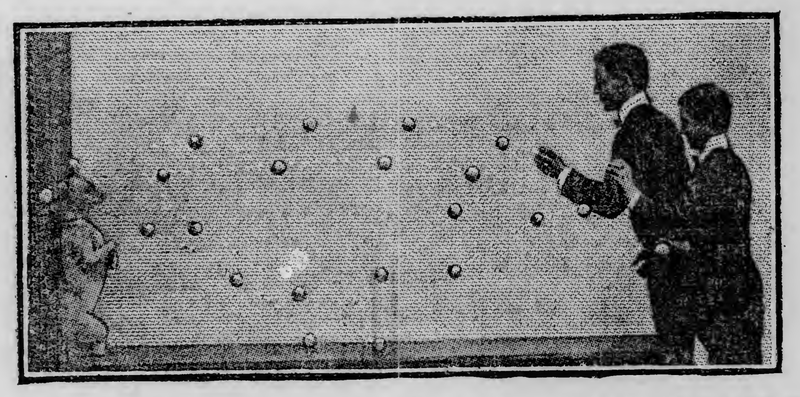

For strength, intelligence and alertness this hybrid is greatly indebted to its zebra sire. It is more easily broken than the mule common to American commerce and it is the expectation of the breeders that the zebrule will become the "mule" of the twentieth century.

The Oldest Stamp.

The stamps of Hong Kong, which remain unchanged since the first-issue, are the oldest in the world. All other stamps have been changed in the forty odd years, but the head of Queen Victoria on the Hong Kong stamp has never been altered. Now, however, it appears that a new set of stamps is to be used with the head of King Edward, and when the change has taken place the oldest stamp will be the Russian, with the double headed eagle and the shield of St. George, which was issued in 1864.

THIS DOG A CLEVER JUGGLER.

A remarkable team of jugglers, consisting of two men and a dog, who have been performing for some time in England, have hit upon an entirely new trick of their art. The dog, incidentally, is the best performer of the three. One of the tricks is for the dog to stand upright against a wall while the two men keep a series of rubber balls bounding from the floor to the wall behind the dog's head and returning. The trick is to keep as many balls in the air as possible, and to come as near the dog's head as may be without hitting the dog.

The dog's contribution to the performance is to keep his eyes on all the balls. There are about twenty of them, and if need be he dodges them as they strike the wall about his head. From long practice the three work together with perfect understanding and the dog makes fewer mistakes than either of his companions.

CURIOUS OLD MALLET.

King Edward of England recently presided at the opening of the Kew Bridge and immediately after the ceremony a photograph was taken of the mallet which he used on the occasion for the reason that it has a curious history.

The first Kew Bridge was built in 1758, nearly one hundred and fifty years ago, and when it was decided to replace it by a new one the builder, finding that all the old piles were remarkably sound in spite of the fact that they had been so many years in the river, thought that it would be a good idea to construct a mallet from one of them and to present it to the King on the occasion of the opening of the new bridge. Consequently he selected a pile the wood of which was apparently as sound as on the day when it was first driven into the river, and in due time the mallet, a picture of which accompanies this story, was fashioned.

King Edward has presided at so many ceremonies of this kind that he has several mallets more or less costly, but it is safe to say that among them all there are very few, if any, which have a more interesting history than this one.

ORIGIN OF A NAME.

There is a peculiar legend that the surname of Kara, which means "black" in the Turkish language, was given to the founder of the Karageorgevitch dynasty because his skin was unusually dark.

Georges Petrovitch, grandfather of King Peter I., was one of the wealthiest agriculturists in Servia, and when his sister married he sent her several beehives as a present. She was highly pleased with them, but her mother was even more pleased, and promptly appropriated two of them for herself.

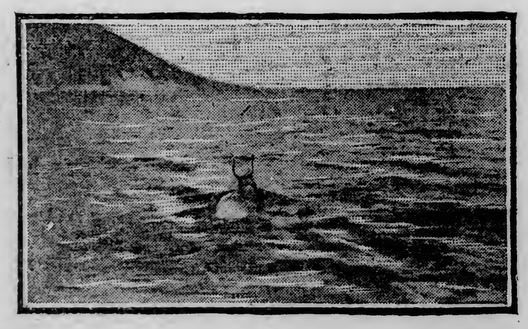

When Petrovitch heard this he became furious with passion, and, seizing a hive, he ran to his mother and unceremoniously put it over her head. Thereupon the old lady burst out into loud reproaches, calling her son "Kara Georges!" which means "Black George," or "George, you villain."

FISH THAT WALK ON LAND.

This is a goby fish. It walks on land, and commonly climbs trees when it feels like doing so. It is as comfortable and happy out of the water as in it. In the picture a goby fish is seen in the act of climbing a mangrove down in Florida. It makes its way about pretty rapidly over exposed mud banks at low tide, keeping a sharp lookout for fiddler crabs and such small game. Its forefins it uses much like feet.

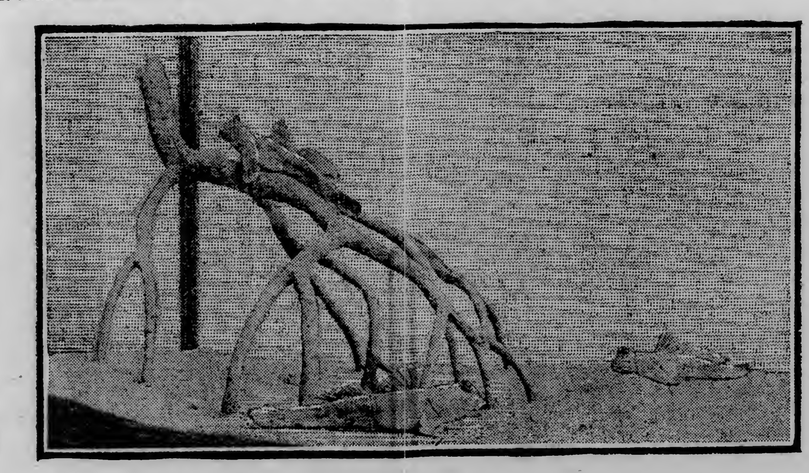

Nearly 300 different kinds of tiny shells go to make up chalk.

SNAPSHOT OF A SWIMMING REINDEER.

Reindeer are good swimmers if this photograph has any weight as testimony. They bear the rigors of the arctic climate like Spartans, and can live on scant food. All of this the average schoolboy knows and the daily press has told something of the United States government's experiment with the hardy beasts in Alaska. The one here pictured was snapped just as he was well on his way from a swim in the Martensinsel, and European camera experts who have seen the picture speak highly of the achievement.

France has about four thousand duels a year and Italy twenty-eight hundred on an average.

Rooster War Veteran.

This rooster is a fighter, but went through a campaign in which there was no demand for his peculiar talent. He is an army pet and belongs to Driver Herriman, of the Twenty-ninth battery, Royal Field Artillery, and the two went chummily through the South African war. The rooster was present at the Battle of Elandslaagte, and, it is averred, crowed his companions on in the fight. He accompanied the brigade on long marches and showed both hardihood and courage. He is a tough bird indeed.

Kaffir Veil.

The most original styles of face veils are not by any means confined, as might be supposed, to the Parisian or London styles. The curious half tone effect which the wearers of many of the fashionable veils must have is completely outdone by some of the veilings worn by the Kaffir women in Africa. The most elaborate designs, however, are reserved for the brides. Whether from modesty or merely as a concession to fashion, the Kaffir maidens, though they may wear little more, completely hide their faces behind heavy veils. These are usually made by stringing fine shells or beads and wearing a cloth with very coarse meshes. Considering the difficulties of the work, the veils are wonderfully even in texture and often really beautiful in design.

Elephant Balloon.

As in the case of flying machines, the best balloons in the world come from France. There are balloon shops in Paris where you can purchase them in any form or of any size to suit the most exacting taste. Or you can have a balloon made to order to any design, as you would order a suit of clothes. These curiously fashioned balloons are, as a rule, used for advertising purposes.

As might be imagined, they are very valuable for drawing a crowd, whether tethered high up in the sky or let loose to sail majestically through the air. The elegant balloons, even very large ones, are very popular in Paris, while tigers, lions, and, in short, practically the entire population of the jungle are reproduced in this way. Besides animals a great variety of objects are thus reproduced. At the Paris Exposition, for instance, a huge balloon in the shape of a scent bottle, labeled with the maker's name, was sent aloft, carrying with it a car holding thirty persons.

Salaries Of Rulers.

According to a German statistician, the salaries of European rulers are as follows: Assuming that they work six hours a day, the Emperor of Russia receives $80 a minute, the Emperor of Austria $35, the King of Italy $21, the Emperor of Germany $17, the King of England $15, the King of Spain $13, the King of Belgium and the King of Denmark between $3 and $4 and the King of Servia between $1 and $2. President Loubet of France receives about five cents a minute more than the King of Servia.

To seize a man's residence for debt is unlawful in Turkey, and sufficient land to support him is also exempt from seizure.

AERIAL "SPLICING OF VOICES."

This man is "splicing voices," and he has a novel contrivance to aid him in doing his work with facility. He is a telephone lineman, but, of course, he is somewhat different from those you have been accustomed to see. He is something of a plumber also, for he is splicing an aerial cable which is sheathed in lead. The box holds his tools. The pot of hot metal is heated on the ground and hoisted to him. He seems to enjoy his work, which, though the pay is not so large as a railroad president's, gives him an elevated position in the world.

STATE FAIR OPENED WITH A LARGE CROWD

Address By Senator Fairbanks of Indiana.

He Dwells Upon Progress of the Country.

St. Paul, Aug. 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Minnesota state fair was formally opened at 11:30 o'clock today under auspices most favorable to its success. The weather is fair and a large crowd was in attendance. The ceremonies attendant on the opening were held in the large stock tent, and Senator Fairbanks of Indiana delivered an address which is, in part, as follows:

"We are assembled under conditions which fill us with sentiments of gratitude and feelings of congratulation. About us we witness the abundant evidences of the work of the artisan and the husbandman. Around us are the rich contributions of field, forest, mine and factory, assembled by the genius and effort of a great people. On every hand are contentment and prosperity. There is nowhere any menace to our national tranquility; our countrymen are busily engaged in cultivating to the utmost the arts of peace, and we eagerly look forward to still further conquests.

"No fitter time or place than now and here, in the heart of the great Northwest, to take some note of our national development—a development which almost overtaxes our belief. Our population has grown to be quite eighty millions, and our national wealth is upward of one hundred billion dollars—a sum so vast that we cannot fully comprehend it. Where, in any country beyond the borders of the United States, can be found such an achievement, accomplished within so brief a period?

"To what are we indebted for this tremendous growth? To climate? Soil? Mines? People? Yes. Without the confederation of them all, the result which we behold were impossible. Nature has most richly dowered us with these fundamental essentials of true greatness and strength. Minnesota has made her contribution to all that is best and most enduring in our national growth. She may justly be said to typify the country's marvelous development. She is fortunate, indeed, in her location in this high latitude, and fortunate in the inexhaustible resources which have come from the bounteous hand of nature. And fortunate beyond all these in her people.

"The best people of the hardiest races have made their homes here. They have come from many of the older states of the Union, from Norway and Sweden, and from other countries whose chief virtue is that they produce hardy peoples. They have come with resolute purpose and lofty determination. They have come to stay and work out a destiny for themselves and their children, and to make stronger and better the republic whose flag the love. They would give their lives to uphold and preserve it. They have met and conquered adversity. Adversity did not dissuade them; it but strengthened the fiber in them and sent deeper into our social conditions and our institutions the roots of their patriotic and exalted purpose.

"The Northwest has been, is, and must continue to be essentially an agricultural community. Upon the fertile fields which stretch far beyond us will be produced during the centuries to come food products for many millions in our own country, and for millions more in other lands. There is no more honorable or useful vocation than that of agriculture, and this doctrine should be instilled into the very hearts and souls of the youth of the land. The farm has produced and will continue to yield the best type of loyal and conservative citizenship. It has been the school from which have come many of the leaders in the learned professions, in statesmanship, in the art of arms, in railroading, banking and manufacturing, and it will continue to contribute

ARGUMENT HEARD

On Bemidji's Application For Removal of Land Office.

Congressman Buckman Talks In Behalf of Cass Lake.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, Aug. 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—Commissioner of the Land Office Richards this morning heard those who desire the removal of the land office from Cass Lake to Bemidji. Representative Steenerson of the Ninth district made the opening argument on the question between the two cities as to which shall be considered the more central and most accessible to the majority of entrymen. E. E. Crawford and L. H. Bailey are present to represent the claims of Bemidji, and Cass Lake is represented by Congressman Buckman and A. G. Bernard, of Cass Lake.

The various classes of lands were shown. Mr. Steenerson said there were 600,000 acres to be disposed of, and approximately 160,0000 of this would go to Indians on allotments. Something like 230,000 acres of the pine land is to be absolutely set aside as a permanent reserve, and other large areas are to be utilized for reforestration. Mr. Steenerson then raised the same point that was made last week at the forestry convention in Minneapolis, namely, that cut-over pine lands would never be entered for homestead or agricultural purposes. Mr. Steenerson contended that there were no good roads at or near Cass Lake, and presented an affidavit to that effect, and there was no money had been ever appropriated for such purposes.

Mr. Steenerson talked some forty-five minutes and was eventually called down by Commissioner Richards, who pointedly indicated that he would like to hear from the other side, and Representative Buckman rose to defend the Cass Lake selection, and pinned upon the wall a map showing the congressional subdivisions, and explained at some length the geography of the territory. Mr. Buckman said that not a mile of road, or a single acre of land of the great reservation is nearer Bemidji than it is to Cass Lake. Mr. Buckman showed that Turtle river is navigable, and settlers can reach Cass Lake by it. Mr. Buckman contended that Mr. Steenerson was in error in claiming settlers would have to be put to additional expense by having to pass through Bemidji in order to enter to reach Cass Lake.

Mr. Buckman read letters from the mayor of Walker and state senator from the Cass district and also filed numerous other letters and mentioned, among other matters, that his colleague, J. Adam Bede, was an endorser of the fact that the commissioner of the land office made no mistake in locating the land office at Cass Lake. He also said a majority of the state legislators are on record in favor of Cass Lake.

BIG YACHTS SAILING RACE IN LIGHT WIND AND HEAVY SEA

Shamrock Hopelessly In Rear at the Turn.

Wind Is Light and Yachts May Not Finish Race.

TOLD BY BULLETINS.

New York, Aug. 31.—On Marconi time the Reliance beat the Shamrock to the outer mark 20 minutes and 23 seconds.

New York, Aug. 31, 12:35 p. m.—Reliance still holds her advantage to the windward, though she has not gained in the last few minutes.

New York, Aug. 31.—The regatta committee has fixed the starting line about four miles south by west of lightship. The course will be east-northeast.

The preparatory gun was fired at 11:30.

11:41 a. m.—The warning gun was fired at 11:40.

11:50—Official time of start: Both boats crossed the line at 11:45:26.

12:05—Reliance is pointing considerably higher and is a quarter of a mile to windward of Shamrock.

12:50 p. m.—Yachts are still holding off shore on port tack, sailing not more than four miles an hour in the light breeze.

12:50 p. m.—The Shamrock has picked up somewhat and the Reliance's lead is a small one.

1:05 p. m.—Reliance is well to windward and one-eighth of a mile in the lead.

1:20 p. m.—Halfway to outer mark Reliance was leading by quarter of a mile. Both boats pounding badly.

1:30 p. m.—The turn is now about five miles away and Reliance is quarter of a mile on Shamrock's weather bow.

1:40 p. m.—A shift of wind to northeast has put Reliance one mile to windward of Shamrock.

2 p. m.—Reliance has an apparent lead of a mile and a half.

Marconi—Four miles from the turn Reliance was leading by about two miles.

2:40 p. m.—One mile from turn Reliance is leading by two miles. Wind, five knots.

Reliance turned at 3:00:37, unofficial. Reliance turned outer mark 3:00:45, unofficial time.

Shamrock turned outer mark at 3:19:10, unofficial.

3:45 p. m.—Reliance has gone about five miles on the return trip and leads Shamrock by about two and a half miles. Wind is about four miles an hour at this time.

4:05 p. m.—The wind has freshened somewhat and there is a chance that Reliance will finish within the time limit.

4:07 p. m.—Reliance has covered about half distance to finish line.

By Marconi—4:20 p. m.—Half way back Shamrock was gaining. Wind has increased to seven knots. Reliance is leading by a mile and a half.

4:24 p. m.—Reliance is six miles from the finish line.

THE DETAILED STORY.

New York, Aug. 31.—An autumnal storm which had kept Reliance and Shamrock for forty-seven hours within the shelter of Sandy Hook bay, had blown itself out sufficiently this morning to enable the two racers to venture once more into the open sea for a continuation of their races for the America's cup. The gale, however, had left as a token of its strength, a very heavy swell so that when the two boats, with the Shamrock in the lead, turned the point of Sandy Hook, they at once began to roll and wallow like a couple of coal barges.

The day had little attraction for spectators, for the dark clouds which still hung low, seemed to threaten rain at any moment, while the uneasy ocean had little to invite any except the stoutest sailors.

The decision of the yachts' owners to start the race and terminate, if possible the series, was accepted on all sides as the interest in the races had been pretty well dampened by the numerous delays. It was not surprising, therefore that the fleet which followed the two racers was a mere ghost of that which saw the yachts in the previous contests.

Instead of by a flotilla, the yachts were accompanied to the start by scarcely half a dozen tugs, a few steam yachts and two or three excursion boats, so that the revenue cutters which arrived on the scene a little late, had very little to do in keeping the space about the lightship free from interference. The yachts hoisted their mainsails before leaving for the start and were well out to the lightship by 10 o'clock, an hour before the time set for the start. On reaching the lightship they found that the wind was about east-northeast with a velocity of about ten miles. Both racers dropped their tow lines and broke out their jibs.

Capt. Barr of the Reliance and Capt. Wringe of the Shamrock III evidently believed the race would be sailed, for the crews of both boats put up their jibs and staysails stops and began active preparations to go out. Sir Thomas, on the Erin, smiled as he said: "Well, I guess we're all pretty bad judges of the weather here. It looks more like a calm than a breeze and heavy sea."

Capt. Barr said that there would be one objection to the day if the breeze continued to fall, and that would be the choppy sea, which would retard the boats and prevent their doing the course inside the time limit.

The rain of the early morning had cleared at 8:15, and along the horizon line was a streak of light that gave the impression that there would be plenty of bright, sunshiny weather before the noon hour arrived. The wind was ten miles at 8:30, and both of the racers were ready to be towed out as soon as the committee signal was observed. Sharp-eyed men with glasses kept watch of the narrows for the appearance of the committee boat, but at 8:30 it had not come in sight. During the early morning hours the sea grew calmer. The huge mountains of green foam-capped waves that had sent terror to the hearts of owners of small craft had entirely disappeared, and rolls that crested only as they reached the beach took their place.

It is this sea, however, that racing yachts do not take to kindly. It catches them at the stem, and if they are carrying much sail it is apt to strain both mast and rigging and cause a break such as occurred to the Shamrock II two years ago when pounding down in a heavy sea she broke a stay and dropped her topmast. At 9 o'clock both yachts raised their mainsails and were waiting the arrival of the Navigator with the committee on board. The wind was blowing steadily at ten miles at the Hook, but with indications that it was not so fresh outside or near the lightship.

At 9:08 both yachts took a tow line from their tenders and started out of the Hook so as to be down at the start in time.

The storm which set in a few hours after Thursday's race had been called off for lack of wind, had blown itself out, but still a number of weather sharps pointed out that the wind getting more to the northward, had gone around the wrong way and that there would be no unpleasant weather until the breeze again reached the south. Only once in its history has Reliance faced anything that compared with the heavy seas that have prevailed off of Sandy Hook since Friday morning. In July last the Herreshoff yacht had a race off Newport in half a gale and a tumbling sea, with the result that although she broke the record for thirty miles over a triangular course, she came out of the encounter with a six-foot dent six inches deep in her port bow. With a broken tumble of sea outside the Hook and a fresh breeze, Shamrock had every promise of just the weather in which those in charge expect her to do her best. When preparations for racing were started shortly before 9 o'clock, the wind had fallen under what Capt. Wringe would have chosen had the selection been left to him, but there was still the promise of a fine fresh weather trial with sea enough to test any weakness that may exist in the hull of either boat.

As the yachts rounded out into the open sea, both butted into the short swells with terrific force, smashing their heads into it in such a way as to dash masses of water and foam over them. Reliance pounded much harder than did the Shamrock and made difficult work of it. The committee boat, Unique, followed both yachts so as to assist in case of accident.

As they got further out decks were continually covered with the wash from the head seas and in front of their bows was a continuous "bone" of white foam.

The Navigator reached the Hook at 9:40, but finding the yachts gone ordered the stake boat, the John Scully, to her position and started for the lightship herself, making it evident that there will be a race unless the sea is too rough. The wind at 9:45 was blowing about eleven miles fresh from the northeast. As she went out past Sandy Hook the Navigator signalled to Sir Thomas that conditions favored a start of the race and that the committee would see him at the start. The Erin had no special guests from New York this morning, Sir Thomas having notified them that there would probably be no race.

When the committee boat reached the lightship it was found that to start a race from that point fifteen miles to leeward or windward would be impossible, and a signal was hoisted postponing the start until a line could be established sufficiently south of the lightship to send the yachts off to windward. The course was signaled as east-northeast, which would bring the turn southeast of Long Beach about six miles off shore.

The wind had dropped to about seven knots, and there seemed to be prospects of a long, slow race. On the way down to the new starting point the Shamrock swapped topsails, exchanging her No. 2 for a much larger one. The sea was much calmer than when the yachts went out. Promptly at 11:30 the committee fired the preliminary gun, which will make the start at 11:45 and give the boats until 5:15 this afternoon within which to finish the race.

When the preparatory signal was fired at 11:30 the wind was still dropping off and had a strength of scarcely more than five or six miles an hour.

The contest for position at the start began before the warning signal was fired each captain making a desperate effort to get the better place.

Today Shamrock seemed to have a little more life, and Capt. Wringe was able to get her out from beneath the great blanketing sails of Reliance. At 11:44, one minute before the starting gun was fired, both boats were holding along the starboard tack, with Reliance a trifle in the lead. Half a minute before the starting gun was fired jib topsails were broken out on both boats. The starting gun was fired at 11:45, with boats to the leeward of the line. They immediately trimmed their sheets and went across the line on the starboard tack, Reliance a little to the windward. The wind at the start was blowing about seven knots and both boats at once headed toward the Long Island shore. Each carried the same sails, with large club topsails and intermediate baby jib topsails.

Immediately after crossing the line the Shamrock went to port, Reliance following her example thirty seconds later. For five minutes they sailed on the port tack. The Reliance was pointing magnificently to windward, but smashing the seas badly. Shamrock, apparently, was unable to hold so high a wind, but she sailed in rather more water and there was therefore little change in positions when they threw back again to starboard, Reliance being first to break tack and Shamrock following promptly. During the first half hour after the start, the boats made three tacks, but the wind becoming light at 12:15 they had scarcely covered more than two miles of the course. Reliance, as usual, seemed to gain steadily and at 12:20 was, apparently, leading by an eighth or a quarter of a mile.

Shamrock in all the tacks that were made up to this point, was the first to make the move. Reliance following usually inside of a minute. The wind seemed to have little life and at at 12:20 was blowing not more than five or six knots. As the yachts beat slowly to windward, the heavy ground swell lifted the bows of the racers so that their fins could be seen. The waves seemed to suit the Shamrock better and she made easier work of the long swell though Reliance was pointing higher. The yachts were making slow time of it and were being greatly retarded by the flood tide. At 1 o'clock hope that the yachts would finish within the time limit began to disappear.

Soon after 1 o'clock Reliance went on the starboard tack but Wringe declined to follow this lead, and two minutes later Reliance went back on the port tack. The yachts were still crawling along though Reliance was slowly beating out to windward. Shamrock, however, was footing equally fast. Reliance again went on the starboard tack and at 1:50 the boats were both heading in shore. Reliance's position to windward having been considerably increased by the change in direction of the wind. When both boats straightened out for the board toward Long Beach it was easy to see what a great advance Reliance had established because of her better ability to go to windward.

Soon after turning the mark Reliance set her spinnaker, but with the unsteady wind did not carry it long, and it was taken in after eight minutes sailing.

Again, as on Thursday last, the contest was Reliance against time. At 3:30, with only an hour and three quarters of sailing time, Reliance had about eleven miles to go and the chances of the wind did not look at all favorable. Wringe also found his spinnaker was not of service and followed Barr's lead and took it in. He then set his balloomer, and at 3:35 both boats were reaching for home, but so slowly that it was only occasionally that there was headway enough to knock the top of the ground swell into white water.

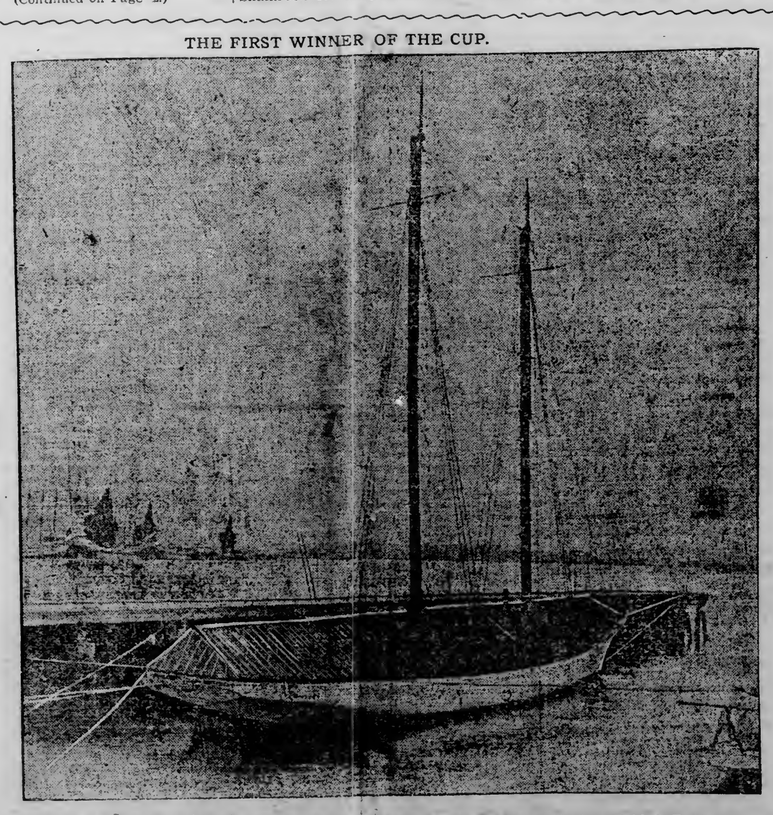

"Writing headlines for a newspaper is something of a fine art," said Senator Dolliver to a reporter recently. "A good head-line writer unquestionably is a mighty valuable man on a paper. A head-line came near being my undoing once. Back along the New England coast somewhere is a rather dangerous reach of land marked on the charts as Dolliver's neck. A big storm was raging along that coast once just at the time I was having a hot campaign in Iowa. The temperance people are pretty strong in that state. Well, on the morning of election day I picked up a paper and then jumped about four feet straight up. A line clear across the top of the front page, in bold, black letters, read, 'Five Schooners Gone Down in Dolliver's Neck.'"

MYSTERIOUS APPEARANCE OF WILL OF LATE CHARLES FAIR

San Francisco, Aug. 31.—What purports to be the last will and testament of the late Charles L. Fair has made its way through the United States mail in a mysterious manner to the chambers of superior Judge F. J. Murasky and the document is now in the custody of the county clerk.

On opening it Judge Murasky found what purports to be a will signed by the late millionaire, Charles L. Fair and witnessed by the late I. W. Lees and W. H. Barnes. The document was short and typewritten, Fair's signature and that of the two alleged witnesses being written in ink.

In this alleged will Fair mentions his son "Charles J." and to him he bequeaths the sum of $800,000. In addition to this bequest the sum of $750,000 is bequeathed to "The Roman Catholic orphan asylum," $500,000 to "Joe. Harvey," and $40,000 "to the city of San Francisco for the purpose of founding a hospital."

"The residue of the testator's estate is left to his wife, who is also named as executrix. The alleged will is dated at San Francisco, April 16, 1901. It will be remembered that about eleven months ago an heir, Charles Fair, was brought forward in this city, although he never appeared in person and the matter was dropped without any investigation.

THE DETAILED STORY.

New York, Aug. 31.—An autumnal storm which had kept Reliance and Shamrock for forty-seven hours within the shelter of Sandy Hook bay, had blown itself out sufficiently this morning to enable the two racers to venture once more into the open sea for a continuation of their races for the America's cup. The gale, however, had left as a token of its strength, a very heavy swell so that when the two boats, with the Shamrock in the lead, turned the point of Sandy Hook, they at once began to roll and wallow like a couple of coal barges.

The day had little attraction for spectators, for the dark clouds which still hung low, seemed to threaten rain at any moment, while the uneasy ocean had little to invite any except the stoutest sailors.

The decision of the yachts' owners to start the race and terminate, if possible the series, was accepted on all sides as the interest in the races had been pretty well dampened by the numerous delays. It was not surprising, therefore that the fleet which followed the two racers was a mere ghost of that which saw the yachts in the previous contests.

Instead of by a flotilla, the yachts were accompanied to the start by scarcely half a dozen tugs, a few steam yachts and two or three excursion boats, so that the revenue cutters which arrived on the scene a little late, had very little to do in keeping the space about the lightship free from interference. The yachts hoisted their mainsails before leaving for the start and were well out to the lightship by 10 o'clock, an hour before the time set for the start. On reaching the lightship they found that the wind was about east-northeast with a velocity of about ten miles. Both racers dropped their tow lines and broke out their jibs.

Capt. Barr of the Reliance and Capt. Wringe of the Shamrock III evidently believed the race would be sailed, for the crews of both boats put up their jibs and staysails stops and began active preparations to go out. Sir Thomas, on the Erin, smiled as he said: "Well, I guess we're all pretty bad judges of the weather here. It looks more like a calm than a breeze and heavy sea."

Capt. Barr said that there would be one objection to the day if the breeze continued to fall, and that would be the choppy sea, which would retard the boats and prevent their doing the course inside the time limit.

The rain of the early morning had cleared at 8:15, and along the horizon line was a streak of light that gave the impression that there would be plenty of bright, sunshiny weather before the noon hour arrived. The wind was ten miles at 8:30, and both of the racers were ready to be towed out as soon as the committee signal was observed. Sharp-eyed men with glasses kept watch of the narrows for the appearance of the committee boat, but at 8:39 it had not come in sight. During the early morning hours the sea grew calmer. The huge mountains of green foam-capped waves that had sent terror to the hearts of owners of small craft had entirely disappeared, and rolls that crested only as they reached the beach took their place.

It is this sea, however, that racing yachts do not take to kindly. It catches them at the stem, and if they are carrying much sail it is apt to strain both mast and rigging and cause a break such as occurred to the Shamrock II two years ago when pounding down in a heavy sea she broke a stay and dropped her topmast. At 9 o'clock both yachts raised their mainsails and were waiting the arrival of the Navigator with the committee on board. The wind was blowing steadily at ten miles at the Hook, but with indications that it was not so fresh outside or near the lightship.

At 9:08 both yachts took a tow line from their tenders and started out of the Hook so as to be down at the start in time.

The storm which set in a few hours after Thursday's race had been called off for lack of wind, had blown itself out, but still a number of weather sharps pointed out that the wind getting more to the northward, had gone around the wrong way and that there would be no unpleasant weather until the breeze again reached the south. Only once in its history has Reliance faced anything that compared with the heavy seas that have prevailed off of Sandy Hook since Friday morning. In July last the Herreshoff yacht had a race off Newport in half a gale and a tumbling sea, with the result that although she broke the record for thirty miles over a triangular course, she came out of the encounter with a six-foot dent six inches deep in her port bow. With a broken tumble of sea outside the Hook and a fresh breeze, Shamrock had every promise of just the weather in which those in charge expect her to do her best. When preparations for racing were started shortly before 9 o'clock, the wind had fallen under what Capt. Wringe would have chosen had the selection been left to him, but there was still the promise of a fine fresh weather trial with sea enough to test any weakness that may exist in the hull of either boat.

As the yachts rounded out into the open sea, both butted into the short swells with terrific force, smashing their heads into it in such a way as to dash masses of water and foam over them. Reliance pounded much harder than did the Shamrock and made difficult work of it. The committee boat, Unique, followed both yachts so as to assist in case of accident.

As they got further out decks were continually covered with the wash from the head seas and in front of their bows was a continuous "bone" of white foam.

The Navigator reached the Hook at 9:40, but finding the yachts gone ordered the stake boat, the John Scully, to her position and started for the lightship herself, making it evident that there will be a race unless the sea is too rough. The wind at 9:45 was blowing about eleven miles fresh from the northeast. As she went out past Sandy Hook the Navigator signalled to Sir Thomas that conditions favored a start of the race and that the committee would see him at the start. The Erin had no special guests from New York this morning, Sir Thomas having notified them that there would probably be no race.

When the committee boat reached the lightship it was found that to start a race from that point fifteen miles to leeward or windward would be impossible, and a signal was hoisted postponing the start until a line could be established sufficiently south of the lightship to send the yachts off to windward. The course was signaled as east-northeast, which would bring the turn southeast of Long Beach about six miles off shore.

The wind had dropped to about seven knots, and there seemed to be prospects of a long, slow race. On the way down to the new starting point the Shamrock swapped topsails, exchanging her No. 2 for a much larger one. The sea was much calmer than when the yachts went out. Promptly at 11:30 the committee fired the preliminary gun, which will make the start at 11:45 and give the boats until 5:15 this afternoon within which to finish the race.

When the preparatory signal was fired at 11:30 the wind was still dropping off and had a strength of scarcely more than five or six miles an hour.

The contest for position at the start began before the warning signal was fired each captain making a desperate effort to get the better place.

Today Shamrock seemed to have a little more life, and Capt. Wringe was able to get her out from beneath the great blanketing sails of Reliance. At 11:44, one minute before the starting gun was fired, both boats were holding along the starboard tack, with Reliance a trifle in the lead. Half a minute before the starting gun was fired jib topsails were broken out on both boats. The starting gun was fired at 11:45, with boats to the leeward of the line. They immediately trimmed their sheets and went across the line on the starboard tack, Reliance a little to the windward. The wind at the start was blowing about seven knots and both boats at once headed toward the Long Island shore. Each carried the same sails, with large club topsails and intermediate baby jib topsails.

Immediately after crossing the line the Shamrock went to port, Reliance following her example thirty seconds later. For five minutes they sailed on the port tack. The Reliance was pointing magnificently to windward, but smashing the seas badly. Shamrock, apparently, was unable to hold so high a wind, but she sailed in rather more water and there was therefore little change in positions when they threw back again to starboard, Reliance being first to break tack and Shamrock following promptly. During the first half hour after the start, the boats made three tacks, but the wind becoming light at 12:15 they had scarcely covered more than two miles of the course. Reliance, as usual, seemed to gain steadily and at 12:20 was, apparently, leading by an eighth or a quarter of a mile.

Shamrock in all the tacks that were made up to this point, was the first to make the move, Reliance following usually inside of a minute. The wind seemed to have little life and at at 12:20 was blowing not more than five or six knots. As the yachts beat slowly to windward, the heavy ground swell lifted the bows of the racers so that their fins could be seen. The waves seemed to suit the Shamrock better and she made easier work of the long swell though Reliance was pointing higher. The yachts were making slow time of it and were being greatly retarded by the flood tide. At 1 o'clock hope that the yachts would finish within the time limit began to disappear.

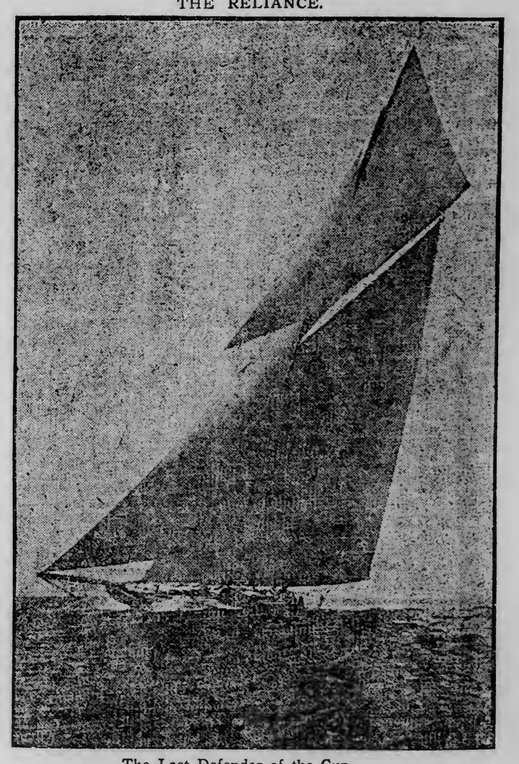

Soon after 1 o'clock Reliance went on the starboard tack but Wringe declined to follow this lead, and two minutes later Reliance went back on the port tack. The yachts were still crawling along though Reliance was slowly heading out to windward, Shamrock, however, was footing equally fast. Reliance again went on the starboard tack and at 1:50 the boats were both heading in shore. Reliance's position to windward having been considerably increased by the change in direction of the wind. When both boats straightened out for the board toward Long Beach it was easy to see what a great advance Reliance had established because of her better ability to go to windward.

Soon after turning the mark Reliance set her spinnaker, but with the unsteady wind did not carry it long, and it was taken in after eight minutes sailing.

Again, as on Thursday last, the contest was Reliance against time. At 3:30, with only an hour and three quarters of sailing time, Reliance had about eleven miles to go and the chances of the wind did not look at all favorable. Wringe also found his spinnaker was not of service and followed Barr's lead and took it in. He then set his balloonet, and at 3:35 both boats were reaching for home, but so slowly that it was only occasionally that there was headway enough to knock the top of the ground swell into white water.

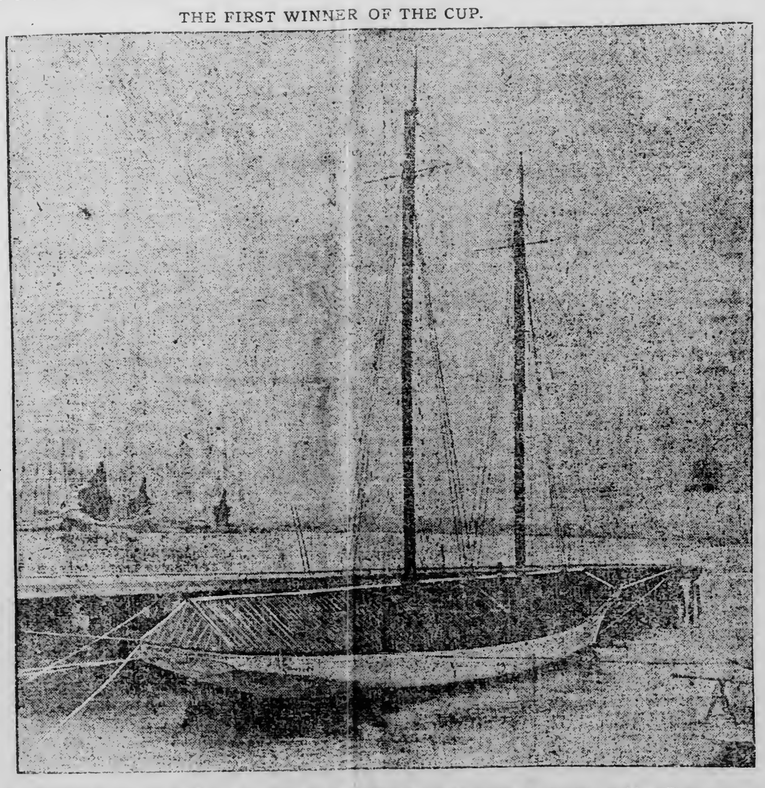

"Writing headlines for a newspaper is something of a fine art," said Senator Dolliver to a reporter recently. "A good head-line writer unquestionably is a mighty valuable man on a paper. A head-line came near being my undoing once. Back along the New England coast somewhere is a rather dangerous reach of land marked on the charts as Dolliver's neck. A big storm was raging along that coast once just at the time I was having a hot campaign in Iowa. The temperance people are pretty strong in that state. Well, on the morning of election day I picked up a paper and then jumped about four feet straight up. A line clear across the top of the front page, in bold, black letters, read, 'Five Schooners Gone Down in Dolliver's Neck.'"

SHIPMENTS LARGE

August Ore Shipments From the Three Ports Heavy.

All Three Roads Expected to Show Very Large Increases.

August has been a banner month for ore shipments from the head of the lakes, according to estimates already made of the gross tonnage, and when the figures are given out tomorrow they will show that despite the congestion on Lake Erie during the early part of the month carriers have succeeded in surpassing all previous records.

It is estimated that the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road has delivered little short of 1,000,000 tons at its docks a gain of nearly 10 per cent over July shipments, and a comfortable increase over the tonnage of August, 1902. Shipments on the Iron Range and Great Northern roads, it is said, will also show a large increase over July and shipments of August, 1902, and the total for the three roads will probably come close to touching the 3,000,000-ton mark. The difficulty of securing facilities at lower lake ports, which will allow carriers from the head of the lakes to unload, load and make a quick get-a-way is still apparent, and officials of the steel corporation do not look for any great improvement for several months. The work of putting in new docks at Lake Erie points is being pushed, but it will be a long time before the unloading capacity there will equal the shipping capacity in Duluth.

SOLD WHISKY IN A PRISON

Convict Ran a "Speak Easy" Behind the Gray Walls.

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 31.—That locking a man up does not prevent him from committing crime was shown at the session of that queer court of retributive justice which Warden Hershey, of the Ohio penitentiary, holds every morning. Arraigned before him was William Conners, a convict clerk in the boit works. He was charged with a crime against both the state and federal laws, to-wit, the running of a "speak-easy" saloon within the penitentiary.

It was shown that convicts who wanted whisky had only to place 75 cents in a certain box at night and in the morning they would find a half pint of "booze" awaiting them. Conners was "hiked out" of his clerkship and put in stripes before being degraded to the lowest convict level.

Word was also sent to the United States internal revenue officers, so that Conners will be doubly punished. The inside police found a bottle of whisky on a burglar named R. B. Adams from Cleveland, who was also a clerk in the shops. He was charged with being a peddler of the stuff by the drink. His sentence was 15 days off his good time, stripes and hard work.

A relative, who lives outside the prison in this city and is very wealthy offered to pay for a United States license and the fine attached to save Adams from punishment at the hands of the Federal officials, but the tender was refused. It is evident from this that the practice of selling and drinking whisky in the prison has been prevalent and the new warden is determined to break up the practice.

IS NOW IN ASYLUM.

He Proposed to All the Girls He Met.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 31.—Edward Peck, 81 years old, well connected in Indianapolis, wants to get married. He was found proposing marriage to all women he met in St. Clair park.

A few days ago Mrs. Gertrude Oakes, matron at the city dispensary, found him under similar circumstances in University square. He had found a comely matron, Frances Wornecke, who became interested in him, and was about to accept his offer of marriage. Mrs. Oakes asked the old man how they could live, since he was not able to take care of himself. He scoffed at her and said the Lord would care for them. The old man told her the Lord had been feeding them apples, and that they were not hungry, and never would go hungry.

The couple has not been married, but will spend the remainder of their days under one roof. Both Peck and the woman, who was willing to become his bride, were committed to the insane asylum.

SEVEN SUSPECTS

Held For Murder of Street Car Employes.

Chicago, Aug. 31.—Of the eleven suspects arrested by the police following the murder of Frank Stewart and John B. Johnson, employes of the Chicago City Railway company, and the looting of the company's safe early Sunday morning, seven are being held. One arrest to which some importance is being attached is that of John Sleuder, a former employe of the company, and who is known to have been in the vicinity at the time the shooting occurred. He is said to have contradicted himself several times while being questioned by the officers.

OAT BEARD

Worked Its Way Into a Boy's Throat.

Marysville, Ohio, Aug. 31.—Sayle, the fifteen-year-old son of Andrew Murdock, who resides near Ridgeway, has been suffering intensely for over two weeks because of an oat beard in his throat. After getting under his tongue it began to work its way into the flesh and through his neck. His face was badly swollen and the pain severe.

To save the boy's life it was necessary to perform an operation. He is now in a dangerous condition, but may recover.

NEARLY CAUSED PANIC.

There was a hazing on the floor of the stock exchange yesterday afternoon that was peculiar in that the chairman was afraid to ring the gong and stop it, says the New York Times.

The new member was Mr. Grier, of the new firm of Bartlett, Frazier & Carrington. He was chased back and forth over the floor, while brokers tried to surround him and pull his coat from his back.

Mr. Grier came in on the floor at an inopportune time. It was just in the middle of the last hour of the market. There was not much trading, but there was a lot of suspense. Rumors had been going about during the afternoon of more suspensions and failures. Most of the brokers were sitting about the sides of the room or chatting about the posts. When Grier came in they relieved the tension by going for him.

The south side of the floor looked like a football field in a moment. The chairman of the exchange stood up and watched the progress of the hazing. He motioned for the brokers to stop, but they paid no attention to him. Ordinarily he would have rung a big gong when things got too boisterous, but he didn't dare to do so at that juncture. The street was waiting for announcements of suspension, and the sounding of the big gong for the suspension of business, which would have been shown at once in brokers' offices all over the city by the stoppage of the tickers, might have precipitated a panic. So the chairman had to grin and bear it, and the fun went on till the brokers got tired of it.

The incident recalled one that occurred in the trying days of 1893, when one of the largest houses in the street, having learned of rumors attacking its credit, sent a message to the chairman to be read out, stating that there was no truth in the report.

The chairman suspended business and announced: "I have here a communication from Blank & Co.—"

The brokers did not wait to hear more. Taking it for granted that it was the expected suspension, they rushed pellmell to telephones and sent the news that the house had failed.

SUPERIOR MURDER

Boy Deliberately Shoots a Man Down In Cold Blood.

He Was Incensed Because He Was Accused of Theft.

Old Superior was the scene of a startling tragedy this morning.

Arthur Sherman, a 16-year-old boy, angered at his dismissal from the employ of the Euclid hotel, shot and killed Howard C. Gilbert, aged 40 years, who has charge of the dining room of the same hotel, and who this morning told the boy to get his time and quit work.

Young Sherman, it is claimed, has been suspected for some time of taking bed clothing belonging to the hotel to his room and, when he left his room early this morning, he was met by Gilbert and accused of taking the clothing. Gilbert also told him to get his pay and quit work. Sherman was greatly incensed over his dismissal and threatened that he would kill Gilbert, but no attention was paid to his threats.

Later in the morning he went to a hardware store and purchased a 32-caliber revolver, having previously cashed a check and secured the money due him on his wages.

Young Sherman then went to a meat market about a block from the hotel, where he found Gilbert at the desk figuring over the hotel's meat account with one of the proprietors. Sherman advanced and, without warning to his victim, drew his revolver and fired three shots at Gilbert, the first striking him in the back of the head and the second in the left shoulder. The third shot did not tind its human mark, the wound in the head alone was of a fatal nature and Gilbert died shortly after receiving it.

Sherman was immediately placed under arrest. He is said to take his arrest very coolly, remarking that he set out to kill Gilbert and he did just what he intended to do. The murdered man leaves a wife.

The murderer is the son of Gideon Sherman, janitor of the Albany block in Old Superior.

LONGEVITY OF FILIPINOS.

Manilo newspapers which have just reached Washington give interesting features of the Philippine census, which has just been completed by the Washington Post. It seems that the census records are now being examined at Manila prior to their shipment to Washington. They disclose some interesting facts in regard to the longevity of the Filipino people and indicate that despite the many epidemics prevalent some survive to a green old age. It was first noticed that a great number of Philippine people were over a hundred years old. Finally the examination of a schedule from Laguna province disclosed an old fellow who claimed "six score and ten" as the length of his existence. Considerable interest was aroused when a nold woman laid claim to 140 years. The clerks were then instructed to make note of all who had given their age at over 100 years. There were a surprisingly large number of these, but no record for ag had by no means been established. Batangas province at once returned to the charge with a little brown brother who modestly claimed that he first saw the light of day just 176 rainy seasons back.

Director of the Philippine census Sanger and his assistants think it hardly probable that these ages can be correct, and an effort will be made to prove them by an examination of the church records of the municipality in which the persons were born. As the Spanish authorities were very particular to have births and deaths carefully recorded it is believed than an investigation will not show these old folks to be as aged as they have stated to the census enumerator.

Assistant Director Almstead has cited some facts regarding the taking of the census of the United States which tend to prove the majority of old people who claim very excessive age to have forgotten how old they were. One old man claimed to be 129 or 130 years of age. Upon investigation of the records of the census ten years before it was found that he had aged 15 years in ten years. The several returns for still earlier years proved that the old gentleman had been adding fifteen and twenty years to his age for every ten years actually lived.

SELECTION OF TAFT

As War Secretary Regarded as Good Practical Politics.

Another Excellent Move Is the Appointment of Wright.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU

Washington, Aug. 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—The selection of William H. Taft, first civil governor of the Philippine islands, to be secretary of war, vice Elihu Root, resigned, is construed by politicians to be one of the best examples of practical politics that President Roosevelt has shown since he assumed the affairs of government. There is no denying the fact that the anti-Roosevelt party—and there is such a party—had under serious consideration Governor Taft's name as a competitor against President Roosevelt in the convention of 1904. Judge Taft was not a party to this revolt, and to friends he said that the movement was without his knowledge or his sanction. Mr. Roosevelt saw the growing power of the first civil governor of the Philippines; he saw him greatly respected by the people and looked upon as a Leander by the expansionists. President Roosevelt, appreciating these conditions and recognizing that Governor Taft had all the essentials required for a president, he made a straightaway dash to put a stop to any more juggling with Judge Taft's name. He asked him to enter his cabinet as the successor of New York's brilliant lawyer, and as promptly Judge Taft accepted. Behind this pretty game of politics there is an interesting story which is now coming to light, and that is that the distinctively Roosevelt party proposes, if possible, to make Governor Taft the Republican presidential nominee in 1908, providing, of course, that Mr. Roosevelt does not desire to succeed himself. Those of us who looked upon Mr. Roosevelt as the ideal civil service reformer, the incorruptible police commissioner, the doughty assistant secretary of the navy and the brilliant vice president had small regard for his political acumen. It must now be admitted, however, in the light of recent events, that the president is developing a political sense that is really remarkable even in these days of political sagacity. Not content, however, with bringing Governor Taft from the Eastern seas, President Roosevelt has played another card of very high denomination by selecting Luke E. Wright, a member of the Philippine commission and a native of Tennessee, as civil governor of the Philippine islands, to succeed Governor Taft.

During the absence in this country of Governor Taft, Gen. Wright conducted the affairs of the governor of the Philippine islands in a manner that was highly satisfactory to the administration, and he then sealed his fate as the future governor of the Philippines. Luke Wright, as he is known amongst his associates and particular friends, served in the Confederate army as a private throughout the war of the rebellion, and upon the termination of that sanguinary conflict, began the practice of law in Memphis, Tenn. He is a Democrat, but of the gold party, and an expansionist, believing in the future of the Philippines above everything else. Since 1900 Gen. Wright has been a member of the Philippine commission, and during his connection with civil government of the islands he has become as popular with the Filipinos as with the Americans.

Washington's close proximity to the South has made it a subject for many stories dealing with the colored man, but none are so full of human interest as the tale told in the district branch of the police court the other afternoon. "Rev. Bishop" Brooks Johnson, colored, 98 years old, was arraigned before the police judge for having obtained money under false pretenses, and the testimony would seem to indicate that the indictment was pretty well founded. B'rer Johnson was an organizer, agreeing, according to his circulars, to make "ministers at $1.35 and $2 a head, and all 'sperrits' and ha'nts removed $25." B'rer Johnson did a land office business, particularly in the removal of "sperrits and ha'nts," amongst the young colored women of the neighborhood. B'rer Johnson, however, is now in disgrace, his pills and lotions given for the purpose of removing these unfoward visitations having failed to bring about the object intended. Sister Chier was the first woman to announce that B'rer Johnson was a fake of the first water, because "Bishop" Johnson had sold her $22.50 worth of pills guaranteed to parallize the "sperrit" that ever "raised its head against any colored pusson." But Sister Crier was placed in the diminutive when another of the colored sisterhood testified against the aged colored bishop who had extracted money from the lean pockets of the working girls of Washington. Sister Dodson, a member of one of the aristocratic churches of the city of colored denominations, said that she had paid big money for a bottle of medicine which she was not to take, but was to pour on the doorstep each night before going to bed, for the purpose of removing a "sperrit" that followed her up the steps every time she handed her good hard earnings to her best man. B'rer Johnson's case has gone over until the weather gets cooler and to give the authorities time to subpoena a number of other witnesses for the district.

A stronger effort than has ever been made before will be put forth at the coming session of the Fifty-eighth congress to secure reciprocal commercial relations with Canada. Commercial reciprocity with the Dominion has been a dream of the leading statesmen of the United States and Canada for years past. Had Cushman K. Davis lived it is confidently believed that commercial treaties would have been made with France and England. The death of the late senator from Minnesota brought a cessation of former activities in this direction. Each year brings Canada and the United States into closer commercial relations, notwithstanding the barriers existing between the two dominating factors of the Northern hemisphere. The work begun by Senator Cushman K. Davis is not to stop, according to a well-informed Canadian, who was in Washington this week. Instead of a commercial war of reprisals and retaliation, there is to be a commercial union between Canada and the United States. Already a league has been formed among business men on the border land of the United States nearest the Canadian possession looking to the enactment of legislation at Washington and it is expected that same measure of good will come out of the league's work during the approaching session of congress. The great business interests of the north section of the United States bordering on the Canadian line demand a commercial union with Canada. The farmers and the small business interests have placed themselves in opposition to commercial reciprocity with our neighbors on the north. Just where the line of completest acceptation to a reciprocity treaty shall be drawn is still in a nebulous state, but those who are interested on one side or the other look forward to trade relations with Canada in the not far distant future.

In view of the determination of the National Reciprocity league to establish headquarters in Washington during the next session of congress, it is recalled that a commercial treaty between the United States and the Canadian provinces was negotiated in 1854, which was in force for most twelve years and which, according to experts, accomplished great good for the two countries. This areaty made no provision for fixing the duty on dutiable articles coming from one country to the other. It simply provided that certain enumerated articles being the growth and products of Canada and the United States should be admitted into each country free of duty. The treaty was terminated in 1866, just at the close of the civil war. Many reasons are given for the termination of that treaty, the principal of which, however, is that the reconstruction period was just abreast and that money was needed to put the republic in the forefront of the nations. In 1874 another treaty known as the Brown-Draft treaty was negotiated contemplating the admission of wood, coal, salt and lumber. This treaty, however, failed of ratification and up to this time there has little or nothing been done to bring the two countries together, although the great majority of Canadians and the people of the United States speak the same language, profess the same religion, enjoy the same liberties and are full copartners in advancing the high measure of civilization of which the Anglo-Saxon race is the projector.

Twenty-five Washington newspaper men, representing the leading newspapers of the United tates, will leave Washington next week as the guests of the Union Pacific railroad to attend the National Irrigation convention, to be held in Ogden on Sept. 15 and 16. The Union Pacific railroad, which has the honor of being known as the overland system, proposes showing these men who write what the West is today. After the convention the Washington correspondents will be treated to an object lesson of existing irrigational canals throughout the intermountain country. All sorts of entertainments are being for the men who go on this Western trip. Many of them are taking their yearly vacation for the purpose of informing themselves upon the very great question of irrigation, which question promises to be a factor in the coming session of congress.

The first national irrigation convention was held at Salt Lake City in 1891, the home of the first example of American irrigation by the Anglo-Saxon race. In that year about 3,500,000 acres were under irrigation in the arid regions all through private enterprise and co-operative effort, wholly due to the Mormons of '57, who first put irrigation to practical account. Today there are nearly 8,000,000 acres under irrigation and the West is just beginning to wake up to the tremendous possibilitis afforded by the government in projecting new irrigation enterprises. The coming irrigation congress will be the eleventh convention of that body and will be attended by many of the leading men of the country.

ARGUMENT HEARD

gument in behalf of Cass Lake and oral arguments were made by Judge Crawford and L. H. Bailey, in behalf of Bemidji.

The commissioner stated that he would take the case under advisement and will report his finding to President Roosevelt at the earliest possible date. As Capt. Walker well said, Commissioner Richards has been all over the country in question and his selection of Cass Lake was made after personal observation of the country.

ARMY OF PHILIPPINES BEGINS ITS CONVENTION AT ST. PAUL

Veterans of Last War Arrive at the Capital and Open Their Fourth Annual Meeting—Many Prominent Men Will Participate In Meeting.

St. Paul, Aug. 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—Stepping lively to the strains of martial music from a band, visiting veterans of the Army of the Philippines were escorted from incoming trains to their respective hotels and lodging places from early morning until nightfall today. The committee having in charge the arrangements for the fourth annual convention of the Army of the Philippines, estimated that by evening fully 3000 veterans would be housed within the city, and that the number would be swelled considerably by tomorrow.

The weather conditions are all that could be desired—a keen breeze tempered by sunshine—just the kind to make marching easy and sightseeing trips delightful.

Delegations which were in the nature of vanguards preceding the regular delegations, arrived from St. Louis, Chicago, Milwaukee, Pittsburg, Monongahela, McConnellsville, Pa., Denver, Montana, Kansas, Nebraska and South Dakota arrived yesterday and during the night. Wilder Metcalf, colonel of the famous Tenth Kansas regiment, Funston's command, Rev. James Mailey, of Nebraska, a chaplain in the war, and Gen. Charles King were among the early arrivals. Gen. King is in Minneapolis. The train bearing Gen. Hale, which was scheduled to arrive from the West with delegations from Iowa, Colorado and other states at 7 o'clock, was about two hours late in arriving. Gen. Hale proceeded to the home of Gen. Reeves, at Minneapolis, where he will stay during the reunion.

At 2 o'clock this afternoon the first business session was held, at which Gen. Hale, as president of the association, delivered his annual address, which consisted mainly of a review of the work done in organizing individual camps of the association. Gen. Hale spoke of the progress made since the last encampment had revised the constitution, and stated that under the new laws matters were working out satisfactorily. The usual addresses of welcome were delivered at this meeting, at which Governor Van Sant spoke on behalf of the state, which duly responded to by Gen. Hale in a preface to his annual address. Tonight the delegates will be entertained at the Commercial club. The election of officers and selection of the next place of meeting will be held at the last business meeting Wednesday. On Wednesday evening a camp fire and public meeting will be held in the People's church, at which Gen. Hale will deliver an address.

ST. PAUL ITALIAN USES HIS KNIFE

St. Paul, Aug. 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—J. J. Grundland, bartender at a saloon on East Seventh street, was the victim of a savage assault yesterday morning at the hands of A. Cushnelly, an Italian. When Grundland closed the saloon early yesterday morning he was attacked by Cushnelly, who was armed with a knife. Grundland received a cut aeross the abdomen, another in the groin, and both his hands were slashed in endeavoring to protect himself. He was removed to the city hospital. His injuries are not considered fatal.

A. Branca, one of the proprietors of the saloon, said today that the prisoner's true name was John Romani. "He is the man who, on July 4, shot Mrs. Mecenti in the foot and from which wound she nearly died of lockjaw. When my partner asked Romani to pay for the doctor bills of Mrs. Mecenti, he refused, and said it was an accident, and he did not have to pay. On Saturday Romani was about the saloon, and he told me he was going to kill old Mecenti. As my partner was not about he took it out on the bartender."

MINNEAPOLIS GIRL IS ASSAULTED

Minneapolis, Aug. 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—Josephine Osborne, the 15-year-old daughter of a prominent resident of the East Side, was the victim of a criminal attack early last evening in the vicinity of Eighth street southeast and Second avenue. The girl was seized from behind as she was on her way home, and was made insensible by the application to her face of a handkerchief soaked in chloroform.

According to her story she was going home from the residence of a friend, who had accompanied her to the theater in the afternoon. As it was only a short distance to her own home, 801 Eleventh avenue southeast, she decided not to take a car. At Smith & Wyman's lumber yard, she says, two men suddenly sprang out from behind a pile of lumber and seized her. One snatched her pocketbook, while the other muffled her with a chloroformed handkerchief. She lost consciousness, and when she came to found herself in what she thought was a boxcar. Most of her clothes had been torn off and she was badly scratched about the neck. She is unable to describe her assailants.

PASTOR CRITICISES "SMART SET"

New York, Aug. 31.—In a sermon on the sins and follies of fashion, the Rev. Dean Richmond Babbitt has made an appeal for Christian earnestness and dignity as a corrective to the abuses of fashion in various circles of society, and criticised severely many of the reported doings of the so-called "smart set" in America.

"There are many ways to look at the selfish, wasteful, indecorous, baleful and often insane class of the so-called "smart set," who seem to make a crusade to get their peculiar social antics in the newspapers, as enthusiasts impale butterflies for exhibition in amusement."

TIE GAME OF LA CROSSE

Played By Portage Lake and Canadian Soo.

Houghton, Mich., Aug. 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—Portage Lake and Cannadian Soo played a tie game of la crosse in the American Soo yesterday. The match was exciting from start to finish. Portage Lake had only eight regular players. They will play off the tie in Canadian Soo this afternoon. Portage Lake is now trying to get a game with the crack St. Paul and Calumets of Chicago.

REDUCTION CONTINUED.

Pottsville, Pa., Aug. 31.—The Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron company announces a contination of the special reduction of 25 cents a ton at the mines on pea and buckwheat coal, on contracts for shipment making the price of pea coal at $1.75 at the mines, the same as August. Owing to the over-prodution of anthracite several large collieries have been closed indefinitely.

COST TOO GREAT

Duluth Unlikely to Have Building at St. Louis Fair.

She Is Among Twenty-Five Prominent Cities Invited, However.

Duluth has received the distinctive honor of being among the twenty-five prominent cities of this country that have been invited by the management of the Louisiana Purchase exposition to edect a characteristic building on the exposition grounds at St. Louis.

The invitation was received by Mayor Hugo and by him turned over to Capt. Alexander McDougall, chairman of the Commercial club committee on the Northern Minnesota exhibit at the fair. While the honor is greatly appreciated by the city executive, Mayor Hugo said this morning that it was rather doubtful if the idea of Duluth's having a distinctive building is practicable, as it is a matter that would entail much expense, and that the city would hardly feel justified in paying for it at this time.

Mayor Hugo said that when the invitation was received he thought first of a building that would represent the Duluth High School, but the proposition struck him as very expensive, owing to the size of the building that would be necessary to show off Duluth's famous educational building as it should be shown.

Mayor Hugo's second thought was of the old Astor fort at Fond du Lac, in the western end of the city, a building which he thinks might be reproduced at a lesser expense.

"However," said the mayor this morning, "the matter has been left with Capt. McDougall and his committee to take whatever steps they deem advisable in the matter. It would indeed be a very nice thing for this city to have a representative building of its own, of some kind or another, at the coming big exposition."

A LEAGUE OF CITIES

Representatives of American Cities to Meet In Baltimore.

The mayor, city aldermen and other city officials have received an invitation to attend the seventh annual convention of the League of American Municipalities, which will be held at Baltimore, Md., Oct. 7 to 9 inclusive.

Duluth is among the most important municipalities of the United States and Canada that belong to the league, but it is very doubtful if she will have a representation at this year's meet, in view of the distance and the difficulty of finding representatives who can spare the time and expense to go.

The object of the league is for the advancement of the interests of every municipality enrolled in the membership, and at its conventions city officials gather and discuss their ideas and experiences in city government and improvement. A good program has been arranged for the convention, the speakers and their topics being as follows:

"The Advantages of Municipal Construction Over the Contract System," by Mayor James M. Head of Nashville, Tenn.; "Municipal Ownership of Public Utilities," by Mayor James A. Reed of Kansas City, Mo.; "Organized Labor and the Municipality," by Mayor Ignatius A. Sullivan of Hartford, Conn.; "Water Waste," by E. W. Bemis, superintendent of waterworks system, Cleveland, O.; "Municipal Restriction of the Social Evil," by Mayor Julius Fleischmann of Cincinnati, O.; "Municipal Statistics," by Hugo E. Grosser, city statistician and librarian of Chicago; "Municipal Telephone Exchanges," by J. F. Hemenway, secretary and treasurer of the Ericsson Telephone company of New York city; "Paving," by A. W. Dow, Ph. D., chemical engineer and inspector of asphalt and cements in the District of Columbia; "The Operation of a Municipal Asphalt Plant," by Mayor John Arbuthnot of Winnipeg, Can.; "The Initiative and Referendum," by George Shibley, chairman of the National Federation of Majority Rule, Washington, D. C.; "The Ideal City," by Professor Frank Parsons; "Garbage and Sewage Disposal," by Rudolph Hering, engineer and sanitary expert, New York city.

Although Duluth may not be represented at the annual convention, Mayor Hugo said this morning that stenographic reports of the papers and the discussions on the same will be mailed to every municipality that is enrolled on the membership.

A LARGE LIST.

North West Will Carry Many People Down.

The steamer North West of the Northern Steamship company, will tomorrow night clear from Duluth with the largest passenger bookings she has had since going into commission. Up to noon today more than 250 persons had engaged passage and it is thought that this number will be greatly increased before she departs. Among those who will arrive on her upward trip is a party of the members of which are guests of the Jenks Lumber company of Detroit. They occupy eighty-five staterooms and will return on the North West, staying in Duluth only three hours.

Bessie Reynolds Dead .

A telegram received by friends here from Miss Daisy Reynolds, who was called to Galena, Ill., on account of the sickness of her sister, Miss Bessie Reynolds, states that the latter died this morning of quick consumption. The decedent was about 19 years old and formerly lived with her parents at Lakeside, removing to Galena within the last year.

Fond du Lac, Spirit Lake and New Duluth.

Daily, except Sunday, leave Duluth 7:00 a. m., 5:30 p. m. Returning, leave Fond du Lac, 7:55 a. m., 6:25 p. m. Sundays only, leave Duluth 9:30 a. m., 2:30 p. m. Returning, leave Fond du Lac 10:45 a. m., 7:00 p. m. Fare, round trip week days, 50 cents. Sundays, 25 cents. Commutation tickets may also be had at greatly reduced rates. For tickets and full information, call at City office, 332 West Superior street.

BROKE THE RECORD

State Fair Business Out of Duluth Exceptionally Heavy.

Omaha Road Opens an Entirely New Sporting Field.

Since Saturday all records for passenger travel over the Omaha, Great Northern and Northern Pacific roads between Duluth and Minneapolis and St. Paul have been smashed as a result of the cheap rates offered by all lines on account of the state fair.

Special cars have been put on all trains at Duluth and many cars have been added at intermediate stations. Even with the additional equipment the roads have been heavily taxed in taking care of the crowds.

Although the state fair is drawing many persons away from this section the incoming trains are fairly well filled with passengers who have also taken advantage of the cheap rates to visit Duluth from points in the vicinity of Minneapolis and St. Poul.

CHANGED THE RULES.

Western Passenger Association Alters Baggage Rules.

The Western Passenger association has amended its rules pertaining to the transportation of baggage to read as follows:

"One hundred and fifty pounds of personal baggage may be checked free for each passenger presenting a full ticket, including mileage and party rate tickets, and seventy-five pounds on each half ticket (except that on tickets sold between points in Nebraska the free allowance may be 200 pounds on each full ticket and 100 pounds on each half ticket). Half rates also are provided for commissioned officers of the army, navy and revenue cutter service, when traveling at their own expense, and for dependent members of their families and domestic servants."

NEW SPORTING FIELD.

Omaha's New Line Opens Up Good One.

With the opening of the new branch line of the Omaha line into Radisson, Wis., in the heart of the Chippewa and Couderay river country, Duluth sportsmen are given a new field in which they may use their guns and rods to great advantage. Radisson is the terminus of the new line which branches off from the Duluth-St. Paul and Duluth Chicago line at Radisson Junction, just south of Spooner. The new line opens a district in which there are hundreds of lakes which have practically remained untouched except by a few settlers.

REPAIRING THE BELTS.

Street Railway's Service Impaired Until Thursday.

The two large belts of the Duluth-Superior Traction company, damaged Saturday, have been shipped to Minneapolis for repairs, in charge of Kelley-Howe-Thomsen's expert.

Word was received from Minneapolis this morning by long distance telephone that one of the belts would be completed and shipped today. It will arrive tomorrow and by Wednesday one half as many cars as are now running will be in operation.

The other belt will be repaired and shipped tomorrow, and by Thursday all of the cars will again be in service, it is expected.

THE MOURNER'S BENCH.

Numerous Tales of Woe In Police Court.

There were numerous tales of woes before Judge Gearhart in municipal court this morning. Charles Olson, who was arrested on a warrant charging him with striking another man on Superior street, yesterday, was fined $5 and costs or the alternative of five days in the county jail.

Thomas Walker, who was seen loading a revolver which he afterward placed in his pocket, was arrested last evening on the charge of carrying concealed weapons. Walker put up a cash bail of $12 for his appearance but did not appear when his case was called this morning.

Seven drunks were given the alternative of $12 or 10 days and one drunk was released under suspended sentence.

Andrew Huber, against whom a warrant for trespass was issued, will have his examination tomorrow.

FROM MOVING CAR.

Young Man Painfully Hurt By a Fall.

Roy Baker, a young man residing in Oneota, received painful if not serious injuries last evening while attempting to climb on the rear coupler of a moving street car in the West End. The young man had been waiting some time for a car and when it came along it was crowded and he attempted to ride behind. His foot slipped from the iron and he fell striking his head against the coupler. The blow rendered him unconscious and he was picked up and taken to his home.

RECIPROCITY WITH CANADA

Committee to Tell Fairbanks of Great Interest.

St. Paul, Aug. 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Miller, of Duluth, president of the Minnesota Branch of the National Reciprocity league, appointed the following committee to wait on Senator Fairbanks on the occasion of his visit to the state fair today and express to him, how deeply interested the Northwest is in reciprocity with Canada: Messrs. J. W. Cooper, R. A. Kirk, George M. Tibbs, Edward M. Yanish, D. R. Noyes, J. B. Johnston and Benjamin F. Beardsley, of St. Paul; Messrs. F. A. Chamberlain, C. C. Webber, Charles M. Barrington, O. B. Kinnard and W. B. Washburn, of Minneapolis; Messrs. F. A. Patrick, John Miller and Ward Ames, of Duluth; C. N. Cosgrove, of Le Sueur, McKinney and Jerome W. Wheeler, of Crookston.

SET STYLE FOR THE WHOLE WORLD

Fashion Show to Be Opened at Madison Square Garden.

New York, Aug. 30.—For the next two weeks Madison Square Garden will be given over to the display of fine dresses, the fashion show formally opening there tonight.

Acting Mayor Fornes, Secretary of Commerce and Labor George B. Cortelyou, United States Senator C. M. Depew and others will deliver brief addresses.

This is the first exposition of its kind ever held in this country. Its purpose is to set styles and establish a unity of ideas in the making of gowns between American and Parisian modistes.

Successfully to bring about this movement, European modistes have contributed to the exposition 150 gowns of every style, while a large number of American designs will be displayed. Otto Adler, delegate from the Parisian dressmakers, will deliver addresses on European fashions. Handsome girls during the afternoon and evening sessions will wear the different styles of gowns on a stage.

Every style of garment favored by women in outdoor life will be shown, including golf, automobile, yachting, tennis and bicycle styles. The live exhibit will show the process of making many of the articles of apparel and will include the silk loom in operation.

There will be a display of proper styles to be worn at various functions, including an ideal wedding costume. The millinery exhibit will be on a large scale and the display of domestic and foreign laces will be notable.

Another feature of interest will be hair dressing, showing the proper manner of arranging the hair for morning, afternoon and evening and in most becoming manner in acordance with the style of gown to be worn.

The New York Dry Goods Economist of August 15, says: "J. M. Gidding of The Silberstein & Bondy Co., Duluth, has been unanimously elected chairman of the Jury of Award of the New York Fashion Show. The broad scope of this exhibit and the wide interest which has been aroused in the show throughout the country render the appointment an honor of which Mr. Gidding may well be proud."

Garments shown by the Silberstein & Bondy Co. this season will have received the endorsement of the World of Fashion.

INNOCENT, THEY

Packers' Agents Say They Know of No Butchers' Combine.

Several Important Matters to Come Before the Council.

Among the important measures that will come up for passage at the meeting of the city council this evening will be the proposed ordinance that provides for the restriction of outhouse and cess pools in those districts of the city where there are water and sewerage in the streets and alleys. The ordinance was introduced at the last meeting and is in accordance with the provisions of the new city charter.

The aldermen will also consider the question of authorizing the appointment of an assistant secretary of the free labor bureau. This office has been requested by the Trades and Labor assembly, who desires an official in the bureau to look after employment for mechanics. The assembly has offered to stand the expense of the maintenance of the office of assistant secretary.

The report of the committee appointed by the city council to investigate the proposition of establishing independent meat markets will come before the council this evening. The committee has addressed communications to the various branch packing houses in the city, but the gist of the answers indicates that the local managers do not know of any combination among the butchers. This is taken practically to mean that nothing will result from the investigation ordered by the council.

In case Alderman Mannheim's new ordinance to suppress the smoke nuisance comes before the council this evening it is certain there will be quite a discussion started, as the city officials have decided and differing views regarding the same.

Final disposition will be made this evening of the proposition to vacate property on the east side of Rice's Point, for the purpose of replatting it. The matter has been pending for some time.

$11.15—Detroit, Minn., and Return—$11.15.

Mondays and Fridays of each week during August and September the Northern Pacific railway will sell tickets to Detroit, Minn., and return for $11.15. This ticket is good for return four days from date of sale, and includes transportation, both ways, nine meals, three nights' lodging at Hotel Minnesota, and a boat ride on the lake. For tickets and full information, call at City Ticket office, 332 West Superior street, or Union Depot.

AMERICAN METHOD

German Government Engineers Look Over Transportation Systems.

Left For Iron Range to Watch Iron Ore Shipments.

Accompanied by a party of German government engineers, T. Glasenapp, German consul at New York, arrived in Duluth yesterday en route to the Iron ranges, where they will make a thorough inspection of the methods employed in handling ore from the mines to the docks.

The party includes Messrs. A. Prismann, Vienna; F. Jalunke, Kattowitz; Nagel and Daouer, Essen; Hirsen, Duisburg, and Rau Miller, Rahoovz.

The members arrived over the South Shore road and registered at the Spalding, after which they made a tour of the city. Before coming to Duluth they stopped at New York, Cleveland, Detroit and other lake ports and made a study of the shipping facilities. They were much impressed with the rapidity with which vessel cargoes are handled on the great lakes, especially in the coarser grades of freight.

Many of the iron mines in Germany are owned by the government, and it is probable that the visit of the engineers to this country will result in the installation of appliances in German mines and on docks similar to those now in use here.

The visitors will go to the ranges today and will stay there two days, after which trey will return to Duluth. Consul Glasenapp, who, under instructions from his government, is entertaining the party, has not yet decided as to the exact movements of the party after it leaves Duluth.

SEIZED THE BRIDGE.

Trouble Is Looked For at Marrietta, O.

Marietta, Ohio, Aug. 31.—Following a disagreement between the American Bridge company, who erected a large bridge here for the Ohio River Bridge and Ferry company, the former refused to turn the finished bridge over, and the latter forcibly took possession today by aid of the United States marshal and the Marietta police, running the bridge company's guards off and running electric cars across the bridge. Trouble is now anticipated. The electric cars carried United States mail and could not be stopped.

Special Sale of Blankets, Quilts, Bedspreads, Sheets, Pillow Cases

COMMENCING TOMORROW — A SALE BRIMFUL OF ECONOMIES. WE NEVER HAD A BETTER GATHERING THAN THIS SALE OFFERS IN BLANKETS AND QUILTS. BLANKETS IN AUGUST? It would sound ludicrous to people farther south at this time of the year, but not to Duluthians, as the remarkably cool weather of August has given broad hints of the necessity of providing sure-to-be-wanted bed clothes in the near future — if not right now. There are big savings to be made in buying now—or do you prefer to wait a little longer, when real blanket weather comes and pay full prices—fair prices here—but why miss the saving? The blankets are fine—some all wool, some with cotton sufficient to give added wearing qualities, but all good and dependable. The down quilts are well made in beautiful silkoline and silk coverings and filled with pure down. The cotton comfortables are quilted with fluffy pure white cotton.

YOUTHFUL CRIMINALS

In the attempt to steal several hundred pounds of old scrap iron from the yards of the Duluth Metal company, in broad daylight yesterday, four boys, whose ages range from 12 to 15 years, have come to grief and will probably spend a certain period of their future lives in the state reformatory at Red Wing.

The boys are Robert and Herbert Affleck, the sons of Robert Affleck, of 127 East Superior street, Earl Faro, of 325 Second avenue east, and James Montgomery, of 117 West First street.

The boys were caught redhanded in the act of taking away the old iron and when arraigned in police court this morning, each entered a plea of not guilty to the charge of petit larceny. An examination has been set for this afternoon in order that the court may have all the evidence before passing sentence and a record of the crime may be had for the reformatory officials.

Yesterday afternoon the boys took a boat and rowed over to the Duluth Metal company's yards and proceeded to load a quantity of the old iron. They were seen by a man interested in the spoils and he reported the affair to the police. Detective Terry boarded a ferry and Chief Troyer hurried around through the railroad yards to head off the boys. The latter were so interested in watching the ferry boat carrying the officer that they not expect to see the chief when he confronted them at their boat landing.

The boys had $3 in their pockets, which they admitted having received for junk already sold. The boys admitted selling several hundred weight of old junk at 45 cents per hundredweight.

WHEN A BOY LOOKS FOR WORK.

Many a man made his start in life by answering an advertisement appearing under that prolific heading, "Boy Wanted," says the New York Sun. Many a man can remember the labored attention which he bestowed upon the letter applying for that position, the ensuing suspense, the awed feeling of elated responsibility in getting a letter in reply telling the applicant to call at the advertiser's office, the subsequent washing and dressing up under his mother's anxious eye, the call, the further suspense, and finally the letter instructing him to report for duty the next Monday morning. A few years roll by and that boy becomes a man. He himself advertises for a boy. The answers that come pouring in have to be classified and sifted out until the advertiser can select a preliminary half dozen to call at the office and be looked over. And this sifting out process is no easy task, although an interesting one.

There is the boy who starts out with impressive dignity. "Dear Sir," he begins. "Referring to your esteemed advertisement in paper of even date"—and then the boy's sincerity overcomes the conventionality of his phrasing. He continues: "I just want to apply for that job of yours." And in connection with this, it was doubtless a lad of Scotch parentage who began his letter: "Dear Sir or Sirs (as the case may be)."

Then there is the boy who starts out grandly with the third person: "The undersigned wishes to place his application on file." Then the third person suddenly becomes onerous and he continues: "I am 16 and very willing to work." His willingness to work is so inherent in him that he cannot estrange it by placing it in the distant third person. Such a boy will not be looking long before he receives a chance to show his willingness.

The precociously experienced boy is in a large majority. These boys (about 15 years old), "have profound knowledge of mathematics." Some of them have had "experience both wide and varied." Others "have given close and studious attention to all the branches of bookkeeping." One aspirant (aged 14) once referred with pardonable pride to his "absolute knowledge of men and affairs."

There is a lawyer on Pine street who advertised for a boy some months ago and is saving one of the responding letters as a masterpiece in its lines. This care-free applicant wrote: "I am nearly 16, large for my age, but happily unmarried, nor do I touch rum in any shape or form."

Unconscious humor is often found in these letters of application. For instance, a recent aspirant for a place with a firm of machinery exporters wrote: "My father is a very successful horse dealer and I am by nature a very plausible talker." Who can say there is nothing in heredity after all?

Good spelling is almost invariably the rule. Sometimes a notable exception is found, as the following bears reluctant witness: "Wages to sout. Adress your reply in a plane envelope."

It is noticeable that graduates of the same business school generally follow the same model. McDuffy's graduates refer with unction to their "extensive course of learning" in McDuffy's admirable institution. On the other hand, Christy's alumni wind up with "Sincerely trusting to have the honor of hearing from you in this matter at a very early date."

Some of the boys are extremely confidential about their letters. These applicants doubtless have places which they are trying to better and yet they are fearful about falling between two stools. They inscribe their envelopes "Personal" and "Highly Confidential." One cautious lad started out in this way: "This letter must be in strict confidence, and if you are not agreeable to the same kindly tear the same up without perusing another word."

Whole business histories are sometimes indicated by chance setnences in these letters. One boy (14) wrote: "Am always willing to oblige unless I feel I am being imposed on." Here was a boy who had evidently already been disappointed in life.

The undertone of all these letters is, without exception, downright sincerity and a willingness to work that approaches and often shows itself as anxiety. And when a man has to make a selection from a large number of applications, he harks back to the time when he himself indited a similar epistle, and it is with a pang of regret that he realizes there is only one boy from among so many to whom he can give his so eagerly sought start in life.

STORY NOT TRUE

Comptroller Says Permanent Improvement Fund Is Not Overdrawn.

Work Contemplated However, Enough to Create an Overdraft.

City Comptroller W. S. McCormick has received a number of inquiries from Duluth taxpayers of late relative to the statement that recently appeared to the effect that the permanent improvement fund has been overdrawn.

Mr. McCormick says that the statement has been rather misleading to many, that many of the contemplated improvements which have generally been charged up against the permanent improvement fund by people are not properly so chargeable. The city comptroller's office does not regard an improvement properly chargeable against the fund until the improvement has been authorized by the council; the contracts have been drawn up, countersigned by the proper official filed with the city clerk and an account for the improvement has been actually opened. Speaking of the situation this morning, Mr. McCormick said:

"The fund is not overdrawn. Under our present charter the creation of an overdraft in any of the funds is positively prohibited, unless there be sufficient money in the fund out of which the account is payable to pay all previously accredited accounts and the amount under consideration.

"The permanent improvement fund has a balance today of $27,102.60, with a charge against it of $13,471.43, which includes the unpaid balances on existing contracts and the amount due the permanent improvement revolving fund for the city's share of several improvements, leaving $13,631.20 as the unappropriated balance in the fund as far as shown by the records of this office.

"It will be readily understood that the amount of work contemplated is in excess of the unappropriated balance in the fund and the situation has presumably been mistaken for an overdraft."

Up to the present date the records of City Comptroller McCormick's office show the following condition of the permanent improvement fund:

Contract 525, Tenth avenue west bridge, $2259.36; contract 557, Jenswold street, $728.31; contract 605, bridge, One Hundred avenue west, $643.75; agreement, engine house No. 4, $1859.72; due permanent improvement revolving fund, $3492.08; due permanent improvement revolving fund, $1747.44; due permanent improvement revolving fund, $670.51; due permanent improvement revolving fund, $1760.20; Dixon & Lowry, $6.40; Dixon & Lowry, $15.56; public works fund, $63.89; public works fund, $224.13; balance, $13,631.20; total, $27,102.63.

The Tenth avenue west bridge debit was formerly $3259.36, but the bridge company assented to a reduction of $1000 for failure to fulfil the contract within the specified time.

The figures above show $13,631.20 to be the unappropriated balance in the fund.

THE STAGE

Tonight the Metropolitan Stock company will put "Trilby" on for three nights and a matinee Wednesday, and the demand for tickets has become almost a burden to the box office. The scenic artist has completed a special set of scenery for this play, which will be put on in a manner that will astonish and delight. Mr. Forbes will play Svengali and Miss Marshall will play Trilby. Little Billie, The Laird, and Taffy will be taken by Mr. Holer, Mr. Reynolds and Mr. Willis, respectively.

Miss Antoinette West, of Duluth, will sing "Ben Bolt," and all who have heard Miss West sing know that the song will realize only improvement with her voice. She is a contralto of rare power and sweetness of voice and has, ever since her first appearance in public, been a favorite in Duluth.

The quaint comedian, Stephen Fitzpatrick, supported by a capable company, will be seen at the Lyceum Thursday evening in Guy F. Steely's successful comedy, "Hunting for Hawkins." The engagement of this attraction is considered by the management a notable one, not alone on account of the superiority of the company, but the hit of recent times," many having expressed such opinions in reviewing the performance.

CHARGED WITH ELOPEMENT

St. Paul Janitor Is Taken to Barnesville.

St. Paul, Aug. 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—Michael Christopherson, employed as a janitor in the Germania Life building, was taken to Barnesville Saturday night on a warrant charging him with eloping with Mrs. Alice J. Smith, of Barnesville. He is also accused of aiding in the abduction of the two children of Mrs. Smith. The warrant was sworn out by Peter J. Smith.

Christopherson, before leaving the city with a deputy sheriff, stated that some time ago he boarded at the Smith house in Barnesville, and on the day he left Barnesville Mrs. Smith informed him that she was going to leave her husband. Further than this he knew nothing of the woman.

DYING OF GRIEF.

Joliet, Ill., Aug. 31.—John Gaton, the aged and wealthy farmer, who shot and killed his favorite son in July during a quarrel, is dying of grief. He has been taken from the jail to the hospital and the doctors say he will not live to face the grand jury indictments for murder pending against him.

Salt Rheum

You may call it eczema, tetter or milk crust.

But no matter what you call it, this skin disease which comes in patches that burn, itch, discharge a watery matter, dry and scale, owes its existence to the presence of humors in the system.

It will continue to exist, annoy, and perhaps agonize, as long as these humors remain.

It is always radically and permanently cured by which expels all humors, and is positively unequalled for all cutaneous eruptions.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

STRUCK BY TRAIN.

Iowa Man Is Badly Hurt at St. Paul.

St. Paul, Aug. 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—Robert Ross, of Colfax, Iowa, was struck by the engine of a Great Western passenger train in the State street yards yesterday and sustained serious injuries. Both legs were broken and his head severely cut. Ross was looking over a trainload of cattle brought to the fair for exhibition, and stepped in front of the approaching passenger. He was thrown a distance of twenty feet and struck in a clay bank. The Ducas street patrol wagon took him to St. Joseph's hospital.

FUGITIVE CONVICT

Who Married and Prospered Makes Full Confession.

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 31.—A few minutes before he was confronted for identification by Sergeant Dodd, of the Mississippi penitentiary Felix Daley, alias C. F. Kelley, a well-known contractor, who was arrested here Wednesday on the charge of being a fugitive from the Mississippi prison, made a full confession. He said that on December 31, 1879, he shot a man named William Smith in a barroom brawl at Moss Point, Miss., and was afterward sentenced to five years in the penitentiary for assault with intent to murder.

On January 9, 1883, after having served a little over a year and a half, Daley escaped. He made his way through the country on foot, working at odd jobs, and finally reached Cottondale, Ala. There he assumed the name of Kelley, and later married. He now has two sons almost grown, and none of his family has ever before known that he was an escaped convict. He has resided in Birmingham a long time and was highly respected. He says the thought of being an escaped convict has made him a physical wreck, having driven him to drink so that he has twice been sent to an asylum as insane.

Not long ago Daley determined to take a friend into his confidence as he was so haunted by the hallucination of guards pursuing him that he felt impelled to unburden his mind. He believes that this confidence was betrayed and his arrest brought about. Daley was taken back to the Mississippi penitentiary.

SHE CHEWED TOBACCO

And Had Been Married Seven Times.

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 31.—In the district court at Fremont, Neb., Judge Grimison granted Gen. S. Lovelady a divorce on the ground of cruelty, and at the same time allowed the defendant enough alimony to pay the expenses she had incurred in fighting the case.

A few weeks before the decree of divorce was granted Mrs. Lovelady was arraigned on the charge of threatening to poison her husband and his children. It came to light at the trial of the divorce case that Mrs. Lovelady is the divorced wife of three men, who are now living, and that she has been married seven times. The testimony did not show whether or not she had been divorced from any of her dead husbands. She declared she did not remember, and Gen. Lovelady said he never knew.

The testimony did show, however, that Mrs. Lovelady has long been addicted to the use of intoxicating liquors, and that she has for many years been an habitual chewer of plug tobacco.

THE WESTERN COAL TRADE

Anthracite Companies Have Selling Agents on the Road.

Chicago, Aug. 31.—The Black Diamond, reviewing the Western coal trade, says:

Western coal markets are uneven and irregular this week, showing more variations than have been experienced the present year. Anthracite coal is on a comparatively weak basis and the market on speculative coal held by jobbing interests and purchased from private sources is causing some comment, due to the fact that occasionally this coal is sold below the circular basis where car charges are accruing. Retailers are also endeavoring to force the market on hard coal and are cutting prices to some extent, especially where they have rail connections and secure all-rail coal. In the bituminous trade Eastern coals in Western markets are ragged in price. On the other hand, Western coals are holding some firmer than they were, and in several instances the demand exceeds the amount that can be moved forward between now and the first of next month to meet the requirements of orders already placed.

In the anthracite trade, for the first time the present year practically all of the large shipping interests are represented on the road by their traveling sales agents. Heretofore there has been no disposition to force business, especially on the part of the large companies, due to the fact that orders were carried over from month to month, and with the new business which kept coming forward, took care of current receipts in good shape. Some coal began to accumulate the middle of the present month, however, and accompanying this accumulation in the hands of the companies, jobbers with Eastern connections began to receive a heavier tonnage from private sources. The latter coal came all-rail to Western territory and upon its arrival had to be moved quickly in order to avoid car charges.

According to papers received by the Black Diamond, this coal has not moved out from jobbers' hands, and the latter are paying demurrage on considerable quantities. To avoid these charges and to make their losses as light as possible, it is reported that on sizes which are in the heaviest supply prices have been cut from the circular basis. In Chicago it is said that some chestnut and grate coal has been sold during the week at from 10 to 15 cents below the circular basis, and it has been difficult to move it, the dealer trade preferring to purchase from regular sources at the slightly higher figures. As this outside or "private" anthracite coal is increasing in volume it begins to look as if those engaged in handling it might have considerable difficulty in disposing of all that is received, unless shipments are curtailed from producing sources. None of the companies is making any reduction in selling prices and none is complaining to any extent over the present outlook. While there has been some accumulation of company coal on the docks, it is not in such large volume as to create any apprehension, but is in reality welcomed as insuring a supply during the winter following the close of navigation.

In the retail anthracite trade the leading Western markets continue more or less dull. For the past two months business has been light in volume and shippers who receive coal all-rail and have yardage room where they have stocked some tonnage are disposed to force sales in order that the money invested may return them a reasonable profit and also that their men and teams may have something to do. This disposition has resulted in some quarters in prices that are from 15 to 25 cents below the circular basis at retail that should prevail at present.

Small egg coal continues to be in short supply and none of the companies is receiving any more than enough to go around, while occasionally the Black Diamond learns of instances in which there is a shortage, and orders for this size will have to be carried over into next month.

It is expected that September will show a better demand in both shipping and retail branches of the business. It is probable that this activity will not become pronounced before the middle of the month, but eventually it is to become a considerable factor. Ideas as to the amount of their required tonnage put away by householders vary from about 40 to 75 per cent of the total needs, with the conservative element in the trade predicting that not more than from 40 to 50 per cent of the quantity of the coal required for the winter has been put away. If these estimates can be relied upon, they certainly indicate that the volume of business to be transacted during the next few months will be very large.

AT WEST DULUTH

One creditor of the 190, whose deposits amount to $130 out of the total of about $28,000, is holding up the plan to appoint H. H. Phelps trustee of the affairs of the defunct Merchants' bank of West Duluth. One or two others have not yet signed, but have expressed their willingness to do so. The one obdurate creditor alone has refused to place his name to the petition, and unless he reconsiders his decision, the plan will fall through, as the names of all the creditors are necessary before such action can be taken.

This deadlock in the condition of affairs has existed since Saturday afternoon, and there seems to be no hope for a break in it.

If it continues, Mr. Smith will be forced into bankruptcy, and the affairs of the bank will be turned over to the referee, as have the affairs of the Commercial bank.

The remaining creditors, while recognizing the right of the obdurate one to vote as he pleases, are somewhat incensed over his action, as they believe that if bankruptcy proceedings are rendered necessary they will not secure more than 30 or 40 cents on the dollar.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

Young Couple Nearly Drowned In the Bay.

Melvin Glyer, night clerk at the McKay hotel, and Miss Bessie McDonald, of Lake Nebagamon, Wis., had a narrow escape from drowning in the bay opposite West Duluth yesterday afternoon.

They had attended a picnic at Fond du Lac, and had secured a boat there, in which they rowed down the river. When opposite the blast furnace the boat in some manner was capsized and the young people precipitated into the water.

The water, fortunately, was shallow at the point where the boat capsized, and the young man was able to drag his companion to the shore. He also secured the boat, and after righting it returned to Fond du Lac.

The incident was witnessed by a number of people on the shore, who were attracted by the screams of the young lady.

EMARD-STRONGEST.

Popular West Duluth Young Woman Weds.

The wedding of Miss Ella Alice Emard, of West Duluth, and Bennett Charles Strongest, of St. Paul, occurred this morning at 8:30 o'clock in St. James Catholic church.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Feehely.

The bride is a popular West Duluth young lady. For some time past she has conducted a millinery establishment on Central avenue. The groom is in the employ of the Northern Pacific railroad, and bears an enviable reputation.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Strongest left for a wedding trip to Chicago and St. Paul. They will be absent about two weeks and on their return will commence housekeeping in West Duluth.

The bride was attended by Eczena Shovein and the bridegroom by Albert St. Germain. A wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's father, Nelson Emard, of Sixty-first avenue west.

SHUT-OUT GAME.

The West Duluth and Duluth Heights nines came together yesterday afternoon in a fast and exciting game of ball.

The West Duluth team succeeded in shutting ou the Heights men, chiefly on account of the brilliant work of Larson in the box. He had fifteen strikeouts chalked up to his credit, and allowed but three hits during the nine innings.

West Duluth secured seven hits off Riecki, scoring six runs, with the aid of one or two opportune errors.

The following is the score by innings:

West Duluth .....1 0 0 0 0 0 3 2 0—6

liberally to all the avenues of human activity, where sanity of judgment and fixed purpose are requisite.

"The tendency to gravitate to the city will in good time be followed by a return drift to the country. Improved methods in farming, increased comforts of farm life, which come through experience and systematic education, will be the magnets which will draw from the congested centers to the agricultural communities.

"All countries are struggling for commercial advantage. They are engaged in an effort to obtain as large a share as possible of the commerce of the world. We observe the contest in the dark continent, which was opened to civilization by the enterprise and daring of an American citizen. England, France, Holland and other powers have long been pushing there their commercial conquests. The eagerness of other nations to dismember China and hold her provinces for the purposes of commercial exploitations has long been manifest. For years the commerce of the world has demanded an isthmian canal, and receit events give us the assurance that this vast undertaking will be accomplished at an early date, under the protection of the American flag.

"The commercial rivalry is an earnest one. The United States has not been an idle onlooker; an indifferent spectator. She has been pushing her trade aggressively throughout all quarters of the earth. She has been steadily securing increased participation in the world's commerce, yet she has not secured her just share. The scenter of commercial supremacy seems to be within our easy grasp, if she but hold fast to the principles under which she has attained her present eminence. She has men of commanding power in the world of finance. She has her captains of industry, who possess the genius and the ability to meet successfully all comers. She has the labor which possesses a high order of intelligence and capacity unsurpassed in other countries. She has natural advantages almost bewildering in their abundance, adequate to enable her to carry the contest to a successful issue. But we can not win in the development of our commerce abroad without an inflexible adherence to wise principles of finance and sound economic policies. Commercial success is not the fruit of unreasoning chance. It is not the result of accident. It is due to the observance of wise policies and rational practices.

"Our progress is the result of the operation and co-operation of many interests through a period of many years. It is the result of the action of great laws of trade which are unwritten, and we should not lay upon the agencies through which we have come to our present prestige and power the violent hands of ignorance or passion, lest we do more harm than good; lest we create greater ills than those we suffer. We should not hesitate to denounce wrong and seek to irradicate it wherever it exists. We should locate it and deal with it, but we should not strike out blindly and equally against both the evil we would remove and the good we should preserve.

"Above all things, we should avoid the demagogue as a pestilence, and take council only of reason and right. There is no wrong we have not the power to remedy or prevent, and that power we should exercise with wisdom and unflinching purpose. We should safeguard legitimate enterprise, fair competition and capital properly employed. Neither the appeal of prejudice nor the voice of greed should swerve us from this purpose. It is as much our imperative duty to protect capital nad labor in the free and proper exercise of their functions as it is to restrain and forbid the encroachments of wrong.

"There is no more vital or wholesome lesson to be drawn amidst these numberless evidences of peace, these rewards of the toil and the genius of the husbandmen and the craftsmen, than that we are surrounded and governed by law, which is as vital to us as the very atmosphere we breathe is necessary to our physical existence; vitiate either, and it is done at our peril. In the observance of the mandates of the law lies the only sure guaranty of those orderly conditions which are the life of trade, and which yield to labor and capital their surest and largest returns."

Referring to sporadic cases of lynching and burning, the senator said:

"The protracted delay and the miscarriage of justice arouse a spirit of resentment which often finds its expression in the unrestrained violence of the lawless. It is essential that there should be a persistent rather than an intermittent sentiment in favor of the prompt, orderly and effective enforcement of the law. We must deal with all infractions of the law through the established judicial tribunals—seasonably, vigorously and justly. The certainty that lawbreakers will be speedily punished will go far to deter lawbreaking. The virtue of the law lies not so much within itself as in its inflexible enforcement. While we insist that outraged justice shall be swiftly avenged, we must not rob the accused of the fullest measure of protection to which he is entitled under the constitution and those orderly methods of procedure which are the fruits of the wisdom of centuries. Vengeance should not be met with vengeance, but should be compelled to answer in that serene tribunal, whose judgments are altogether just, in that forum where presides the majesty of the law.

"One of the surest safeguards against disorder lies in the thorough inculcation of a spirit of justice among men. For without there abides with the people a love of justice, laws are impotent and the ministers of the law nerveless. We should teach the love of justice at the fireside and in the church, in the school room and in the press. We should teach it everywhere.

"There are some in our country who, despite all the splendid lessons about them, have an inadequate conception of the true meaning of liberty. They fail to realize that liberty and license are not correlative terms. Let them be made to understand that in the United States law is liberty and liberty is law. We have no hospitality beneath our flag for those who seek to strike down law and order in the name of anarchy. They may lay their red hand upon the nation's great and beloved chief magistrate, but they cannot reach the mighty heart of the republic. They but quicken the love of the people for their priceless heritage by increasing its cost.

"The deluded lawbreaker is the enemy of society. So, also, is the intelligent citizen who is indifferent to the discharge of his civic duties. If the order-respecting elector fails to secure good laws and competent officers to execute them, because of his own neglect, he must stand morally responsible for many of the offenses which disgrace society. Both the violator of the law and the intelligent citizen, who is recreant to his sacred duty, must stand together in the pillory of public condemnation."

LOUIS ERICSON.

WILL LEAVE BREATHITT

Judge Hargis to Spend Rest of Life at Lexington.

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 31.—Unable longer to resist the pleadings of wife and daughters, County Judge James Hargis, of Breathitt county, has decided to dispose of his immense business interests in that locality, convert his holdings into cash and leave Jackson forever.

Ever since his name, it is alleged, has been accorded such prominent connection with the recent feudal troubles, the members of his family have regretted the notoriety it brought and they have been continually urging him to move away, and against them he endeavored to hold out. Their continual pressure has induced him to yield, and with this object in view he set about to find a purchaser for his property and business interests. It was stated here today on good authority that the difference between $83,000 and $100,000 is what now stands in the way of an immediate sale.

Wednesday last Judge Hargis in company with Attorney O. H. Pollard, of Jackson, and Carl Day, a member of the firm of Day Bros., also of Jackson, arrived in this city and the next day proceeded to Louisville and it is now said that their particular mission was to close up the final arrangements, if possible, for a deal to settle the Hargis affairs. The latter, it is said, had offered Day Bros. to transfer all his business interests in Breathitt county and vicinity for $100,000, but after some figuring on its value Day Bros. offered to give $83,000 and assume the business. As the Days are related to Judge Hargis it is believed that this difference will soon be overcome and the deal made.

These facts were made known when Capt. B. J. Ewen suddenly broke off all negotiations with local persons relative to the purchase of a home here, which he had intended to buy, and suggested that he might return to Jackson and live there again in the event that the Hargis deal with the Days went through. Ewen is no longer seeking employment in this city or elsewhere, nor is he endeavoring to get a permanent location.

Close personal friends of Judge Hargis in this city stated that Judge Hargis had been contemplating such a step, and that in the event of success Hargis will probably purchase a small Blue Grass farm in the vicinity of Lexington, quit politics and business altogether, and live comfortably on his means for the remainder of his life.

Judge Hargis has long been estimated the wealthiest man in Breathitt county, and his business and property holdings, it is said, will aggregate $200,000. He has lived in the neighborhood all his life, and his family have grown up there. Twenty-two years ago he started in business for himself, and by pluck, courage in speculation and big business undertakings he has succeeded.

BIRDS GET IT NOW

Local Sportsmen Are Planning Their Fall Hunting Campaigns.

Bird Season Opens and Trout Season Closes Sept. 1.

The local sportsmen have their guns cleaned and ready for the fall chicken shooting, the season for those game birds opening tomorrow.

During the past few days the railway officials of the various Western lines have received a large number of inquiries from local people who wish to know the best points for chicken shooting this fall and whether the shooting is as good as usual. The inquiry indicates that there will be many sportsmen from this city who will spend some little time during the next few weeks in the chicken grounds of Western Minnesota and North Dakota.

Duluthians who have recently returned from the prairie chicken country in the western part of the state report prospects for some excellent shooting this fall, as the birds are quite plentiful and fat.

Several parties of local sportsmen will leave the city today headed for the prairie chicken country, to be on hand for the first shooting tomorrow.

The duck season also opens tomorrow, but the local sportsmen are not banking much on that kind of shooting at the present time for the reason that it is yet too early for good shooting. Reports from a few localities in the Northern and Western parts of the state indicate the presence of some local ducks, but the movement of the birds from the North has not yet commenced. Reports says that the wild rice crop about the Northern Minnesota lakes will be short this year and some of the local sportsmen predict that duck shooting should be much better this season than last for the reason that the ducks will have to keep moving to get their food and are not so likely to settle down and feed quietly in one place.

The partridge season will not open until Oct. 15. in this state, and not a few of the local nimrods are waiting impatiently for that date. Partridges are said to be very plentiful about Duluth this year, and the better protection afforded these game birds of late has caused them to stay about their accustomed haunts rather there to retire far into the less settled country. Flocks of partridges have frequently been seen along nearly all of the roads leading from Duluth into the country and the birds are said to be particularly plentiful along the road to Cloquet river.

The trout season closes today and after that date it will be illegal for a person to catch a trout from Minnesota waters, no matter what the size. The trout season has not been a particularly favorable one and no very large catches have been reported. There are few of the neighboring streams, however, that have not contributed a few fish of that species. Early in the season there was too much water in the local streams to make fishing at its best and practically all the fish that have been caught were hooked within the past six weeks.

Trout fishing on the north shore, for some reason not fully explained, was very poor this season. A number of local sportsmen have returned from a week to ten days' outing on the north shore between Grand Marais and Grand Portage, and all report poor luck. They whipped the north shore streams with comparatively poor success for some miles back into the country, making the best catches along the lake shore, off the rocks.

The bass and pike season remains open after tomorrow, in fact, the bass season does not close until the first of March, and opens again May 30 in this state and fifteen days earlier in Wisconsin.

Bass fishing has been fairly good in some of the inland lakes this summer, though not as good as in some previous years.

This has been a record-breaking season in pike fishing so far as big fish are concerned. Some of the largest pike ever caught in this part of the country have been pulled from the Cloquet river this past summer. Pike fishing has been much better on the Cloquet river this year than on the St. Louis river. This kind of fishing has been somewhat better during the summer at the foot and in the rapids above Fond du Lac, than at Spirit Lake, the former popular fishings grounds for pike.

ROOSEVELT'S BUTTE "FEED."

The best story of the president's six weeks' swing around the western half of the continent comes from the president himself, says the New York Tribune. Mayor "Pat" Mullins, of Butte, is a rough and ready type of the strenuous life of the great mining camps, and the great heart that beats beneath his rough exterior made the president his firm friend within an hour after the special had pulled into town. In the leading hotel a banquet was served to the president and party, and there big, brawny "Pat" Mullins, with a smile that showed that the biggest man in the country was his particular guest, sat at the head of the table. When the feast ended gradually the dining hall there was a storm of huzzas, and the band struck up "Hail to the Chief." As the excitement subdued, Mayor Mullins, in all the glory of his chief magistracy, raised his hand. All was still. The mayor kept his hand aloft, and finally crooked the index finger. Out stepped the head waiter. It was then up to "Pat" and he "did himself proud." "Waiter!" he shouted in stentorian voice that rescounded the length and breadth of the hall. "Waiter, bring on the feed!"

Again for a minute there was impressive silence. Then Mayor Mullins gazed about him. He saw "Old Glory" shrouding the window just back of the president's seat. "Pat" was aware of the disappointment that surged in the breasts of the Butte citizens crowded outside, and he was carried away by his sympathy. Again his hand, headed by that persuasive index finger, soared aloft. "Waiter," he shouted, "go over to that there winder, pull down them flags, and let them people see the president feed!"

REGARDING SCHOOL BOOKS.

Our educational system has been made by city people, and the country school finds it second-hand, ill-fitting and unattractive, says Worlds Work. To this fact more than any other perhaps, is due the backwardness of education in agricultural states. The school has not taken hold on farm life. Plants, soils, animals, insects, flowers, the weather, the forests and the sky—from all these things it has stood apart; while it has babbled of subjects unfamiliar and uninteresting to the country-bred child. All rural education has been hacked and hewed to fit the Procrustean bed of the city model.

This is a severe indictment of our present methods, but it is not a whit too severe. Apparently they have been written solely for city children, sons and daughters of clerks, merchants, bankers and traders. They do not even suggest to the farmer's child the possibilities of science and training in agricultural work. On the contrary, the natural and logical inference from our great scheme of rural instruction is that education is not indispensable to the farmer, but is intended chiefly for the commercial and professional classes.

LIND AND ROSING

Visit Everett, Wash., and Talk In Interesting Style.

Ex-Governor Expects to See Towne Return to Congress.

Everett, Wash., Aug. 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—Minnesota politics has a rather mysterious, if not serious, look as it appears on Puget sound. With Governor John Lind, new representative in congress from the Fifth district, Hennepin county; W. W. Rich, a prominent figure in Minneapolis Republican circles, and L. A. Rosing of Cannon Falls, in conference here with Former Governor D. M. Clough, and both Congressmen McCleary and Tawney in Seattle, all awaiting the arrival of Senator Knute Nelson, with the senatorial committee that has been on an all summer trip over Alaska, things have somewhat the appearance of some sort of a political conspiracy on Puget sound with Minnesotans in the leading role.

Congressman Lind, accompanied by L. A. Rosing, formerly Governor Lind's private secretary, and the defeated Democratic candidate for governor of Minnesota at the last election, have just arrived in Everett. By chance they met W. W. Rich, of Minneapolis, at the Hotel Monte Cristo, where all are stopping. Goverenor Lind's son, Norman, has been a citizen of Everett for something more than a year, during which time he has been connected with Governor Clough's lumber mill. He expects to remain in Everett and eventually to engage in the lumber trade on his own account. Primarily Governor Lind's trip to the coast is for the purpose of paying his son a visit. Incidentally he will secure a rest and some recreation. Mr. Rosing has left his business at Cannon Falls for the purpose of paying his first visit to the Puget sound country. Governor Lind has been in this part of the world before having visited Puget sound in 1892, and again when the Thirteenth regiment returned from the Philippines.

When asked for his opinion on the merger legislation in Minnesota, Governor Lind said:

"The merger seems to have answered the purposes of Governor Van Sant for one campaign, and as far as one may read the future, there is every indication that the same question may serve him for another campaign."

"That's right, remarked Rosing. "I met a merger on every corner in the last campaign. They were too much for me."

Some one in the party at the hotel remarked that few who know Charlie Towne would be surprised to see him in congress again as the representative of Tammany from one of the New York districts.

"It would not surprise me at all," said Governor Lind. "In fact, I rather expect to see such a thing come about. Tammany takes a sort of pride in having some especially brilliant representative in congress, and it is my understanding that just at present Mr. Towne is well received in Tammany circles. When I was first in congress Tammany's idol was "Sunset" Cox, and a more gentle and lovable character it has not been my lot to know. He was brilliant, keen, and at the same time always very considerate, especially of the younger members, of whom I was then one. There are two classes of older heads in congress, and the same holds true in the various walks of life. I refer to the class of old experienced heads that delight in a study of the young man and in being able to assist him on to success, and his antithesis, the older and wiser head, that cares not a rap about the young man or his ambitions. I shall never forget the many kindnesses and the various little favors I received at the hands of Sunset Cox. Carlisle was speaker, but when indisposed Sunset Cox was in the chair, and it was always a delight for me to see him there.

"A later Tammany idol was Bourke Cochran, and there are others that might be mentioned. Mr. Towne is doubtless the next Tammany idol, and Tammany has in him selected not only a bright and brainy man, but an orator of marvelous brilliancy, a splendid head, excellent training and the possessor of a diction that for purity and lucidity is perfect, one who can hold his listeners enraptured for hours at a time.

Mr. Rosing told one or two interesting little anecdotes connected with Governor Lind's administration. A certain newspaper in St. Paul had cartooned the governor pretty severely, never neglecting to present him with a head much elongated. A little girl of 8 or 9 summers accompanied her father, who was a caller at the governor's office one day. She sidled around and after taking two or three side glances at Governor Lind, yanked her father's coat, and declared in a hoarse whisper:

"His head is just like anybody else's."

Her father was embarrassed, but the governor appreciated the situation and bought a box of candy for the tot.

Another time the governor purchased a newspaper from a newsboy on the street in St. Paul.

"Do you know who that is to whom you just sold a paper?" asked a passerby of the newsboy.

"Naw," replied the youngster.

"Why, that's Governor Lind," said the boy's questioner, affably.

"Ah, gu wan, his head's round," was the newsy's astonishing reply."

Governor Lind expects to remain on the coast for a fortnight or more. He will visit Seattle, Tacoma, Hoquiam, and the other Gray's Harbor points and Portland before returning to Minneapolis. At Seattle it is possible he will learn all about journalism as it is conducted in the West from his friend and former Minnesotan, Col. Alden Jay Blethen, of the Seattle Times.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Much Litigation Results Over Twenty-Five Dollar Horse.

Calumet—Another chapter in a peculiar case has just been recorded. Some time ago James Wills purchased a horse from Liveryman Greenshields, giving $5 in part payment and his note for the remainder, which was $20.

Before Wills settled for the horse he sold it for $25 to a man named Corby; Corby sold the animal to Frank Pardee; Pardee transferred it to Samuel Tikla, and Tikla turned it over to Gus Johnson, a Wolverine liveryman.

By that time Greenshields was looking for his money pretty hard. He found out where the horse was and took possession of it. Johnson thereupon sued Tikla and got judgment. Now Tikla has been given judgment for $25 and costs against Pardee. The latter is preparing to sue Corby, and Corby is expected to institute similar proceedings against Wills.

Menominee—The sailing yacht Idle Hour, belonging to S. P. Gibbs, was stolen by Edward Smith, a Chicago tough, who went as far as Green island, when he ran upon some rocks and could not get off. He was brought back to Menominee and taken by the officers. He intended to take the boat to Chicago and sell it.

Ishpeming—Joseph Reinger, the Escanaba man who is suing the Hadden-Rodee Commission company, of Milwaukee, to recover $18,500, which he says he paid over to the brokerage concern's former Escanaba manager just before the latter is alleged to have absconded with the company's money, has taken steps to force the case to a speedy trial in the federal court at Marquette. He has garnished the deposits of the Hadden-Rodee company in the Miners' National bank at Ishpeming and the Marquette County Savings bank at Marquette, and has taken preliminary measures in like proceedings in other cities, proposing to tie up the company's money until it permits the suit to be heard. When the case comes to trial it promises to be decidedly interesting, it being hinted by the company that its missing manager was in collusion with Reinger in an alleged conspiracy to swindle.

Marquette—The Upper Peninsula Agricultural association has been organized by delegates representing ten counties. Its officers are: President, A. McEachern, of Mackinac county; secretary, Leo M. Geismar, Chatham; treasurer, S. N. Deutcher, New Berry. The president and secretary, together with W. S. Prickett, of Houghton county, ex-Mayor E. C. Anthony, of Negaunee, and F. J. Jennison, of Marquette, constitute the executive committee.

The meeting was called primarily for the purpose of arranging for an upper peninsula exhibit at the state fair, opening at Pontiac, Sept. 7, but owing to the early date and the backward season north of the straits it was deemed advisable to put this matter off another year. Then, to further the exhibit next year and the years to come the association was launched.

The association has already taken steps to encourage individual exhibits, with the result that the display from this region at Pontiac will be the best from the upper peninsula ever seen south of the straits.

Marquette is to make a novel bid for new business. A fund has been raised by contribution and the famous Calumet & Hecla band of Calumet, 100 miles away, has been engaged to furnish music here on the next four Saturdays. Free concerts will be held in the down town streets during the morning, and in the afternoon and evening the band will play selections at Presque Isle, Marquette's noted natural park, where at night dancing will be in progress. Both railroads running to town have granted very low rates for the round trip to Marquette.

There will be no gaming at the forthcoming county fair in this city, as proposed by the agricultural society directors, whose scheme of selling the "grafting" privileges raised a storm of protest. Furthermore, no liquor will be sold on the grounds, as was also planned. Circuit Judge Stone has served notice that if gamesters of any kind open for business at the fair he will have no other alternative than to instruct the sheriff to close the games forthwith, and arrest the fakirs on the charge of violating a state law.

"I had a running, itching sore on my leg. Suffered tortures. Doan's Ointment took away the burning and itching instantly and quickly effected permanent cure." C. W. Lenhart, Bowling Green, O.

The prospects are considered excellent for a series of eight games between the Duluth and the Winnipeg ball teams in the Northern league, here in Duluth, after the season closes this week. Negotiations looking toward that end have been going on between Manager Van Praagh of the Duluth team and the officials behind the Winnipeg team and at the present time it looks very much as though the Duluth fans will have the opportunity of seeing some fast games between the White Sox and the Maroons after the regular league season has closed.

Such series of games would be a popular move for the management of the two teams to make, for there has never failed to be a large crowd in attendance when the victorious Winnipeggers have played here on previous occasions.

According to the arrangements now being negotiated the Winnipeg team is to come to Duluth Sept. 11. If the weather continues favorable it is possible that other games may be arranged after the series played with the Winnipeg team.

For the rest of this week, up to Thursday, the Duluth team will play Superior in this city. Thursday the Grand Forks team will arrive for the closing games of the Northern league season.

The White Sox have taken the last four straight games from the aggregation from Bugville, one game being taken Saturday afternoon, in this city, by a score of 9 to 1 and another game in Superior yesterday afternoon resulting in a score of 2 to 1 in Duluth's favor.

The Saturday game was rather a listless affair due to the abundant errors on the part of the Superior fielders. Wet and slippery grounds probably had much to do with it. Morris, for Superior, was pounded hard, while Gehring for Duluth, held the visitors down well to a very few hits. Following is the tabulated result of Saturday's game:

Sunday's game was one of the best played this season between the two teams at the head of the lakes. Few errors were made on either side, both pitchers were almost invincible and both teams put up an exhibition of rapid fielding. Looie Kline caught yesterday's game for Duluth and played a good game with the exception of one error that was responsible for Superior's lonely run.

Following is the result of Sunday's game:

THIS HORSE RAN FAST.

"Too bad about that McChesney-Waterboy race being called off!" remarked the fat man, according to the New York Sun. "Each of the horses are as fast as the papers say they are, of course it's only a question of which horse could get away first. The second they were off the race would be practically over.

"Why? Why, just because they're both so fast. Look at the famous Excation—Followon race at the Lily Park track out in Jones county ten years ago.

"Never heard of it? And you're a racing man? Why, I don't pretend to follow the ponies, but I saw that race.

"Followon was a fast finisher just like McChesney is supped to be, while Excavation was more on the Waterbury type, and ran from the drop of the flag.

"On the big day most every one in Jones county was on hand, and the rails fairly groaned with the weight of the crowds. The betting slightly favored Followon, owing to her well-known finishing powers, but Excavation was not wanting in backing.

At 3:47 Doc Quackenbush dropped the flag, the old cry of "They're off!" went up from the crowd, and the race was on. "Excavation got away slightly in the lead and slowly increased his advantage until, as they flew by the first furlong post he was almost a length to the good.

"'Followon will get him in the stretch,' said the wise ones.

"On they tore. At the end of the second furlong the horses were cutting such a terrific pace that they were completely lost in the dust they raised.

"Then the unexpected happened.

"Suddenly Followon was seen to rear and stop short. Excavation tore on.

"'Come on, Followon!' Come on,' shouted the frenzied crowd. 'She's been pulled!'

"But later as Excavation galloped down the stretch an easy winner and the dust cleared away some, the crowd saw what had really happened.

"Excavation had been flying along at such terrific speed that he had raised the whole track in dust clouds, leaving a yawning chasm behind him. Followon had to wait fully fifteen minutes on the brink before enough track settled for her to trot home on.

"And that, sir, is why I finally believe that in a really fast race the horse that gets off first will have the call."

LARGEST CIRCULATION IN DULUTH.

TO SUBSCRIBERS:

It is important when desiring the address of your paper changed, to give both old and new address.

A CAUSE OF DISCORD.

A Biwabik reader of The Herald, who signs himself "One Who Thinks He Is a Democrat," writes as follows:

"In your editorial last Thursday entitled, 'The Ohio Democrats,' you deplore the action of the Ohio Democratic state convention in endorsing the views of the 'radical element' of the party and profess to think this action will keep out of the party many Democrats, who declined to endorse 'all the planks in the Kansas City platform.' To enlighten the writer—and others—will you, through your columns, answer the following questions: First—What planks in the Kansas City platform do those Democrats decline to endorse? Second—What planks in the Kansas City platform are, in your opinion, inconsistent with Democracy as advocated by Thomas Jefferson?"

The plank of the Kansas City platform by which many Democrats have been kept outside the party fold reads as follows:

"We reaffirm and indorse the principles of the national Democratic platform adopted at Chicago in 1896, and we reiterate the demand of that platform for an American financial system made by the American people for themselves, which shall restore and maintain a bimetallic price level, and as part of such system the immediate restoration of the free and unlimited coinage of silver and gold at the present legal ratio of 16 to 1, without waiting for the consent of any other nation."

There are hundreds of thousands of Democrats who honestly believe that it would be absurd, in view of present conditions, to insist upon the restoration of what is known as "free silver." They regard it as a dead and buried issue, and that it would be folly to attempt to revive it. For this reason, The Herald expressed surprise that the Ohio Democratic convention should endorse without exception all the planks of the Kansas City platform, especially as such an endorsement tends to alienate the support of many men, both Democrats and Republicans as well as independent voters, who, while rejecting "free silver," are in line with the Democratic party on the issues that are now paramount.

The Herald does not believe that "Democracy as advocated by Thomas Jefferson" necessarily includes a reaffirmation or endorsement of the silver plank of the Kansas City platform. It can find nothing in the writings or addresses of Thomas Jefferson in favor of this doctrine, and it does not believe that, if he were alive today, he would insist upon attempting to revive a dead issue and thus create discord in the ranks of a party that is sadly in need of harmonious action.

THE TAX ON ALCOHOL.

An attempt will be made at the coming session of congress to secure the repeal or at least a modification of the existing tax on alcohol used in the arts and industries. The present internal revenue tax is $1.10 a proof gallon, and tremendous quantities of the compound are used every year in the manufacture of drugs, medicines, tinctures, perfumes, etc. The receipts last year from the tax on distilled spirits of all kinds were $131,000,000, but of course that from alcohol alone was comparatively small.

In 1894 a law was passed which was intended to remove the tax from alcohol used in the arts. It was provided that the tax on alcohol thus used should be returned in the shape of a rebate, "under such regulations as the secretary of the treasury may prescribe." John G. Carlisle was then secretary of the treasury, and he refused to prescribe regulations for the payment of the rebate, believing that it was iniquitous legislation and that the government would be defrauded out of millions and millions of dollars if such a rebate were to be allowed. He took this position because in numerous instances alcohol employed in the arts and industries may be recovered after it has accomplished its purpose. His failure to provide for the payment of the rebate led to long litigation in the court of claims and before the United States supreme court. Claims aggregating $10,000,000 piled up, and the claim of the Dunlap Hat Manufacturing company, of Brooklyn, was selected for the purpose of making a test in court. The supreme court finally decided against the claimants, holding that the failure of the secretary of the treasury to provide the regulations for the payment of the rebate was sufficient to make the law inoperative.

The nullification of this law was an iniquitous proceeding as its intent was plainly apparent. Congress did not intend that the secretary of the treasury should have authority to hold up the law, but merely direct its operation. It was carelessly drawn, the use of the word "may" instead of "shall" causing all the trouble. Congress should now set itself right on the matter, and pass a law that will become operative.

The Boston Transcript tells of a demented young man who was arrested on account of his peculiar behavior, part of which was the proclamation that he was a great man. When his pockets were searched, a gold watch and chain, $6 in cash and a railroad pass were found. The find goes to prove his claim. If he was not a great man, why was a railroad pass issued to him?

Politics will be lively in Cleveland this year. Both the Republican and Democratic candidates for governor and United States senator reside there.

The Newark News suggests that old Geronimo be sent as a missionary to Bulgaria, and the Topeka State Journal asks: "What's the matter with Kentucky?"

TRAVELING LIBRARIES.

The recent statement issued by the free library board of Wisconsin, showing the comparative popularity of books sent to farmers' families reveals a variety of taste almost equal to that of a cosmopolitan clientage. The object of the investigation was to test thoroughly the system of traveling libraries in rural communities and to learn whether they are serving a useful end. Taking two centers, one where a strong reading club had been regularly maintained for some years and one where there had been none, it was found that the circulation at the first for six months was 266 and at the second 210. At the former, Hopkins' "Experimental Science" was drawn seven times and Oman's "History of Greece" six times; but neither was drawn at the second; Higginson's "English History for Americans" was drawn six times and once respectively; as was Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice." When it comes to fiction, however, the second station read twice as much as the first. The stations were practically equal in numbers, general intelligence, and education. The commission maintains three systems of 37, 32, and 12 libraries respectively. A library consists generally of fifty books and is allowed to remain six months. The figures of the third systhem show that in three years the books of the twelve libraries were drawn 8465 times; making the average 705. As each book is read by at least two persons, these books were probably read 16,930 times in the three years. The most popular books in the systems are Brook's "Abraham Lincoln," Custer's "Boots and Saddle," Deland's "Oakleigh," "Adventures of Sherlock Holmes," "A Hoosier Schoolboy," Jackson's "Nellie's Silver Mine," Lillie's "Household of Glen Holly," Munroe's "Flamingo Feather," Stoddard's "Dab Kinzer." The percentage of all these books exceeded 6. Among the less frequently (comparatively speaking) circulated, we find Ball's "Starland," "The Autocrat of the Breakfast Table," Scudder's "George Washington," Montgomery's "Heroic Ballads," Hosmer's "Samuel Adams." Thus far the work of the commission has been carried on by private contributions except the executive work.

Taken as a whole, the results from these traveling libraries may be considered as very successful and show excellent reasons why they should be largely extended and fostered by the various state legislatures.

CAUSES OF LEPROSY.

The medical fraternity is just now having a discussion as to the causes of leprosy and the reasons for the spread of the disease. Before the advent of our insular possessions the subject would have attracted but little interest in the United States. but now, having closer relations with countries where the disease is very prevalent, the subject is one of considerable importance, especially to the people of the Pacific and South Atlantic coasts. The leaders in sanitary research have not as yet found a sure method of checking this loathsome disease, although some success is meeting their efforts. The British government has a similar condition to contend with in South Africa and it has adopted the expedien of arresting every leper that is found and promptly isolating him in the leper settlement. The contagious character of the disease was recently taken up and discussed by the British Medical association and the eminent medical practitioners differed widely in their opinions of the disease and its contagious character. A Dr. Hutchinson, who has had a wide experience in South Africa, does not think that the disease can be spread by the ordinary modes of contagion, such as by physical contact, or by the bites of insects or wounds. He also thinks that hereditary transmission, if it ever occurs, is very rare. He considers that the only practical means of communicating the disease is by eating some article of food that has been contaminated by a leper's touch.

But another eminent physician, who has had years of experience in Ceylon, was equally positive that leprosy is contagious and that it runs in families. This opinion was shared by others, while a Dr. Sandwith, who had investigated the matter in Egypt, declared that not even a husband or wife could communicate the disease to the other. All of the physicians agreed, however, that the eating of decayed fish is coincident with the cause of leprosy and that the disease works its greatest ravages in countries where the people are disposed to eat tainted fish food. One eminent authority argued that tuberculosis and leprosy are similar diseases.

As long as the doctors fail to agree on the main points of the disease, the victims should be well isolated and no chances taken on any of the disputed points.

A professor in the university of Liege recently persuaded his government to permit him to lecture in the prisons on ethics and the conduct of life, with special reference to the use and misuse of drink. Statistics from his town show that in cases of fighting and assault half of the offenders are more or less intoxicated; among thieves and swindlers, 34 per cent are habitual drinkers. Having obtained the required permission he has talked on temperance and allied subjects, and, as he reports, with the best results. The self-respect of the prisoners has been awakened, they have been led to reason on the causes of their imprisonment, and the mere listening of these talks has had an effect of mentally arousing them. This plan could be adopted to excellent advantage in the prisons of this country.

After Sept. 1 a New York state man will be able to boast that his face is his own as well as his soul. Among the new laws to go into effect on that date is one "to prevent the unauthorized use of the name or picture of any person for purposes of trade." The law is designed to protect people from the indiscriminate and unauthorized use of their names and likenesses for advertising purposes.

HOTEL GOSSIP

One of the best known theatrical press agents in this part of the country, is Augustus McCune, who is the publicity dispenser for Louis James and Frederick Warde, and who has been covering the Northwest and North Pacific territory for years.

He arrived in the city at the Spalding yesterday to start the boom for the big new play of Warde and James, "Alexander the Great," which comes a week from today, and his talk upon the terribly mean attitude of the Northern Pacific in refusing to carry excess baggage for nothing, and that he had just been married and intended taking his bride over this trip for a honeymoon, drifted to scenes along the road that would not be very pleasant for a tender bride to witness.

"We were going this way two years ago, and I got out of here over the Northern Pacific for Winnipeg, with the result that I had to lie over at Winnipeg junction," he said. "The station man said the train was twenty minutes late and closed the door and went home. It showed up four hours late, with me in the cold and rain.

"Coming back I had to lay over again. About 11 o'clock the station agent said he thought the train was an hour late, and again locked up, leaving me pacing the platform outside and it was eight hours late this time.

"When I came up from Fargo, my ticket read Winnipeg Junction transfer. The conductor said so, but I told him he could beat me over the head, but he couldn't put me off there again. I told him I was going to Detroit or some such place, where there was a lunch counter. He demurred, but I told him what I said was so, so I went.

"It was late when I got in there. I went into the lunch room to wait. Four disreputable looking rowdies were sitting there and they eyed me closely, as I got a cup of coffee and some doughnuts.

"While everything was still a drunken Indian came staggering in, and with a whoop declared he could lick any white man on the face of the earth, and especially in that room.

"There was a sheet of flame, and a report that sounded like one gun as the four men fired. They killed the Indian on the spot, because, they said they hated to hear an Indian lie when they knew better.

"I began to grow a little frightened. I could see the men had been drinking, and that is one thing I had never done.

"After a little more silence and tobacco chewing on the part of my company one of them sidled over with a bottle and said:

"'Say, old man, you'd better have a drink.'

"He was right, so I had it, and had to keep on having them, too.

"I thought then that it was a pretty easy way of escaping with my life, but now that I recollect the taste of the stuff, I think I made a mistake."

"We all have our troubles and I have certainly had mine during the last week," sighed J. H. Shorrey, a contractor of Chicago, as he sank into a chair at the St. Louis yesterday and pulled a couple of telegrams from his pocket. Unfolding them, he continued:

"You see, about six months ago, I undertook to take charge of my nephew George, who is 16 years old, and I confess that he has kept me busier than a prisonful of convicts. At first it was easy. All I had to do was to keep shelling out spending money and he kept out of sight. Then he struck a hot trail and I decided to put him among new acquaintances. A friend of mine offered him a job in Minneapolis and I sent him there.

"All went well until a week ago when I received this message stating that the sender, George, was in jail and asking me to come to Minneapolis at once. With visions of murder charges running riot through my brain I packed my grip and was about to start when I received a second message saying that if I sent $40 I need not come. No further explanation was given and I decided to go.

"Our family record had not been blurred by a violation of the law since the revolutionary war and I wanted to find out why a black mark was to be placed against the name of Shorrey. I arrived in Minneapolis the day that George was fined $25 and costs and learned that he had been convicted of an assault and battery charge. I found him at the jail and barring the fact that the records show that a member of the family had been guilty of a misdemeanor I was greatly relieved when I learned the facts in the case.

"It appears that on arriving in Minneapolis George roomed with one of the boys in the office in which he is employed. He soon found that his roommate was not paying his bills as fast as he ought to and in order to escape consequences that he felt must result he secured another room.

"He happened to leave a bag of golf sticks and a few bits of clothing in the room and did not return for them until a few days ago. Then the trouble began. He entered the house at dusk and opened the door to his room. Two ferocious bulldogs jumped from the bed and he beat a hasty retreat. He looked up his friend. His erstwhile companion said that he had not slept in the room for a week, owing to fear of meeting the landlady, and that the dogs had probably been put in the room so that he could not get his effects. George thereupon decided to get his duds and returned to the room armed with a shot gun that would have been good for a home run in an American game.

"The dog's howls were followed by the appearance of the landlady's son, and thinking that he was going to be beaten to a pulp George promptly let him have one.

"The arrest and conviction on an assault and battery charge followed. The amusing part of the business is that I am out about $60 in addition to my time because the pup business was a mistake. The dog—there was only one—was the property of a fellow who took George's place as roommate to the fellow that did not pay his bills."

HORSE VS. AUTO.

Dick and his girl's just left us; that's them, nigh out of sight,
I wish him luck, for it's surely a royal sparkin' night.
From our double gate to the court house is fourteen mile, exact—
A two-hour drive, we call it, when roads are good and packed;
But that auto rig contraption of his scouts up and down,
And he says it cuts the distance in half 'twixt here and town!
Well, mebbe it does; but seems like he's goin' at things wrong—
On a night like this he ought to contrive at twice as long!

'Tis part of the age, however, an age of rush and run,
When unless you're fairly jumpin' you can't be havin' fun,
When a couple must take their ridin' at gallop speed or more,
Whith a choo! choo! choo! behind them, and nothin' at all before,
In a rig that can't be trusted to mind a crooked road,
And right in the midst of matters is liable to explode;
I reckon that one feels clever to make the doin' whirl,
But days when I was a-sparkin' the main point was the girl!

When I was a-courtin Marthy I hitched up old white Pete,
And the only think I asked him was that he'd keep his feet.
I wasn't obliged to guide him; he did the rest,
And he rounded all the corners at a mile an hour, about.
When Martha was snug beside me that old horse seemed to know
The likeliest shaded stretches, where he had best go slow
Why, grass and the trees and bushes along the way I cropped!
Slow? Well, on a few occasions we warn't aware he'd stopped!

That was the style of ridin' when I was courtin'—see?
Nothin' to watch but Marthy, and both hands, bless you, free,
When old Pete, joggin', grazin', and cockin' at times an eye
Back at the seat, but sayin', "Don't mind; it's just a fly."
I s'picion there's fun in courtin' at even breakneck pace;
And Dick is the boy to do it—I've read it in her face.
But courtin' by rapid transit don't 'pear to me so sweet
As the rambly, ramshackly courtin' of Marthy and me and Pete.

MIRTHFUL REMARKS.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "Yes, my husband is greatly afflicted by insomnia."

"What does he do for it?"

"Stays out until 2 o'clock every morning."

Philadelphia Press: Tess—He wasn't in our parlor more than ten minutes last night before he announced that he was going to kiss me.

Jess—The idea! You should have had a hatpin to stick him with.

Tess—Oh, he didn't need to be spurred on.

Chicago Tribune: "Notwithstanding what you say about Smoothley," said Goodhart, "he seems to be a loyal fellow. He appears to keep in with his friends."

"He should be kept in with them," snorted Crabbe. "Most of his friends are in jail."

New York Sun: Agamemnon was spending his eleventh year before Troy.

"And why," urged his generals, "don't you take a little trip? You know it's only forty miles to Schenectady."

"Yes," he muttered grimly, "but it is only two steps to paris."

Washington Star: "Does your husband take your advice?" said the inquisitive relative.

"Yes, indeed," answered young Mrs. Torkins, "I told him months ago that he ought to give up playing the races, and he informs me that he has been giving up ever since."

Judge: "Old Gaffer 'Iggins says as 'ow 'e won't 'ave 'is 'air cut huntil Lipton fetches the Hamerica cup 'ome," says one of the habitues of the public house in London.

"Blimy!" comments the barmaid. "Gaffer 'Iggins is bloomin' well safe hin sayin' that. 'E's bald has a hegg."

Philadelphia Press: Cronnick—He's one of the most stupid bores I ever met.

Jenks—And yet he has accumulated money. Fortune seems to have knocked at his door.

Cronnick—I don't believe it. She must have broken right in.

New York Sun: Spartacus was exhorting the gladitors to rise.

"But," they inquired, "what brand of baking powder shall we use?"

Perceiving the hopelessness of his case, he decided to become an advertisement writer.

Outcome of a Vacation.

Springfield Republican: Our latest silver commission traveling in Europe has finished its mission, sent a report on to Washington, and disbanded. That it has achieved anything in the way of securing international action for establishing some measure of stability in exchange between gold and silver-using countries there is not the slightest reason for believing. What it has done, and all that it has done, is to direct attention to the fact that the old silver question is still far from having been disposed of.

HOW BUMPS JOINED THE ARMY

By Bernard Haggerty.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

"Holy smoke! Bumps is an officer!" exclaimed Jim Hartwell, foreman of the Chamberlain outfit, to his fellow cow punchers grouped negligently around the camp fire on the staruit Texas prairie. "Th' little cuss; who'd a thought that little chap would ever wear shoulder straps an' a sword."

The members of the Chamberlain outfit were resting after a hard day's work at the round-up. The big foreman drew closer to the light of the fire and read this paragraph, under the heading of army and navy orders, from the newspaper he held in his hand:

"To be second lieutenant in the cavalry, First Sergeant John Chamberlain, of the Sixteenth Cavalry."

"Yu' fellows never knew th' peculiar circumstances under which th' kid joined th' regularm army an' how he came by th' nickname Bumps, did yu'?" continued Foreman Jim to his lounging auditors. "Well, I'el tell yu'. Yu' see, th' kid was born right here on this ranch, the mother died when the boy was less'n a year old.

"Col. Chamberlain gave th' lad all th' attention he could, considerin' th' business he had to handle but at that th' boy did pretty much as he pleased 'til he was 15 or 16 years of age. Young Jack saw more of th' cow punchers than he did of anybody else about th' ranch an' th' result was that when he arrived at th' age just mentioned he could ride an' shoot with th' best man in th' outfit.

"He was a nice little kid an' not a bit proud because his dad owned th' biggest ranch in Texas. An' talk about devitry, why that boy was up to more of it than any Indian kid ever born on th' prairies. When he could raise no other excitement he'd go out an' stampede a herd just to see th' cowees do stunts on horseback. At these times he wasn't so popular with th' boys, but they soon forgot th' lad's tricks as they watched him grow up a fair an' square little cuss.

"There was one thing, which, to speak figuratively, was always a thorn in th' kid's side. That was his size. All th' outdoor work had made th' boy as hard as nails, but when he was 16 an' it was seen that he'd reached his full growth, he was only about five feet four from th' prairie. This stuck in th' kids crop an' made him scrappy whenever anyone spoke of his shape. It also stuck in th' colonel's crop. Th' colonel had about this time commenced to notice that th' lad had sand.

"Yu' know th' colonel was in th' army 'til th' big war broke out between th' North an' th' South. Then he jilted th' army of th' South an' came out of th' fracas a colonel. Th' colonel's grandfather had fought in th' wars against England an' th' greasers, so th' army feelin' was deep in th' old man's heart. He sort of calculated to put Jack in th' army, but when he came to size th' boy up he knew th' lad would never pass them army doctors on account of his size. So he gave up th' idea of havin' Jack an army officer.

"Th' kid knew his dad wanted him to jine th' army an' also knew that his sawed-off figure would keep him out. He felt pretty bad about it an' made things hum 'round th' ranch for awhile 'til th' feelin' sort of wore off. Well, things went along for awhile, when the kid was sent to San Antonio to school. I tell yu' 'twas mighty lonesome 'round th' ranch without young Jack.

"Well, th' first thing we know, along comes th' news that th' Maine is blown up by th' Spaniards. We all knew that th' news meant war an' in a few days th' ranch was as clear of cowees as th' prairie is of grass after a fire. I calculated to stop 'round a few days to help th 'colonel put things in shape before making a bee-line for Dallas to get into a blue uniform.

"I could see that th' old man felt mighty bad because his family would not be represented in th' war, an 'so I kept kinder quiet along th' comin' scrap. Well, who should come lopin' into the corral one day but th' kid. He made a jump for his dad an' commenced to coax him to get the' wires goin' so that he could get into th' army. Th' colonel could have got th' boy in by just writin' a few words to Austin, but he wasn't that kind of a man. He figured that when one of his family couldn't jine th' army on his own hook it wouldn't look good for him to advertise th' fact.

"So he was kind to th' kid an' patted him on th' back an' told him to return to school an' forget th' army. Young Jack balked at that an' th' next day when I saddled up to ride to Dallas to jine, th' youngster was on his broncho hittin' th' trail longside me. I tried to turn him back but he wouldn't turn worth a cent, so we rode into Dallas together.

"I jined th' Rough Riders, so that's all there is about me. About th' kid, though. He went up to th' regular army recruitin' station an' braced th' buck privates at th' door. He was hossed inside an' put on th' scales an' weighed in a minute. He said he wanted to jine th' infantry an' was heavy enough, but when he was sized up for length th' doctor said: 'Rejected; an inch too short for th' infantry.'

"'Let me go through, doctor; I can stand th' pace,' appealed th' kid.

"'Couldn't do it; it's against th' regulations. Better dress up an go home.'

"Th' poor kid put on his clothes with a heartbreaking air. As he passed out th' doorway of th' building a big Irish cavalry sergeant noticed young Jack's lost look an' said to him:

"'What's up, Shorty; did th' 'doughboys' throw ye down?'

"Young Jack only nodded his head at th' sergeant. Now Sergeant Bourke was an old soldier an' noticed that even if th' kid was short he had th' figure of a fine 'yellowleg.'

"'Want t' jine very bad, me bye?'

"'Do I want to join? Say, sergeant, if you can get me in I'll be years for life.'

"'Why didn't th' doughboys want ye?'

"'I was an inch too short; I am only five feet four.'

"'That's too bad; I've seen some good min at that linth, an' ye act like a good lad,' said Bourke as he looked th' kid over. 'Could ye stand a little pain t' get in th' cavalry,' he asked after a few minutes study.

"'I'd stand anything, and I can ride, too.'

"'Is that so? Well, come on an' I'll see if ye have the real grit.'

"Th' sergeant an' Jack walked to th' back room of a saloon where th' soldier told th' kid what he'd have to do to jine th' army. Th' boy said he was ready for anything, so Bourke grinned an' told him:

"'Take off yer coat an' sit down with yer back against th' wall.'

"Young Jack squatted down an' th' sergeant pulled off one of his big cavalry boots an' said:

"'Get ready now an' don't squeal,' an' he raised th' heavy boot an' swatted th' lad on th' top of th' head with th' heel.

"Young Jack's head was almost drove through his shoulders, but he never squealed an' in a minute there was a lump as big as an egg on his head.

"'Get ready for another,' said Bourke.

"'Biff went th' boot as th' gritty little devil braced himself against th' wall. Th' blow nearly sent th' kid to sleep, but in a few seconds he was up against th' wall with a second big lump beside th' first on his head.

"'They look like two humps on a camel's back,' said th' soldier.

"'Biff again went th' boot right between th' two big lumps. Th' kid fell over, clean out. Big Bourke lifted th' boy up an' sat him in a chair. 'If this don't get th' bye in th' service I'll turn cow puncher,' he said.

"In a minute there was a fine big lump growin' between th' other two an' th' kid was over an inch taller than before he met th' sergeant. Jack soon came round all right an' Bourke took him to th' cavalry recruitin' station.

"'This is a frind of mine who wants t' jine an' I'll go on his papers,' said th' soldier to th' corporal at th' door.

"Th' kid weighed in all right an' measured just five feet five an' a half inches high. Th' doctor looked th' boy's head over an' said to an officer:

"'What a peculiar shaped head. He's sound enough, but a man with a cranium like that won't burn the world with his intelligence. He certainly has some funny bumps.'

"'An if ye got th' bumps he got ye'd have some funny dreams, too,' muttered Bourke, who heard what th' doctor said as he stood outside th' door. "If I don't miss me ma-ark, that bye's got enough sand t' kape him in'm slippin'. Bumps is a good name for th' kid."

"Th' kid was as sound as a dollar an' passed th' rest of th' examination as slick as grease. His papers were made out an' soon he was a buck private in th' cavalry in Bourke's squad. When th' sergeant told th' yellowlegs how th' kid jined th' boy was nicknamed 'Bumps' an' became as popular in th' regiment as he was on th' ranch. He served in Cuba an' the Philippines, an' now, th' little cuss goes an' gets a commission. Th' little devil. Good-by, boys. I'm off to tell th' old man."

HAY FEVER RESORT

Michigan Resort Patrons Are All Coming to Duluth.

Climate of That State No Longer Seems to Relieve.

The Michigan hay fever relief climate is said to be "worn out," and by next summer the bulk of the denizens of the Michigan fever resorts will be over on the Minnesota end of the lake.

That portion of Duluth's floating population for September, made up of the hay fever sufferers, will be increased by from 75 to 100 per cent this season, and upwards of 300 relief seekers are expected before the season for the fever expires.

There are at the city hotels already half the total number of those expected this year, but who are coming for hay fever in 1903 will be a small portion of those who will be here in 1904.

There are two reasons for this. Some remarkable reliefs have been found here in the past few days, one a case from Kalamazoo, Mich., and one a case from Leavenworth, Kas.

Both were men, and they had been through all the relief mills in the country without effect, excepting temporary. When they arrived here last week they were all bunged up, eyes swollen shut and unable to eat, talk or drink.

By yesterday afternoon they were both chipper and gay, and talked with a clear, unhampered speech; which they are using to the great glorification of the climate of Duluth.

The young man from Kalamazoo has been to European cities and his father, who is the leading banker of the city, so near the home of all famous breakfast foods, has a summer home at Charlevoi, which is considered the ideal spot of the world for relief from hay fever.

It is in this connection that the second reason for Duluth's growing popularity as a hay fever resort appears. It is that the large number of hay fever sufferers have played out the climate down in Michigan and will have to have another.

While physicians may not agree on the essential qualities of temperature and atmospheric conditions here, the hay fever sufferers say this is doing them more good than the Michigan country.

According to the most expert sufferers there will be a circuit established in the future, which will take the fever-ravaged folks from one place to another. The climate at Charlevoix and other Michigan points, it is said, is good for about five years. Then a move will have to be made, or the patient will become as bad as ever.

Several of the patients here now are ex-Michigan resorters, upon whom the climate there has no effect now, and they have had to move to get any relief. The cures wrought in Duluth seem marvelous, and the colony will be diverted this way next fall.

The management of the Duluth and Superior hotels will begin active work among the hay fever fraternity in all parts of the country, and testimonials will be accepted from victims to whom relief has been given.

The West Superior hotel, especially, will be featured as a haven for the sufferers from the disease, and a special "hay-fever rate" will be established for the coming season.

ONE MORE SLEEPER

Omaha Puts on Another One Permanently at Last.

After an era of agitation which has extended over the past two years, the Omaha railroad will start the running of two sleepers on the train between Duluth and the Windy City.

Twice has this double sleeper service been established, and twice dropped after a few days of it, as the business which was so large as to fill one sleeper from pit to dome every night, and prevented all the passengers from securing lowers unless they got around a day early, dropped off as soon as the car went on.

But the Omaha has now decided to put on the extra car, and General Agent George M. Smith said today that the service would be established tonight, as he had just received official advices to that effect.

The Wisconsin Central has been running a through sleeper to Chicago from Duluth, which, while it leaves an hour earlier than the North-Western, has been in a condition to give good sleeping accommodations, and it is said that a good deal of business had been diverted from the Omaha's train, which is the most popular and practically had a cinch on the business between here and Chicago.

To hang on to virtually all the business, the Omaha road has caused the Pullman company to put on another sleeper, though it is a hard matter just at present, when the travel through the country is heaviest it has been for years and every car in working order on any road is in demand, and especially the sleepers.

ONLY A BOAT FOUNDERED.

Vienna, Aug. 31.—The report from Cadiz, Spain, yesterday, that the Austrian torpedo cruiser Zenter (not the gunboat Sherka), had foundered off that port, arose from the fact that one of the boats of the Zenter foundered. The boat's crew was saved.

AMATEUR SPORTS

Final Heats In the Yacht Club's Race Run Saturday.

E. P. Towne Wins the Bagley Cup For Golf Playing.

Final heats in the races for the pennants in the various classes of boats owned by members of the Duluth Yacht club were run off Saturday afternoon.

The wind was light, but otherwise the conditions were favorable to the sport.

In the class A event the race was to decide the second place. Siren won first place in the first two heats and Mildred J and Water Lily contested Saturday for the second position.

The race was very close throughout, the Mildred J. finally winning by nine seconds. Last week the Water Lily won from her rival, but the race was called off on a foul.

In the class B race Skip Jack took second place with ease. Captain Osborne's new boat, Golden Rod, won first place in this event a week ago.

In class C. Fritz had already won the first position, but she made a race against the time limit in the light wind, losing by five minutes.

In the race for cat-oats Stroller won the third round and the pennant, defeating Sweetheart handily.

E. P. TOWNE WINS.

Gets the Bagley Cup In Golf Record.

Play for the Bagley cup was brought to a finish Saturday on the grounds of the Northland Golf club, E. P. Towne again being the victor.

In the semi-final round, D. G. Cutler, Jr., lost to Ward Ames, Jr., by the score of 90 to 98. E. P. Towne won from L. J. Hopkins by the score of 93 to 96, and Towne and Ames came together in the finals. The former won out in a closely contested match by the score of 94 to 96.

This is the second year that the cup has been contested for, and Mr. Towne has been successful both times. Should he win again, it will pass into his permanent possession.

In the semi-final round of the contest for women for a similar cup, Mrs. T. W. Hoopes won from Mrs. D. W. Stocking, and will meet the winner of the game between Mrs. A. W. Hartman and Mrs. E. P. Towne in the finals.

The mixed foursome event has also reached the semi-finals and the following games remain to be played: Mrs. A. W. Hartman and D. R. McLennan vs. A. W. Hartman and Miss Comstock; Mrs. E. P. Towne and H. T. Abbott vs. Mrs. Leslie and H. F. Myers.

DULUTH SHOTS WIN.

A Company Rifle Team Beats Superior Men.

The crack team of Company A, Third regiment, of Duluth, defeated the representatives of Company I, West Superior, in the shoot held yesterday afternoon on Duluth Heights.

The winners ran up the score of 751, while the men from across the bay were making the score of 586.

The first shooting was at 200 yards, and the scores at this were 238 for Superior and 233 for Duluth.

At 300 yards the superiority of the Duluth men was even more apparent, as they scored 261 to their opponents' 198.

In the final shoot, at 500 yards, the score was 257 to 150 in favor of the Duluth team.

The Duluth team consisted of First Lieutenant Whittaker, First Sergeant Kjall, Sergeant Dash, Corporal Ash and Private Peterson.

The weather conditions were perfect for the shoot, and a crowd of 150 spectators witnessed the event.

RAILWAY BARS GIRLS.

Stenographers Are Taking Refuge In Matrimony.

Chicago, Aug. 31.—There is consternation among the women employes of the North-Western railway. By a general order of the company the employment of women in any capacity in the entire system is barred. Since the issuance of this order the women stenographers in the general offices of the company have suddenly acquired domestic tastes and matrimonial proclivities formerly unsuspected. Half a dozen of the prettiest girls have already left their typewriters and plunged into the duties of general housekeeping. There are still nearly a score of young women who are said to be seriously considering matrimony.

The North-Western officials, of course, are not averse to the softening and refining influences of woman, and personally are said to regret the ultimate loss of the woman stenographer. But business is business, they say, and it has been decided that women must go. The reason for this decision is found partially in the pension system, which naturally carries with it civil service. Women stenographers are always women stenographers, it is claimed, unless they get married, and are not fitted for promotion under the civil service rules in force on railroads with pension systems.

BELATED FISH STORIES.

Chicago, Aug. 31.—Fish stories from points along the line of the Chicago & Northwestern in Wisconsin are rather late for the season, but a batch were received yesterday showing that the catch included nineteen muskalonge, ranging in weight from 12 to 47 pounds, and one six-pound bass. The former were taken from the Eagle river and the latter at Gogebic in one day.

OUTINGS MANY

Sunday's Fine Weather Brought Out Very Large Crowds.

Crippled Street Car Service Interfered With Many Trips.

The first fine Sunday in several weeks attracted record-breaking crowds to all of Duluth's parks and outing places yesterday.

The number of picnickers and pleasure-seekers was probably the largest of the season, and the crippled street car service was swamped by the demands placed upon it.

Lincoln park, Fond du Lac, Chester park and Lester Park were the favorite resorts during the day, and all of these favorite resorts were crowded with Duluth citizens and their families.

Zenith pary and Fairmount park were also well patronized by the citizens of West Duluth.

The lake trips were popular with many. Three trips were made to Two Harbors during the day. The steamer Easton, of the White Line Transportation company, left at 10 o'clock, and the Moore and America, of the Booth line, left at 10 and at 2 o'clock.

All of the vessels carried large crowds.

The steamer Newsboy put in one of the busiest days of the season. She carried two full loads to Fond du Lac and return during the day, and in the evening took out a full passenger list for the trip around the horn.

The crowds at all of these places were doubtless affected by the crippling of the car service, as many were compelled to miss their boats on account of it, and others who were planning trips to the parks preferred to stay at home rather than attempt the trip on the overcrowded street cars.

SUICIDE PREVENTED.

The startling announcement that a preventive of suicide had been discovered will interest many. A run down system or despondency invariably precede suicide and something has been found that will prevent that condition which makes suicide likely. At the first thought of self-destruction take Electric Bitters. It being a great tonic and nervine will strengthen the nerves and build up the system. It's also a great Stomach, Liver and Kidney regulator. Only 50 cents. Satisfaction guaranteed by all druggists.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Two Sisters Drowned While Fording the Heart River.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Dickinson—Mary and Christina, daughters of Anton Kaculek, aged fifteen and eighteen respectively, were drowned in the Heart river Saturday night near Dickinson. Not realizing the swollen condition of the stream, the father attempted to ford with his team. The wagon capsized in about ten feet of water and the girls went under.

Jamestown—Loren Young, aged 13 years, was accidentally shot by a companion, Charles Mayer, while hunting. Young's left arm was shattered so badly that it was found necessary to amputate it.

Mrs. Mary Burke died at Medina, aged 93 years. She is said to have been the oldest resident of Stutsman county.

Bert Nierling and Edgar Stoulil have received appointments as mail carriers in Jamestown and David Vessey is to be substitute carrier. The delivery of mail will begin on Tuesday.

Fargo—Judge Pollock has decided the cases of Flora M. Douglas against the city of Fargo in favor of the city. They were brought to test the validity of the assessments for certain years, and one of the chief reasons for the suit was the fact that the former assessors had not certified to the assessment rolls. The court held the assessment could not be thrown out on a slight technicality and that the plaintiff had no standing in court, as no tender had been made for the taxes and more of them had been paid.

Grafton—Mrs. Louis Hayes or McNabb, a widow, was brought before Judge Ball to be placed under bonds to keep the peace, having threatened to shoot C. E. Searl, proprietor of the Grand Pacific hotel as well as to burn the hotel and adjoining buildings. She has also threatened to destroy the St. Hilaire Lumber company's buildings which adjoin her property. These threats were repeated in court this morning, and being unable to furnish bonds she was placed in custody of the sheriff awaiting a trial in the district court.

The insanity case of O. Donrocher was postponed indefinitely on account of the critical condition of the plaintiff. The defendant is charged with brutally treating his wife and has shown a good many indications of being mentally unbalanced. He has been a prominent hardware merchant for years.

Minot—The election contest case brought by Miss Flora J. Frost against the present county school superintendent, Mr. Bickford, who was defeated by the plaintiff, was again decided against the former owing to her lack of qualified citizenship in Ward county.

In the election Miss Frost had a majority of over 400 votes, but Bickford contended that she had not gained a legal residence here and Judge Cowan so held at the term of court last spring. A new trial was granted the plaintiff and was heard before Judge Lauder three weeks ago, and today his decision, which sustains Judge Cowan of Devils Lake, was received here.

The case will now go to the supreme court, the parties being granted sixty days' time to prepare an appeal.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Arlington—A man by the name of Hammel, who was working with an artesian well drilling crew, fell into the machinery having one leg cut half off and sustaining a severe fracture of both bones below the knee. He came to South Dakota about wo months ago from Michigan. His employer expects to take him to the hospital at Rochester, Minn., for treatment as soon as he is strong snough to take the ride.

Huron—The Fourth District Medical society, comprising the counties of Beadle, Buffalo, Hand, Hyde, Hughes, Jerauld, Spink, Sully, Sanborn, Stanley and a portion of Kingbury, held its first meeting here Thursday, a goodly number of physicians being present. An organization was effected by the election of Dr. W. H. Lane, of Miller, president; Dr. C. B. Alford, of Huron, vice president; Dr. C. J. Lavery, of Pierre, secretary; Dr. J. L. Foxton, of Huron, treasurer. The board of censors is composed of Dr. D. W. Robinson, of Pierre; Dr. I. M. Burnside, of Highmore; Dr. E. A. Taylor, of Huron. Those present were royally entertained by local physicians, who served a banquet at the Depot hotel.

The open season in South Dakota begins on Tuesday, when the shooting of prairie chickens will be legitimate sport. The present season's crop is larger than for many years, and consequently there are numerous hunters here and at other points uneasily awaiting the coming of Sept. 1.

For several weeks local sportsmen, as well as those from out of the state, have had their dogs in training, and at this time there are not less than half a hundred dogs in this Beadle county, belonging to Eastern parties, in training for Eastern hunters, who will be in the fields next Tuesday.

A license fee of $10 is required of non-residents, and not to exceed fifteen birds shall be killed by any one person in a single day. All game wardens are on the lookout for violators of the game laws, and prosecutions will follow those who take chances.

Deadwood—Deputy marshals brought George Coy, John Strickman and William Tufts to the Lawrence county jail. They were arrested at Edgemont for moonshining and cattle stealing. They got into a wrangle among themselves and took their case into court, where they were [illegible]

IMPROVED TRADE

Lumber Business Livelier Than a Few Weeks Ago.

Dock and Warehouse Work Consumed But Little Timber.

General reports go to show that there is more life in the lumber trade in the Northwest than there was a few weeks ago. This is said to be due to the beginning of the fall trade. While there has been no time during the past summer when the lumber trade could be characterized as positively dull, yet there have been periods when the urgency of the demand was not nearly as great as at other times and sales of local lumber were rather infrequent.

Now that a large crop outcome is assured in the West many of the country yards are beginning to stock up again and this class of trade will be no unimportant feature of the business for a few months to come.

Local sales for the past week or ten days have amounted to about 4,000,000 feet, the selling firms being the American Lumber company, the Lesure Lumber company and the Tower Lumber company, No. 4 boards that were sold for $11.75 in one of the sales now command $12, which price is said to be the top of the market thus far this season. Report has been made of a sale of No. 1 and No. 2 strips at about $2 better than the usual selling price.

Manufacturers claim that the prices of lower grades have stiffened while those of the higher grades are hardly more than steady.

Some of the poorer grade of lumber that formerly never found a market has been readily disposed of by local sawmill concerns this year.

Lumber shipments for the past week have foted somewhere around the 17,000,000 mark and the month's average will vertainly be very large, probably the heaviest for the season in the Duluth district.

By the middle of September the Bonnell Lumber company will start up its mill at Hawthorne, Wis., and run steadily through the fall and winter season. The company has a large quantity of logs on hand and will employ about sixty men. The mill has not been operating for some months.

Heavy rains in the Cloquet river district have helped out the log situation at the Cloquet mills, and the mills there are in good shape for continued operation after a threatened shut-down because of a lack of logs. The prospects are now considered good for a steady run of the Cloquet mills for the rest of the season.

The amount of timber consumed at the head of the lakes this year in warehouse and dock construction is said to have been unusually small, the principal demand coming from the Great Northern company's new ore dock extension and from some coal dock extensions. It is believed that the dock work another winter and summer will be much larger, as the Northern Pacific company has plans for large and important additions to its local warehouses and docks, and the Northwestern Fuel company is planning to duplicate its large piers at Superior. New ore docks are to be built and considerable other new work is in the air. A great deal of the timber for the dock construction work will come from the Pacific coast.

The state health authorities have announced that they will watch closely during the coming winter the lumber camps in the vicinity of Duluth and Superior for glanders, which is reported to be on the increase in the state. The claim has been made that the disease has come through lumber camp horses in many cases, and the health officials will make an investigation.

The Chippewa Indian reservation timber sale is now practically a sealed incident, but the Mississippi Valley Lumberman, in its last issue, cannot refrain from the following fling:

"It would appear that the influence of the editor of the Duluth N-T has been discounted by the authorities at Washington, for it has been promulgated that the time for the cutting of the timber that is to be sold at the coming sales in December has been exended to July 1, 1908. The Duluth paper insisted that the lumbermen asked for an extension of from ten to twenty years. If the timber amounts to a billion and a half feet, ten years would have been better. If there is not much more than half that amount, five years will do very well, though it will be much too short to insure the best results. The short time and the regulations requiring the disposal of refuse will reduce the figures in the bids."

Scrofula, salt rheum, eryaipelas and other distressing eruptive diseases yield quickly and permanently to the cleansing, purifying power of Burdock Blood Bitters.

THE MARINE BAND

Musicians' Union Wants It Prohibited From Public Engagements.

Attempt Will Be Made to Secure Legislative Action.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU

Washington, Aug. 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—The proposition that organized labor threatens to destroy such an established institution as the Marine band of the United States, if advanced without due consideration, would doubtless excite the risibilities of all the people of the country to whom the name of the Marine band is familiar. Yet, in sober truth, that is what is proposed by the American Federation of Musicians, and in this cause they have enlisted the active co-operation of the American Federation of Labor. The musicians do not expect to abolish the Marine band by statute—to legislate it out of existence—nor do they hope to remove the Marine band from the roster of the famous musical organizations which have lent luster to the history of the progress of this art in the United States. But their attacks are even more deadly from being more insidious, and are directed at the very life of the Marine band, i. e., its privilege of appearing in public.

For several years past organized labor has been trying to crush the band. Local theater anr hotel proprietors have been threatened with boycotts if they employed members of the band in their orchestras. Boycotts have been declared against the summer resorts where the band, or members of it, have been engaged to play. Now the labor organizations have extended their field to other cities to prevent the Marine band from obtaining engagements elsewhere, and with some success. Next winter an attempt will be made to secure the enactment of legislation preventing the band from playing, except by direction of the secretary of the navy or other officer in authority.

Already the band has been handicapped by the opposition of the labor unions, and it is conceded by those interested that the legislation proposed means the downfall of the organization. Two reasons are advanced why the Marine band should be permitted to accept outside engagements; first, because the pay is only $50 to $60 a month, which is inadequate to secure first-class musicians, unless supplemented by receipts from extra work; second, that much of the devotion of a musician to his art is due to the personal satisfaction he receives and the prestige he gains from appearing in public. Especially is the latter true of the soloists, who can make their reputation in the musical world by appearing with the Marine band.

Deprived of an opportunity to make extra money, and limited to meager pay, and their public appearances limited to the orders of their superior officers, the blowing of the horn, tuba, clarionet or cornet would become an almost mechanical task, executed with mathematical precision, perhaps, but without the life, the nerve, the spirit of the art. Therefore, says the musicians, enter the $50 to $60 a month "horn blower," exeunt the skilled musician, who prefers his independence to Uncle Sam's rations and scanty pay.

The announcement by the postmaster general that James C. Keller, of Cleveland, Ohio, president of the National Association of Letter Carriers, was "persona non grata" at the postoffice department, has been followed by statements from Mr. Keller to his friends that he is not a candidate for reelection as president of the association and proposes to retire from his position as letter carrier in Cleveland, Ohio, and take up the practice of law. From Mr. Keller's statements it is presumed that while he hopes the Letter Carriers association will endorse his course as president of the organization, he is not seeking further honors and that at the coming convention at Syracuse, New York, during the first week of September, he will gracefully retire from the field. Mr. Keller, it is understood, does not wish to provoke a contest between the postoffice department and the Letter Carriers' association. The contest is therefore left between Edward J. Gainor, of Muncie, Indiana, and M. A. Fitzgerald, of New York. Mr. Gainor has been gaining prestige because of the admirable memorial which was presented to the postmaster general, giving the reasons why the letter carriers should receive increased salaries, and because of his superior work as secretary of the executive committee which presented the memorial to the postmaster general. He is making his campaign with the slogan that "It's results that tell," and is gaining a formidable following.

THEY ELOPED IN OLD STYLE

She Made Rope of Bed Clothes and Met Sweetheart.

Kenosha, Wis., Aug. 31.—A real old-fashioned elopement, with the stern and angry parent in pursuit, ocurred in this county, the parties to the exciting chase being James Dunford, his daughter, Maude Dunford, aged 19, and Eugene Thompson, a Chicago book agent. The young couple managed to escape from the parents, and it is supposed that they were married.

Thompson had been paying attention to Miss Dunford for two weeks. A week ago the father ordered the book agent off the place, and commanded the young woman not to see him again. Miss Dunford had been obedient so far as the father knew, and Thompson had not put in an appearance. Friday night Miss Dunford retired to her room at 9 o'clock. Instead of going to bed she attired herself in her best clothes. As soon as her father had retired she let herself out of the bedroom with the assistance of a rope made of the bed clothing.

She was joined by her sweetheart, and the two got into a carriage and started toward Kenosha. The father heard the noise and soon discovered that he had been outwitted. Going to the barn he got a horse and buggy and started in pursuit. Several times he found traces of the fleeing pair, but after a five-mile chase he gave it up and returned home.

EAGER FOR KNOWLEDGE

Chicago Youth Steals to Pay His Tuition Fees.

Chicago, Aug. 31.—Instead of securing the college education for which he risked his life and is alleged to have stolen the tuition fees from his employers, Philip Davis is now a prisoner in the county jail. He was brought back to Chicago from Denver, where he has been attending college since his flight from Chicago four months ago.

Fred Hayman, supposed to be his companion in the alleged robbery, also is under arrest, and both young men will have preliminary hearings before Justice Bradwell next Thursday.

The two young men—each being about 19—are accused of the daring theft of $440 from the offices of the Postal Telegraph company in the Stock Exchange building. The money was in the main offices of the company on the upper floor of the building, and the men are supposed to have secured it by climbing the fire escape and entering through a window.

The robbery occurred after the offices were closed for the day. The night was stormy and dark, and their perilous climb up the iron ladder was illuminated only by occasional flashes of lightning. Davis was an employe in the main office of the company and knew where the money was kept. He disappeared after the robbery and the Chicago police were given his description and notified to search for him.

STOPPED CARS

Bursted Water Main Cripples Car Service Very Badly.

Full Service Will Not Be Resumed Until Wednesday.

The entire car service of the city was suddenly held up at 7:30 o'clock Saturday evening, and hundreds of theater-goers and others who had occasion to use the cars at that hour, were compelled to walk. Many who were unaware of the condition of affairs stood waiting on the corners for cars, in no very patient spirit, until some wiser but no less unfortunate pedestrian informed them that the "power was off."

The stoppage was caused by the bursting of the water main in front of the power house of the street railway at Eleventh avenue west. The flood of water poured down into the belt pit, and while the fires were not touched, the belts were affected and the engines had to be shut down.

The damage done to the belts is considerable and they will have to be sent away for repairs.

In the meantime the two small auxiliary engines are furnishing all of the power for the cars on the Duluth division, and the service is badly crippled.

But eighteen cars are in use, doing the work that is usually performed by forty-two.

Two of the lines are abandoned entirely, the West Third and West Fourth street, and the East Fourth street. These are less used than the other lines, and the points reached by them are easily accessible from other cars.

"The full car service will not be restored before Wednesday," said Manager Warren this morning, when asked what the prospects were for a speedy restoration of the service. "The belts will have to be sent away for repairs, and until that time we will not be able to put on the full number of cars."

A 20-minute service is being given on the West Duluth line in place of the 6-minute service, and a 20-minute service on the Interstate in place of a ten.

Woodland cars are running every thirty minutes and Lakeside cars every forty minutes.

Great inconvenience was caused to church-goers yesterday morning, and to the crowds of pleasure-seekers yesterday afternoon and evening. The theaters are estimated to have lost several hundred dollars by the breakdown, as it occurred just at the time when the theater crowds were gathering, and large numbers were prevented from attending.

The rush at the busy hours tonight and tomorrow night will also be enormous, and no little hardship will be caused while the belts are being prepared. West Duluth, Lakeside and Woodland people will feel the effects most severely.

For some time yesterday the chemical engines were the only protection from fire west of Eleventh avenue. Shortly after 7 o'clock last evening an alarm of fire was turned in from 1525 West Superior street, and headquarters and number 2 departments were given a run. The fire was in a barn in the rear of a bakery, and there was some doubt as to whether the chemicals could cope with it, but the water was turned into the mains in the nick of time, and two streams were soon playing on the blaze. The damage done was slight.

FINE FOR THE BOYS

Y. M. C. A. Boys' Department Completed In Old Turner Hall.

The new boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. will be opened tomorrow afternoon.

Elegant quarters have been equipped for the lads in the old Sixth avenue theater, and Duluth will have one of the most complete boys' departments in the country.

The building has been thoroughly renovated and refurnished. Bowling alleys, a gymnasium, game room, lockers, baths, reading rooms, and a large parlor with a wide open fireplace, have been fitted up, and will be turned over to the junior members exclusively.

A formal opening will be held tomorrow evening for the members of the association and their friends, and later an opportunity will be given the general public to inspect the new quarters.

The building will be in charge of Norman MacLeod, the junior secretary of the association, and he is forming plans for an extensive enlargement of the boys' department. It is expected that from 200 to 300 new members will be added to the junior membership list during the next two or three months.

The interest among the boys is intense, and they are enthusiastically talking up the Y. M. C. A. work among their friends. The recent summer camping tour added to the interest which the boys take in the association.

The building will be thrown open to the members after tomorrow night, although the regular gymnasium classes will not be organized until October.

Bible classes will be arranged for during the winter, and regular meetings for young men will be held every Sunday afternoon.

A physical instructor has been engaged for the boys, and he will arrive here during the coming month to take charge of the gymnasium classes.

MILLIONAIRE'S WIFE HURT.

Invalid's Carriage Run Into By Draft Horses.

Marinette, Wis., Aug. 31.—Mrs. W. O. Carpenter, the invalid wife of the millionaire lumberman of Chicago, is in a critical condition from nervous prostration and injuries at her summer residence here, the result of a collision with a runaway team while out driving.

Mrs. Carpenter, with her coachman, had just rounded a corner at a fair clip when a heavy pair of draft horses attached to a farmer's wagon came dashing on in front. The Carpenter driver could not turn sharp enough to avoid a crash and the runaways being beyond control, the tongue of the wagon was drive nthrough the side of the carriage and the vehicle overturned.

The collision checked the maddened animals and bystanders hastening to the scene removed Mrs. Carpenter to her home. No one else was injured.

BURGLARS KILL

Chicago Street Railroad Employes Shot In Cold Blood.

Safe at Car Barn Then Robbed of Its Contents.

Chicago, Aug. 31.—Without a word of warning, two men were killed and two others wounded by hold-up men at the barns of the Chicago City Railway company, Sixty-first and State streets, at an early hour yesterday.

The shooting was done by three men, who escaped after securing $3000. Three of the men who were shot were working in the cashier's office and the other was a motorman asleep in the outer office. The men in the office were shot before they were aware of the robbers' presence, and the motorman was killed as he was rising from a bench where he had been asleep. The dead:

FRANK STEWART, assistant clerk in cashier's office, shot through body while standing at his desk; died half an hour later.

JOHN B. JOHNSON, motorman, shot through head; died instantly.

The injured: W. B. Edmond, receiving clerk, shot in left thigh while at his desk, will recover; Henry Biehl, shot in head, will recover.

The robbers took no chances, but disposed of all the opposition of the employes before they entered the office. Choosing the time when the employes were busily engaged in balancing up the receipts of the night, just after the last conductor had turned in his money and left the barns, the robbers suddenly appeared at the receiving window and began shooting.

The first intimation those inside the office had that anything was wrong was when they heard the shots. The first bullet fired struck Stewart and he fell to the floor without a word. Biehl and Edmond, who were sitting near Stewart, turned to see what was the matter, but before they could leave their chairs they were rendered helpless by the well-directed bullets of the robbers.

Johnson, the motorman who was asleep on a bench in the outer office, hearing the noise, started up to go to the assistance of his companions, but was shot and instantly killed before he could get on his feet. Making sure that all opposition had been removed, the robbers then broke open the door of the cashier's office with a sledge hammer and secured $3000 in bills which were lying on the desk.

They then made their escape. Four men were arrested three hours after the robbery, on suspicion of being implicated in the crime, but they have not as yet been identified.

CLUBMAN ARRESTED

For Embezzlement and He Admits a Shortage.

Butte, Mont., Aug. 31.—Benk Crosby, a paymaster in the employ of the Montana Ore Purchasing company, member of the Overland club and a figure in Butte society, was arrested Saturday night on the charge of embezzlement. He admits a shortage of $2000 but the company auditor says it will amount to much more. The alleged pilfering has been going on, it is said, for two years and amounted to about $3000 a month. The alleged system was to manipulate railroad charges against the company and get checks in payment in excess of the real charges and pocket the difference.

Cosby came to Butte from Minneapolis, where his relatives reside. For a time he was clerk in a Butte hotel and then entered the employ of the mining company. His salary was modest, but the social demands on his purse were heavy. His young friends are trying to effect a settlement.

YOUNG BLAINE A HERO.

Saves Lineman From Death on Live Wires.

Augusta, Me., Aug. 31.—James G. Blaine, Jr., proved his daring when he climbed a forty-foot telegraph pole to assist a lineman, Edward Finn., who had come in contact with a live wire and fell unconscous into the cross bars.

Several linemen yelled for assistance when Finn fell, but none of them thought of going up. Blaine was playing tennis near by and seeing the accident, he jumped a fence, ran to the foot of the pole and climbed it rapidly.

When he reached Finn he called to another lineman to come up and together they got Finn to the ground with the aid of a rope. The injured man was sent to the hospital, where it is thought he will recover.

QUEER ACT OF A WOMAN

Committed Suicide Because She Could Not Adopt Boy.

Chicago, Aug. 31.—Denied the love of a boy not yet in his teens whom she wanted to adopt and rear as her own son, Miss Lydia M. Rood, it is believed, has committed suicide. Yet as she left her little shop at 2431 Calumet avenue, her last thought was of the children of the neighborhood, who always had regarded her as a sort of fairy godmother, who showered candies and cakes upon them.

"Go down to the store and take all you want," she told every child she met, as she hurried toward the lake. Some of the smaller tots she picked up and convulsively kissed, but all were so elated over the glad news she gave them that not one stopped to see where the woman went. There is little doubt in the minds of her neighbors that she drowned herself. She often had threatened to end her life, and she repeated these threats last week after Mrs. H. Miller had told her that if she did not leave her boy, Ervin Miller, alone, she would have her arrested.

Ervin Miller is 12 years old and he is one of the leading singers in the choir at Trinity Episcopal church. While Miss Rood was fond of all children, her special pet was Ervin. He spent so much of his time at her little shop that finally his mother told him that he must stop his visits and then Miss Rood began to haunt the Miller home. It was after this had been going on for a week that Mrs. Miller told her that she would appeal to the police unless she kept away from her son.

FALL TERM

Will begin at the Duluth Business University, for day and evening classes on Monday, Sept. 7. College office open from 8 a. m. until 8 p. m. each week day until the opening. All intending to enroll for this opening are requested to cal and make final arrangements. Location, 105-7 West Superior street.

COURTSHIP IN ALASKA.

Wedding Takes Place at Bride's Wisconsin Home.

La Crosse, Wis., Aug. 31.—Two years ago, when Miss Anna Sullivan was a cierk in a store at Gold Run, Alaska, she met George Meyer, a young Klondike gold miner. Saturday night in St. Mary's church they were married.

Three years ago Miss Sullivan went to Alaska to visit a brother-in-law in business there. That was in Dawson City, but later she went to Gold Run. A frequent visitor at the store was George Meyer, who was the owner of two small claims in the region. He was a Seattle man, and he lived for some years at Gold Run. It was less than a year after their first meeting that their engagement was announced.

A year ago Miss Sullivan came home to await the time when her fiance should join her. In the meantime Meyer was not idle. His two secluded claims are now among the richest within 100 miles of Dawson City. He is now returning to Gold Run with his bride.

WHOLESALE ROBBERY

That Has Been Going on For Years.

New Haven, Aug. 31.—Edison A. Monroe, of Bradford, who keeps a jewelry store in this city, was arrested Saturday night in connection with the wholesale robbery that has been going on for years of bullion silver from the International Silver company, of Meriden. He was released on bonds of $1000 in Wallingford. The police there arrested Joseph Pinsker and he was required to furnish a bond of $1000. He is accused of receiving stolen silver belonging to the Innternational Silver company.

There are four persons now under arrest implicated in the robberies from the silver company. The other two are John H. Booth, of Meriden, who was employed by the company, and Joshua Sutta, of this city, a jeweler.

"THE SLEEPY KING."

Walter Jones' Musical Show Is All Right.

Manager Charles Marshall has been to Minneapolis to witness the rehearsals of "The Sleepy King," the big musical show which will open its existence here at the Lyceum theater, Sept. 17.

It is this company, that Walter Jones, the Irish comedian who was with "The Chaperons" last year, will star, and which will be one of the largest musical companies in the western country this year.

He has found the company in very good shape, a big organization with a large and pretty chorus, and the music, which is just getting in working shape, bids fair to have some numbers that will be popular all over the country. It is claimed that this will be the most expensive organization on the road this season, and while it was originally intended to put $10,000 into it, matters have arisen which have caused the backers to make it $20,000 already.

DEATH TO THE TRUSTS

Of Every Variety Promised By New Party In Illinois.

Chicago, Aug. 31.—Freedom from the tyranny of the lords and kings of finance is the offer held out to a long-suffering American public.

Roseville, Ill., furnishes the quasi-political party which prophesies speedy death to trusts of every variety, from steel to peanuts. The leading citizens of Roseville, whose assets are broad acres and whose acquaintance with watered stock is limited to driving it to the creek, are going out, like David against Goliath, to do battle with the captains of industry.

The headquarters of the movement were transferred last week from Roseville to Chicago. The call for volunteers has been out for nearly a month, but in that time several thousand have responded. Organizers will go into twelve states this week, and it is expected that within six months the organization will have 1,000,000 members.

It is known as the People's National Protective association. Its Chicago offices occupy the building at 431 Washington boulevard. Its headquarters will eventually be in Washington, where, with its million or more members, it expects to play a prominent part in national affairs.

"The sole purpose of the organization is to restrain the trusts," said Attorney M. J. Barry, one of the organizers. "It is neither socialistic nor anarchistic. It is directed against an oppression which every citizen feels, and the eagerness of the public to enroll in its membership is wonderful. It is not a political society, nor is it to boost any person's ambitions."

The membership dues are 10 cents, and this amount is used to pay the expenses of organizing. The officers do not receive any salary, and will be satisfied if they retire trusts from business.

In the matter of the application of Thomas D. Merrill, Clark L. Ring, Richard D. Merrill, Charles R. Little and Merrill & Ring, a co-partnership consisting of Thomas D. Merrill and Clark L. Ring, for the dissolution of Merrill & Ring Lumber Company, a corporation.

On reading and filing the above application representing among other things that the said Thomas D. Merrill, Clark L. Ring, Richard D. Merrill, Charles R. Little and Merrill & Ring, a co-partnership, are the owners and holders of the entire capital stock of Merrill & Ring Lumber company, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Minnesota, with its principal place of business at the City of Duluth in said County; and the object for which the said Merrill & Ring Lumber company was incorporated is now accomplished and there is no reason for its further existence, and praying that the said corporation be dissolved and Thomas D. Merrill be appointed a trustee to take charge of the estate and effects of said corporation.

It is ordered, that said petition be heard before said court on the 12th day of September, A. D. 1903, at 10 o'clock a. m., at the Court house in the City of Duluth, and

It is further ordered, that notice of said hearing be given to all parties interested by publishing a copy of this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Duluth Evening Herald, a newspaper printed and published at the City of Duluth in said County of St. Louis.

SSS THE BEST TONIC

In S. S. S. Nature has provided a tonic suited to every requirement of the system when in a debilitated, run down condition. It contains no strong minerals or drugs, but is a pleasant vegetable preparation. You can find no better remedy for toning up the nerves and bringing refreshing, restful sleep when in a low state of health, or sick and worn out with work or worry.

S. S. S. improves the appetite, aids the digestion and reinforces the system, and its good effects are seen almost from the first dose. It acts promptly in cases of chronic dyspepsia, indigestion and all stomach troubles, and does away with the uncomfortable fullness, nausea, shortness of breath, drowsiness and dizziness that so often come after eating.

I have no hesitancy in recommending your S. S. S. as the best Spring tonic on the market. I have used many other medicines, but find S. S. S. to be undoubtedly the only tonic that will build up the system. I shall take pleasure in telling all whom I think in need of a good blood tonic of your medicine.
Yours truly, LEWIS S. FIEBER,
Care Stoll, Hamilton & Co. Lexington, Ky.

S. S. S. is not only the best tonic but possesses alterative or purifying properties, and if there is any taint, humor or poison in the blood it searches it out, and removes it. Many times a low state of health is due to a bad condition of the blood and can only be remedied by a blood purifier and tonic combined, or such a remedy as S. S. S.

If you suffer from debility, insomnia, nervousness, loss of appetite, bad digestion, or any of the symptoms of a disordered blood, nothing will so soon put your blood in good condition, invigorate and tone up the system as S. S. S.

INTERNAL TRADE

Satisfactory Conditions Throughout the United States Are Shown.

State of Provision Market Indicative of Lowering Prices.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, Aug. 31.—(Special to The Herald.) — Internal commerce conditions throughout the United States, as reflected by the July report of the department of commerce and labor, through its bureau of statistics, are quite satisfactory. Receipts of live stock at five markets this year to end of July amounted to 17,734,847 head. Last year, 17,222,004 head were reported to the corresponding date and 18,599,383 head in 1901. In 1901 a total of 374,976 cars of stock arrived at the same five markets, 395,418 cars in 1902, and 341,892 cars in 1903. The total receipts of stock for this year were divided as follows: At Chicago, 8,577,847 head in 170,565 cars; at Kansas City, 2,650,337 head in 54,230 cars; at Omaha, 2,731,458 head in 49,225 cars; at St. Louis, 2,001,945 head in 35,773 cars; at St. Joseph, 1,773,269 head in 30,029 cars. July receipts of cattle at Chicago this year were the heaviest since 1894, with the single exception of those of July, 1901. The increase in natives as compared with range and Texan stocks was characteristic of July arrivals.

The state of the provision market, as indicated by stocks on hand at the five cities on July 31st, is significant of lowering prices. On that date, in 1901, there were 297,301,345 pounds of cut meats reported on hand. In 1902 the corresponding reserve was 209,889,087 pounds, compared with 262,438,440 pounds in 1903.

Backwardness of the season is reflected in the figures of wheat receipts during July, the first month of the new crop year. At the four winter wheat markets of Kansas City, St. Louis, Toledo and Detroit, 11,344,168 bushels were received in July, 1901, as compared with 11,035,087 bushels in July, 1903.

Trade on the great lakes between domestic ports to the end of July has exceeded the quantity of freight handled to that date in 1902 by a million tons. In July, 1901, there were reported 7,004,685 net tons of freight, against 7,582,848 net tons in 1902, and 4,876,410 net tons in 1903. For the first seven months of the current year, 28,628,513 tons of coastwise traffic were reported, compared with 25,718,825 tons last year, and 18,891,257 tons in the preceding year in which navigation opened unusually late. The amount of registered tonnage arriving on the great lakes in coast wise trade for the season to July 21, 1902, was 35,089,876 net tons, and 35,570,688 net tons in 1903. Registered tonnage by the way of Sault Ste Marie canal in 1902, to the same date, totalled 15,093,729 tons, compared with 13,-923,576 tons in 1903. This decrease is partly explained by the tendency in freight-carrying capacity of through steamers to increase at a more rapid rate than their registered tonnage.

Grain receipts at the North Atlantic seaboard to July 31 last year were 111,-576,239 bushels compared with 143,493,340 bushels this year.

Receipts at New York for seven months ending July were 56,626,630 bushels in 1902, and 71,416,469 bushels in 1903; at Boston, 15,617,322 bushels in 1902 compared with 18,852,987 bushels in 1903; at Philadelphia 19,193,904 bushels in 1902, in contract with 22,951,972 bushels in 1903; at Baltimore 20,688,532 bushels in 1902 and 30,587,912 bushels in 1903.

At the Atlantic seaboard the coastwise coal movement for the first six months of the year credited New York with 9,-315,191 tons shipped to coastwise destinations; Philadelphia 2,788,854 tons; Baltimore 892,221 tons; Newport News 891,264 tons; Norfolk 979,434 tons. The total shipments during June from these five points were 2,187,599 tons, and for six months ending June, 14,741,967 tons. Receipts at Boston for seven months ending July 1902, were 2,400,027 tons, compared with 2,566,396 tons for the same period in 1903.

Receipts of cotton at United States ports to July 31, being eleven months of the cotton-crop year, were 7,549,478 bales in 1901, compared with 7,542,234 bales last year, and 7,697,999 bales this year, of which 4,990,016 bales were received at gulm ports, and 2,707,983 bales at Atlantic ports. The exhausted condition of the supply in first hands is indicated by the receipt of only 28,283 bales at United States ports in July, compared with 57,-221 bales in 1902, and 173,237 bales in 1901. The extraordinary rise in price to a scarcity level, has, among other things, caused the shipping to New Orleans of 250 bales of cotton, during July, from New York, 200 bales from Boston, and 2797 bales of American cotton from Bremen, Germany.

The New Orleans rice report for the year ending July 31, 1903, gives 1,758,531 sacks of rough rice as comprising the year's supply, and 2,575,350 pockets of clean rice, compared with 1,997,882 pockets in 1901, and 1,994,342 pockets in 1900.

Among special movements characteristic of certain trade centers may be mentioned shipments of manufactured tobacco at Louisville, which, for five months in 1903, amounted to 19,612,012 pounds, compared with 82,086,253 pounds in the corresponding period of 1902. Zinc and spelter shipments at St. Louis in 1902 were 1,436,111 slabs, compared with 1,463,401 slabs in 1903. Grain shipments at Galveston for the first seven months of 1902 were 1,875,386 bushels, compared with 10,480,702 bushels for the same period of 1903; at New Orleans 9,181,047 bushels in 1902, and 22,212,524 bushels in 1903.

On the Pacific coast the redwood shipments from Upper California for seven months of this year were 162,498,334 feet, compared with 145,555,529 feet in 1902, and 135,902,668 feet in 1901. This growth is the result of the increasing domestic as well as foreign demand. Seven months receipts of redwood, pine and fir at California points were 574,182,255 feet in 1903, compared with 483,561,040 feet in 1902, and 362,718,414 feet in 1901.

Monongahela river tonnage for seven months last year totaled 5,444,732 tons, and 6,055,420 tons in 1902. New York state canals, to July 31, carried 1,638,846 tons, compared with 1,333,628 tons last season, and 1,457,123 tons in the preceding season.

Anthracite coal shipments reached an aggregate of 37,262,447 tons in the past seven months in contrast with 31,134,705 tons in 1901; shipments having been practically suspended on account of the strike in the summer of 1902.

MINERALS OF HIGH GRADE

Owned By Siberian Company In Which F. A. Brown Is Interested.

Tacoma, Wash., Aug. 31.—A party headed by Ferdinand W. Peck, of Chicago, have returned to Nome after inspecting the stations of the Northeast Siberian company. In the party besides Peck were Sidney C. Eastman, W. T. Perkins and Clarence I. Peck, of Chicago, and F. A. Brown, a prominent lumberman of Duluth. The East Siberian company secured permission from the Russian government to explore or develop regions of Siberia through John Ross, of the company, about a year ago, and several stations have been established.

The party left Nome on the specially chartered steamer Corwin. Stops were made at St. Nicholas station, St. Lawrence bay, at Whalon, on the coast of the Arctic ocean and East Cape. Ducks and geese were so thick at East Cape that the sun could scarcely be seen for the flocks of the birds.

Natives of Diomedes and other points were visited with a view to establishing friendly relations between them and the company's employes. Members visited the placer and quartz properties of the company at Cape station, and also saw herds of reindeer being gathered for shipment to Alaska. Mr. Perkins brought back samples of high grade minerals, the company's assayer at East Cape finding them to run well into hundreds.

From East Cape station the run was made to St. Lawrence bay, where the largest station of the company is located. This landlocked harbor has been the scene of many historic events. It was here that the McKay-Bennett telegraph station was established in the early '70s and the United States steamer Rogers wintered after her memorable cruise for the exploring steamer Jeanette. The party was entertained here by Count Podhorski. It is said that at Barankof bay the company has enough coal in sight to supply Alaska for 1000 years.

PLANNED TO DEFRAUD.

Young Lady of Nebraska Will Get Her Rights.

Sioux City, Iowa, Aug. 31.—By a decision of the district court for Mildred Swartz Jordan, of Homer, Neb., Attorney and Alderman C. C. Cathart is virtually found guilty of conspiring with Todd Christopherson, of Homer, the girl's cousin, to defraud her when she was his client.

Christopherson took the girl to Cathart to obtain possession of ninety-five acres of land near the city limits, in 1899, when she became of age, the land having been given her father by his father, John Swartz, then the girl's legal guardian. Christopherson turned the girl against her grandfather.

The two men then exchanged a house and lot in Homer, Neb., worth $450, for the girl's land, worth easily $6500, Cathart paying Christopherson $1450 cash and taking the deed to the land.

The girl's suit charged conspiracy, and the petition is granted in all details, judgment being entered against Cathart for the remaining portion of the land, for the value of a part of it sold by him, for the rents and for costs, the Homer house reverting to the former owner.

END OF BITTER FIGHT.

"Two physicians had a long and stubborn fight with an abcess on my right lung" writes J. F. Hughes of Du Pont, Ga. "and gave me up. Everybody thought my time had come. As a last resort I tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. The benefit I received was striking and I was on my feet in a few days. Now I've entirely regained my health." It conquers all Coughs, Colds and Throat and Lung troubles. Guaranteed by all Druggists. Price 50c, and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

SCHOONER SANK

Crew and Passengers Rescued By Life Saving Crew.

C. Oliver Iselin and Tug Navigator Rendered Assistance.

New York, Aug. 31.—During a strong northeast gale eight miles off Highlands, N. J., at 10:30 o'clock Saturday night, the three-masted schooner Henry P. Mason, from Perth Amboy, N. J., for Portland, Maine, loaded with 1100 tons of red clay, struck, it is believed, a submered wreck, and at 1:30 o'clock yesterday morning sank.

The crew and twelve passengers took to the vessel's small boat, and, after being buffeted by the heavy seas all night and part of yesterday, were rescued by Capt. Peterson and the Sandy Hook life saving crew, who were towed out to the boat one mile off Galilo bay by the New York Yacht club's committee boat Navigator, on which were C. O. Iselin, managing owner of the yacht Reliance, and Herbert C. Leeds.

The survivors reached Sandy Hook at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon on board the Navigator, apparently in good condition, and later were brought by the same vessel to this city. It is believed the schooner will be a total loss.

Those rescued were: Capt. A. W. Frost, Portland, Me.; John Smiley, Boston; Second Mate Charles Johnson, Baltimore; Stewart Preston Grover and wife, Tenants Harbor, Me.; Mr. and Mrs. N. G. Masilous, New York, passengers, the latter a sister of Capt. Frost. Crew: George W. Coffin, Nantucket, Mass.; Henry Roth, New York; Michael Halverson, Norway; Gus Franklin, Finland; Michael Halsen, Finland.

When the Mason struck the main mast and the mizen mast were broken off short and the vessel started to leak badly. At 1 o'clock an anchor was dropped overboard, but it was soon discovered that the vessel would not keep afloat and the crew and passengers took to the small boat. For a time they held to the stern of the schooner, but as there was danger of her going to the bottom at any moment, they cast off and drifted. About a mile off Galilo they made fast to a fish pound, where they remained until they were rescued.

Repeated efforts were made by the life-saving crews to launch a boat to go to the assistance of the shipwreck, but the heavy sea running made it impossible for them to launch their boats. Meanwhile word had been sent to Sandy Hook for assistance, and Mr. Iselin volunteered the services of the Navigator to tow the life-savers to where the small boat was momentarily in danger of being swamped.

It was 1 o'clock yesterday morning when the Navigator located the twelve persons in their perilous position, and it was fully an hour before they could be rescued. This was accomplished in as daring a manner as has been told in any sea tale, fiction or fact. The big tug made several attempts to get near the yawl, and then finally going to windward of them, cast off the lifeboat line. With splendid dexterity a line was sent from the lifebot to a pole on the fish pound and then was paid out until the yawl was reached.

In such condition were the shipwrecked ones that they could not help themselves, and Capt. Patterson and his crew had to simply lift them out. First came the two women and then three sailors. Meantime, under directions of Mr. Iselin, the Navigator's crew had thrown a dozen pails of oil overboard to the windward of the yawl, so that the sea was calmed and the big tug had taken a position so that the wind did not catch her on the beam.

The women when brought aboard were carefully attended to, Mr. Iselin having taken along a chambermaid from the tender Sunbeam. Capt. Frost, of the Mason, said that just before the Navigator arrived they had concluded that the women would die in a few hours, and they decided to try for the beach.

CAUGHT IN OMAHA.

Harry Cousins Caught and Is Released.

Harry Cousins, the 19-year-old boy who escaped from Detective Terry while he was bringing the boy over from Superior in a street car a short time ago, did not enjoy his liberty long.

Chief of Police Troyer received a telegram from the Omaha police department yesterday stating that Cousins had been arrested there, and asking what disposition should be made of him.

The Omaha department was telegraphed to turn the boy loose, as there is not enough involved to warrant the expense of bringing him back. Cousins was charged with stealing a watch from his room mate about three weeks ago. He had got no farther than Superior when the loss was discovered and he was caught. Detective Terry went to get him, and it is claimed that the officer slumbered while the culprit escaped.

TWO ELECTROCUTED.

Live Wire Causes Fatal Accident at Beaver, Pa.

Beaver, Pa., Aug. 31.—A live wire, fallen from a pole of the Beaver Valley Electric company, cost two lives near here yesterday, on the farm of John Galey, at Windy Ghoul. The dead are:

OWEN BOWEN, 16 years old, of Beaver.

GEORGE ADAMS, 30 years of age, a colored servant on the farm.

Yesterday afternoon Ernest Bowen, an older brother of the dead boy, found his brother lying under the wire tangle in a death struggle. Ernest attempted to rescue Owen, and was himself severely shocked. He then summoned help, and Adams, one of the rescue party, attempted to draw the boy's body from the fatal net. His wrist touched the wire and he was instantly electrocuted. The boy was dead when finally taken out.

THE NEEDS OF ALASKA

Good Roads Are Essential and Law Is Imperative.

San Francisco, Aug. 31.—United States Senator Thomas M. Patterson of Colorado has arrived here en route from Alaska to his home in Denver. Senator Patterson is a member of the Alaskan commission, selected by the senate, to visit that territory and report its legislative needs. In company with Senator Dillingham, of Vermont, Senator Burnham, of New Hampshire, and Senator Nelson, of Minnesota, with the other members of the commission, he sailed from Seattle on the 23th of last June and reached here on the return trip Aug. 28.

"The most urgent need of A'a-ka," said Senator Patterson, "is good roads." "Another crying need is for law. Every man is a law unto himself, and the administration of justice is woefully slow. The mining laws need to be reformed and regulated and courts appointed with power to control the territory. We have not decided yet upon what recommendations we will make to the senate upon these things, but we shall do everything possible for improvement of the territory."

HAD HARD TIME.

Typhoid Fever Patient Faints In the Woods.

John Makka, a woodsman, was picked up unconscious from typhoid fever seven miles out of Floodwood Friday, where he had dropped on the trail while trying to make his way from the lumber camp where he worked to Floodwood, where he exptcted to receive medical attendance. A wagon took him to Floodwood, and he was brought to Duluth Saturday and placed in the Red Cross hospital under the care of the county. He had no money and his relatives are all in Finland. He said that he had sworked in lumber camps around Duluth for five years. Bad water in the camp where he worked was responsible for his illness. Many lumbermen have been similarly afflicted lately.

FATAL FUN IN BOAT.

Three People Drowned By Their Own Foolishness.

St. Paul, Aug. 31.—Three people were drowned at White Bear lake last night by the overturning of a rowboat. The dead are:

WILBUR CARLSON and WIFE.

SETH JOHNSON, all of St. Paul.

The party had been spending the day at the lake, and early in the evening entered a rowboat. A short distance from the dock they began cutting up and attempted to knock off each other's hats. In the mix-up the boat was overturned and all of the party were drowned before aid could reach them.

For Only $85.

The Northern Pacific will sell a special ticket for a tour of the Yellowstone Park, including railway and Pullman fares and meals in dining car, St. Paul to Gardiner and return, stage coach transportation through the park, and board and lodging at the park hotels for the regular tour of five and a half days. Tickets sold so that passengers can leave St. Paul or Minneapolis on park train of Sept. 3 only.

If necessary, a special train of Pullman, dining and observation cars will be run. Apply to any Northern Pacific railroad agent for information and reservations, or write to Charles S. Fee, general passenger agent, St. Paul, Minn.

Cured of Asthma

After 35 years of Suffering.

It will be gratifying to Asthmatic readers to learn that an absolute cure has at last been discovered by Dr. Schiffmann. That the remedy is an effectual one cannot be doubted after perusal of such testimony as that of C. W. Van Antwerp, Fulton, N. Y., who says: "Your remedy (Schiffmann's Asthma Cure) is the best I ever used. I bought a package of our druggist and tried it and one box entirely cured me of Asthma, and I have not had it since. I can now go to bed and sleep all night with perfect comfort, which I have not done before for 35 years and I thank you for the health that I now enjoy. I hope that you will publish this letter, that others may learn of its wonderful virtues."

Sold by all druggists at 50c and $1.00. Send 2c stamp to Dr. A. Schiffmann, Box 891, St. Paul, Minn., for a free sample package.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

In a supposed fit of insanity, Mrs. Kathelene Johnson, 20 years old, living in an apartment house at Fifth avenue and One Hundred and First street, New York, attempted to kill her 7-year-old daughter, Alice, by cutting her right wrist with a carving knife, and then slashed her own left wrist and throat with the same weapon, inflicting injuries from which she died a few hours later. The little girl will recover.

In a raid on illegal fishers in Lower James river, Capt. Wynder, of the Virginia gunboat, has captured nineteen vessels. Two negroes, John Jefferson and Henry Brown, were in one of the boats. Brown jumped overboard and swam ashore. The gunboat gave chase and opened fire on the man, who was captured.

The rigid quarantine which was established against Monterey, Mexico, is being enforced against all train crews. Among those compelled to submit to a five days' quarantine is Consul General Philip C. Hanna, of Monterey.

Mayor Johnson, Sunday night, received a telegram from W. J. Bryan asking that his engagements to speak during the coming week in Ohio be cancelled. No cause was given for the cancellation.

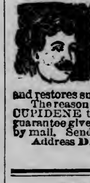

Senator M. A. Hanna, who was taken suddenly ill a few days ago in his office, is much improved.

The Telluride Miners' union has decided to call a strike Sept. 1 in sympathy with the striking mill men of Durango. The mill men of Telluride will make a demand for an eight-hour day with a reduction of wages in the case of the highest priced classes of workmen. Should this be refused a strike will be ordered at once.

COWBOY ARRESTED.

Thought to Be Member of Curry Gang.

Butte, Mont., Aug. 31.—A special to the Miner from Havre says: Frank Baker, a cowboy, was arrested on the Great Northern passenger train at Malta yesterday on suspicion of being connected with the notorious Curry gang of outlaws who had, it is alleged, planned to hold-up the westbound flyer at Wagner, Sunday afternoon. Two men, said to be Baker's companions, became frightened at the large number of armed officers entering the express car, and made their escape.

Inspector Hall, who made the arrest, is said to have secured strong evidence against Baker.

WAS ALLEN IN MEXICO?

Boston, Aug. 31.—A dispatch was received by Chief Inspector Watts from United States Minister Powell at the City of Mexico, in relation to the report that Willard S. Allen, the defaulting treasurer of the Preachers' Aid society of the Methodist Episcopal church, had been seen in that city last Sunday. Mr. Powell said he had no personal knowledge that Allen had been there, although he had heard the report. The telegram also said that the minister would co-operate in every way with the authorities to find Allen.

THE GRAIN MARKETS

Wheat Started Out Lower and Sold Off Further.

Flax Trading Fairly Active and the Market Weaker.

Duluth Board of Trade, Aug. 31.—The wheat market started out weak and lower this morning, the depressing influences being improved weather in the Northwest and weaker cables, and after selling down further, reacted slightly under an improved demand.

Trading was lively on the Duluth board this morning, and there was an old-time opening with very nervous tendencies, that settled down later. September opened ⅝c off at 81¾c asked, sold off to 81¾c at 9:33, up to 82c at 9:47, off to 81⅝c at 10, and held there during the remainder of the morning selling up to 81¾c at 11, off to 81⅛c at 12:14, and closing ⅞c off at 81½c.

December opened 1¢ off at 79¼@A, sold up to 79¾c at 8:48, off to 79⅛c at 10:17, and closed ½c off at 79⅝c.

Cash trading amounted to 80,000 bus at unchanged premiums.

New York reported forty-six loads of wheat worked for export, and this news supplanted the market to some extent.

The world's shipments of wheat last week were 8,871,000 bus, against 8,549,000 bus the previous week and 9,863,000 bus last year. Of this week's shipments America furnished 3,245,000 bus, Russia 2,088,000 bus, Argentine 680,000 bus, India 256,000 bus, Danube 1,760,000 bus, Australia 792,000 bus. The amount on passage increased 358,000 bus.

The visible supply last week increased 493,000 bus.

Primary receipts were 1,720,000 bus, last year holiday. Shipments 750,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 250,000 bus.

Liverpool wheat closed ⅛@⅜c lower. Chicago September closed ¾-⅞c off. Minneapolis September closed ¾c off. New York September closed 1¼c off.

The world's shipments of corn last week were 5,614,000 bus against 4,070,000 bus the previous week and 2,227,000 bus last year.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 564 cars, and at Chicago 137, a total of 701 cars, against 570 last week.

The amount on passage increased 2,579,000 bus. The visible supply last week increased 539,000 bus.

Primary receipts were 769,000 bus, last year, holiday. Shipments 1,637,000 bus. Clearances were 194,000 bus. Corn in the Liverpool market closed unchanged to ⅛d lower. December corn in Chicago closed unchanged to ⅛c off, and December oats a shade off.

Flax trading was fairly active on the Duluth board, and the market weaker. September closed 1¼c off at 69¼c, October lost 1¼c, November 1¾c and December 1½c. Rye closed ⅝c up.

The closing prices on the Duluth board were as follows:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Weather and Cables Caused Drop In Wheat.

Chicago, Aug. 31.—Better weather in the Northwest and weaker cables caused a drop of from ¾c to ⅞c in wheat and September started at 80¾c to 80¾c. December at 81⅜c to 81½c. A better tone resulted from an improved demand, prices going to the ⅝c mark. Duluth and Minneapolis reported receipts of 561 cars, which with local receipts of 137 cars, six of contract grade, made total receipts for the three points of 701 cars, against 570 last week.

Commission houses took offerings freely and after a slight reaction due to liquidation on the advance bid the price of September up to 80¾c, with December at 81¾c. The tone became easier toward the close, however, on more favorable weather reports and September broke to 79⅞c, rallying to 80⅛@¼c, the final figure, at a loss of ⅜@⅞c. December closed ½c lower at 81⅜@½c.

Compared with wheat the corn market is a strong one. There was an easier feeling at the start, with September at 50¾c to 50⅞c and December at 51c, but buying by locals caused a firmer feeling and the former went to 51c, the latter to 51¼c. Cables were steady, weather cold. Receipts 425 cars, 67 contract.

The market held nearly steady at the advance until near the close, when it eased off a trifle, September showing a net loss of ⅛@¼c at 50⅝c, with December a shade lower at 50¾@⅞c.

Oats were a little lower on better weather and in sympathy with wheat and corn, September being quoted at 34⅝c and December at 36c. September went to 35⅞c early in the session. Receipts 175 cars.

The lard situation continued strong, with September 5c higher at $8.55, but other provisions were lower in sympathy with stock yards conditions and September pork opened at $12.45. Ribs at $7.50. Commission houses had ribs for sale.

Close: Wheat—September, 80¼@¾c; old, 80¾c; December, 81⅜@½c; old, 81½c; May, 83½@⅝c. Corn—August, 50⅝c; September, 50⅝c; December, 50¾@⅞c; May, 51c. MINNEAPOLIS WHEAT.

Minneapolis, Aug. 31.—Close—Wheat, September 81¼c; December 79½c. On track 1 hard 86¾c; 1 northern 85¾c; 2 northern 83¼c; 3 northern 79@80½c.

NEW YORK GRAIN.

New York, Aug. 31.—Close: Wheat—September 96⅜c; December 86⅞c. Corn—

GRAIN GOSSIP.

"The Northwestern rains the past week have cost us ten days in the spring wheat movement," says P. B. Smith, president of the St. Anthony Elevator company of Minneapolis. "The rains have also taken something off the quality of the grain, and I think have somewhat lessened the quantity. The storms came at just a critical time. There was a general heavy rain over the spring wheat territory last Sunday after the harvesting had been under way about two days, and there was another heavy rain Wednesday. The experience not only means delay in the movement, but it also means delay in the availability of the wheat. There will be damp and tough wheat, something that cannot be used without mixing and drying. These rains swelled the berry somewhat where the wheat was exposed, burst the covering and more or less grain will be lost. In that way there will be some lessening of the quantity of wheat. It has been a very serious week for the grain people in the Northwest, and has more or less changed the entire prospect."

Says the Chicago Record-Herald: "The very high quality of the wheat this year is counting against big profits for the elevator men. The latter makes the most money in years when the quality is uneven, and when the man without elevator facilities must sacrifice to the man who has the warehouses for cleaning, drying and saving the crop. There will be on such money made in handling the present fine crop of wheat as was made last year in handling the wet crop."

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: Wheat—Market ¼@¾ lower. Easier cables and better weather in the Northwest were the depressing influences. The deliveries on September contracts tomorrow also hang over the market and caused some liquidation There is no change in the cash position. Demand was good, prices firm to a shade higher in the southwest, markets Mills using soft wheat having difficulty in supplying their immediate wants. There was a rather better export demand. There is some little talk of damage to wheat in stock in Nebraska and the Northwest by the recent rains, but so far nothing of speculative importance If there is a weak feature in the situation, it is the slow export demand, but with rendizations of stocks and the crops now being harvested abroad, it does not seem as though foreign buyers could remain indifferent much longer. We are still inclined to feel that wheat is a purchase on the weak spots.

Corn—The market is unchanged. There is nothing in the cash situation to move prices either way, nor is there much certainty about the crop outcome. Conditions are so uneven that reports are extreme in both directions. Nobody predicts a big crop nor a full yield. If the weather should turn warm again the bears would probably have the best of it temporarily, but until there is a greater degree of certainty any material and permanent change is not likely.

Oats—Market is about unchanged. The cash situation is a healthy one and speculative operations about at a stand off. The action of corn is, we think, more likely to affect the price of oats than anything in immediate conditions pertaining directly to the oat market.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, Aug. 31.—The cotton market opened easy 1 point higher to 7 points lower under much poorer cables than expected, but was almost at once rallied by aggressive clique support, and covering with September and October showing particular firmness, the former selling at 11.55, or net 8 points higher, while the latter reported 10.71 with balance of list reaching to around Saturday's finals. At this level heavier realizing was attracted and there was also considerable bear pressure under which the market reached in an irregular manner to within a few points of the opening prices.

Cotton spot closed steady; middling uplands, 12.75; middling gulf, 13.00; sales, 8719 bales. Cotton futures closed firm; September, 11.71; October, 10.20; November, 10.46; December, 10.08; January, 10.40; February, 10.38; March, 10.39.

STEADY IN STOCKS

And the Market Was Inclined to Be Strong.

Prices Eased Off On Profit-Taking Near Closing.

New York, Aug. 31.—Prices advanced an average of a small fraction on a moderate volume of opening dealings. Metropolitan securities and Metropolitan street railway rose 2 points each on the reports of a transfer of a large block to important interests. Tenn. Coal rose ¾ and St. Paul ½. There were declines of ⅛ in Southern Pacific, Reading and Southern railway, which were the only exceptions to the advancing tendency.

A better demand arose for the general railroad list following the rise in the specialties and a number of the leaders made sharp advances. The local traction group continued to show the most strength, Metropolitan advancing 5 and Brooklyn Transit 1¾. Gains at other points reached 1 to 1½ in New York Central, Pennsylvania, D. & H., St. Paul, Rock Island pfd., Atchison, Southern Railroad, pfd., Missouri Pacific, Union Pacific, Colorado and Southern second pfd., National of Mexico pfd, D. & R. G. pfd, Sugar, Chicago Terminal pfd, Copper, American Car pfd, Smelting, General Electric, Realty pfd and Pacific Mail, New Jersey Central advanced 2¾. Ice pfd declined a point. Business was quite active on the rise.

After a number of additional one point advances the demand slackened and in the succeeding dullness prices slipped back a considerable fraction. There was a rise of ¾ in D. & R. G. of 2¼ in Chicago & Alton pfd and of 3 in Railroad Steel Spring pfd. A rise in St. Paul at noon of 2 over Saturday stiffened the market to the best. Bonds were firm at noon.

Large blocks of some of the western stocks were bought on a rising scale and the market generally improved a further fraction. Profit-taking in Copper forced it below last week's close and other stocks sold off a small fraction and became dull.

Steady selling of Amalgamated lowered it 15 points below Saturday's close and produced more general selling. The local tractions felt off from 1 to 2 points below the best and large losses on odd lots were made. Really preferred advanced 2¼.

The market developed a sagging tendency again but became almost stagnant on the way down. The close was very dull and steady.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: I expect to see Colorado Fuel and Iron between 100 and 150 eventually. My advice is to stand pat on stocks you bought at lower figures. Buy cautiously a little corner St. Paul or any of the Pacifics. This is a sneaking bull market and should advance till Tuesday afternoon. Then there may be a setback of about a point with stocks a buy on weakness Wednesday afternoon. When we get a three consecutive days' advance you can sell all your long stocks and think about getting short.

Town Topics says: "We look for a strong market and further improvement today, but advise taking profits on advance as the speculation is too narrow and professional to warrant any extended upward movement. The reported purchase of Metropolitan securities controlled by the Whitney Ryan syndicate is offset speculatively by Judge Clancy's decision against the Amalgamation in the Nipper mine case, which will be appealed. The Standard Oil party is not yet ready to bull the market, and fair profits should be realized from short sales at the higher levels. London early market for Americans unchanged.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: Market averages a little higher. It is still quiet with small volume of general business. Absence of selling pressure from long stocks is still a characteristic. Investment buying is rather slow, but it is quite noticeable that the feeling of apprehension as to a probable tight money market is rapidly wearing away. The tendency on loans of every character is easier. Speculative buying has not reached the confident point, but conditions are favorable for its growth. We still feel that stocks are worth the money and that the tendency will be higher.

Walker Bros. to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market today was steady and inclined to be strong. There was short covering at the opening. The strength continued in the afternoon, but before the close there was profit taking and prices eased off. We look for a traders' market for some time to come.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: By an early rally and a later display of weakness, Amalgamated was responsible for some selling of coppers today. Coppers had a good rally in London and we are told that the chances favor a higher metal market. We like the way the stock market is acting and believe good stocks are a buy on reactions.

STRUCK A REEF

Canadian Vessel Colvin Hurts Herself Badly on North Shore.

Is Towed to Duluth By the Tug Tom Dowling.

The steamer D. D. Calvin, which is owned by the Calvin company, Ltd., of Garden Island, Ont., arrived in port last evening in tow of the tug Dowling of the Independent line.

The Calvin ran ashore near Grand Marais in the high wind of Thursday night. Her captain caught the steamer Easton, of the White Line Transportation company and came to Duluth for tugs. He secured the Dowling and left Saturday evening for the scene of the wreck.

The Dowling made quick work of the job, and reached Duluth last evening with her tow, which was taken to the shipyards of the Superior Shipbuilding company for repairs.

Every bucket is gone from the steamer's propellor, but the damage aside from this is not thought to be heavy, although the boat was leaking somewhat when she arrived in the harbor. The steel shoe is also torn from her keel.

The Calvin is a steamer of 483 net tons, 166 feet in length and 32 feet in beam. She was built in 1883. It will be some days before the repairs to the steamer are completed.

TERRIBLE EXPERIENCE

Of the Crew of the Steamer Rhodes.

Marquette, Aug. 31.—After a terrible experience in the northeast gale on Lake Superior Saturday, the steamer Robert R. Rhodes, yesterday morning limped into port with the barge George Gerger in tow. Both boats were full of water and the crews were exhausted from steady work at the pumps to keep the vessels from foundering beneath them. None of them ever expected to reach port, and stood at their work during the night with life preservers strapped about them. The immense seas at times swept clear across the decks of the deeply laden craft so that it was impossible to walk from one end to the other. Several of the crew narrowly escaped being washed overboard.

The two boats left Duluth with cargoes of iron ore for Lake Erie ports. As the vessels proceeded down the lake, the northeast storm set in, and when Keweanee Point was rounded the seas were rolling mountain high. Fearing to expose the broadsides of the heavily laden vessels to the storm in an effort to reach a haven of safety along the south shore, the captain of the Rhodes held his course directly into the teeth of the northeaster. Unable to make headway or hold his own against the gale, he finally decided to run into this port. Once in the trough of the sea, the waves threatened to engulf the two vessels. The upper works on both boats were crushed in by the weight of water thrown against them.

Early yesterday morning distress signals of the Rhodes were heard off this port and the tug Wisconsin hurried to the assistance. The small craft with great difficulty managed to bring the George Ineo port, while the Rhodes, freed of her burden, reached the shelter of the breakwater.

THE PITTSBURG BURNED.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 31.—The passenger steamer Pittsburg, running between Cleveland and Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., and owned by the Georgian Bay Transportation company of which W. J. Brown of this city, is manager, burned to the water's edge at her dock in Sandwich, Ont., early last night. The crew escaped unharmed. When asked to estimate the loss, Manager Brown said that the boat was rated by the insurance companies at $60,000. The craft was insured for $27,000 and $40,000 more was recently ordered placed on it, but whether or not it was in force yet is not known.

GET BUSY AGAIN

Court Officials Will Work After the Summer Dullness.

Will Be Sixty Criminal Cases For Grand Jury's Action.

The September term of district court will open Wednesday morning, when the grand jury will be summoned, and over sixty criminal cases attracting its attention will be taken up.

The court officers are busy preparing for the opening of the three courts, and booming business in the court house, where there has been quite a vacation all summer.

The list of grand and petit jurors has not been made public as yet as several have not yet been summoned, but it will be out by tomorrow.

Of the sixty criminal cases to come up five are charges of murder, which will be investigated by the grand jury, and indictments returned, probably in each case. The murders are none of Duluth origin, but have been committed in some of the mining towns. It is quite a list of the most serious crime for one term.

The case of Ernest Johnson will be one to come before the grand jury in which there is a great deal of interest, owing to the question as to whether or not a criminal act has been committed by the kid.

There is one case against the range gamblers, that of the man arrested a couple of weeks ago in a county attorney's raid, and who is now out on bond.

The court officers look forward to a long term, as there are many long cases which are likely to last several days' apiece.

Dr. and Mrs. R. J. Blackeman, of Indianapolis, arrived in Duluth today and will spend some time visiting Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Kitchell, 222 Fifteen avenue East.

Herbert E. Gooch, manager of the Coe Commission company's branch in Duluth, returned this morning from St. Paul with his bride of two days, and will arrange to reside here in the future. They are stopping at the St. Louis hotel at present.

Miss Florence Mackey, who has been visiting her sisters, Misses Melen and Marie Mackey, of 524 Fifty-seventh avenue West, has returned to her home in Mason City, Ia.

Charles A. Moore and Mrs. Moore, who until a day or two ago was Miss Whitaker, a sister of E. A. Whitaker, former general agent of the St. Paul & Duluth road, in this city, are guests at the Spalding. They will remain until tomorrow night, when they leave for a wedding trip on the Great Lakes.

Albert Ingalsbe returned this morning from a business trip on the range.

Miss May Mogler returned Saturday from a month's visit in the mountains, near Denver, Col.

Tilton Lewis, of the St. Louis hotel, was among the Duluthians that left this morning to attend the state fair.

Mrs. M. C. Clelland will leave this evening over the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic for Detroit.

F. H. MacLeod, of Chisholm, Minn., is in the city today.

Mrs. A. M. Marshall and R. D. Marshall will leave this afternoon over the Omaha for Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Siewert will leave for New York this evening.

Your Boy's Clothes

for fall now ready. M. S. Burrows.

SUITS ON BONDS.

Eastern Man Sues the Township of Duluth.

L. S. Clagett, of Blairville, Penn., began suit yesterday in the United States district court to recover $3000 which, he claims, to be due him in principal and interest, from the township of Duluth.

In 1898 ten coupon bonds of $1000 each were issued, with interest coupons attached to them, to be redeemed in the sum of $60, payable on the first of each year until the bonds fell due.

The Trowbridge company, a corporation organized under the laws of New Jersey, purchased the entire issue, and the plaintiff in the present suit, secured three of the bonds from the company.

He asks for a judgment of $3900, which includes the value of the bonds, with interest at 6 per cent.

Vanderslice Leaves.

G. W. Vanderslice, formerly superintendent of the Northern Pacific road, who recently accepted a position with the Rock Island system, will leave Duluth tonight. He will meet Mrs. Vanderslice, who left yesterday morning, at St. Paul. Superintendent Blanchard, who takes the position made vacant by Superintendent Vanderslice, has leased the old Sutton residence on Eighteenth avenue east.

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

Philadelphia, Aug. 31.—Rev. J. S. McConnell, recording secretary of the board of church extensions of the M. E. church, died today. Dr. McConnell was until recently secretary of the Philadelphia conference of the Twentieth century fund, in which capacity he was instrumental in raising $1,710,000. He was 61 years old.

Cincinnati, Aug. 31—John Carlisle, one of the most prominent and formerly one of the wealthiest men in Cincinnati, died today aged 67 years. He constructed part of the Ohio and Mississippi railroad, was formerly vice president of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton railroad, trustee of the Southern railroad.

Denver, Aug. 31.—Gen. Don Carlos, a distinguished scholar and linquist died at his home in this city today. He was born in New Orleans in 1825 of Spanish parents. His great great grandfather was sent by the Spanish king to America to be governor general of the entire Spanish possessions in the new world.

LETTER CARRIERS

Holding Fourteenth Annual Convention at Syracuse.

Syracuse, Aug. 31.—The fourteenth annual convention of the Association of Letter Carriers opened here today with nearly 1000 delegates present. President J. C. Keller opened the convention and reports of officers were received showing the organization to be in a prosperous condition.

Partisans of Portland, Ore., Minneapolis, and Quincy, Ill., are making a lively fight for the next convention which will be held in 1905.

President Keller has not yet announced his candidacy for re-election but it is understood he will be in the field. The New York delegation is making a strong canvass for M. A. Fitzgerald, president of the New York city association. Another prominent candidate is Edward J. Gaynor of Muncie, Ind.

AMES MOTION DENIED.

Only Supreme Court Between Doctor and Prison.

Minneapolis, Aug. 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Elliot of the Hennepin district court has denied Dr. A. A. Ames' motion for a new trial. Nothing now remains between the former mayor and six years in the penitentiary for bribery, except an appeal to the supreme court. The case will be certified at the October term, although this last effort is generally conceded to be a vain one.

TO COMMAND AT KIEL.

Berlin, Aug. 31.—A cabinet order issued assigned Admiral Prince Henry of Prussia to command the naval station at Kiel. Admiral Kiester succeeds the prince in command of the first active squadron.

Music Lessons Free.

The Bradbury School of Music is offering fifteen free and partial scholarships. This means that you have a chance to get music lessons absolutely free. For particulars apply at the office of the school, No. 10 Columbus building, Duluth.

ONE MORE CROWD

Omaha Will Run Probably Last Excursion of the Year.

Coming From Baraboo and Intermediate Points Sept. 11.

One more crowd of excursionists will visit Duluth this season.

The Omaha road will run an excursion from Wisconsin points on Friday, September 11. The train will stop at Baraboo, North Freedom, Ablemans, Reedsburg, La Valle, Wonewoc and Union Centre.

The special train bearing the excursionists will leave Baraboo at 10:55 o'clock Thursday evening, and will arrive in Duluth the following morning at 9 o'clock.

The excursionists may remain either one or two days in Duluth, returning by the special train Saturday evening at 5 o'clock or Sunday evening at the same hour.

A rate of $4.50 has been made for the round trip to either Duluth or Superior.

This will probably be the last summer excursion of the year. The former ones have been very successful, bringing large crowds from all parts of the surrounding country to the head of the lakes. These Wisconsin points, however, have not been touched yet this year, and a very large crowd is expected, if the weather is favorable.

ACTUARIES MEET

International Congress In Session at New York.

Address By Secretary of Commerce and Labor Cortelyou.

New York, Aug. 31.—The fourth International Congress of Actuaries met in this city today. The delegates include men from several foreign countries. Secretary of Commerce and Labor George B. Cortelyou, who is an honorary member, was delegated by the president to open the session, and delivered an address. The session will continue for a week. Secretary Cortelyou's address was in part as follows:

While insurance may have been known to the ancients, its principal development has been during late years through the exigencies of modern commerce. In the beginnings of mercantile dealings men were unable financially, as individuals, to bear great losses. They learned that in the division of risks among other numbers personal losses would be small. From this mutual practice in respect to losses that would otherwise have fallen heavily upon each came insurance on commercial lines, and, as has been well said, today no prudent person engages in any large business enterprise, dealing either in building, transportation or manufacture, who does not seek shelter under a policy of insurance. It orliginated probably in the insurance of ships; it has been carried to almost every industry subject to losses through the act of man or the elements.

Annuities are of great antiquity. Life insurance, so-called, was a mere wager between one man and another until the first permanent life company was organized. This, I am informed, was the Amicable society, which lasted something over 161 years, after which its business was taken over by another office. The oldest life company was established in 1756, and still exists in London.

The first permanent life company in this country—one of the great institutions whose officials are numbered in your gathering today—began business in 1843, followed at comparatively short intervals by other equally representative companies, which also through individual membership participate in your deliberations.

We are told in the chronicles that deal with such matters that in ancient Rome the name actuary was given to the clerks who recorded the acts publica of the senate, and also to the officers who kept the military accounts and enforced due fulfillment of contracts for military supplies. The first mention of the word in law is said to be in the Friendly Societies Act of 1819, where it is used in the vague sense, "actuaries, or persons skilled in calculation." It has been used with precision since the establishment of the Institute of Actuaries of Great Britain and Ireland," in 1848, and "The Faculty of Actuaries in Scotland," founded at Edinburgh in 1856, and incorporated by royal charter in 1868.

The Institute of French actuaries and similar societies in Germany, Belgium, and other nations, have taken their place in the ranks of this great body of scientific workers and have had and now have worthy representation in your meetings.

The actuarial society of America was organized in the spring of 1889. While it is young in years you have undoubtedly found it not only active and alert, but ready at all times to undertake and measure up to every requirement of its older and more experienced colleagues.

"In modern times," says a recent writer, "the actuary is the mathematician of an insurance company, who makes the calculations on which its policy, plans, and prices are based, and applies the doctrine of probabilities to fire, life, or accident insurance. Although the material on which he works is theoretically furnished by the experience of his and other cognate companies, and the records of public and private bodies, with the common rules of interest, in fact it needs not only great mathematical capacity, but great practical sagacity to apply them to actual business; and no actuary of the highest class is a mere mathematician.

In the early days, when experience was still mostly to make, the actuaries were usually the presidents of their companies. In recent times a safe body of experience has accumulated which enables business men to head them, and the actuary's computations and advice relate to slighter variations or special plans. In accident companies the actuary needs to be, and usually is, a man of large practical acquaintance with different employments, their hazards, the meaning of given employment names, and those under which the more hazardous employments are disguised as less so; in fire insurance equally he must know the charter of different risks."

It must be a source of scatisfaction to you, as it is a matter of great interest to one who for the first time makes a critical study of your requirements, that membership signifies high attainments and admitted professional standing.

I am glad indeed to greet you, not only as the representative of the government, but of the department of commerce and labor, which is fortunate in participating at the beginning of its career in so representative and noteworthy a meeting as this congress. The officials of the new department will watch your proceedings with great interest, for the more fully we study the scope of the law which created it, the more clearly appear the points at which our work touches the interests which you represent.

RACES POSTPONED.

Providence, R. I., Aug. 31.—The opening series of races in the grand circuit scheduled for today at Narragansett park has been postponed owing to the wet condition of the track.

Miss McPherson has returned from her outing at Isle Royale and will be pleased to see her old customers, also new ones.

TURKEY IS ANXIOUS

Minister at Washington Has Long Interview With Secretary Hay.

Says Porte Will Use Every Effort to Protect Americans.

Washington, Aug. 31.—Chekib Bey, the Turkish minister, had a long interview today with Secretary Hay. He refused to discuss the interview, stating that he had nothing to communicate further than what appeared in the Associated Press dispatches yesterday.

After the interview Secretary Hay visited the navy department. If the Turkish minister requested that the European fleet be kept away from Turkish waters, his request probably cannot be granted, even should this government desire to accede to it, as the navy department states that it will be impossible to communicate with either the Brooklyn or San Francisco until they arrive at Beirut.

Chekib Bey assured Secretary Hay that the Turkish government had done nothing wrong, and will use every endeavor to protect American citizens residing in Turkey. He also discussed the conditions of the insurrection in Turkey, and said that the Turkish government was not responsible for any of the disasters that had occurred. Secretary Hay's call upon Acting Secretary Darling was for the purpose of ascertaining the whereabouts of the European fleet, and also what was their address, and also what their orders are. There is no intention of changing any orders at present, especially as the ships cannot be reached until they arrive at Beirut. No messages of importance have been received from Minister Leishman today.

Late dispatches from Minister Leishman give in detail the conditions in Turkey, and do not differ materially in tone from those previously sent. Minister Leishman does not, as reported in some quarters, refer to the withdrawal of the American ships from Turkish waters. While reports by way of London state that no attempt was made on the life of Vice Consul Magelssen, official advices so far received show that such an attempt was made. The present status was known before the ships left Genoa, and this government did not decide to change the orders. It is now stated, however, that should there be a calm and peaceful condition when the ships arrive there, the matter of sending them to another port will be considered and possibly adopted. The Turkish minister made no request upon Secretary Hay, at an interview today, regarding the movement of United States warships, and nothing in this matter was promised by the state department. In one of the dispatches from Minister Leishman the question of the trial of the teachers in one of the missions at Harpoot was reached, and the minister informed the department that he can see nothing irregular in the trial, but at the request of the missionaries he is seeing to it that no injustice is done. The man was arrested charged with sedition.

Sofia, Aug. 31.—Nine hundred refugees from Maltgotirnovo and surrounding villages have arrived at Urumku, Bulgaria. The refugees say the Turkish garrison fired upon the Bulgarian part of the town with the object of creating an impression that a revolution was in progress.

The perfect, Aug. 31, summoned the Bulgarian notables of Maltkotirnovo and tried to force them to sign a statement that the insurgents were the aggressors. The notables refused to do so and the first man who refused was hanged the following day.

The Macedonian leaders here claim that an aggregate of 2,000 Bulgarians have crossed the frontier, in small parties and joined the insurgents during the last ten days. Gen. Zontelhoff, the president of the Macedonian committee, and Col. Jankoff one of the revolutionary leaders who are now in Macedonia said today that the insurgent forces total 12,000 to 15,000. They expect that a general insurrection will be proclaimed this week.

LORD SALISBURY BURIED.

Remains Interred Beside His Wife at Hatfield.

London, Aug. 31.—The remains of Lord Salisbury were interred today beside those of his wife in the burial ground of the Cecils at Hatfield. The arrangements were of the most private and simple character. All the children of deceased were present, as were also Premier Balfour, Lord Selborne and a few intimate neighbors. Otherwise the mourners were made up of the dead statesman's tenants, retainers and inhabitants of Hatfield. The coffin was carried to and from the parish church by old retainers.

Simultaneously a memorial service was held in Westminster abbey, which was attended by representatives of King Edward, Emperor William and other members of the royal and imperial families, cabinet ministers, former cabinet ministers, diplomats, including Ambassador Choate and members of the other embassies and a host of peers, members of parliament and others. The only floral tribute on Lord Salisbury's coffin was a wreath sent by Queen Alexandra. Other wreaths sent by the king of Portugal and others were used to decorate the graveyard. The archbishop of Canterbury officiated at the funeral service.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

St. Louis, Aug. 31.—With one of the bullets left in his revolver after the murder of his bride, whom he had secretly married a month before, Harry F. Keevil, son of a well known merchant, ended his own life today. He left no message of sorrow or explanation. Mrs. Keevil, who was Annie Schnarr, carried the secret of their marriage to the grave. She declared there had been no quarrel.

No need to fear sudden attacks of cholera infantum, dysentery, diarrhoea, summer complaint of any sort if you have Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry in the medicine chest.

BEST FAIR EVER

The State Exhibition at Hamline Opens Most Auspiciously.

Bigger and Finer Appearing Crowd Than at Any Opening.

St. Paul, Aug. 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—A bigger crowd and finer appearing crowd gave the state fair a better send off today than has ever appeared on the opening day. A program of unusual attractiveness for the first day was the drawing card.

Dan Patch, the world's champion pacer, was sent out to beat his record of 1:59 before an overwhelming grandstand. The handsome black stallion was the sight of a lifetime to thousands, few of whom will probably ever see the pacer again.

Senator Fairbanks of Indiana was the orator of the day and the guest of honor. He was a fitting successor to President Roosevelt and other leading men who have made the opening address in past years, and was greeted by a concourse of people that filled the large tent utilized for the occasion. After the address the senator was given a luncheon in the club house with a company of prominent men from all parts of the state. Finer conditions could not have been provided than were happily given today. A cloudless sky, from which the sun looked down benignantly but not too fiercely on the throng, gave ideal summer weather. It is the earnest hope of all connected with the fair that the same conditions will continue to the end of the week. Secretary Randall said:

"We have a bigger and more elaborate fair than in any of the past forty-four years, with a larger and more widely extended population than ever to look to for support. With the elements smiling kindly there is nothing left to hope for but that things will continue on as they have begun."

The grounds wore the usual scene of rush and bustle. The exhibits had all been put in place, but there were 350 employes on the grounds getting accustomed to their new duties, not to speak of thousands more in charge of exhibits, most of whom desired some little attention from officials.

It was a well-dressed crowd that surged about. While the greater portion of the visitors were people from the country, all had come in their best bib and tucker, ready for a holiday. Many more could not wait for St. Paul day and came at the outset. The street cars had to handle a heavy service from early in the morning.

BOUNDARY COMMISSION.

London, Aug. 31.—Lord Chief Justice Alverstone, the British member of the Alaskan boundary commission, called on Elihu Root this morning and Ambassador Choate called on him later. John W. Foster, former secretary of state saw Mr. Choate this afternoon and they discussed the final arrangement for the meeting at the foreign office Thursday. Counsel for Canada have issued a statement giving an outline of the controversy but not expressing an opinion. It is rumored that Secretary Henry White of the United States embassy, may be secretary of the boundary commission.

RECEIVER GRANTED.

New York, Aug. 31.—Justice Dugro in the supreme court today handed down a decision granting a temporary receiver for the New York Building & Loan Banking company. The application for a receivership was made by Attorney General Cunneen, based on a referee's report to the effect that there was a deficit of $217,000 in the company's assets.

To Hold Court.

Judge Morris left yesterday for Minneapolis, where he will open the fall term of the United States courts.

PROMINENT RAILROAD MEN ON TRIAL FOR MANSLAUGHTER

Directors of the North Jersey Street Railway Company Answer to Indictment Holding Them Responsible For Death of Nine Children.

Newark, N. J., Aug. 31.—The seven members of the executive committee of the board of directors of the North Jersey Street Railway company appeared today in the Essex county court for trial on indictment charging them with manslaughter. On Feb. 19 last nine Newark high school students were killed in a collision between a Clifton avenue trolley car and a Lackawanna express train. Indictments were returned against Alex J. Cassatt, president of the Pennsylvania company; John D. Crimmins, of New York; Edward F. C. Young, president of the North Jersey Street Railway company and of the First National bank of Jersey City; Dr. Leslie Ward, vice president of the Prudential Insurance company; Elisha Gibbs, wholesale merchant and director of the Pennsylvania Railroad company; David Young, vice president and general manager of the North Jersey, and J. Roosevelt Shanley, members of the executive committee of the street railway company. In addition to these men there also appeared as defendants Charles M. Shipman, former general superintendent of the North Jersey, and Arthur Pratt and Richard Eck, division officials of the company. The indictment of these officials followed a verdict by the coroner's jury fixing responsibility on the North Jersey company.

O. H. CLARKE PRESIDENT

Of State Association of Local Fire Insurance Underwriters.

St. Paul, Aug. 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—The State Association of Local Fire Insurance Underwriters met at Room 543 of the Endicott building today, seventy-five members being present. There were several discussions and the election of officers and of delegates to the national convention of fire underwriters at Hartford was held. This evening a banquet at the Commercial club will be followed by a theater party to hear Chauncey Olcott, and tomorrow they will take in the fair. The officers elected were: President, O. H. Clarke, Duluth; first vice president, J. P. Thompson, Minneapolis; second vice president, Frank E. Fay, Stillwater; third vice president, E. E. Hoghson, St. Paul; fourth vice president, W. A. Marin, Crookston; secretary-treasurer, H. Nolte, Duluth. Delegates to the national convention, W. A. Rogers, St. Paul; E. C. Little, Duluth; Theodore Williams, Mankato; William Baumann, Winona; F. G. Warner, St. Paul; D. M. Baldwin, Red Wing; F. H. Wagner, Minneapolis; Alex Campbell, Minneapolis; F. E. Knox, St. Paul; Charles J. Headwell, Minneapolis.

Twenty-four new members were reported from Minneapolis alone. The next convention will be held at Duluth.

PUTS WITTE ASIDE.

Paris, Aug. 31.—The foreign office here points out the significance of the appointment of M. Witte as president of the Russian council of ministers, which is merely an honorary post, whereas the ministry of finance, which he is leaving, is a position of great power and influence. The change practically amounts to putting M. Witte aside, though he will continue to direct Russo-German relations.

Parlor car, club car, dining car and observation car coaches on "The Twilight Limited" daily at 4 p. m. Duluth and the Superiors to the Minnesota state fair, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Stillwater.

KILLED A CONSTABLE.

Sergeant, Ky., Aug. 31.—From a barricaded outhouse, Everitt Fleming, 17 years old, shot and killed Constable Alfred Hall and seriously wounded George Mullins, who were attempting to arrest Fleming last Saturday in Dickinson county, Va.

TRAIN RUNS AWAY.

Colorado Springs, Col., Aug. 31.—A freight train got beyond control above Manitou today and rushed into Colorado City. There the train, which consisted of an engine, a caboose and sixteen loaded box cars, plunged into an engine on the siding, knocking the engine over a hundred yards. The members of the crew jumped and no one was injured. The estimated loss is $25,000.

Are You Going to the State Fair?

Are you going on "The Twilight Limited?" If not, why not? You want the best of everything at the same price, and the "Twilight" furnishes it. Coaches, club cars, parlor cars, observation cars, dining cars—no other train like it.

SHAVED WHISKERS.

There is a well known old gentleman in Detroit who might a few days ago have been easily distinguished in a crowd by the length of the hirsute adornment on his chin, says the Detroit Tribune. His wife is a motherly old body who hadn't seen her hubby without those patriarchal whiskers for more than thirty years, till one sad day last week that will long be remembered in that particular household and by the remainder of the party that were spending a few weeks at the St. Clair Flats.

The old gentleman rather prided himself on his good looks. He is a great admirer of a pretty face. There were a number of ladies in the party who began to rally the old man about his looks. He would be so much better looking, they said, if only he would shave off those old whiskers.

One day last week his wife went up the river with a friend. The old man disappeared for a long time. When he finally reappeared he was a sight for the gods. His whiskers in which he had taken so much pride, were in the waste basket, and his chin was as smooth as a baby's. It took about 15 seconds for everybody in the house to get next, then such shouts of laughter arose as never before had been heard in that cottage.

The pathetic part of the incident happened when his wife came back. The old man had forgotten all about his whiskerless face. His wife gave one gasp of astonishment and sank to the ground overcome. When she came to she sobbed as if her heart were broken, and the old man followed suit. Locked in each other's arms the couple sat on a table, and members of the family say that for at least one hour the tears coursed down their withered faces. The aged culprit is making all possible haste to cultivate a new bunch of spinach.
